University to Assist In Pilot Training

Program Sponsored by the Civil Aeronautics Authority

The Civil Aeronautics Authority has notified President Guy W. Bailey that the University of Vermont has been selected to participate for the year 1939-1940 in the Civilian Pilot Training program now being inaugurated throughout the country. The facilities of the University of Vermont and the Burlington Municipal Airport are cooperating in carrying out the work.

The program is sponsored by the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Its objectives are to train safely and adequately a large group of young men who give promise and show interest in and ability to continue flying activities as private pilots. The training is entirely civil in nature and requires no military or other obligation.

Applicants must have reached their eighteenth birthday but not their twenty-fifth birthday. They must have had no solo flying experience. Students will receive seventy-two hours of ground instruction at the University. Thirty-five to fifty hours of flight instruction will be given at the Burlington Municipal Airport under the general supervision of Manager Harold W. Pugh.

The tuition charge for the course will be $40. The government bears the major part of the expense, amounting to well over $300 per student.

The University will insure each student against personal accident and the airport likewise carries public liability and property damage for the students when taking the flight instruction.

Any students who are interested in receiving further information or making application for this training may apply to Dean George F. Eckhard of the Engineering College, who has details of the instruction and application forms.

Freshman Orientation Week Comes to a Close

Serving to bridge the interim between high school days and college life, the program of freshman orientation kept the incoming class constantly on the go from registration Tuesday morning, September 12, until the close of the freshman mixer, held Saturday evening, September 16. Registration and enrollment, welcoming addresses, conferences, and freshman tests were in order as the class of '43 rushed constantly from building to building through the week.

The frosh met as a class for the first time at 9.00 a.m., Tuesday, as F. W. Kehoe, University Registrar, gave them proper instructions as to registration and enrollment. At 10.00 a.m., the freshmen reconvened, but this time in smaller groups, the colleges of arts, engineering, agriculture, and home economics department meeting separately. Deans Swift, Eckhard, Hills, and Professor Terrill then proceeded to welcome, caution, encourage, discourage, and advise their respective groups concerning all phases of campus life. The remainder of the morning was taken up with freshman conference groups, presided over by the various faculty counsellors.

In the afternoon the men filled out their personal data sheets in the gymnasium, and the entire class completed the arduous process of enrollment. The rest of the afternoon was devoted to health examinations for both men and women.

Pan-Hellenic Plans New Rushing Program

First Semester Rushing An Innovation on Campus

Monday evening, September 18 all sorority women attended a compulsory mass meeting at Southwick.

Betsy Marlow '40, president of this year's Pan-Hellenic Council presided. The year's rushing program and rules were stated and discussed. For the first time in recent years, women's rushing will take place during the first semester. Dean Simpson gave a talk emphasizing the necessity of an adequate system of rushing.

The period until September 30 is the big-little sister period during which all upperclasswomen are urged to cooperate with the Y. W. movement of welcoming freshmen. On September 29, there will be a Pan-Hellenic meeting with freshmen. One member of each sorority and an independent will be present. The sororities will hold open house October 5-6, 12-13, and 19-20. On October 25 the sorority women will have a Fun Night and get-together. Pan-Hellenic will give a tea for all freshman women on November 3 from 4 until 5.30. The final parties will be given from November 13-24, with neutral period from 10 p.m. November 26 until 5 p.m. November 27. Freshmen will sign their preferences at Southwick.

After the Pan-Hellenic talk to freshmen on September 29, discussions of sorority will be allowed at the initiative of the freshmen. During the Open House period the freshman women will be given pamphlets concerning the history of the various sororities. At the Pan-Hellenic talk on September 29, pamphlets giving information about the cost of the different sororities will be given the freshmen.

Dean of Women Greets 400 Freshmen Women

Freshman women, accompanied by their big sisters were entertained at tea from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday, September 16 at Southwick. The Dean's Tea, one of the first of the year's social events was given by the Dean of Women, Mary J. Simpson, who was assisted by the members of the women's honorary societies, Mortar Board, Staff and Sandal, and the Sophomore Aides.

Dean Simpson, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Swift, Mrs. Bickford and the members of Mortar Board received the guests in the North Lounge, members of Staff and Sandal introducing them and conducting them to the ballroom where tea was served by the Sophomore Aides.

The tea was sponsored primarily so that freshman girls might become better acquainted with each other, their big sisters, and other upperclassmen. Assistant hostesses in the ballroom assisted by helping them become better acquainted.

Miss Nichols, college dietitian, was in charge of the refreshments which consisted of tea, cakes, nuts and candies. She was helped by the cooks at Robinson and several of the home economics girls.

Nearly 400 girls were welcomed here to this social gathering which served as a successful introduction to a college year.

All students who paid 25 cents and through error did not receive their Ariel, please leave their names at the Book Store.

Dr. Kemp Appointed New Medical Dean

Has Won Fame for Research Work in Endemic Typhus Fever and Relapsing Fever

Dr. Hardy Alfred Kemp

One of the youngest deans of one of the oldest medical colleges in the United States was officially approved last Friday by vote of the board of trustees of the University of Vermont, and has already entered upon his new duties. He is Dr. Hardy Alfred Kemp, until recently in charge of the department of bacteriology, hygiene and preventive medicine at Baylor University School of Medicine, Dallas, Texas. Born July 13, 1902, at Monett, Missouri, he is just over thirty-seven years old. The College of Medicine of the University of Vermont is the sixth oldest institution of its kind in the United States. Dean Kemp is perhaps the youngest of medical college deans. Women were first admitted to the college in 1920. The medical curriculum was extensively reorganized in 1937. Since the death of former Dean J. N. Jenne two years ago, the medical college has lacked a dean, the work being conducted by a committee in charge.

Dean Kemp is perhaps best known for his research on endemic typhus fever, a disease of the southern states and Mexico, and relapsing fever of North America. In 1934 he won the first award for scientific work in the Southern Medical Association for his study of relapsing fever. Dean Kemp's work with these two diseases included epidemiological and clinical studies and the development of diagnostic tests.

Dean Kemp received his medical education from St. Louis University Medical School, taking his M.D., degree in 1926. His interneship was spent at William Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, Texas.

After a year of private practice at Aurora, Missouri, Dean Kemp spent four months as pathologist in the Missouri State Hospital Service, having charge of the laboratories at the state sanatorium for tuberculosis at Mt. Vernon, Missouri. In the fall of 1928 he accepted the associate professorship of bacteriology and hygiene at Baylor University School of Medicine. He became full professor of these subjects in 1937. He has been visiting professor of bacteriology at the University of Texas Graduate School, Austin, Texas, during the summer sessions of 1935, 1936, 1937, and 1938, teaching immunology. As lecturer at the Southwestern Institute for Social Workers, under auspices of the Civic Federation of Dallas and various state and federal agencies, during the winters of 1935, 1936, and 1937, he has taught preventive medicine and public health law.

Dean Kemp is a Major in the Medical Reserve Corps, and would be assigned to the Surgeon-General's office in the event of mobilization.

Engineering Honor Students Announced

Twelve students with scholastic averages of 90% or above for the second semester 1938-1939 headed the list of honor students in the College of Engineering which was released recently by Dean George F. Eckhard. There were twenty-four other students on the list, eleven of whom had an average of 85% to 90%, with the grade of the remaining thirteen falling between 80% and 90%.

The class of 1939 took first place, having twelve men on the list. There were eleven men from 1942's ranks, ten of the class of 1941, while 1940 produced three honor men.

SOPHOMORES WIN FOUNTAIN FIGHT

Upsetting all predictions, a small band of sophomores successfully defended the fountain against the frosh raiders Thursday night at 7 o'clock. The traditional enemies clashed for seven minutes, and when the allotted time was up, it was found that 22 of the newcomers on the hill had been sunk, to 20 of the defenders.

After assembling at Converse Hall, the frosh charged the old fountain on the University green, where the sophomores were awaiting them in mass formation. Attired practically as mother nature would have them, the combatants pulled and grunted in an effort to submerge enemy fighters. The freshmen were identified by handkerchiefs or facsimilies tied around their arms, while the sophomores had greased their bodies so that they would be hard to grab.

After the fight the frosh invaded Church Street with their traditional snake dance. The new class tied up traffic in the business district completely, and tried to crash the movies, but were unsuccessful.

Both the fight and snake dance were organized and handled by Boulder, senior men's honorary society.

FRESHMAN MEN SPEND WEEK-END AT ABNAKI

Over sixty men of the entering class at the University of Vermont returned to the city Monday morning after spending the week-end at the men's freshman camp, at Abnaki in North Hero, run every fall just preceding the opening of college to help freshmen in becoming oriented to campus life.

Student leaders, faculty members and officers from the Y. M. C. A. addressed

Ye Olde Fountain Fighte

In the good old days the Fountain Fight, that annual preliminary skirmish between the two lower classes, did not used to be very well organized, It was a traditional affair and exceedingly one-sided. A powerful party of sophs would trap a small group of freshmen, tie them up and deposit them in the fountain. Long one-way drives into the country for frosh, now taboo, were the order then. Although this treatment was distinctly hazing, it was apparently carried on in a very good natured way, for an old issue of the Cynic records that after the frosh had been bathed the two enemy bands would unite in singing "Champlain" up and down Church Street, arm in arm.

As the undergraduate mind matured, which it did after the war, such rough treatment of our new arrivals was condemned. Under faculty instigation, new and more humane freshman rules were drawn up, to be enforced by Gold Key, the men's sophomore society. The traditional green cap was still kept on the youngsters' heads, however, and the Fountain Fight, Hose Fight, and Cane Rush remained. It was decided to let Boulder, senior society, run the affair. A seven-minute time limit was put on the brawl, and an official count was to be made of the victims.

But do not get the idea that under the new regulations the scrap became a sissie business. Why a couple of years ago the fight had to be postponed becauuse the retaining wall broke and flooded the spectators. In all the years, however, the sophomores did not lose until the frosh class of '36 broke the jinx. After that the sophs came tumbling fast. The classes of '38, '39, '40, and '41 all tasted muddy defeat. It took the great class of '42 to stem the tide.

It is hoped that the promising class of '43 has learned its lesson, and taking courage from defeat, will rise up and crush the sophomores in the remaining two struggles. Let them remember that they will wear those horrible little caps until Thanksgiving unless they do. Incidentally they are allowed no presidential choice as to Thanksgiving days.

The grinding process has again begun. Prep schools and high schools of the country have sent another shipment of grain to the University of Vermont where the Old Mill continues its work of separating chaff from fine grain and then converting that same fine grain into the best grade of flour.

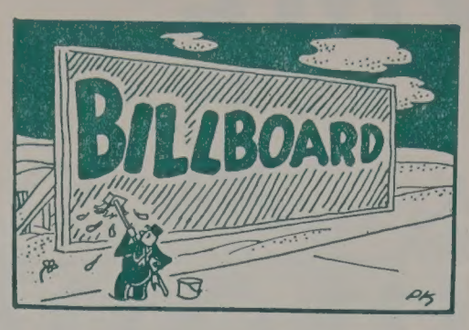
Some of that grain has been partially ground but a fresh supply has yet to enter the Mill for the first time. That which has already been ground in part is the portion of the student body which includes the sophomores, juniors, and seniors. Over four hundred young men and women comprise the unknown quantity which make up the freshman class and it is this part of the shipment in which we are most interested at the present time. They have yet to feel the full impact of the Mill and they know not what to expect.

Therefore, it behooves the writer at this time to acquaint them with some of the ways of the Mill and to point out how to get the most out of the grinding process.

Slowly the wheels of the Mill turn round in their ponderous and inexorable manner. As new students have undoubtedly already been told, soms chaff will be found. On the other hand, a new supply of fresh flour will be produced. Whether he shall be chaff or flour depends almost entirely upon the individual himself. It is true that because of sickness, finances, and other sound reasons the careers of many will be cut short. The careers of others will end only because of their own slipshod study methods.

Too mauy students have the wrong attitude toward college and college life. They believe that collegiate life is comparable to a prolonged picnic—that college is a glorified country club. Some will learn their lesson early and survive, while others will profit not at all from their mistakes and refuse to face the realities of life.

There is time for work and time for play and that old adage about Jack and work was never more true. There is no room in college or in life for the person who plays continually and the sooner the new student learns this all-important lesson the better off he will be.



You should not, on the other hand, believe that the academic life alone is to be desired for this would be fallacious indeed. One should cultivate other interests and try to arrange a well-rounded program. This should be done cautiously at first until one can be sure that it will be safe to pursue such a program vigorously.

Vermont has much to offer in the line of extra-curricular activities. Not alone in sports but also in such varied fields as music, the theatre, writing, and publishing. Numerous clubs and other organizations afford opportunities to develop leadership ability as well as excellence in managerial work. Valuable business experience can be gained which will be of distinct importance in after-life.

The University may point with pride to its athletic history for past years have seen its athletes climb to an increasingly important spot in the sporting world. A large variety of sports makes it possible for all to participate and to gain accordingly.

Tradition lends color and zest to our already well-filled life here. The Fountain Fight, ths Cane Rush, and the Hose Fight are specific examples. Others are the Freshman Mixer, the gay Razz Dazzes and the exceedingly colorful Kake Walk, an affair which is unique at Vermont.

Here is a brief, inadequate description of life at Vermont and a few suggestions on how best to get the most out of your stay here. Freshmen, we give you Vermont and caution you again—the dividends you receive will be directly proportionate to what you invest.

Our allotment is based on 130 students, to date we have over 350 applications and therefore will be able to help only those who are the most needy.

All students who have applied or will apply must have complied with the following requirements:

1. Obtained a Federal Application Form for the year 1939-40. These were received August 28 and have not been sent to all applicants. It is your duty to make sure that you have the correct and up-to-date application form.

2. Completed the filling out of the application form with signature of parent attached.

3. Held a personal conference with the director, and executed the citizenship affidavit. The director is a notary public and there is no fee for executing the citizenship affidavit.

It will be the duty of applicants to see that the above requirements are fulfilled. No permanent assignment will be made without a personal interview with the director.

All information relating to the NYA work will be found on the bulletin board at the NYA office on the second floor of the Old Mill Building.

Arthur D. Butterfield,
Director of NYA at the University of Vermont.

Outing Club Plans Hike in Mountains

Attention everybody! The University of Vermont Outing Club is issuing its first call of the season for all hikers, mountain climbers and outdoorsmen. On next Sunday, September 24, the club will sponsor its first scheduled hike to Nebraska Notch. Bob Davis '41 is to be the leader of this hike. Arrangements have been made for transportation which will leave the men's gym at 9 a.m. standard time. The hike is restricted to members of the Outing Club and for the convenience of those who may not yet have joined, membership will be available at that time.

Prospective hikers should bring their own lunches, a tin cup and the thirty-five cents required for transportation. Students planning to attend this outing should leave their names in the Outing Club bulletin board (located north of the Book Store) before Friday noon.

Let's start the autumn hiking season off with a bang—fall days and the green mountains are an irresistible combination; We'll expect you all out with us to hit the open trail; Freshmen are especially welcome.

The Band Wagon

By BOB JOHNSON

Greetings gates! (Like Jerry Colonna we're going too, too commercial.)

Starting off on a blue note, we mourn the passing of Chick Webb, diminutive showman who, with amazing personality and a pair of sticks, carved his own niche in Swingdom's mythical hall of fame. Orchids to Ella, Chick's proteg-A for taking over the reins and reigning with the help of Willie Beason on the throne.

RAVES

The Harry James outfit—superterrific—but needing a good femme warbler.

Charlie Barnet's musicrew—colossal—needing only a little more seasoning.

Improvement in Les Brown's combine since his recent changes in personnel.

Erskine Hawkins and company—amazingly good—versatile—and playing in very good taste.

The Duke finally swinging into his own and getting some of the credit he has long deserved.

Always—Glenn Miller—whose sax style is being copied by far too many others.

The new Goodman knocker-outers—but to us Stacey is missing in that rhythm corner.

WE SEE

Hitler's campaigns may send many sepian performers back to us—following the lead of Cole Hawkins. Old man depression and lack of appreciation formerly drove them to the more artistic people of Europe. "It's an ill wind, etc." Dig, Dig, Dig all of Hawk's old records.

Burlington and Newport pavilions have given dancers in the northern section a chance to hear many of the best name bands during the past three months.

To the south Jan Campbell and his Dixieland Five have served to educate with really original ideas and good dancopation.

Jimmie Smith gave us a boot with some real low-down stuff. He's been working northern New York for years.

AT A GLANCE

Our kicks for the summer have come from early morning jam sessions at which Ray Blood, currently with Sonny Keefe, was the star. Ray, playing trumpet in the manner of James and Eldridge, has plenty of riffs on his own. One of his cohorts—Romie Perry—chilled us plenty with his clarinet rides.

Dave Carter—Californian collegian of local reputation—knocked us out with his subtle stuff during the week he filled the Catamounts' tenor chair.

'TIL NEXT TIME

After a week or two, or three, we may be back in the harness. 'Til then please bear with us. It's all rather tame after "six hours a night, seven nights a week." Won't one-nighters in the hinterlands seem easy now. Having had his share of embouchure troubles, Philbert says—so long and

"Rub a dub dub—
This is where we get off."

University of Vermont co-eds have formed a new club to promote improvement of their personalities.

In 1936 there were 1,015,000 living graduates of all United States higher educational institutions.

Women Hold Freshman Camp at Hochelaga

Betty Myers, '40, Welcomes Ninety-eight

The 1939 season of Freshman Camp held at Camp Hochelaga and sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. of the University of Vermont was larger and more successful than expected. Under the able guidance of Betty Myers '40, director; Elizabeth Gurney '41, assistant director; and Mrs. Weld, director of Camp Hochelaga, ninety-eight freshman girls experienced their first glimpse of future college life. Florence Wade '40, Sally Rome '42, Mary Nelson '40, Phyllis McGovern '40, Shirley Gray '41, Kay LeBaron '41, Gratia Pearl '42, Mary Howe '40, Jean Butler '40, Mary Letta Root '41, as upperclassmen assisted in the carrying out of the program as well as helping the girls to get acquainted.

Friday night, after the freshmen were registered and unpacked a banquet was held in their honor. They received warm greetings from Betty Myers, Dean Simpson, Florence Wade, and Mrs. Weld. Before taps the girls gathered in groups to discuss college life and problems with the upperclassmen.

Saturday morning was devoted to half hour discussion groups. Charlotte Perkins portrayed to the freshmen the life of the college girl while Prof. John Metcalf gave an interesting and worthwhile talk on studying, its values and methods.

Abernethy Clarkson Wright, Inc. of Burlington gave the girls many suggestions for the correct college clothes. Some of the upperclassmen modeled the sample clothes which she brought with her. During the remainder of the day the girls enjoyed swimming, baseball, volleyball, and hiking. At night a picnic supper took place with singing and talks from the upperclassmen following.

Sunday morning Charlotte Perkins '38 led an outdoor worship service. During the first part of Sunday evening a buffet supper and group skits were enjoyed by all. To close the evening and add a more serious note to the week-end the freshmen attended a very impressive candle-light ceremony which ended with the singing of Champlain.

Monday three truck loads of girls arrived from camp and were left at the various dormitories and houses on campus.

The closing of freshman week-end was the gathering of all the freshman girls for a group sing at Grassmount.

He is now at work on an original symphonic-jazz selection called "Portrait of a Mood," which will be played by the Horned Frog Band.

J. G. Cohen Heads '39-'40 Cynic Radio League

Going into its second year, the Vermont CYNIC Radio League promises to become an even greater and more vital part of Vermont campus activity. Announcement was recently made that J. G. Cohen '42, will succeed E. Dangel '41, who has transferred to another school, as Radio League Editor. Cohen, a premedical student, won honors as a freshman debater and took first prize in the Kingsley Prize Speaking contest. He is a member of Phi Sigma Delta.

With the idea fostered by Dangel, the inception of the weekly broadcasts last year marked a new branch of expansion of CYNIC activity, and provided the much needed opportunity of practice in the field of radio for U. V. M. students.

The new editor has pledged himself to cover every department, organization, and activity of the University on the air before the school year ends. An attempt will be made to create enough general interest in the league so that undergraduates, graduates, and faculty alike will of their own free will express their opinions concerning campus activity over the air. The league wishes to establish itself as a definite and permanent medium of campus expression, and hopes that the student body and faculty will take advantage of it as such.

First Program September 21

Regular half-hour programs will be presented weekly over the Burlington Daily News Station WCAX. Besides this the league will be supplemented this year by a weekly column in the CYNIC which will feature reports and comment concerning the programs.

The first program of the 1939-40 season will be presented on Thursday, September 21. The league hopes to bring to its listeners at that time Coach John P. Sabo and several members of this year's football aggregation, who will comment upon prospects for this year, and perhaps offer a few predictions as to the outcome of the coming season. A representative of Key and Serpent, junior men's honorary society, will explain the rules and regulations of the hose fight and cane rush, two of the annual tussels between the freshmen and the sophomores. The program will be interspersed by many recorded Vermont campus songs.

ROTC SUMMER TRAINING HELD AT FORT DEVENS

Twenty-eight juniors and one senior of the advanced course of Military Science and Tactics journeyed to Fort Devens, Mass., June 13, where they encamped for a six-week training period. These twenty-nine Vermonters were included among a group of 180 other students from various Eastern colleges.

It is a requirement for advanced military students to attend this camp in order that they may receive their commission.

The R. O. T. C. men received instruction in pistol and automatic rifle firing. The future second lieutenants were given intense training in latest army tactics, and they were drilled constantly by the attending active army officers.

Major Coffin and Sergeant Pickett of the local military department were at this camp, Major Coffin serving as an instructor.

Major Linden of the military department at Boston University served as the executive officer while Colonel Stutesman was the camp director.

The boys broke up camp on July 24; whereupon they returned to their various home towns, where they arrived a mite richer due to the fact that they received a daily allowance of 70 cents and 5 cents a mile for carfare.

PORTUGUESE ADDED TO CURRICULUM AT TEXAS

Austin, Tex.—(I.P.)—Portuguese will be added to the list of foreign languages taught at the University of Texas next fall. The course has never before been a part of the University curriculum, but has been added because of the increasing interest in Spanish-American countries, in which millions of people speak Portuguese, Dr. C. M. Montgomery, professor of Romance languages, announced here.

A new Italian course for beginners has also been added, primarily for students majoring in the fine arts.

Students running for office in the University of Florida spring elections spent an estimated $2,500 on their campaigns.

Even a Railroad Spike can't "take it" like this Jewel of a Parker Pen

GUARANTEED for LIFE ♦
(against everything except loss or intentional damage)

We're using more than 250 college papers to tell students of the 5 devastating and devitalizing feats recently performed by the Parker Vacumatic to prove it will last for life. No other pen we know has ever faced such torture. Yet the Parker Vacumatic did it—can do it any time—and come forth in perfect working order.

1st—Filled with Acid (strong ferric chloride solution which ate away a railroad spike) instead of with ink, this incredible pen wrote a 5-mile line with the acid on a revolving paper-covered drum and finished in perfect working order.

2nd—"Bomb" Test: Parker's Diaphragm filler encased in an oxygen bomb FOR WEEKS, where a single day equals 6 months' normal age—to prove its long life.

3rd—"Electrocution": Every Parker Diaphragm proved 100% leak-proof by exposing it to 5,000 volts of electricity which flashes a red light if there's even a pinhole leak.

4th—"Drip Test": Pens filled and hung points down for hours in frigid temperature, then in torrid temperature.

5th—Dropped 3,000 ft. from an airplane to prove the lovely laminated pearl barrel and cap are Non-Breakable.

You never saw such a pen. You never owned one. A sacless pen that holds far more ink than ordinary rubber sac pens—shows the ink level at all times, hence won't run dry without warning, in classes or exams. So go and see it now and get it for college and for life.

Makeshift Eleven Prepares For Amherst

Johnny Sabo and Wietz Busy Themselves With Eight Lettermen and Fifteen Recruits

With the first scheduled game a fortnight away, Vermont football coach John Sabo and his aide de camp, Roy Wietz, look ahead to a so-so season. Prospects, according to the tutoring staff, are average.

Eight lettermen and fifteen recruits form the squad, which commences scrimmages this week after two weeks of calisthenics and signal drill. Conspicuous by his absence is Capt. Leighton Bud Kimball, whom ineligibility has claimed.

Most of the new candidates are sophomores. A miscellaneous few are out for the sport for the first time, or back after a year's layoff. In the latter category are Pete Flynn, Bill Cross, Red White, Elmer Nichols, and Al Shaw.

Wholesale shifting of positions appears to be the order of the day at the Cat training base. No less than four of last year's starters, two varsity and two frosh, now operate from new headquarters. Bill Pye, all-state end, moves into a halfback slot in the current set-up. Center Jim Corbett goes to end (he played there as a freshman), and a pair of sophs, Herb Long and Ed Kodys, switch from fullback to tackle and from end to back respectively.

The bulk of the running, passing, and kicking duties center on Frank Taylor, junior halfback. Off his last year's showing, Taylor should handle his assignments adequately.

Pye showed surprising ability in the open field running department as a pass receiver last season. Sabo has two experienced signal callers in George Broutsas, veteran, and the versatile sophomore, Johnny Spasyk.

Wietz, the line specialist, has sixteen candidates, including five lettermen. Mist Rice, the frosh whiz last season, and Earl Reed, Corbett's dependable understudy a year ago, are out for center. Of the five tackles on the squad, two, Boots Lawrence and Swede Carlson, are returners. Lawrence is back at his familiar post after a brief period as blocking back.

Norm Strassburg is the sole veteran guard. Four men, Nichols, Herb Long, Red Lawlor, and Norm Dubie, are in the running for the other guard berth.

Besides Corbett, three sophomores are working out at end. They are the two Whites, Red and Whizzer, and Dick Patterson. Red White didn't play football for the frosh last year, concentrating on basketball. He had grid experience at Kingsley School, in New Jersey, where he prepped.

The varsity season opens away a week from Saturday, with strong Amherst the opponent.

Complete roster:

Ends: J. J. White, J. A. White, J. Corbett, R. Patterson.

Tackles: M. Lawrence, P. Flynn, H. Carlson, G. Babbits, C. Long.

Guards: E. Nichols, H. Long, N. Strassburg, J. Lawlor, N. Dubie.

Centers: H. Rice, E. Reed.

FRESHMAN HILL AND DALERS REPORT IN GYM

When this article is read a call will already have been sent out for those men wishing to aspire to a place on the frosh cross-country squad to report to Archie Post on the squash court Monday at four o'clock. By no means is any candidate to feel that because he did not receive the notice or did not report that he has lost his chance of membership.

As is usually the case freshman teams in the early periods of assemblage as well as prospective first-year material is unknown. Experience, although desirable, is not necessary because a frosh squad serves for the most part as a developing or discovery ground for future varsity material.

The schedule for the frosh cross-country team, includes meets with Dartmouth, Waterbury High School, Vermont State School of Agriculture, and Middlebury.

34 Frosh Report To Fuzzy Evans

Four o'clock on the first day of school marked the opening practice for the freshman football team. Thirty-four rugged individuals, each and every one doing his utmost to impress Coach "Fuzzy" Evans, reported and went through a light workout under a blistering, merciless sun. Of course, as is natural for a first practice, they all looked as if a couple of weeks training wouldn't do them any harm, but under the watchful eye of Coach Evans, who for the past two seasons has put out championship teams, they will, invariably, get that much needed "polishing-off."

Besides punting and passing, the boys worked out on the tackling dummy, and to have had to change places with that dummy would have been suicide for anybody. The tackles were so hard and vicious that it looked as if "Middlebury" was printed across it!

As far as who excelled is concerned it is hard to say at this stage, but it would be well to keep an eye on a boy named Carey, who got off some nice punts, and Sanders, who flipped the pigskin with plenty of zip.

The Frosh play four games this fall starting with Vermont Junior College, and following with the Dartmouth Jayvees, Green Mountain Junior College, and last, but ever so important, Middlebury. The team will have a real session in a few days when they will have their first scrimmage.

Tennis and Golf Tourneys Start Soon

Under the direction of Director Archie T. Post the intramural sports competitions will get under way next week. A golf tournament and tennis tournament are already scheduled. The tennis competition will be held on the University courts. A twenty-five-cent fee is required of all those registering for the tournament. All those interested should sign up in the Physical Education Office on or before Tuesday, September 19, as the registration will be closed tonight in order that pairings may be drawn up. Thus far the following have signed up for the tennis singles competition: John F. McCabe, William West, B. C. May, Frederic Potter, Lester Brown, C. Barber, Warner Black, Pat Moore, George C. Stanley, Jr.

The golf tournament has drawn the following entries thus far: Scribner C. Palmer, Bradford M. Perkins, Edward Keenan, Jr., Les Brown. The matches will be held at the Wabanaukee Golf Club and tickets may be obtained in the Physical Education Office. All those interested are advised to register not later than today.

The tournaments will be run off as quickly as weather conditions permit. Following these two events a full program of intramural activities has been prepared to round out the year.

Urbana, Ill.—(I.P.)—"The play's the thing," according to figures recently compiled from the files of the Illini Theater Guild. Membership total in the guild this year is 1,006 an increase of approximately 200 over last year.

Women's inherent desire to act is shown by the approximate two to one ratio they hold over the male members of the guild. Women in the organization number 646 while men number only 360.

More than half of the Illini Theater Guild members are enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts. Members from the various schools number liberal arts 559, commerce 125, engineering 53, fine arts 70, agriculture 93, physical education 12, education 73, and journalism 26.

Approximately one-third of all higher educational institutions in the United States are state supported and controlled.

Coach Post Drills Varsity Harriers

Team Opens Tough Schedule Against Union on October

With the first meet scheduled for October 7, and a tough schedule of five strong teams to face, Coach Archie Post has deemed it wise to start his harriers plodding daily over hill and dale. All aspirants for varsity cross-country were called together, therefore, on the squash court Monday to hear a talk on the coming season, and to arrange their schedule of practice sessions.

Coach Post will attempt to build a strong team around his running nucleus of Harry Ketchum and Frankie Livak. He will be reinforced by Fred and Charlie Webster and Jack Burgess, three freshman recruits who formed the nucleus of a successful frosh squad last year. These nuclei should band together to give Mr. Post a swift moving array of view chasers who will provide ample competition for Vermont opponents this year.

The green and gold harriers will face Union, Dartmouth, Bowdoin, Williams, and Middlebury in that order. They will attempt to better a record of two wins and three losses established by their predecessors. The wins included Williams and Middlebury while losses were suffered at the hands of Union, Dartmouth, and Bowdoin.

Vermont Teams of '38-'39 In Review

With a new year of college sports already under way it is interesting to review the deeds of last year's varsity teams and note what bearing they may have on the coming year. Taken all in all last year was a good year. On the gridiron the Catamounts completed one of the most successful campaigns in the history of football at U. V. M. for many years. The gridsters won four, lost two and tied one. The only great disappointment of the season was the loss to Middlebury.

A fast, scrappy basketball squad hurdled through a tough schedule winning ten and losing five. Among the victories were the scalping of Dartmouth and the highly touted Lord Jeffs of Amherst. It was a season which saw such sophomores as Dick Healey, Frank Taylor, and Bill Pye show signs of future greatness.

The cross-country team riddled by injuries was able to win two while losing five, while the tennis men came through with four victories as against five defeats. In track a so-so season was capped by a decisive victory over Middlebury. The spiked speedsters garnered two wins and went down to defeat twice.

On the diamond we find the score twelve wins against twelve defeats. If we leave out the record of the southern trip, which is only a conditioning trip anyway, we find the victory column considerably larger.

So we find that Vermont teams rolled up a grand total of thirty-four victories, thirty-one defeats and two ties—a season that resulted in the balance being on the winning side. Vermont points to a new season with hopes of bettering this record.

HIKERS PREPARE TO SCALE MT. MANSFIELD

Hike fans attention! The Outing Club of Vermont University really starts the season off next Sunday, September 24, when the woodsmen and woodsgals head for Taylor Lodge. Taylor Lodge is situated on the southeast slopes of Mt. Mansfield, 1,000 feet above Lake Mansfield.

The hikers will leave from the men's gym in trucks at 8.45 a.m. and will be back in time for supper. The trip will cost 35 cents, lunch is to be brought along and high heels and skirts are strictly out.

All those interested are requested to sign up at the Outing Club's bulletin board before Friday noon.

A membership ticket which costs $1.00 also includes membership in the New England Intercollegiate Outing Club which as the title suggests is an organization composed of most of the New England colleges.

The club also sponsors the University of Vermont's Outing Club ski team. Overnight hikes are also an important function of the Outing Club.

Two Games of the Times

A couple weeks ago Coach Johnny Sabo held his first football drill in preparation for the 1939 gridiron campaign. We read of it in our local paper and were pleased naturally with the line prospects and displeased naturally with the backfield outlook. Nevertheless, neither the line nor the backfield could occupy our thoughts for very long. We could not help letting our mind wander to the European brand of football that Mentor Hitler and his Nasty Nazi charges were advocating for the fall campaign and we could not help but wonder if Centennial Field will be used as a playground of purely American activities like football next fall or as a training ground for United States cannon fodder. It's strange and almost fantastic the relationship between this European game of death and our American game of football. The comparisons between the two outdoor pastimes are realistic, if somewhat ludicrous. When a husky end piles up the interference, and a fast halfback comes charging in to down the runner we are reminded of a machine gun which accomplishes the same goal with a much more clearly defined air of finality. The only difference seems to be that in the American game, the ball carrier usually hops to his feet ready for the next contact while in the European game the machine gun's bullet usually prohibits further locomotion by the individual brought to earth. Or perhaps the Europeans would use a hand grenade. We hear they are very effective at transposing healthy bodies into a maze of shredded limbs and torn entrails. An end would very definitely be all-American if he could dispose of the interference as effectively, as rapidly, and in such numbers as the hand grenade accomplishes. Fortunately that is not the American way. We, who according to the Europeans lack their culture and are termed uncivilized, who have gangs and mobs and slums and dead-end kids, do not choose to use guns. We put man against man, we employ formations, we use strategy, and we have one man who thinks for eleven—a general—we grow fanatically excited as the pendulum swings first in our favor and then in the opposition, but we do not choose to use guns.

I'm reminded of a cartoon suggestion we received two days ago. It was entitled "Southpaw" and had two parts. The first was headed "The American Way" and showed a left-handed pitcher rocking back on his left foot in preparation to throwing a baseball. The second division was entitled "The European Way" and showed a fully-equipped soldier also back on his left foot—only clutched in his left hand, was not a baseball, but a hand grenade. We are thankful that at least for the moment the American conception of a southpaw is a baseball player.

The Contemporary Scene

We started out to write a brief paragraph on the European game of war and our game of football and four sheets of paper later noticed that the brief paragraph had by some means undergone a metamorphosis, and was now a rather lengthy editorial and that it was now high time to give a thought to our own Catamount football team, which we are afraid will not be the greatest team the University of Vermont has had, but which we are glad to say will come very far from being its worst. In brief, the eleven is slated for a moderately successful season. Men like Trigilio and Kimball will be greatly missed in the backfield. Coach Sabo must build a new backfield around Frankie Taylor and if Bill Pye and Boots Lawrence are as good this year in the backfield as they were last year in the line Coach Sabo will have done a remarkable job. Johnny Spasyk of last year's frosh contingent appears to be slated for the signal barking post and Al Shaw of the frosh team of '37 and Ed Kodys, another sophomore, are two more men who have excellent possibilities. The line seems to be in much better shape. Jim Corbett is back at his old end position and he will probably have Whizzer White on his opposite flank. The center of the line looks pretty powerful with Swede Carlson, Norm Strassburg, Misty Rice, Norm Duby, and Pete Flynn. However, the only thing we're sure of is that Amherst is going to prove a tought nut to crack for this unknown quantity.

Grapes of Grief

The remaining part of the sports department wishes to use this medium to express its sorrow at U. V. M.'s losing its co-Sports Editor Jim Cunavelis, who is now enrolled in the Journalism School of the University of Missouri, and also its only Sports News Editors Bud Rubens and Jack Fahey, neither of these men having returned to this school this fall. It will be extremely hard to find men to replace them.

ELEVEN STUDENTS RATE STRAIGHT A AVERAGE

Four sophomores as of last year and seven freshmen are rated as all-A students on the high standing list released recently by the administration offices of the University of Vermont. The names of an unusually large number of students are carried on the list, which is based on the grades for June of the two lower classes. In addition to the eleven students who received no grade below A, thirty-eight sophomores and fifty freshmen received no grade below B.

Of the eleven students to make an all-A grade, seven are women and four are men. The sophomores are Margaret M. Beattie of St. Johnsbury, taking the classical course; D. V. Collins, chemistry, of Burlington; Evelyn M. Fuller, home economics, Chester; Jessie Swann, Latin-Scientific, Danvers, Mass.

The freshmen scoring an all-A rating are Barbara R. Bishop, secretarial, Springfield; Isabelle M. Carter, general science, St. Johnsbury; J. M. Evans, social science, Burlington; Jane R. Judd, Latin-Scientific, Randolph Center; C. W. H. Partridge, chemistry, Burlington; Hester D. Rice, home economics, Derby Line; W. W. Suojanen, business, Ludlow.

The total number of students on the list, ranking as all-A or all-B, is ninety-nine. The total number of students in the two lower classes was 746.

What the V. C. A. Does For the Student Body

The Vermont Christian Association is an organization devoted to the purpose of developing a spirit and idealism in the University of Vermont worthy of Christian students.

The Association is supported by the students, faculty, alumni, and worthy friends of the University. It is directed by Mr. Powers and led by a group of male students who are elected annually to the V. C. A. cabinet.

The Vermont Christian Association serves many purposes. It maintains a student employment bureau which places many students on jobs. This service helps many students pay part of their expenses while here at the University. The Association conducts a student rooming bureau which helps find many new students suitable rooming houses with proper facilities. The Vermont Christian Association sends deputations to rural communities. These deputations mingle with the rural people and socials are frequently held on Saturday nights. The deputation sleeps over and on Sunday morning, church services are held at the various country churches. Kenneth Johnson is the chairman of the deputation committee.

The Association sponsors the Frosh Handbook which is sent to all incoming freshmen giving them a line on various activities and organizations of the college. The freshman mixer is also the work of the Association.

Harry Noyes will soon call a meeting of all freshmen and future plans will be discussed.

INFLUENCE OF COLUMBIA LAW SCHOOL INCREASING

New York, N. Y. (IP)—The work of the Columbia University School of Law is increasingly influential in other universities, it is pointed out in a report of the Committee on Graduate Instruction, headed by Prof. Edwin W. Patterson, the graduate division continuing to contribute its quota to the ranks of the law faculties in the better grades of law schools.

Of the seven holders of fellowships in this division last year, all but one, who entered a law office, are engaged in law teaching. They include: Prof. Ralph F. Fuchs of Washington University, St. Louis; Leslie T. Tupy of the University of Kansas; and Alfred E. Harsch of the University of Washington; Milton Green, associate professor, and Robert Willard, lecturer, in law, both at the University of Utah; Russell N. Sullivan, assistant professor at the University of Louisville; Lindsey R. Jeanblanc, associate professor of business law at the University of Alabama.

In addition, Santos Primo Amadeo, who received the degree of master of laws last year, is on the faculty of political science at the University of Puerto Rico. Fred A. Dewey, master of laws in 1934, is teaching at Southern Methodist University after four years of practice in Cleveland, while Thomas R. Witmer, bachelor of law in 1937, has been appointed assistant professor at Yale Law School.

Frosh Class Passes Four Hundred Mark

The youngest class at the University of Vermont which is now enrolling for its first year of work, already numbers more than four hundred. The class of 1943, with enrollment still open and with late arrivals presumably yet to come, bids fair to equal the record-breaking numbers of the class of 1942, which last year with 459 members gave the University its largest freshman class and also the greatest total enrollment in its history.

Enrolling officials, still snowed under by cards, forms and folders, from the horde of new students, were unable to predict whether the final figure would be greater or less than last year's high mark. One advance indication was seen in the fact that more than five hundred had written one office of their intention to enter the University.

For the past three years enrollment figures at the University of Vermont have shown increases.

For freshmen and upperclassmen alike, the first classes of the college year met. Saturday was a rush day for the new arrivals, with an intelligence test scheduled for all freshmen from 8.30 to 10.30 in the morning, an abbreviated half-day schedule of classes following, and the tea given in honor of freshman women in the afternoon. In the evening freshman will meet freshman at the freshman mixer, a dance given especially for the new students so that they may meet one another socially. The dance is sponsored annually by the Vermont Christian Association and the University branch of the Y. W. C. A.

The procession of faculty and students and the President's address, scheduled for Wednesday morning, was omitted this year due to the illness of President Bailey. At 11.00 a.m., however, both men's and women's conferences were held. Lieut. Col. Gilfillan, in the absence of Colonel Spalding, spoke to the men in the Fleming Museum auditorium, and gave to them general information and advice concerning the course in Military Science. Dean Simpson presided over the women's conference held at the Southwick Memorial building on the Redstone campus.

In the afternoon the women filled out their personal data sheets. Library instruction was also given, and registration photographs and physical examinations were taken. At 6.00 p.m. the Women's Student Union tendered a picnic supper on the Redstone campus to the freshman lassies.

Thursday morning was devoted to various health conferences and examinations, and interviews with freshman counsellors. The afternoon saw the continuation of library instruction, registration photographs, and health examinations, with all freshmen taking an Analysis of Work Interests test in the gym at 4 o'clock. The frosh men had their first intimate meeting with the sophomores at the fountain fight Thursday evening.

Special Classes Saturday

Regular class work for all classes began Friday morning at 8.30. However, a special schedule for all classes was in effect Saturday, to allow for the intelligence test given to all freshmen by Professor Metcalf in the gym at 8.30.

Mrs. Bailey, Dean Simpson, and Assistant Dean Harris were hostesses at a reception and tea given for freshman women in the Southwick Memorial building.

Madison, Wis.—(Special)—Nine per cent of the students enrolled in the University of Wisconsin can boast of being sons or daughters of former Wisconsin students, according to figures recently released by the Wisconsin Alumni Records office. There are 1,020 students of the net enrollment of 11,416 during the past semester whose parents are listed in the alumni records files.

The Museum has also secured a color film entitled "Penthouse of the Gods," dealing with Tibetan scenery and life, and will show this film in the City Hall auditorium with an admission charge.

A week before Thanksgiving, plans are being made to present Mrs. Enid Fairbairn of Wellesley, Mass., speaking on colonial times and pioneer days. This will be a Thanksgiving program, with the speaker appearing in colonial costume and displaying many accessories of the period.

Museum Sends Exhibit For Blind on Tour

Outlook for the Blind, New York magazine published in Braille for blind persons, will carry in its October issue an article by Dr. H. F. Perkins, director of the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont. The article describes the exhibition arranged by the Fleming Museum under the guidance of Doctor Perkins, designed to be of special interest to the blind, which is the first of its kind ever shown in the State, and is believed to be a pioneer among museums throughout the country. An offer is made in the article to loan a traveling exhibition for the blind to any group of blind people anywhere in the United States.

The Fleming Museum has had two such exhibitions, one last winter and one this summer, closing recently. A different exhibition has now been assembled and will be sent to Rutland for showing there, beginning October 2.

Traveling exhibits are no novelty for the Fleming Museum, which has been sending them around the State and sometimes outside, for years. This, however, is the first time an exhibition which is especially adapted for the blind has been prepared and sent, and it is an expansion of the newly developed idea of displays for those who have lost their sight. Originating here at the Fleming Museum, it is anticipated that the exhibition may become an annual event.

College isn't so fearsome as it seems the first day. You'll be getting a lot of advice on what to do and what not to do. When it comes to shirts, ties, shorts, handkerchiefs and collars . . . you'll do well to heed advice about buying Arrow. Two out of three college men wear Arrow shirts. They're tops on every campus because they fit better, wear longer and look smarter.

Museum Plans Schedule Of Art Exhibitions

A varied program of art exhibitions for the coming year has been planned by the Fleming Museum Art Association. The program may include both oil paintings and antique tapestries, etchings and engravings and old wall papers, as well as some extremely rare old East Indian water colors. Most of these exhibitions are subject to change, and some have not yet been definitely scheduled. All would be hung in the art gallery of the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont.

A showing of the museum's own collection of engravings and etchings opened last week and an exhibition of old wall papers has been arranged for some time this fall. A number of very rare old East Indian water colors, loaned by Henry Schnakenberg, artist, of Manchester and New York City, will be shown in the art gallery during the month of December.

Negotiations for the showing of two old Flemish tapestries, which were recently reproduced in the New York Times and which depict "The Triumphs of War" and "The Triumph of Peace," are in progress, and if a date for their showing can be arranged, Burlington people and visitors from other parts of the State will have the opportunity of seeing them. The tapestries were woven in Brussels, Belgium, early in the eighteenth century.

Paul Sample, whose paintings have been shown on several occasions at the Fleming Museum in connection with various exhibitions, will have a one-man show there next spring.

An interesting feature of the latest exhibition in the art gallery, a number of architectural drawings and photographs, was a display of drawings done by students in the night classes of Charles Pamperl, Barre, art teacher. Some of these drawings were architectural in character. They were hung on the second floor gallery of the museum. Arthur K. D. Healy of Middlebury had charge of the architectural exhibition.

TEA DANCES WELCOME FRESHMEN

After Dean Simpson's tea on Saturday, September 16, tea dances were the order at the Phi Sigma Delta and Tau Epsilon Phi houses.

At the Phi Sig house all the guests wore name tags to make introductions easy. About fifty people attended and danced to the strains of all the latest recordings. A. D. Wolk '41 and A. H. Becker '41 arranged the dance which was amicably chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. L. A. Woodward.

At the Tau Epsilon Phi house Professor and Mrs. Bickford chaperoned a pleasant dance directed by Jack Bloom '41 and Jerry Katz.

First Vesper Service Sponsored by Y. W. C. A.

At the first vesper service of the year which was held Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in the Ira Allen Chapel, Mary Ely Lyman, noted educator and speaker, gave a very inspiring talk on the subject, "The Wholeness of Life."

Mary Jean Simpson, dean of women, introduced Mrs. Lyman who emphasized the necessity of every person's living his whole life for even in such trying times as these the greatest convictions lie with the humble people of the world. In order to obtain this wholeness of life one must be independent in thought and deed, yet not bound by prejudices but willing ever to broaden one's horizons. Furthermore, one must be deep-rooted in the eternal things of life, in all that is finest and best.

The responsive readings, hymns, and scripture lesson also were well chosen and contributed to the theme of Mrs. Lyman's sermon, "The Wholeness of Life."

Mary Letta Root '41 social chairman of Y. W. C. A. was in general charge of this annual women's vesper service. She was assisted by Florence Wade '40 president of the college Y. W. C. A. The music was prepared under the direction of Elizabeth Cole '41 who was assisted by the women's choir. Members of Mortar Board, senior women's honorary society, served as ushers.

W. A. A. Council Plans Hike and Boatride

The annual W. A. A. boatride will take place Saturday afternoon, September 23. The price is only thirty-five cents if one hundred people go, otherwise it will be fifty cents round trip. Big sisters are urged to come and bring their little sisters. All those going on the ride leave at 2 o'clock on the hour, cross the lake and climb the hill on the other side, and enjoy a picnic supper. Students living in dormitories are allowed to put up their own lunches, and everyone is requested to bring her own. The boat docks early enough so that all may be back in the city by 6 o'clock.

Besides being a lot of fun, the W. A. A. boatride gives points toward membership in the Women's Athletic Association. All those who are interested in having a grand hike and boatride sign up in the "Y" room immediately. This is one of the best opportunities freshmen will have to get acquainted with one another as well as getting started on your W. A. A. membership.

Watch the bulletin board and the next issue of the CYNIC for further information.

W.A.A. to Open Season With Annual Boatride

Hunt and Membership Drive Scheduled for Next Week

The Women's Athletic Association, very active as usual, has planned several new features for this fall. The first on the program is a boatride to Port Kent this Saturday, September 23. Big sisters, little sisters, and all the rest will get together for an afternoon of fun and frolic. Campus songs and favorites of all will be sung on the boat, and upon arrival on the opposite shore there will be a hike for those thus inspired or softball and other games for the rest.

Next on the program is a scavenger hunt scheduled for the following Saturday, September 30. As a special treat, everyone participating will receive a surprise. If you have never been on a scavenger hunt or treasure hunt, you will surely not want to miss it, and if you have been—well, you remember how much fun it was and you will want to be in on this one, too. The committee in charge consists of Barbara Gallagher '42, Jeanne Woolley '42 and Jeannette Whipple '41. Watch for the poster and sign up soon.

In view of the fact that these activities are planned for the W. A. A. membership drive, extra points are to be given for those girls who share in this fun.

The freshman women may be wondering just what the Women's Athletic Association does, what its advantages are, and all about it. In brief, the W. A. A. is made up of girls who take an active interest in activities along the athletic line. Each girl must obtain fifty points through physical exercise outside the gym classes. Two points are regularly given for an hour of hiking, tennis, badminton, or any active sport. During membership drives extra points are allotted according to the provisions set aside. It is great fun to be a member, so come on, freshmen, and let's make this drive "bigger and better than ever before." And that goes for the sophomores who couldn't find the time last year to jot down those points.

So remember the dates, September 23 and September 30. It is a fine chance to get acquainted with upperclassmen and freshmen.

Homecoming Day, Oct. 7 To Feature Cane Rush

Homecoming day, inaugurated this year at the University of Vemont, will be celebrated Saturday, October 7. The date was set by the Alumni Council in its meeting last June, and plans for the event, promoted by the athletic department of the University, are well under way. Eight thousand alumni in New England, New York and neighboring districts are being circularized.

The early date was named to take advantage of Vermont's most colorful part of the year. There will be a home football game with St. Lawrence and a cross-country meet with Union. The cane rush, one of the traditional interclass events at the University, will be held between halves of the game. The band will be in uniform for its first home game of the season. Tea dances at the various fraternity houses are being arranged.

One of the big events of the day will be the second annual Alumni Bazaar, held at the gymnasium in the evening. Supper will be served from six o'clock, about the time that the tea dances close, until eight, when the entertainment attractions open, with dancing on the gymnasium floor and the midway occupying the cage.

New Building to be Erected on Campus

The University of Vermont, under the bequest of the late Senator Charles W. Waterman, is soon to erect a million-dollar building. A five-man committee has been named by the University's board of trustees with Roy L. Patrick of Burlington as chairman. The committee was selected from the board of trustees. With Mr. Patrick, who graduated from U. V. M. in 1898, will sit Forrest W. Kehoe, assistant comptroller of the University, according to the announcement of Pres. Guy W. Bailey, in view of his experiences in connection with the construction of the Ira Allen Chapel, Robert Hull Fleming Museum and the Southwick Memorial.

Senator Waterman's will bequesting to the University funds in excess of a million dollars for the construction of a college building, specified that the structure should face the college campus from either South Prospect Street on the west or Main Street on the south. The committee which Mr. Patrick heads will consider the available sites and will study the requirements and needs of the University in that connection. A report of the committee's findings will be made to the full board of trustees.

Just to what purpose the building will be put is as yet uncertain. One proposal suggests using it as an administrative center, thus leaving the space now used in the Medical Building for administrative offices free for classroom use. However, this is all conjecture for the committee has yet to consider this phase of the matter.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED TO CLASSICAL STUDENTS

Six sophomores at the University of Vermont have been selected as the recipients of classical scholarships, valued at $150 each, on the basis of their freshman records, their scholastic interests, and their promise of future attainment. The scholarships, established last year and operative for the first timGe this year, are open annually to sophomores who are residents of the state and wish to enroll in the classical curriculum. They may be renewed in the junior and senior years in the case of students who maintain the required standard of scholarship and take the required courses in Greek and Latin.

The recipients of the scholarships for this year are Geraldine P. Annis of Barton, who was prepared at Barton Academy; Catherine-Jean Dewart of St. Albans, prepared at Bellows Free Academy, St. Albans; Flora Fifield of Randolph, prepared at Bethel and Randolph High Schools; Miriam L. Fiske of Burlington, prepared at Burlington High School; Myrna G. French of Burlington, prepared at Burlington High School; Loren W. Shores of Barre, prepared at Spaulding High School, Barre.

The scholarships are awarded by the classical department of the University, of which Prof. L. M. Prindle is the head, in consultation with the president of the University.

Sigma Gamma Leads In Scholarship Field

Sigma Gamma, local sorority at the University of Vermont, outdistanced all other Greek-letter groups, both men's and women's, in the grades received for the last semester of college work, which closed last June. Figures just released from the office of the University registrar show. Alpha Chi Omega, another member of the women's group, ranking second on the list, and Delta Delta Delta third. Highest of the men's fraternities is Phi Sigma Delta, which placed fourth from the top and nosed three more women's societies. These three, following in the order given, are Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Xi Delta, and Kappa Alpha Theta.

The remaining ten fraternal organizations were rated in order as follows: Delta Psi, Alpha Tau Omega, Tau Epsilon Phi, Lambda Iota, Delta Phi Epsilon (women's sorority), Sigma Nu, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Delta Theta, Kappa Sigma and Sigma Phi.

Once again the Greek-letter fraternities on the hill start their annual drive for membership. Beginning this year on Monday, September 25, with open house at all fraternities, and culminating on Thursday, October 5, with the freshmen expressing their choice, the dates include a whirlwind of rushing, free smokes, free use of all house privileges, and the offering and acceptance of dates and bids.

New this year is a rushing tax imposed upon all freshmen who accept invitations to rushing banquets. This tax of one dollar is to cover the expenses incurred by the fraternity in providing entertainment for rushees. Freshmen and non-fraternity men by paying this tax receive the privilege of enjoying the food and fun of rushing parties which are worth many times the tax. By this means the fraternities will be spared the burden of direct taxation which has been in the past few years the only method of paying council expenses.

A new organ of the council is the Committee for the Control of Rushing, which is described in Section 12 of the Rushing Rules. It is headed by the president of the council and composed of the senior representatives from four other fraternities, chosen impartially, along with Prof. Daniel B. Carroll, the council's faculty advisor. This committee has been constituted for the purpose of carrying out rushing and pledging procedure and reporting infractions of the rushing rules, if any.

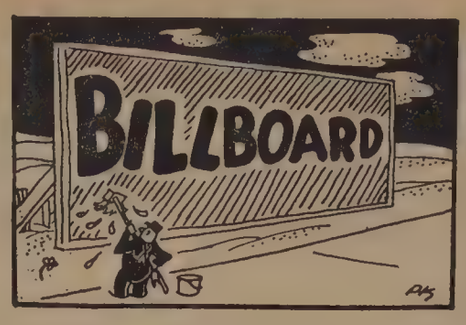
EDITORIALS

Team! Team! Team!

If a stimulus were required for this department to comment on school spirit here at Vermont, that stimulus was provided on receipt of the Campus Comment which appears on this page of the CYNIC. The topic of school spirit at the University is an old one, one over which discussion has raged since this writer's first contacts with the University.

Much has been written about it but little ever actually been done. Griping has never accomplished results, to our knowledge. But the Misses Abel and Amidon are not complaining about the situation. Instead they have recognized the actual conditions and would like to know what can be done to correct the situation. They have even advanced several suggestions and they appear to be good ones.

Probably the biggest single handicap to effective cheering arises from the fact that many students do not even know the cheers. As long as this is true it is impossible to produce much volume. But this handicap could easily be removed. Here are two ways by which the student body could be made "cheer conscious."



First of all the CYNIC would be more than willing to cooperate by printing those cheers which are used most frequently. Secondly, Gold Key or some other organization could supplement the rehearsal of cheers held at smokers in the cage of the gymnasium by staging a few similar get-togethers with the freshmen.

As the Misses Abel and Amidon have already pointed out, another detriment to effective cheering is the fact that the students do not sit in a group at the games but tend to scatter into small groups or mix with the townspeople. This condition could easily be remedied. Some delegation could be appointed to call on Dean Swift and request the aid of the faculty. We see no reason why the faculty would not approve a rule requiring all the freshmen to sit in one group at all athletic contests.

All students could be seated in a section plainly marked "students" after the fashion of division seating used in the auditorium at basketball games. The Graduate Manager of Athletics has always been very cooperative in helping in the solution of student problems and we believe that he could be counted on to help with the matter at hand. It should be quite a simple matter to select a section of the bleachers, reserve it for the students, and to mark it with inexpensive signs.

As for the matter of the band, it is our belief that they contribute a good deal to the spirit of any athletic contest as it is, but it is possible that they too could help the entire movement along by assisting a little more with the cheering task. They should prove a good nucleus for the cheering section and if their past performance is any criterion of what to expect, we anticipate that they will really be one of the major factors in making the movement a success.

The whole thing will really depend on how well the entire student body cooperate in the matter. With their backing we can expect some real results—without it only failure will result. The gage of battle has been thrown down by two sophomores. Will the challenge be ignored?

All students who at the time of enrollment were unable to fill out information cards completely and all students who have made any change of address, etc., since enrollment are requested to call at once at Room 5, Medical Building. This information is needed for the University directory.
Ruth H. Gregory, Asst. Registrar.

There will be a meeting of all Champlain Sabres members at the Sigma Nu Lodge at 7.15 p.m. Friday.

All students who paid 25 cents and through error did not receive their Ariel, please leave their names at the Book Store.

WANTED

Person interested in photography to work on pictorial magazine, "Ira's Folly." Contact Lee Whitcomb, telephone 1984.

Students interested in scrubbing for business or editorial positions on the 1941 Ariel are asked to see either R. O. Slack, editor, or D. W. Thayer, business manager, at the Delta Psi house.

Sophomores desiring to earn their numerals and to compete for assistant managership of football are requested to contact D. J. Graziano '40 at the Sigma Nu Lodge or Miss Margaret Sheeran at the graduate manager's office. This activity will fulfill the sophomore physical education requirement.

Anyone wishing to scrub the Ariel for 1941 contact H. Pache at the Phi Delta Theta house, telephone 2545. This call is for editorial scrubs only. Business scrubs will be selected later.

Tryouts for accompanist for the chapel and University orchestras will be held Monday at 4.00 p.m. at the Music Building.

ATTENTION FRESHMEN

It is for our benefit as well as yours that all male new students wear their green caps. You see, we want to get to know you as well as we hope you want to know us and each other. It is not too much to ask you to keep them on at least until you win two of the underclassman competitions. You would be saved a lot of embarrassment at athletic contests, too, if you learned your cheers and songs which are in the Handbook. Don't feel hurt then if some member of Gold Key or any other sophomore takes your name because you have no cap on or are lax in joining in with the cheers and songs at football games. It is by your attention to these small details that the University can best judge your class spirit. Incidentally it is the sophomore society, Gold Key, that has direct charge of your behavior. Don't forget that it is the purpose of Gold Key to help you in any way and at any time. So keep up the good work.
J. J. Spasyk, Pres. Gold Key.

All college students are cordially invited to attend the first fall meeting of the Methodist College Group Sunday at 7.30. As usual the group will meet at the parsonage on Buell Street. There will be a speaker and refreshments will be served. Freshmen are especially urged to come.

There will be a meeting of both old and new members of Staff and Sandal at Southwick, Tuesday afternoon at 4.15. Last year's members please bring their pins.

All freshmen are invited to a welcome social at Collegium, the college group at the Congregational Church on the corner of College and South Union Streets. We hope to see you there this Sunday, September 24, at 7.30.

The Lambda Iota fraternity will hold a tea dance Saturday afternoon, September 23. Louis Pichierri and the Catamounts will furnish the music.

Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, has been named Union College's honorary chancellor for the next school year.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

The football season is rolling around again, and with it will probably come the old argument about the apparent lack of school spirit at Vermont as evidenced by feeble cheering. We have thought quite a bit about the matter and would like to ask one question: is there any serious objection to a cheering section reserved for students?

We believe there is enough cheering done to make a good amount of noise if concentrated at one point. As the situation now stands, students are scattered all through the crowd, interspersed with a lot of townspeople who, of course, do not cheer. It is rather difficult to cheer if you are the only ones within a large radius making any noise.

It seems to us that a reserve cheering section, centering around the band if possible, would be a great help. The band, by the way, as an organized group, should be able to do more than they do in the way of promoting cheering.

Let's hear about it!

State College, Pa. (IP)—The extent of the Pennsylvania State College campus is revealed in a survey conducted by the Penn State chapter of the American Association of University Professors, which shows that 10 percent of the faculty members must travel half a mile or more between classrooms.

Three percent must travel a mile between classrooms, the survey found. It was made to determine the extent of parking facilities on the campus. More than 500 members of the faculty and administrative staff answered the questionnaire.

Forty-eight percent of the faculty and staff members live a mile or more from their offices. Eighty-nine percent of those polled own automobiles.

Alliance Francais Prix Won by J. M. Evans '42

Essay on France's Contributions To the United States

The Alliance Français recently sponsored an essay contest which was won by J. M. Evans '42. The context of the essay is as follows:

What is there in our civilization for which we are indebted to France? This subject is almost impossible to treat rapidly. I am going, however, to try to summarize briefly what there is in our civilization which we owe to France from economic, artistic, philosophic and scientific points of view.

None can deny the influence on our civilization of philosophers and economists such as Montesquieu, Voltaire and Rousseau.

The principles of equality, liberty and fraternity which form the basis of the Declaration of the Rights of Man, that is to say, the French Constitution, are also ours. The "Spirit of the Laws" (Montesquieu) and "The Social Contract" (Rousseau) strengthen the ideas which are inscribed and in the Declaration of Philadelphia and that of the Rights of Man so that the two peoples have freedom of thought, speech and belief.

The influence of the French philosophers and economists did not stop with the Revolution. Voltaire had preached the rights of life and the dignity of man; later both France and the United States abolished the abuse of Negroes and slavery.

For the developments of our industries we owe much to the French scholars; for example, the movie industry. It is the French, the Lumière Brothers, who discovered the principle of the moving picture and another Frenchman, Gaumont, who was able to synchronize sound and light. It was a Frenchman who discovered refrigerative processes (Charles Tellier, little known publicly) and the application of his invention, so extensive here, is not yet in France. It is the same for Pasteur; pasteurization of milk, common in the United States, is much less so in France. This applies to many other discoveries. The electric fountain of high heat from 2,500° to 3,500° of Violle, the sterilization of water by ultra-violet rays of Berthelot and finally the discovery of radium by M. and Madame Curie.

We use these inventions, these discoveries every day in our homes or in our hospitals.

Medical Advances

If, in our day, we have conquered disease, it is because of Pasteur and if many of the American babies do not die of diphtheria, they owe it to a Frenchman—Doctor Roux. The great developments which bacterial medicine has made are accountable in great part to Bernard, the father of physiology.

Even our police system we owe in part to the French, to the Bertillon system of judiciary anthropometry.

France, country of social reforms, has always sought, since the Revolution, to alleviate the lot of the workers. In 1864 she passed laws on strikes and then in 1884 on syndicates, in 1898 on indemnities on workers and in 1909 on retirement and old age. The United States followed their example for it is only recently that we passed similar laws.

It is not only from the scientific and social points of view that we are indebted to France, but even on our daily economic life. Who has not bought Kraft's "Camembert" cheese or California sauterne when imported products were too dear for our purses? It is French cooking which has invaded the American table; similarly, French style is in vogue with us and with it, its derivatives: luxurious clothing, gloves, perfume, etc.

French artists have always played an important rôle either in music and opera (Manon, Mignon, Faust are annually in the repertory of the New York Opera) or in painting and sculpture (all the great museums and the private collections have pictures and statues by the great French masters).

Even our capital, Washington, owes its beauty to France. In fact, Pierre L'Enfant, French architect, at the demand of General Washington designed the plans of that city for the present and future.

If we are indebted for many things in our civilization to France, we, in turn, know how to utilize and adapt them.

FRATERNITY RUSHING RULES

As Adopted May 21, 1939

1. Beginning with the first day of Freshman Camp, no fraternity man shall entertain, discuss fraternity matters with, or extend an invitation to membership to any new Freshman or new student until the end of the neutral period after regular bidding time, except at rushing parties. The word "entertain" is interpreted as meaning accompanying at movies or any other regularly conducted entertainments, dinner engagements, out-of-town athletic contests or any other function which the Council may interpret as being similar to the above. No fraternity man may give rides to new Freshmen or new students.

2. No new Freshman or new student shall be allowed on any fraternity property except sidewalks between aforesaid dates, excepting open-house nights and rushing parties.

3. The Interfraternity Council has designated the following five evenings when, from 7.30 to 10.30 p.m., fraternities may welcome new Freshmen and new students to their houses: Monday, September 25 to Friday, September 29, inclusive. There shall be no refreshments nor formal entertainment. "Smokes" are permitted. Personal invitations may supplement the general invitations to all students.

4. For the convenience of new Freshmen and new students, a schedule of fraternities and visiting hours shall be published. By visiting the houses according to the schedule, the new men will be able to spend at least one hour in each fraternity house during the first three open house nights. The new Freshmen and new students may visit those fraternities which they desire to visit more than once on the fourth and fifth open house nights. On these two nights only may fraternities ask for rushing night preferences.

5. New Freshmen and new students shall assemble in the gymnasium at 7.00 a.m., Saturday, September 30, to receive rushing date cards from representatives of different fraternities, filling out the same as has been customary. At this time a rushing tax of one dollar ($1.00) shall be collected from each new Freshman or new student who shall accept one or more rushing date bids. A member of the faculty who is a disinterested party, yet competent, shall be designated by the Council to meet the new Freshmen and new students as a body and to make such explanations to them as are necessary before they go through the line.

6. Rushing dates, three in number, will be held on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, October 2, 3, and 4. These dates will last from 6.00 to 12.00 p.m. No fraternity shall make more than one such date with any new Freshman or new student.

7. On Thursday, October 5, between 1.30 and 5.30 p.m., new Freshmen and new students shall go to the Political Science office, 37 North College and fill out, on a prepared form, their choice of fraternities in order of preference. If they have no choice they should write "undecided." Prior to 1.30 p.m. of the same day, the fraternities will submit to the Political Science office a list of men to whom they wish to extend invitation to membership. A disinterested faculty committee to be selected by the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and the Faculty Advisor of the Interfraternity Council shall match the preference forms with the invitation lists and inform each new Freshman or new student as to the name of the first fraternity on his list which has extended him an invitation to join. In case no fraternity on his list has extended to him an invitation he shall be so informed, and he may be allowed to add to his list, if he so desires, or he may write "undecided." This process may be repeated. The new Freshman or new student shall go to the house of the fraternity which has been selected at the conclusion of this process.

At 5.45 p.m. the committee shall present to a representative of each fraternity a list of new Freshmen and new students who have been selected by it and a list of those who have written "undecided" and received bids from that fraternity.

8. No fraternity shall pledge a man who has previously been pledged to another fraternity until seven months have elapsed from the date of the previous pledging unless the pledge is rescinded by the pledging fraternity prior to the expiration of the seven months' interval.

9. All pledges shall wear buttons, unless pledging shall be declared irregular by the Faculty Council; they shall be strictly honored by all fraternities. It is herewith expressly ruled that the Faculty Council alone shall have the power to declare a pledge irregular or unlawful.

10. Penalties for the infraction of rushing rules will be administered by a committee composed of the Interfraternity Council and five faculty members who are not members of fraternities having chapters here and have no sons who are active members of chapters here. In dealing with a violation the committee shall sit as a court with the offending fraternity as defendant and the President of the Faculty Council as a presiding judge. All the evidence shall be presented to the court by both the defending and prosecuting fraternities and a decision will be made by the five faculty members. A majority vote will convict.

11. Each fraternity that is a member of the Interfraternity Council shall post a bond of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) with the Secretary-Treasurer of the Interfraternity Council. This bond shall be forfeited if the fraternity be found guilty of violation of any of the above rules.

Any fine forfeited shall revert to the Treasury of the Interfraternity Council and may be disposed of in accordance with the Constitution.

12. A governing committee consisting of Professor Daniel B. Carroll, Peter E. Patch (Chairman), E. Gasperini, Jr., Elliot D. Pearl, Carl Schofield, and George S. Noonan is hereby constituted as an administrative and investigating body. Its general duties are:

(a) To observe and report any infractions of rushing rules.
(b) To do all things necessary to the successful administration of these rules.
(c) To see that each fraternity posts its bond of twenty-five dollars, as required by the rushing rules.
(d) To pass upon the rushing rules in their final form; not to change them, but to reword and clarify them, if necessary.
(e) To meet with the Faculty Council and pass judgment on any violations of the rushing rules.

OUTING CLUB NOTES

The Outing Club is sponsoring hikes each week-end to nearby points in the Green Mountains. These trips offer every student the excellent opportunity to indulge in a very pleasant form of exercise in the out-of-doors and to make many new friends. The trips this year take us to Nebraska Notch, Camel's Hump, Mt. Mansfield, Bolton Lodge, Taft Lodge and Butler Lodge, some of these being overnight hikes.

For the protection of all hikers the following rules have been formulated:

1. The Outing Club will provide a first-aid kit and guide books for each trip. Enough guide books should be taken for each officer on the trip (i.e., leader, rear guards, trail guides, etc.).

2. A careful, written check of all members on the trip be made at (a) the point of departure or ascent and (b) the point of gathering before returning to Burlington.

3. A system of checking on the trails will be adopted along the following lines:

(a) A leader to be appointed for each trip, charged with control and responsibility for the proper conduct of the trip and

(b) A rear guard of two people to check up on stragglers and

(c) At any junction of trails, a trail guide is to be stationed, who shall remain there until entire main party has passed.

There are provisions for rescue or aid parties and a few miscellaneous points for every hiker to remember. They are:

1. No member of a party shall EVER go ahead of the leader.

2. All members of the party must stay on the trail at all times.

3. Every member on a trip must remain in a group of at least three at all times.

These rules show you that the hikes are run very efficiently, so everybody out for the hike to Taylor Lodge Sunday at eight forty-five at the men's gym. Bring your lunch and thirty-five cents for transportation. Membership cards on sale from all council members.

Freshman Rushing Will Begin Monday

CHEAPER LIQUID AIR MADE BY NEW MACHINE

Columbia, Mo. (IP)—Liquid air is valuable in many different fields of research, but it is rather expensive to buy. Before long the University of Missouri may have the product at its disposal at a cost of one-seventh its present price. Plans have been made for the installation of a machine which will make liquid air for laboratory purposes at the university.

After installation the machine will be able to produce as much liquid air for ten or fifteen cents as can be purchased outright for one dollar now. Enough of the product would be made to serve the whole university. Low-temperature research will be possible with the addition of this machine to the chemical laboratory.

Museum Notes

By Ruth Hopkins

A blue Staffordshire "State's Decision" plate is now on display in the entrance hall of Fleming Museum. This plate is typical of the type which originated in England about the time Vermont and Kentucky entered the Union.

The Staffordshire pottery works in order to regain the interest of the American public began to put patriotic and scenic designs on the dishes.

A musical instrument of unknown antiquity is the bagpipe. One of these is now on display in one of the show cases in the entrance hall of Fleming Museum. This one is a Highland bagpipe, with a bag of Stewart tartan, or the familiar red and green plaid.

Although we usually think of bagpipes as being peculiar to Scotland, in reality they have at one time been in common use in all European countries. Indeed, even Egyptians, Romans and Greeks played these pipes, although these earlier ones had no bag.

The strain on these players was so great that they had to bandage their lips and cheeks with a sort of leather muzzle for protection. It was because of this that the bag from which the instrument got its name was added to lessen the strain on the lungs and cheeks.

Photoelastic Laboratory Gets New Equipment

Improved equipment for its photoelastic laboratory, which is under the direction of Prof. J. A. Bullard of the Engineering College, has recently been acquired at the University of Vermont. Professor Bullard, department of mechanics, has been engaged in the study of photoelasticity, which is now attracting much attention among scientists, for several years. At the present time Irwin P. Hooper, research fellow at the University and a graduate of Tufts College in mechanical engineering in 1938, is working with Professor Bullard on a research project in the field.

The study of photoelastic analysis, according to Professor Bullard, is a most fascinating one and its results will be of much value to the engineering profession. In the study transparent models of loaded machines or structures are placed in a field of polarized light. The polarized rays passing through the model show a beautifully colored picture on a screen or photograpihc plate and disclose to the engineer engaged in designing machines or structures the magnitude and direction of the stress within the material. When he knows the most vulnerable points of a machine or structure, those most likely to yield under strain as disclosed by the model, he can make them stronger and safer.

The beginning of photoelasticity, said Professor Bullard, is usually placed in the researches of Sir David Brewster in 1816 and the work of Clerk Maxwell about 1850. In 1891 and again in 1900, engineers tried models of glass in this study. About 1913, Prof. E. G. Coker (London) made a great advance by using celluloid models, and since that time has contributed much to the study.

Outstanding work, declared Professor Bullard, has been done in the last ten years by Dr. Max M. Frocht of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, using bakelite models. Moving picture cameras have been used to record the effects of suddenly applied loads. The study first was confined to problems involving force systems acting in a plane, but recently Doctor Hetenyi and others have found that three dimensional systems may be studied. The models are loaded and subjected to heat treatment, which "freezes" the patterns in them. Then they are sawed up into slices and the slices studied in the usual way.

FIRST CHAPEL SERVICE HELD LAST WEDNESDAY

The first chapel service of the year took place on Wednesday morning, September 20, with the Rev. John Fisher Lewis of Burlington as the speaker. He stressed mainly the need of fellowship in this war-torn world of ours and suggested going to our ministers for a solution of these ever-increasing problems.

The American College Publicity Association was founded in 1917 in Chicago.

Eulogy for Pike — Elegy for Vermont?

In exactly eight days the University of Vermont Catamount football eleven will trot out on the Amherst gridiron and realize what an excellent, hard-hitting blocker it possessed last year in the person of Pike Trigilio, husky fullback who hit the line harder than the books. Pike was an exceptional man. He could do practically anything in the way of carrying the ball from crashing over center to off-tackle slants to circling the ends. We remember two years ago when Big Pike was fullback on the frosh team he gave the Middlebury cubs a well-learned lesson in sprinting. And he weighed well over two hundred pounds. But we doubt if Pike will be remembered long for his ball-carrying talents as for the touchdown routes he paved almost single-handed by virtue of his exceptional blocking. It is the lack of this blocking that, if anything, will be the downfall of Coach Johnny Sabo's team. In practice this past week it has been terribly hard to say whether the team is blocking very badly or the second team is a powerhouse for the scrubs have been holding the varsity to a standstill. It is rather strange, too, for on paper the varsity really shapes up well. Jim Corbett, who played last year at center, is back at his old end position. Patterson is at the moment holding down the other end position and he has been playing real well in practice, rising from a scrub on the frosh club last year to a varsity end. The tackles, Swede Carlson and Boots Lawrence, are two of the sweetest linesmen in the state. Boots will undoubtedly be more at home in the line than he would have been in the backfield if Coach Sabo had retained him there. Norm Strassburg, one of the unsung heroes of the '38 team, is back at his old guard slot and Norm Dubie will probably fit in well as his running mate. At center Earl Reid is showing up very well. This seems to be a strong line with only two experienced men. The backfield has Frankie Taylor, the man who starts running off-tackle and just doesn't bother stopping. However, the rest of the backfield is green and inexperienced. Bill Pye after playing first-string end in high school and college for six years has been shifted to a halfback position. Bill creates the impression of just ambling along but in reality he covers an immense amount of territory before setting another gangling leg on the ground. Johnny Spasyk of the '38 frosh contingent occupies the quarterback post and although he has not had an abundance of experience he is a smart, fast man. Ed Kodys rounds out the backfield. He was fullback for the frosh last year and turned in a very creditable performance for the yearlings. We've been hearing too many stories about the ineffectiveness of this combination and for many stories about Vermont hung slated for a bad year. Nevertheless, on paper these sophomores and juniors look plenty good. How they'll look on Saturday afternoons is something else. We hate to go out on a limb, but—Vermont will most likely lose to Amherst. However, that Amherst game will be a criterion on which to base future prognostications as to the welfare of the Catamounts.

Up Hill and Down Dale

The cross-country outlook is somewhat brighter, due mainly to the addition of Charlie Webster, diminutive sophomore, to Archie Post's already impressive roster. It is extremely doubtful if anyone on the squad can even touch Charlie when it comes to galloping over the hills and dales of Vermont. Captain Ketham, Frankie Livak, and Lymie Gallup of the harrier team of '38 are all back and this quartet augmented by Brother Webster and Jack Burgess present a really formidable front. It's a shame that the cross-country season doesn't come immediately after football season for all the gridmen would be in excellent shape to run over the hills and valleys after tramping to Centennial Field all fall. It's also a shame that some of the million dollars for this new building we hear about cannot be used for a field house.

"Dumb Athlete" Belief Disproved

Amherst, Mass.—(I.P.)—The popular picture of the college athlete who spends his time in class cutting out paper dolls was dispelled by Dr. Harry N. Glick, head of the department of psychology at Massachusetts State College.

"Contrary to popular opinion," Professor Glick said in releasing the results of studies made on 325 State College students, "the greater the number of hours spent in college activities, the higher the mental test scores. The average college mark also increased slightly as the number of hours spent in college sports and activities increased."

An upper limit, however, was reached when more than 16 hours each week were spent in sports and activities, the psychologist said. When more than 16 hours are spent in activities, he pointed out, there is a definite drop in scholastic averages, indicating that the student is a "social butterfly" or neglecting his studies.

"In sports alone, the data indicated that both the highest mental test score and the highest scholastic average were attained by the group whose members devoted from one to five hours each week to sports," he added.

"Perhaps these results can be explained somewhat by the fact that students who do have a high mental test score are usually those who are able to work faster mentally," Professor Glick explained. "Thus these students would have more free time to devote to various activities than would the slower students."

FROSH MEN MEET WOMEN AT MIXER

Climaxing an entire week of freshman orientation, the annual freshman mixer, held Saturday evening in the gymnasium, officially opened the social calendar of the school year. With the peppy "Campus Catamounts" swinging out, freshman met freshman, boy met girl, and a grand time was had by all.

The doors opened at 8.00 p.m., and the freshman men particularly enjoyed themselves until 10 o'clock, for until that hour none except members of the class of '43 were admitted. However, at the stroke of ten the upperclassmen barged in en masse, and again boy met girl. In some cases the frosh men lost a bit of ground, but in general the two-hour handicap imposed on the upperclassmen proved too much, and the freshmen were right in there.

The affair was sponsored by Boulder, senior men's honorary society, and was designed primarily to get the incoming frosh well acquainted with each other.

Columbia University psychologists have conducted experiments which prove that gum-chewing typists work harder than the non-chewers.

Collegians Preach Strict Neutrality

Collegians in growing numbers are advocating strict neutrality as the only position for the government to assume in the present world situation. But they would temper neutrality with the application of economic retaliation against the aggressor and totalitarian nations. However, there is as yet no meeting of the minds on this point, and only the developments of the next few weeks will bring a unity of purpose and action to the nation's campuses. The degree of unity will depend on the degree of danger in the recurring crises.

The real solution, according to the editorial opinion of collegians, is the development of a mass-mind which will view with objectivity the many stories that will be printed about the new developments in world politics. They ask that we watch carefully for propaganda that will be designed to create a war-minded public.

Here's how the Dartmouth College Dartmouth stated its views on this point: "The headlines scream at campuses just as they do at taxi-drivers, and the least we can expect from campuses is that they realize they are being fed with war propaganda, and that they think calmly, and sanely, not react blindly, easily, catastrophically. Let's decide on a program for thinking. Let's think calmly, without hysteria, without popping our eyes out every time we hear a loud voice shouting that war is inevitable. That kind of thinking is one of the things we go to college for."

The editors of the Sewanee Purple of the University of the South have a new solution: They are campaigning for the founding of an Anti-Sourpuss League. Here's what they think their new organization should do:

"The creature this League prepares to exterminate comes in many sizes and flavors, but his essential features are the same. He was born with a bad disposition, and has been looking ever since for some pretext to make everyone else as uncomfortable as he. The age at which he becomes a confirmed Sourpuss may be early or late, depending upon whether early or late he discovered the world's obtuse lack of appreciation for his talents. Even more important is his lack of a sense of humor, the light touch. The motto of the club is a bit ungrammatical but real none the less; 'I don't hate nobody.' The anti-Communists, anti-Fascists, anti-New Dealers, anti-Capitalists, and anti-Low Churchmen will demand special attention, if we are to coax them back into health and sanity. The speaking or reading acquaintances of a person with a CAUSE have long been blood-less martyrs.

The Sourpuss abroad with his ugly, brutal, earnestness about him is responsible for the world crisis today. We will show the European clubs some methods for use on their Hitlers. Show them how over here we vent our anger, 'Go to War' and still don't become Sourpusses."

Maybe they've got something there!

Frosh Harriers Open Against Dartmouth

The frosh cross-country team opens against Dartmouth October 14 at Hanover. Coach Archie Post has been working with the squad since last Monday and is out for a victory for his baby Catamounts. Last year Dartmouth was the only team to stop the cross-country running freshmen.

Although there are few candidates out who have had experience in the up and down hill run, there are several experienced track men who Archie Post says will make good cross-country material. A few of the experienced men out are R. Pond, who starred in the 880 last year at Burlington High; J. Buttles, miler and javelin man from B. H. S.; M. Crown, half-miler also from B. H. S.; and Bob Story, who ran cross-country down in Bennington.

Besides these four known runners are eleven men yet to show their stuff. They are: D. Blanchard, D. Corliss, R. Dougherty, Fisk, H. Howe, J. Lightcar, E. St. Mary, Sutton, Wedge, R. White and H. Winchell. As yet, only these fifteen men have signed up and Coach Post says that he can use more runners.

Following the Dartmouth tussle on October 14, the frosh are slated for the following meets: October 21, Waterbury High School at Burlington; November 4, Vermont State School of Agriculture at Burlington; November 18, Middlebury at Burlington.

In preparation for the meets, Coach Post plans to have the boys work out five times the first week and then cut down to three workouts a week for the rest of the season.

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

(Associated Collegiate Press)

Dormitory Romeo: A University of Florida collegian has his own "correspondence club." It's made up of eighteen women in sixteen United States cities, and he claims he knows them all. He made our reporter promise not to divulge his name—for most obvious reasons!

Pigs: Luther College has a new endowment building stunt that we think is something that demands a place in our little book of collegiate oddities. To gather funds for the erection of a new women's dorm, it is asking farmer friends to donate a pig to the college in the spring, feed it during the summer, and present the full-grown hog or its equivalent in cash to the college next fall. Yes, the college is located in the tall corn state.

Yearlings Run Lord Jeff Plays

Shaw, Patterson Injured In Early Scrimmages

With that all-important opener with Amherst only a week away, the football squad got down to cases this week under the leadership of coaches Sabo and Wietz. The first scrimmage of the season revealed a weakness in blocking and tackling, which is to be expected from a squad early in the season. Much time has been devoted to perfecting a pass offense and defense with Ed Kodys, Bill Pye and Johnny Spasyk alternating at the heaving and receiving positions. Frank Taylor, sophomore sensation of the past season, seems to have one backfield seat well in hand, while Pye is rapidly developing into a running back. Johnny Spasyk thus far seems to have an edge in the battle for punting honors.

The first injuries of the season visited the team Tuesday when in passing practice Al Shaw, back, of Arlington, N. J., and Whitey Patterson, end, of Barre, developed bad ankles. The boys should be in shape pretty quickly, however.

Coach Wietz has sixteen candidates for the line posts and a splendid battle has developed between Wist Rice and Earl Reed for the center position. Boots Lawrence and Swede Carlson are the leading candidates at tackle. At one guard there is veteran Norm Strassburg and four men, Dubie, Nichols, Long and Lawlor, are in the running for the other guard berth. Corbett, last year's center, is working at end this year along with Red and Whizzer White and Bob Patterson.

Coaches Sabo and Wietz have been staging drills on plays this week and scrimmages with the frosh. Considerable emphasis has been put on a defense for Amherst plays with the frosh understudying so to speak for the Lord Jeffs in scrimmage. That seems to be the entire story as far as Vermont goes, right now. But how about those Amherst boys from Massachusetts? Well, they're weaker than last year but that isn't saying much.

As you may remember Floyd Jordan's men won 6 and tied 1 game last year while rolling up 189 points against 19 for their opponents. This year three parts of a fine backfield are gone, but the new material is stout and fairly abundant. The line packs a wallop from tackle to tackle with Prescott Coon at one of the tackle berths. Capt. Bill Cordner can take care of one of the wings adequately. The main standby in the backfield is jumping halfback Joe Firman. What is badly needed on the debit side is a passer, kicker and signal caller. Seniors Christy, McCreary, Potter, Sweeney and the diminutive 140-pound Roberts along with blocker Bud Lawton round out the backfield. The sum total of opinion ranks Amherst tops in the Little Three. And that's that for the opponents' side of the picture.

Vermont will probably have to be at its peak to stop the strong Sabrinas, and that's quite an assignment for an initial contest. A victory for Vermont would be the starting fireworks for a winning season. Another week will tell the story.

Frosh Commence Contact Work

The frosh football squad is slated to face the varsity Saturday in the first scrimmage of the year. Coach Evans has drilled his men on Amherst plays for the past week, determined to give the varsity a severe work-out.

Contact work started on Tuesday with blocking being stressed. For the remainder of the week the coach alternated two teams seeking to determine the strength of the squad.

Postponement of the original scrimmage scheduled for Wednesday, due to inclement weather, enabled the frosh squad to condition themselves more fully and to prepare themselves for Saturday's clash.

Saturday's coming session will do much to determine the caliber and ability of this year's squad. Coach Evans is pointing for a successful season and will need a strong frosh squad to turn the trick.

Two Methods of Teaching Hygiene to College Men

(Reprinted from VERMONT ALUMNUS)

By DR. F. S. KENT and PROF. H. A. PRENTICE

Some eight years ago, like many other institutions, the University of Vermont faced the problem of introducing a course in personal hygiene for freshman men into an already crowded curricula. It was deemed advisable at that time to take the number of hours necessary for the course from the regular periods in Physical Education. Therefore eight hours of lecture work was established for the course and taken during regular Physical Education class periods. With an average of approximately 230 freshman men, divided up among three colleges and further subdivided into different curricula within the colleges, sectioning for hygiene classes became a major problem. Each year, after much trouble, six sections of some thirty to fifty men per section were arranged, meeting one hour a week for eight consecutive weeks. For seven years the Medical Director of the University conducted the class on an orthodox lecture discussion basis. By the nature of the students' hour plans and the disposition of the Medical Director's time it was necessary for the six classes to meet on two consecutive days of the week. It was found that a schedule of this nature was unsatisfactory as far as the efficiency of the teaching of hygiene was concerned. The field of hygiene is too broad to cover in eight hours at the best. The lecture program for the Medical Director during the two days was strenuous and the students exhibited a surprising lack of interest in this vital work.

DOCTOR KENT

PROFESSOR PRENTICE

This year, in view of the existing situation with its complexities and difficulties, it was decided, if possible, to improve the course. It was found that the nature of the situation did not permit an expansion of the hours allotted, a rearrangement of the schedule of classes, or a grouping into larger units. Therefore, it was decided to increase the efficiency of the course in the hours already allotted. The medium of the motion picture was selected as the means of experimentation.

New Plan Eagerly Adopted

Investigation showed that there were sufficient films of good quality to construct an adequate eight hour course. Teaching personal hygiene entirely by motion pictures had never been tried before in this section and the results were anticipated with interest. The new plan was organized and given during the first semester of the college year 1938-39. The University has excellent facilities through its Fleming Museum for exhibiting motion pictures. It was necessary for the Medical Director to secure the films which constituted the course, all films were previewed and placed in their correct sequence. In view of the fact that it was an experiment the course under both methods was planned to cover the same general material with the same number of films and comparable examinations. Some of the films were sound and some silent.

In each of the silent films, by means of microphonic attachment, the instructor gave a running comment on the salient points to be emphasized. The first hour was devoted to describing the nature of the course and giving a broad outline of the subjects to be covered. In subsequent hours the pictures were exhibited and a ten minute question period allowed at the end of the hour. A mimeograph script in brief outline form was handed to each student. At the end of the course an examination was given, comparable in difficulty if not more difficult than the one given under the lecture method. Both examinations were objective type, requiring true-false answers, sentence completion and matching.

The results from the teaching by motion pictures is consistently better throughout. Fewer failures and better marks resulted. In the judgment of the Medical Director, the 1939 examination was more difficult although the results were better. While not conclusive evidence, it seems to be significant. It can be concluded that students secured better marks where they were taught by the use of motion pictures than they did by the orthodox verbal method. From this it might be concluded in view of the better marks that students retained knowledge better and thus improved the transfer of the knowledge of hygiene into effective action.

Courses Interesting to Students

Another interesting conclusion resulting from a study of the two methods has to do with the interest on the part of the students. Student comments generally were very favorable when asked if the course was interesting. Further evidence of interest is indicated by the fact that there were less absences from hygiene classes for 1939 as compared with 1938. In 1939, 2.3% absences were noted, while there were 5% absences in 1938. A gain of 2.7% in view of their statements clearly shows the trend of interest.

Under the system necessary to schedule hygiene classes at Vermont, it was found that the teaching was far easier than the orthodox method of the Medical Director. The teaching by motion picture not only was physically easier, but it saved considerable time in preparation of lecture outlines as scripts were provided with the films.

The results from this experiment in the teaching of hygiene are significant but not conclusive. If teaching is more effective by the use of motion pictures, it possesses significance for all schools throughout the country where hygiene is given. State departments of education can render much assistance by providing the equipment on a portable basis and thus spread hygiene instruction throughout all schools in a very effective manner.

Future Improvements of Plan

The consensus of opinion by the staff at the University of Vermont shows that motion pictures possess great possibilities in many different ways. The meager returns from one year's study justify further experimentation and this will be done in the year 1939-40. Only by accumulating more evidence can results be made conclusive. The judgment of the facts to date point out three significant conclusions:

1. Teaching of hygiene by motion pictures shows approximately 4% average improvement over the orthodox method.
2. Student interest is much keener in the subject material of hygiene when taught by motion pictures.
3. The problem of providing instruction on an extensive scale is simplified, thus aiding in an important administrative problem.

Further refinement of the techniques in teaching by motion pictures will probably show even more substantial results. Similarly, as hygiene motion pictures are made better by the producers, will the teaching of hygiene improve.

HONOR SOCIETIES SERVING AT FRESHMAN TEA

Professor Evans Observes European War Situation

So rapidly have events occurred on the European scene during the last month that to the lay mind the situation is a bewildering mess of paradox and contradiction. Our papers can give us little of value in these days of war-time censorship, propaganda, communiques and official denials; our radios are even less trustworthy. For keen-minded interpretation and classification of events we can only turn to seasoned observers of diplomatic and political history. Such a man we have on our own U. V. M. campus: Prof. Paul D. Evans of the history department. Not only has Professor Evans studied and taught history over a long period of years, but he has also traveled extensively in Europe and thus knows something of the life and psychology of the inhabitants of the Old World. Yet we must realize that no matter how well qualified an observer is, he is as poorly informed as we are and can only by means of his knowledge make a shrewder guess than the layman. As Professor Evans says, "We can only speculate about the turn of events. It is only guesswork based on small scraps of information. We may be misinterpreting events; but then, it is fun to speculate."

Britain Has Blundered

According to Professor Evans, nowhere in history can such an unbroken line of diplomatic blunders be found as those perpetrated by the British in the past few years. It is the job of a diplomat during peace time to keep the weight of his country's and his allies' power stronger than that of his possible adversaries, thus either preventing war by superior force or assuring a quick victory if war should come. The British statesmen should have seen to it that the Russian weight be on the side of the allies either to prevent a war or to shorten it. Instead, by a series of astounding diplomatic blunders the British alienated the Soviet government and even drove them into treaty with Germany. In the Spanish civil war the French and the British adhered to a policy of strict non-intervention, yet overlooked the backing of Franco by Italy and Germany while Russia frantically appealed for cooperation in aiding the Loyalists. More than by this, the Russians were angered by the betrayal of the Czechs, for betrayed the Czechs were. One cannot be sure whether Russia would have leaped to the defense of the Czechs if Britain and France had lived up to their pledge last September. To all intents and purposes, however, Russia would have done so, and they can say so without fear of contradiction today. The allies' unpreparedness or inferiority in equipment at that time cannot have been sufficient to compensate for the betrayal of the Czechs or the loss of Russia. The final straw was the elbowing of Russia out of the Munich conference. After this Russia seemed much less anxious to cooperate with the allies in their "encirclement" policy.

Yet no one expected such a startling reversal of form on the part of the enigmatic Stalin, asserts Professor Evans. His trade and non-aggression treaties with Berlin are nothing short of a diplomatic revolution. We may question: Is Stalin trying to turn the tables on the British? Is he using the plan advocated by British Tory papers of killing two birds with one stone, i.e., setting Germany and Russia against each other while England looks on? Has Stalin twisted this plan so that Germany and the allies will bleed each other white while the Red army awaits its chance to sweep over a weakened Europe? All of this is but conjecture, yet conjecture is as close as we can get to truth in these troubled times.

Long War Foreseen

However these things may be, this diplomatic revolution is of the gravest implication in that it means a long drawn-out war, with neither side strong enough to overcome the other in short order. "Though the war was forced upon them the allies are still paying for their diplomatic blunders," says Professor Evans. "Nobody knows Russia's will or ability to supply Hitler with either food or munitions, but whatever the Soviet Union does, the British blockade is not as strong this time as in the last war. It will take a good deal longer for the British blockade to begin to tighten perceptibly, unless something of an unpredictable nature occurs."

What of Mussolini? A great question mark, according to Professor Evans. Mussolini, always the opportunist, is playing a rather precarious waiting game. Realizing that he is vulnerable on both sides, Mussolini is waiting to see what moves would be to his best interests. He can blackmail the allies: Make them promise him additional territory for the price of his neutrality; or he can plunge in and help Hitler if Germany seems to be on the way to victory.

Italians Unpredictable

The belief that alliance with Russia on the part of Germany has driven Italy into the allied hands, seems to be mere wishful thinking—whistling in the dark on the part of the allies, so to speak. It is highly improbable that Mussolini will take any such step, yet should he do so his help would be no real advantage in attack. Italy's advent into the war on the side of the allies would have only a moral effect and would relieve the land and naval watch on France's southeastern frontier. The Italians don't want war but they would like to get something out of the present European upheaval.

As to the United States' stand in this world situation, Professor Evans believes that we can only do that which will best serve our interests. "These interests," he says, "are the eventual victory of the allies." If we change the embargo law and thus trade with the British and French, we will be aiding them to win the struggle more quickly, yet we need not involve ourselves. This fatalistic attitude that many Americans take as to America's inevitable entry into the European war is the one thing that will draw us in. If we can only assume the attitude that we cannot be actually involved in war, we can give the allies the valuable aid we want to give them, and yet remain neutral.

Freshmen Femmes Read and Heed

Rock Island, Ill. (ACP)—Collegians throughout the nation will stand up and cheer the recent pronouncement of "Do's and Don'ts for Dames on Dates" made by Augustana College men.

Just to clear the air of a lot of disturbing thoughts and actions, Augustana men have drawn up fifteen rules they believe their co-ed companions should follow. Here they are:

1. Don't keep your date waiting. Be prompt.
2. Don't try to make too good an impression the first night.
3. Don't be a walking cosmetic counter.
4. Don't ponder over the menu for half an hour and then eat only a small portion of your order.
5. Don't eat too much. The boy wants to go to school four years, too.
6. Don't try to attract the attention of other fellows while on a date.
7. Don't retouch make-up in public.
8. Do something to show your appreciation.
9. Do your education justice by keeping the conversation interesting.
10. Do something to overcome the desire to be sophisticated and glamorous. Be natural.
11. Do your part in this dating business by at least presenting the opportunity for our asking you.
12. Do your best to converse and mix with us.
13. Do your share in supporting sports events.
14. Do believe us when we say "looks" aren't everything.
15. Don't each of you take each of these suggestions to heart. We believe many of you are doing all right—but there is always room for improvement.

Fraternity "Hell Week" Criticized by Colleges

(Associated Collegiate Press)

Fraternities have long been vulnerable to attack on the one question of their programs for the initiation of new members. Chief contention of the fault-finders has been (and still is) that "hell week" activities are anti-educational and do not instill into neophytes true ideals of fraternalism.

Along with the passing of the green caps for freshmen on many campuses, "hell week" is being banned by many fraternities and is being replaced with educational and work programs that are of real value to the fraternity and the individual alike.

But college newspaper editors, close to the real situations on their campuses, are still pounding out strong editorials urging a continuation of the trend away from paddles and pranks. Paragraphs like the following are potent arguments for their case:

"If a fraternity is unable to build its freshmen into the desirable type of man without hell week, the logical conclusion to be drawn is that the fraternity is not a good one, for one of a fraternity's promises to a new freshman is that it will endeavor to make him better for the experience. Some fraternities are able to turn out men; others only succeed in producing over-grown high school boys." —University of Kansas Daily Kansan.

"A bad year of hazing can develop a pretty rugged inferiority complex in a sensitive soul. It can make the first year of college a year of pure hell and can kill any further desire to pursue education."—University of Mississippi Mississippian.

"As for making long and enduring friendships, hell week is a peculiarity. All the rest of mankind makes friendship, but not by beating and torturing prospective friends. Man has been making friends by trying to know and understand mankind better. We doubt if the World War made a great many friendships." — Western Reserve University Tribune.

Miss Marston Tells of Atlantic Crossing

Music Instructor Traveling In Europe When War Declared

Sailing from Rotterdam on September 4, the day after Great Britain and France declared war on Germany, and with the news of the torpedoed Athenia still fresh in their ears, Miss Miriam Natilee Marston of the University of Vermont music faculty and her mother, Mrs. Mayette Marston, made a safe crossing on the Statendam of the Holland-American Line and arrived today (Friday) in Burlington, in spite of hostile submarines and mines, which are now making transatlantic trips dangerous. Miss Marston and her mother spent most of their time this summer in London, going to Paris late in the summer, where they were when the crisis which preceded the declaration of war grew acute. They had reached Holland, however, before the actual declaration of war by Britain and France. A trip they had planned to Switzerland had to be cancelled because of the stopping of passenger service by trains on the continent of Europe. In the neutral country of Holland, Miss Marston said, trains discontinued passenger service soon after she and her mother arrived in the country. The transportation facilities were being used, she said, to take troops to the border. Holland, a neutral country, is determined to preserve her neutrality. Similar troop movements, Miss Marston said, were going on in other European countries neutral as well as belligerent.

British and French Calm

Asked how the people of France, Britain and Holland appeared on the outbreak of war, Miss Marston described the French people as very calm. "They seem to be fatalistic about it," she explained. "Their attitude was, if war comes, it comes." They did not see any panic in Britain either, Miss Marston said, the peole appearing to be calm. In Holland there seemed to be as much nervousness as anywhere, even though the country is neutral.

"Probably the most exciting part of the trip was hearing S. O. S. calls from torpedoed ships. One morning there were five. Our ship picked up survivors from one freighter which was sunk, the steamship Winkleigh. It had been carrying supplies, and was torpedoed by a German submarine off the Cilly Islands. The Winkleigh was torpedoed about 7.14 in the morning, and we picked up the suvivors, about 39 officers of the freighter, in lifeboats, about 2.45 in the afternoon. During all that time, our ship had been hunting for the men, who had been rowing about in the lifeboats."

The rescued crew of the freighter told passengers on the Statendam that they were given time to send the S. O. S. call before the ship was sunk. The Germans on the submarine which sank the Winkleigh gave the men in each lifeboat two loaves of bread and a package of cigarettes. The rescued men said that they were allowed time to get safely away because they carried no guns, but only grain and other supplies.

Passengers Anxious

"Many people, I think, slept several nights with their coats and heavy wraps near by in case of trouble." said Miss Marston. "We did, I know. One of the first things which happened after we got on board was lifeboat drill. We were told where our lifeboat was, and instructed what to do in case of trouble. Of course there was a good deal of anxiety when we started, but everybody tried to be as cheerful as possible. As we got farther from the danger zones, the strain relaxed a little."

Before the Statendam started her crossing, the ship was delayed because of the refusal of a number of the crew to make the trip. However, the captain announced that the ship would sail without these members of the crew, thinking it better to go as quickly as possible, and manage as well as might be without them. Like other ships coming from Europe, the Statendam carried an unusually large passenger list, which was estimated at more than 1,600.

Skipping a scheduled stop at Boulogne, the ship stopped the first night and blacked out all lights. This was the only night that the ship had a "blackout." Although there had been some doubt about stopping at Southampton, this port was finally made, apparently with a military escort. Travel in the English Channel, of course, is no longer safe, and Miss Marston said that no ship would dare try to cross it in darkness on account of mines. Passengers saw a number of submarines and airplanes during the early part of the trip, which caused much nervousness, but these all turned out to be British.

Late in the crossing the ship had to change her course to avoid storms.

NEW RULES ENFORCED BY INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

The Interfraternity Council met Tuesday evening at the Lambda Iota House. The new rushing rules and means of enforcement were discussed. It was decided that additional copies of the rules should be posted on the bulletin boards and in the fraternity houses to avoid errors either by freshmen or upperclassmen.

The interfraternity dance for new pledges will be held October 14, 1939. J. P. Katz '40, G. S. Noonan '40, W. I. Pye '41, R. Farnham, Jr., '41 and J. Bloom '41 are in charge.

All Kinds of Men In Freshman Class

With records not quite complete, Prof. H. A. Prentice, professor of physical education for men, has kindly consented to the release of a few unofficial figures concerning the men of the class of 1943.

The youngest man to venture into the hardships of college life is Leigh G. Abbott of Weston, Mass., who is just 16. On the other hand, Russell Marshall of Bennington has reached the mature age of 23 years and 5 months.

Paul M. Gold of Ridgewood, N. Y., has the distinction of being the shortest man in the class of '43. He is only 5 feet 2½ inches. The man who rates the honor of having the tallest frame among the freshmen is Thomas L. Moran, a native of Bristol, Conn. Young Tom had better keep clear of Coach Evans if he dislikes basketball, for his height is against him.

It would be terrible if Ralph Kilburn of Collinsville, Conn., was kept by his 95 pounds from coping with the weighty affairs at U. V. M., but he need have no worries, for brains count more than brawn at Vermont. Don't they, football men? Talking about weighty affairs at college, Lawrence H. Wein of Newton, Mass., is certainly no feather. It takes 235 pounds to balance him.

Cynic Radio League Has First Broadcast

Schofield and Cohen Speak; Five Freshmen Interviewed

Opening the 1939-40 VERMONT CYNIC Radio League, the first program of the year, presented Thursday evening over the Burlington Daily News Station WCAX, featured CYNIC Editor-in-Chief Carl Schofield '40, and interviews of five members of the incoming class of '43.

The twenty-five minute program was opened at 5.35 with the recorded strains of Vermont campus songs. After a few introductory remarks, Radio Editor Julius Cohen '42 introduced Editor Schofield. Schofield extended an official welcome to the freshman class and outlined for them the functions and significance of the CYNIC and the Radio League. He then reviewed the process and the rules and regulations covering freshman rushing, and concluded his talk by expressing his hope for an even bigger and better year of CYNIC cooperation and activity.

After more music the quaking freshmen were queried as to their name, course, home town, interests at Vermont, and their impression of the school, the student body, and the faculty. Those freshmen who were interviewed are Alan Jones of Morrisville, Larry Miller of New York City, Huddee Zwick of Burlington, Eleanor Languay of Vergennes and Gloria Farrell of Rutland.

Orchestras Chosen

Fourteen University of Vermont students have been chosen to play in the two University orchestras during the college year just starting. Orchestra members were selected by tryouts. The two orchestras are the chapel orchestra, which plays for vespers services, chapel concerts and similar occasions; the University orchestra plays at other concerts, the spring opera and dramatic presentations. Five of the orchestra members are freshmen.

Students who have been chosen to play in the orchestras are Sally Brigham, Burlington; Mary Elizabeth Davis, Arlington, Va.; Mary Lessor, Burlington; Dorothy Schwenger, Northfield; Natalie Spear, St. Albans; Dorothy Manion, Bridgeport, Conn.; Virginia Weyell, Winsted, Conn.; Effie Winn, Burlington; Margaret Wishart, Burlington; J. P. Goss, Wilder; G. L. Haines, Barre; C. E. Minkler, Proctor; J. E. Thayer, Burlington; F. R. Proctor, Ludlow.

Some of these will play in the chapel orchestra, others in the University orchestra. Some may play in both organizations. Definite assignments have not as yet been made.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED BY CHAMPLAIN SABRES

At a meeting of the members of Champlain Sabres, honorary military society, at Fort Devens this summer the following officers were elected: Captain, R. W. Robinson; secretary, J. W. Davis; treasurer, E. R. Thomas. This honorary society is composed of officers of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, and the organization has as its aim the development of good and efficient officers, and to provide social contacts for its members.

Home Ec Freshmen Honored at Picnic

Freshman Home Ec'ers were guests of honor Wednesday afternoon at a get-acquainted picnic tendered them by Miss Terrill and Miss Holbrook.

The party left Morrill Hall at 5.00 in busses and private cars for North Beach where they found tables ready and fires lit. A delicious supper of hamburgers with tomatoes, pickles, coffee, deviled angels and grapes was served buffet style.

The hostesses were ably assisted by Miss Bailey, Miss Lake, Miss Rawson, and Miss Burwash of the Home Economics faculty and Miss Davis and Miss Parker.

A large number of Home Ec'ers from the upper classes attended to extend their welcome and friendship to the freshmen.

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP TO HOLD DISCUSSION

The Pilgrim Fellowship will meet Sunday evening at the parish house of the First Church at 7.30. The topic for discussion will be "What the Pilgrim Fellowship Will Mean to Me This Year." Former members of the group will present benefits of the past and their expectations for this year, then the meeting will be open for discussion. At some time during the meeting a program of the year's work will be given. Come and see what is to happen. Plans are under way but not quite in line as yet.

Officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Jean Stewart '41; first vice-president and chairman of the program committee, M. Colehammer '41; program committee, H. Towne '40, D. Kinsley '40 and K. Hoffman '40; treasurer, M. Pike '42; secretary, O. Heywood '41.

The University of Alabama R. O. T. C. unit has earned an excellent rating eleven years in succession.

Between forty and fifty U. S. colleges are offered for sale every year.

Enrollment Figure Continues to Grow

Number Approaches Last Year's Record; Total Not Complete

Although some students, especially in the Colleges of Medicine and Agriculture, are still involved in the rigorous feat of enrolling, the figures thus far show that the numbers of students in final totals will amount to about the same as last year or perhaps even slightly larger.

Last year's freshman class had the largest enrollment in the history of the University and the figure this year will total just about the same happy sum.

Last year also set the record for total enrollment with 1,436 students, including the College of Medicine. To date this year we have 1,422 students enrolled and the difference in these figures will undoubtedly be absorbed by new enrollments in the course of the next few days.

It is interesting to compare the enrollment of last year with that of this year. One may also speculate on the differences in numbers between freshmen and sophomores and the steady lessening in numbers as the class grows academically more advanced.

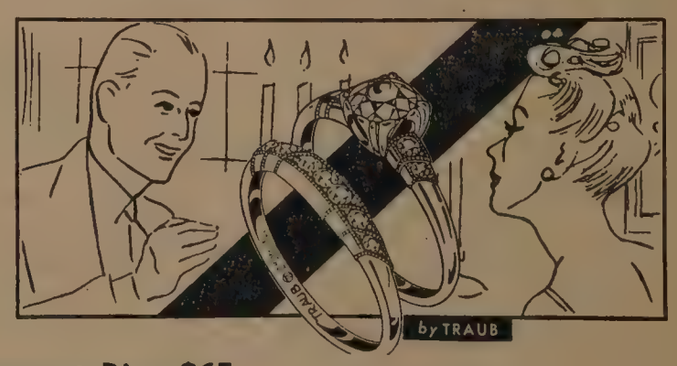
Washington, D. C.—(I.P.)—Federal aid for university-sponsored bureaus of business research will be provided if the bill now pending in Congress is enacted, Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the University of Texas business research agency, declared. Dr. Cox testified in hearings on the measure.



He conferred with Secretary of Commerce Harry A. Hopkins and other university business directors. The House bill, proposed by Representative Robinson of Utah, and the Senate bill, introduced by Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, were reviewed.

Freshman Girls Attend Orientation Meetings

Talks Were Given by Miss Simpson and Miss Bickford

It is U. V. M. we represent!

The freshman girls were shown how to best fulfill this representation in the courses of the orientation meetings held 7.00 p.m. September 19, 20 and 21 in the ball room at Southwick.

Dean Simpson gave advice to the freshman girls concerning health, lessons, general appearance on the campus and purpose and duty at U. V. M. The latter was stated effectively by the remark that college costs a great deal of money and thus that time should not be lost in getting that amount out of U. V. M. Studying assignments to fulfillment was one point among others to consider for a wanted benefit from college.

Miss Simpson stated that good health is very important to maintain for the poorer the health, the less the marks. Right food, recreation and correct amount of sleep were ones of the benefits which Miss Simpson listed. No candy between meals was suggested as a good way to save money and keep slender. It was advised that recreation should be practiced daily as a rest from lessons, but not to such an extent that three movies a week is the minimum. The right amount of sleep was mentioned as being a great help toward healthy bodies. One cannot study as successfully the latter part of the night as early in the morning.

Mrs. Bickford also gave an interesting and helpful talk to the girls. Manners were discussed as effective ways to point out people's characters. Ill-mannered young people are given the credit of having parents as such. The blame of actions falls on the folks at home. The short talk was followed by a helpful presentation of table manners given by Mrs. Bickford. With various types of dishes and silverware, she carefully showed the correct way of using each. Many hints were given to save embarrassments later.

Each girl must have benefited in some way by these talks. Dean Simpson and Mrs. Bickford deserve many thanks.

FLEMING ART DISPLAYS AT NUMEROUS EXHIBITS

The Fleming Art Museum is among the prominent museums of the country as is seen by some of the exhibitions displayed there. Recently the Fleming Museum sent an exhibition of pictures of old buildings to Manchester, N. H., to go on to Andover, Mass., and then to keep on way to the Pacific coast. The present exhibit is of some very old etchings, engravings and prints, some by Rembrandt and several by the famous Italian artist, Piranesi. There are also some modern works. This exhibition is owned by the Fleming Museum and is being shown for the first time since the completion of the building.

A very interesting exhibit for the blind is opening in Rutland, October 2, in the Public Library.

WELL ATTENDED SERVICE OPENS REGULAR CHAPEL

Last Wednesday, September 20, a well-filled chapel heard the Rev. William Fisher Lewis of the Burlington Episcopal Church speak. The large audience was rewarded by a most interesting half hour.

We do hope that chapel attendance will continue to be as large and encouraging as this last meeting proved. There has often been agitation before to have chapel period compulsory and in some respects this might be a good idea. In the meantime, why not devote this half hour every week to this worthwhile devotion.

W. A. A. AND OUTING CLUB TO HIKE TOGETHER

Notice to all W. A. A. and Outing Club members! There will be a joint hike to Bolton Lodge, Sunday, October 1. All members of W. A. A., whether Outing Club members or not, are cordially invited and of course we want the regular members of Outing Club to come. The Bolton trip is not a very hard trail, so is a good beginner for inexperienced hikers.

Everyone bring his own lunch and thirty-five cents for transportation. W. A. A. gives four points an hour for mountain climbing. This hike offers a wonderful opportunity to earn fifty points for membership to W. A. A. or for the six hundred point award. Sign up in the Y room before Saturday morning and we will see you at the men's gym at nine o'clock Sunday morning.

The enrollment in the various sports thus far is as follows: Archery 50, golf 20, freshman hockey 30, sophomore hockey 27, riding 33, tennis 210. A tennis technique class is also being held for those who wish to learn to teach tennis.

Hockey club will be held on Tuesday and Thursday from 4.00 to 5.15. Everyone is invited to attend.

WINS PRIZE

Winner of honorable mention in Mademoiselle magazine's "Ideal College Room" contest is the University of Vermont's own Lucille Clark '38.

Mortar Board Dance To Be Held This Week

Women's Honorary Society Give Fall Semi-Formal

With the first month of college nearly gone, Vermont is looking forward to the Mortar Board dance, which is put on every fall and spring by the senior women's honor society. The date is very soon, September 30, the place is Southwick ballroom; so all Vermont women are taking advantage of their opportunity to take the gentlemen of their choice to Vermont's own Mortar Board dance.

The arrangements have not all been completed as yet, but the Mortar Board girls promise something new in decorations, good refreshments, smooth music and a wonderful time for the traditional price of only $1.10.

Semi-formal attire will be the order of the evening, so the girls may dress up in long gowns and the boys may be comfortable in business suits.

Phyllis McGovern is general chairman of the dance. Mary Howe will take charge of tickets; Betty Myers, decorations; Mary Nelson, publicity; Flossie Wade, programs; and Jean Butler, chaperones.

Tickets will be on sale at the Old Mill beginning Thursday, or they may be purchased from any of the members of Mortar Board.

This year the gala affair is the first big dance; so buy your ticket early for everybody goes to Mortar Board.

Fraternity Tea Dances Start the Year Right

After lessons there must be fun! This was realized at the tea dances held at Delta Psi, Lambda Iota and Delta Delta Delta Saturday afternoon, September 23.

About fourteen couples attended the dance at Delta Psi. The party was chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Leeder.

With a majority of freshman girls, the Lambda Iota fraternity played its part. The committee consisted of: Cenci, chairman; All White, coat chairman; and Doctor Draggs, chaperone. From five to eight, with music by the "Kittens" and a buffet dinner, seventeen couples were entertained.

OUTING CLUB GROUP HIKES TO TAYLOR LODGE

A fine day and a large turn-out of seventy-four members made the first event of the year in Outing Club activities, a trip to Taylor Lodge in Nebraska Notch, a successful one. The group, carried in two trucks, started at 9.00 a.m. Sunday and, arriving at the Notch, either hiked further up the mountain, visited Lake Mansfield, or stayed at the Lodge. One of the trucks broke down about a mile and a half from its destination, making some walking not bargained for necessary. Everyone reported a marvelous time, returning to campus about 6.00 p.m. R. Davis '41 was in charge.

STUDENT UNION MEETING CALLED FOR WEDNESDAY

The Student Union mass meeting calls for all women students on Wednesday, September 27, at 7.30 p.m. at Southwick. All women living under Student Union rules are required to attend. Town girls are cordially invited. All those wishing to take out membership in the University of Vermont Y. W. C. A. by bringing ten cents may do so at this time.

Kappa Alpha Theta will hold a fashion show at the sorority house on Friday, September 29, at 4.00 p.m. The clothes will be loaned from Turk's and the models will be directed professionally.

NEW SCHOLARSHIP FUND AVAILABLE TO UNIVERSITY

A scholarship fund of at least $50,000, according to information received at the office of Pres. Guy W. Bailey of the University of Vermont, has been made available through the will of the late George H. McDaniels of Los Angeles, Calif., of whose estate the University is a residuary legatee.

The fund will be set up in memory of Margaret Paterson McDaniels, the mother of the donor, the terms of the will providing that the scholarships are to be allotted as first choice to students from Craftsbury. In case the scholarships are not used by Craftsbury students they may be allotted to other deserving Vermont students.

Councils-at-Large Elected by W. A. A.

The W. A. A. chose the following girls to represent their dormitories, sorority houses or private houses in the W. A. A. Council: Nancy Jones, Phyllis Ingram, Louise Peterson, Mary Bissel, Marjorie Albro, Ruth Conner, Mildred Guttormsen, Lois Murray, Harriet Nelson, Barbara Butterfield, Ruth Spivak, Loni Gerard, Judy Perry, Nancy Goodwin, Lorraine Thibault, Nora Hill, Alice Heath, Gloria Oling and Thelma King.

All girls who have played hockey are invited to join the Hockey Club and to participate in the hockey games played this fall. Sign up for hockey in the Y room.

The tennis tournament under the management of Barbara Butterfield and Jeanne Wooley is under way now. We urge all the girls who are in the tournament to arrange to play off the games as quickly as possible.

Even though the boatride was cancelled because of the weather, a large number of the girls wouldn't even let "Ole Man Weather" down their spirits. Some gathered at Southwick and made use of the facilities for games in the gym, and enjoyed the fireside atmosphere with their lunches. Hot chocolate was served by the W. A. A. girls. The "vic" provided dinner music and the girls also provided a little of their own. While some girls were at Southwick, others took their "little sisters" down by the lake and had a swell time in that way. It all goes to show you that "where there's a will there's a way"—unquote.

Thursday evening at 7.15 o'clock there will be a W. A. A. Council meeting.

Don't forget the scavenger hunt on Saturday of this week.

Hike to Bolton Lodge Over Night Saturday

Attention! News of interest to overnight hikers. The first lucky twenty who sign up will travel to Bolton Lodge on Bolton Mountain Saturday afternoon, September 30. There they will remain over night in the stone lodge and return Sunday with the W. A. A. day hikers. Everett Bailey '40 is in charge of this and the proper chaperonage will be provided. There will be a charge of one dollar to cover food. Each member must bring his own blankets or sleeping bag and eating utensils. Sign up early so there will be a bunk reserved for you. Leave your name in the slot on the Outing Club bulletin board (north of Book Store) before Thursday and we will see "the" twenty at the men's gym at 2.00 p.m. Saturday for what promises to be a swell week-end.

Members of W. A. A. interested in hiking are invited to sign up in the Y room for the joint hike to Bolton Lodge, Sunday, October 1. Four points an hour will be given for mountain climbing. If there is any doubt as to whether you are a member of W. A. A., please call Mary Howe.

U. V. M. Places Second In Dairy Exposition

High Standing Earned By Expert Team

The University of Vermont dairy products judging team competing at the Eastern States Exposition, Springfield, Mass., has again demonstrated the ability of Vermont students in this field by winning second place in a contest in which eleven states participated.

In this annual contest held last Tuesday, Michigan State College placed first, University of Vermont second, Ohio State University third, and Cornell University fourth. Other states sending teams were Connecticut, West Virginia, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maryland and New Hampshire.

The University of Vermont team included Gordon Page of Groton, George Pitman of Shaftsbury, John Whitworth of Warren and John Rogers, alternate, of Enosburg Falls, all senior students majoring in dairy manufacturing in the College of Agriculture. They won the Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corporation cup for the high team in judging cheese and each man won a Borden Company medal for cheese-judging ability.

In addition to placing second on all products, the team was first on cheese, second on milk, fourth on butter, and fourth on ice cream. John Whitworth placed fourth, George Pitman sixth and Gordon Page tenth on all products among the thirty-three contestants. Also, as individuals Whitworth was second on cheese and Page fourth, Pitman ranking fifth on both cheese and milk.

This team was instructed by Prof. E. O. Herreid, assisted by Mr. Fred Skelton. Prof. J. A. Newlander assisted Doctor Herreid in the final coaching and was selected by the judging committee as one of the official judges for the contest.

Twelve teams competed in the dairy cattle judging contest. The University of Vermont team consisted of Richard Dana of Pomfret, Howard Nelson of East Ryegate, Harry Ketcham of Newfane, and Merlin Wells, alternate, of Plainfield. They placed ninth on all breeds, fifth on Ayrshires, seventh on Guernseys, eighth on Brown Swiss, ninth on Holsteins and tenth on Jerseys. Maryland won the contest, Michigan placing second, Ontario third, and Ohio fourth.

As individuals, Nelson and Dana tied for eighteenth place on all breeds among thirty-six contestants. Nelson was third on Guernseys and Dana was fifth on Brown Swiss and seventh on Jerseys. The cattle team was trained by Prof. M. H. Campbell.

EDITORIALS

Consider More Than Expenses

We extend our congratulations to Kendall Beaton and his staff for the fine work they did in the publishing of the 1939 Interfraternity Handbook. This publication, one of the more recent additions to those at Vermont, was first published in 1938 and was edited by T. Burke McHugh '39. Although the first handbook was of necessity kept small in size, it contained all the information necessary to acquaint the freshmen with fraternity life at the University of Vermont.

This year's handbook contained not only information relative to fraternities but also much of interest concerning the school itself. It gave prospective freshmen a graphic view of life at a typical small eastern university.

In the publication of the 1939 Handbook one matter of policy seems debatable. That matter is the printing of the various expenses entailed in joining any one of the various fraternities at the University. True, it gives the freshmen an opportunity to compare the figures of the different fraternities. But there are other aspects to be considered.

When fraternities were first established in Europe toward the close of the twelfth century the members banded together for one purpose—to prevent the local townspeople from exploiting them by charging exorbitant prices for room and board. Conditions have changed since then. The principle functions of fraternities today are to supplement the social life of the college and afford their members the opportunity to enjoy the advantages of good fellowship with men of similar tastes.

It is quite possible that some of the freshmen may select a fraternity previous to their visits to the houses on the basis of financial obligations involved. By so doing they may overlook the very fraternity with which they would be most harmoniously affiliated.

Our argument is not that the financial angle should not be considered but we feel that freshmen may become prejudiced against a fraternity before they have even paid a visit to the chapter house to acquaint themselves with the members.

Their decision should be delayed until they have had the opportunity to meet the men of the various fraternities. They should then consider both the type of men in the fraternity and the cost of becoming a member. Only in this way do we feel that a man can select a fraternity which suits both his heart and his pocketbook.

A Word to the Frosh

Men's rushing got under way last evening at 7.30, the hour which officially ended the neutral period observed by fraternities. Freshmen unfamiliar with rushing procedure may have been taken aback at the unusually warm welcome extended them upon their arrival at the chapter houses. Warm smiles and hearty handclasps were the order of the day.

Amazement may have been superseded by perplexity as in making the rounds he discovered that he was not only showered with attention but made to feel like the long lost son at each of the houses. All this must be highly confusing to the average freshman. Because of this we offer a word of advice to the newcomers. Don't be taken in by appearances alone. Look beneath the surface to discover how the houses rate on campus, how they stand scholastically and, what their dominant interests are.

If you can determine these facts and also learn to know the fraternity men personally you should be well fitted to make your final decision. But make that decision yourself—don't let them make it for you.

The Band Wagon

By BOB JOHNSON

Local Chatter

Being met with demands for more bits from the local front we'll now try to give out.

Jimmy Brown has a strickly dixieland combo minus the trombone. He features himself on clarinet, Wilson on trumpet and Ray Draper on drums. The band is subtle but stiff. The bass—for us—is the sock of the rhythm section.

New Vermonters Quintet has a real treat in Louis Ouimette, guitarist and vocalist—but he isn't featured enough and you know why—or do you? Red Hartigan, filling in for "teacher J. Q." gave us a big surprise—good—definitely—we suggest that teacher become a pupil—what again?

The Catamounts after playing the majority of the summer at an Empire State hot spot are back with the only large band in and around town. Many new arrangements are on the fire. Interest is being shown in a femme oriole.

With the Names

If you've been catching the Krupa-krew we know he's becoming one of your favorites. Sam Donahue, tenor man, is definitely there—with the biggest tone of any white—xcepting Barnet. Don't miss their Columbia releases.

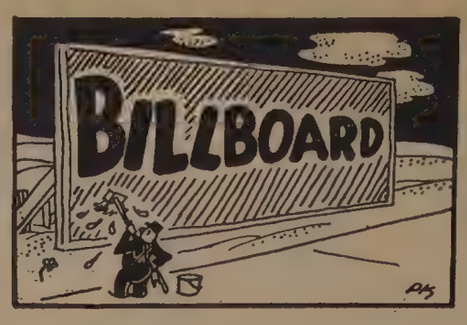
Ray McKinley (J. Dorsey's former drummer par xcellance) has joined the ranks of band leaders in company with Will Bradley (né Schwichtenberg). This band should be one of the best musically. Bradley (or Scott—he can't make up his mind) will be out in front with his trombone.

On the Carpet

Skunk cabbage to Fred L. Collins for his article on Guy (The Gay) Lombardo in the latest Liberty. He starts out, "This is the story of an oasis of melody in a desert of swing." One blood vessel popped there. Calling in a doctor and twin nurses (of course they were blondes) just in case—I finished reading the article. Pure, unadulterated corn—but wonderful publicity for the "Lombardo legato which is a matter of carefully calculated tonal effects achieved under the guidance of a most musicianly mind." Can it be Mr. Lombardo's press agent doesn't know the difference between vibrato and legato? Understand—we have nothing against Guy personally (Carmen is the brains of course), it's just that his music leaves us with a taste of soap chips and feeling like a piece of fly paper—all of which is bad for our ego. OK, we're just prejudiced—and "you ain't lyin'." Reminding us also that "fools rush in . . . ."—and who wants to be an angel? Suffice it to say, "There may be better voices on the air than Carmen's, but none fits the Lombardo band so well"—they're our sentiments, too.

Back to Campus

Orchids to Professor Kirby of the music department for the fine job of filling Professor Bennett's shoes. And we do mean he's doing a fine job.



Magnolias to Jan Spear for her tuneful ditty, "Why Not You?" The words of this lyric are adequate while the melody is, we feel, especially good. Any similarity to a recent release is accidental—Jan's tune having been written first—actually. This has been specially arranged by Chet Minkler. Note the second chorus—trombone lead with three saxes underneath. Frankly we like it—and it would seem to be original to the arranger.

Signing off while Philbert reads me the latest Down Beat. Here's hoping Hitler has to roast in Hades listening to that "illiterate, inartistic, non-aryan savage thing" called swing.

W. A. A. BOATRIDE

Because of threatening weather the annual W. A. A. boatride scheduled for Saturday afternoon, September 23, was cancelled and in its place girls who had signed up for the boatride enjoyed games and a picnic lunch at Southwick. Everyone participated in roller skiting, ping pong, or badminton. W. A. A. girls served cocoa to go with the lunches. Mary Howe '40 was in charge; she was assisted by Barbara Gallagher '42 and Charlotte Hall '40.

Scribes will have their next meeting Wednesday, September 27, at Southwick at 7.30 p.m. All freshmen who signed up are invited to attend.

Thursday, September 28, is the closing date for change of studies. After that time no changes in enrollment will be permitted except for very special reasons in exceptional cases.

E. Swift, Dean.

Y. W. C. A.

Wednesday, September 20, the Y. W. C. A. held its first cabinet meeting of the year at Southwick. It was decided that all freshmen and upperclassmen could join the organization for ten cents after mass meeting Thursday night. Let's have a bigger and better crowd join than ever before.

Columbia, Mo.—(I.P.)—A long desire was satisfied by a 73-year-old woman, Mrs. Nannie P. Tidd, when she enrolled this semester as a hearer in the feature writing class of the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri.

"I have stood by the Holy Sepulchre; I have prayed in Westminster Abbey, and I have knelt before the Pope at Rome and kissed his hand. But the greatest thrill of my life was when I registered as a student in the University," she said.

The mother of two University of Missouri graduates, Mrs. Tidd has always wanted to attend a university, but the opportunity didn't arise until this year. Despite her lack of formal education, she has developed her knowledge with extensive reading and traveling, saying that "Books and travel are the greatest educators we have, and each is intensified by the other."

Frosh Gives Impression Of Cynic Radio League

When we were asked to write our impressions of the VERMONT CYNIC Radio League's recent program, we were somewhat hesitant. As one of the quaking freshmen interviewed we had little time to take notice of the thousand trivia peculiar to a broadcast, so absorbed were we in the realization that all too soon we would be called upon to make our initial appearance before the mike. It seems strange, indeed, that a small piece of metal could hold such fascination and incite such awe.

Save for the microphone the broadcasting studio was not unlike an ordinary parlor. There were comfortable chairs, a thick rug to muffle the sound of shuffling feet, pictures hung on the walls, and a grand piano. Part of one wall was removed; in its place was a pane of glass through which we could see the engineer. During the fifteen minutes preceding our program there were swing recordings; these we listened to via a loud speaker.

With the ease that comes from long experience and complete confidence, Radio Editor Julie Cohen was pacing up and down the room, all the while trying to ease our nerves and perhaps his own with his glib tongue. Whether he succeeded or not we are uncertain.

Carl Schofield was patiently sitting in front of a table on which was placed another microphone. We envied him, for his task was comparatively simple. No unrehearsed interview was his lot, rather to comment on the rules governing freshman rushing.

Four freightened freshmen, three of whom were female, did not exhibit any undue apprehensiveness, but it was rather obvious that they did not feel too much at home.

Almost paradoxically, we could not believe there would be people sitting in their homes who would listen to our program. We knew, or rather hoped there would be. Suddenly we felt that it was all such a waste of time; but that soon passed over.

The music had ceased, and news bulletins could be heard. In a few moments we would have experienced the ineffable thrill of speaking over the radio. A feeling of tenseness pervaded the studio. The bulletins were over, and for ten eternal seconds all was still. Now the engineer signaled with his hand—the time had come.

FOOTBALL FABLE

Sunday is column writing day. Today is Sunday. And, today is definitely not a football day. It's a day for baseball, track or tennis. It lacks the slight breeze and the tang of an autumn football day and there are too many birds making us think of summer and trees. Coupled with these undesirable conditions for column writing on football, we have been away for two days and, if possible, know even less than usual about the contemporary football scene on our fair campus. All we know is what we heard across the dinner table. It seems that the varsity scrimmaged against the frosh last Saturday afternoon. From what we hear the varsity treated the frosh line like a torn sieve. We also heard that Boots Lawrence and Misty Rice alternated making tackles throughout the fracas. A frosh halfback by the name of Sanders is slated to be another Frankie Taylor. Not being present at the time, we hesitate to say any more about that scrimmage. However, if the frosh cannot offer the varsity much in the way of competition, we know of a mythical team that could perhaps. We call it the U. V. M. ghost team of '39, and is composed of men who, although ineligible or injured or just not playing this year, at one time have played for either the frosh or the varsity. It's a plenty imposing roster, too. In the line there are Dick Salmon, Bill Murphy, Mark O'Toole, Don Nutter, Cal Olshan and Anse Belardinelli. We're one man short but a hasty perusal of the enrollment sheet would probably produce another man. The backfield is perhaps even more powerful, containing such names as Bud Kimball, Mac McDonald, Red Crossley, Mickey Gilbert and Jim Horvath. If the ghosts ever played the varsity, the regulars would undoubtedly win because of their superior training and conditioning, but what we'd prefer to see much more than such a game would be Taylor, Pye & Co. being augmented by the ghosts. Whatta team that would be! Not only would the personnel of the first team be improved, but, what is more important, Coach Sabo would then have a sizable group of reserves with which to work. Enough for that. The other day we heard that a few people were somewhat incensed by our creeping out on the proverbial wing and selecting Amherst over Vermont. By way of elucidation and justification, if necessary, may we point out that last year Amherst won six, lost none, and tied one. In the last game of the year Amherst routed Williams 41 to 0. Incidentally, two things of non-importance happened over the week-end—Norwich defeated Hyannis 33-0 and Rutland lost to Whitehall 33-0. Norwich will still lose to Vermont (we hope) and Rutland will still be state schoolboy champs (we hope).

Fall Golf and Tennis Tournaments Start

Intramural fall tournaments are in full swing this week, with tennis and golf leading the way.

In the tennis picture sixteen healthy young hopefuls will do-or-die in the next two weeks for the distinction of becoming the U. V. M. champion.

The first round pairings which must be completed by the night of September 28, are listed as follows: L. Pine meets W. West; Les Brown clashes with J. McCabe; F. Potter is paired with A. D. Clark; G. Stanley versus D. Zwick; A. Caldwell battles W. Black; R. Smith is matched with C. Kimball; and J. O'Brien versus W. Pratt.

The scheduled contest between W. Harvey and C. Barber is already completed with W. Harvey the winner in a close and well-played match, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4.

The rules for the tournament, as drawn up by Director Archie T. Post, are:

1. First round of play to be completed by the night of September 28; second round by October 3; third round by October 6; final match by October 10.
2. All matches will be two out of three sets except the final, which will be three out of five sets.
3. All matches not played on time will be cancelled. Dates above changeable only by poor weather.
4. Courts are reserved in the physical education office.
5. Players must arrange own time for playing and scores must be posted immediately after each match is concluded.
6. Balls will be furnished for the final match only.

Director Post is greatly disappointed in the golf tournament which will be held at the Waubanakee Golf Course. This tournament attracted only four men, namely, B. M. Perkins, L. Brown, S. C. Palmer and E. J. Keenan, who will fight it out for the championship.

The rules governing this tournament are:

1. Students entered must obtain identification cards at the physical education office.
2. Each match will be eighteen holes, matched play.
3. Entries must make own arrangements and turn in their signed score cards at the physical education office.
4. Scores must be posted on score sheet.

RUTLAND'S CORSONES ADDED TO BACKFIELD

The name of Corsones has been added to the University of Vermont backfield, bringing Coach Sabo's availables to eight. Corsones, a chunky boy from Rutland, played a good game with the freshman carriers last year and makes a welcome addition to the varsity forces, although not adding much poundage where poundage is needed.

Pivot Battle

One of the closest fights for position along the line, where Sabo has a string of dependables, is warming to a climax at center between the veteran Earl Reed, Oakfield, N. Y., junior, and "Misty" Rice of New Haven, Conn., a powerhouse in the freshman mid-section last year. Either one may get the starting call. Both will see plenty of service.

Coach Johnny Evans' freshman squad of thirty is beginning to settle down into formation and from now on will be available for varsity opposition. The freshmen look big and several of them have had experience, promising to be varsity additions next year. For two or three seasons Evans has put a state championship first-year outfit on the field.

The Fleming Museum will broadcast every two weeks during the winter over Station WCAX. The broadcasts will start Thursday, September 28, at 7.00 p.m. Richard H. Cowles, district attorney, will speak on "A Community and Its College."

Varsity Cross-Country Meets Union Oct. 7

With the first meet of the season rapidly approaching, the varsity cross-country team has been working out strenuously under the watchful eye of Coach Archie Post. As yet no definite form has been reached as the boys are still taking out the kinks after a summer of inactivity. They have already worked out six times and are spurred on by the prospects of competition with strong veteran teams.

Competition is keen among the squad members because of the return of several seasoned sod trodders. These veterans who will form the nucleus of this year's team are: H. Ketcham '40, the Webster boys, Fred and Charlie '42, Frank Livak '40, Jack Burgess '42, H. Wilson '41 and L. Gallup '41. The Webster duo and Burgess formed the nucleus of last year's freshman team and it appears that their talents will be again appreciated. Coach Post was very hopeful of having veteran John Rogers '40 run for him this year, but Rogers, because of employment, may not be able to come out.

The rest of the squad who are fighting for berths are: G. Noonan '40, E. Gifford '41, J. Brousseau '40, R. Clark '42, D. Moran '42, D. Palmer '41, W. Swift '42 and Williams '40.

The first engagement of the season is on October 7 with a very strong team from Union College. The meet will be held on our home course. This is the schedule following the Union-U. V. M. tussle:

Oct. 14. Dartmouth .....Hanover
Oct. 20. Bowdoin .....Brunswick
Nov. 4. Williams .....Burlington
Nov. 18. Middlebury .....Burlington

In looking over the prospects of the season, Coach Post says, "We are meeting a series of strong teams with many experienced men, but we have a few very good runners from last year and the boys are out there working hard. It looks as though Middlebury will be the easiest to beat." A Vermont victory over Middlebury—what more can we ask.

A Charlie McCarthy for President Club has been organized at Lynchburg College.

Fraternity Football Starts October 3

Rules Released, Three Games Next Week

Naming Tuesday, October 3, as the official opening day of the 1939 touch football season, the physical education department released the full schedule and announced that everything is in readiness for another successful tournament.

This Collegiate World

University, Ala. (ACP)—What's the longest non-scientific word in the dictionary? Two University of Alabama students think they know after scanning Webster's pages for hours.

The students are G. C. Long and Elmo Israel, who said they became interested in the question after reading so many long words in foreign news dispatches.

Some of the long combinations of letters dished up by the boys were "imperturbability," "preraphealitism" and "perpendicularity."

But the prize word, longest of all, found by the vocabulary excavators was (draw a good breath): "antidisestablishmentarianism," which rivals in length the names of some of those Welsh hamlets.

Fashion Forcasts

By Rae Sheehan

Plaids! Pleats! Flares! That is what the well-dressed college girl of today features. For several years there has not been such a drastic change in fashions as this fall has brought. Unusually warm colors in the most daring of combinations are suggested.

Rosy tints are featured even in silk hosiery. Knee-length socks are being timidly brought forth on some campuses.

Long cardigans with very full skirts are a novice. These and the wide shirring are a distinct effort to lower the waistline.

Buttons are very important on this year's models. Wooden, jewel or wax buttons add interest to the plainest of frocks. Velvetine has been revived and that is grand for tea dances, teas and the like. Date frocks of two tones are advised.

Suits are checked or plaid with plain colored accessories. The strap pocketbook continues its popularity.

For formal wear accordian pleats and bustle effects hold sway.

Most of the changes have been made toward the comfortable side. But some of them appear very awkward and, if not encouraged, will soon fade out. One of these is the long cardigan. Very few girls can wear it gracefully. It requires a tall, slim figure and a skirt that reaches at least two inches below the knee.

Girls with faulty figures appear ridiculous with the waistline effect around their hips. Shorter sweaters appear to be in much better style on these girls than do the poorly proportioned ensembles.

The fullness which this year's fashion calls for should be put in the proper place for the individual and the effect will last much longer.

Saddle shoes continue to be the old faithfuls, but the comfort and neat appearance of this year's oxfords are a challenge.

Scotch plaid hats to match plaid skirts are replacing ribbons.

The well-dressed girl must remember that she is not in fashion if the ensemble is not suitable to her type and figure.

FIRST RAZZ DAZZ OF YEAR HELD IN UNIVERSITY GYM

A large throng tripped the light fantastic to the strains of the Campus Catamounts' music at the first razz dazz of the year last Saturday night in the gym. Everybody met everybody else, nobody was bashful, and a grand time was apparently had by all, from the most timid freshie to the most sophisticated senior. Especially noteworthy was the fact that the gentlemen considerably outnumbered the ladies. (What's the matter, girls, inferiority complex, or couldn't you find a quarter?)

As an innovation this year, both the price of admission and the source of the music has undergone a slight change. For the insignificant sum of twenty-five cents, one may now swing it out to the rhythm of a real orchestra, whereas in the past the music was machine-made. These Saturday night razz dazzes are practically traditional at U. V. M., and furnish the student body with many an evening of informal entertainment and fun.

PAN-HELLENIC SPONSORS INTER-SORORITY PICNIC

Pan-Hellenic sponsored an inter-sorority picnic Friday night at the quarry. The groups met at 5.30 in front of Southwick and continued from there in cars or on foot.

A large number of women gathered around a fire to eat their lunches and to toast marshmallows. The picnic ended with group singing.

This get-together, the first of several planned for this year, was held to increase the interest in Pan-Hellenic on campus and to make it a stronger and more influential organization.

In the Annals

Wilbur Will Leaves Vermont Huge Sum

James B. Wilbur, late trustee and benefactor of the University, bequeathed well over $3,000,000 to the college of his adopted state. He provided for numerous trust funds as well as loans and scholarships for Vermonters.

Sophs Put Down Frosh Revolt

A united body wearing green and gold skull caps paraded through the streets of the town today shoulting defiance to their older sophomore brethren. Their heckling could not go unavenged. The sophs hung on the outskirts of the little band intending to spirit away stragglers.

The freshman schedule called for a meeting in the gym that night to listen to a few talks. While the frosh were inside the sophs gathered outside and waited. The speakers concluded their addresses, but the frosh males didn't move until their feminine contingent were well away from the building. Then arm in arm they strode forth and walked firmly through the amazed sophomore ranks. The sophs soon recovered and followed the revolutionists to City Hall Park, where they finally launched a surprise attack, and a battle of good-natured wrestling ensued. Several frosh were spirited away during the battle, and the victorious sophs left the main body and hastened away to do justice to a few.

Sabe Abell Appointed Graduate Manager

Sabin Abell '28 has been selected from a group of applicants by the Athletic Committee to succeed H. A. Mayforth as graduate manager of athletics. Sabe was an outstanding member of his class, having annexed honors as a member of Key and Serpent and Boulder. He earned the right to wear a V as baseball manager of the great team of '28, and also aspired to the presidency of his class in '28.

Archie Post Takes Over Duties as Track Coach

The Athletic Council has offered Archie Post '27 the track coaching job. Archie was a good middle distance runner, and held a Green Mountain conference record. He also captained the basketball team in '26. Post as yet has not signed a contract, but we feel sure that he will accept.

Schedule of the '29 Team

Coach Rattan has been working hard on the football candidates in preparation for their approaching tussle with N. Y. U. The schedule this year includes N. Y. U., Yale, Boston U., Union, Rensselaer and Middlebury.

Scotch Bagpipes in Special Music Exhibit

A Highland bagpipe, with the bag covered with the Stewart tartan, is now on exhibition in one of the special display cases in the entrance hallway of the Fleming Museum, University of Vermont. Nowadays the bagpipe is regarded as a Scotch instrument exclusively, but according to information supplied by the museum, it was at one time in common use among all the nations of Europe. Of unknown antiquity, the bagpipe can be followed back to the earliest periods by means of pictorial representations and references in literature.

It is probable, according to the museum, that the instrument consisted at first of the pipes without the bag and was used by the Egyptians, Greeks and Romans. The strain upon the player of these pipes was so great that he had to bandage his lips and cheeks with a leather muzzle or headstall. The addition of a wind-bag to relieve the strain on the lungs and cheeks of the player produced an instrument which is known today as the "bagpipe."

The instrument consists of a wind-bag, a mouth tube by means of which the bag is inflated, three reed drones and a reed chanter, with finger holes on which the tunes are played. The player of the instrument uses a great number of rapid notes among the simple notes which are known as warblers.

PAN AMERICAN INSTITUTE PROPOSED BY TEXAS U.

Austin, Tex. (IP)—Additions to the language department of the University of Texas faculty were being considered here to push the University's proposed Pan American Institute.

Four authorities in the "Romance Language" field—one each from Columbia, Mexico, Cuba and Central America—are being considered by the department, Dr. C. M. Montgomery, chairman, said.

Development of a Pan American Institute here was recently listed by Dr. Homer Price Rainey, University president-elect, as one of his five major objectives as head of the institution.

Omer C. Stewart has been imported from the University of California to teach a new course on the peoples and cultures of Mexico, inaugurated this spring by the department of anthropology and archaeology.

The new course will deal principally with the archaeology and ethnography of the Mexican peoples but will carry some mention of the contemporary social situation.

The University of Virginia's first curriculum was written by Thomas Jefferson.

Volume Commemorates Collegians in World War

Columbus, Ohio (IP)—With the twenty-second anniversary of United States entrance into the World War, comes the release of two new volumes of the "History of Ohio State University," recording the parts played by faculty, students and alumni in that great conflict.

Magnitude of the project is indicated in the fact that the history contains individual records and accounts of 6,594 Ohio State men. Part I of the military history, describing war-time on the campus, was published in 1934. The new volumes, one of 632 pages and the other of 306, deal with "Our Men in Military and Naval Service" and "In the Camps and at the Front."

A survey reported in 1931 by the U. S. Office of Education showed that Ohio State was surpassed only by Cornell in the number of its men in the service, the Cornell total being 6,850. Similarly Cornell was first in the number of war dead, with 240; Illinois was second with 181, and Ohio State third with 135.

The American Legion's national executive committee recently passed resolutions favoring compulsory military training in all land-grant colleges.

VOLUME 58 BURLINGTON, VERMONT, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1939 NUMBER 4

First Mass Meeting Held at Southwick

Phyllis McGovern '40 Elected Pres.; Taylor Elected Chairman

The girls of U. V. M. met at Southwick for their first mass meeting of the Student Union, September 27. Dean Simpson spoke, informing the girls, among other information, that October 7 is Homecoming Day, on which day all the college buildings are to be open to alumni visitors. The girls were asked to act as hostesses and informers if the occasion demanded. Dean Simpson also gave a brief history of Southwick. From this, one may understand Southwick, erected in memory of a lovely and fine-charactered girl, Mabel Southwick, is to be used and appreciated with this history in mind.

Phyllis McGovern Elected President Veteran Squad

Phyllis McGovern '40, member of Kappa Alpha Theta and Mortar Board, was elected as the new president. Elizabeth Taylor '40, member of Pi Beta Phi, will assume the house chairman's duties.

Introduced by Betsy Marlowe, the following girls, each representing one or more activities, spoke about the organizations of U. V. M.:

Flossie Wade, representing Y. W. C. A., spoke to the girls about the organization's keynote, service. Anyone liking to work with people may find service in the form of taking care of children, entertaining the old, or other charitable activities. The older memberes do some of their service by teaching at a Rock Point school for underprivileged girls. Flossie notified the girls that anyone might have a chance to join the Y. W. C. A. Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week by going to the Y. W. C. A. room, paying ten cents and signing a questionnaire.

Louise Mann spoke about the International Relations Club, impressing the audience with the fact that today's news should attract them even more to such an organization.

The literary magazine, Winnowings From the Mill, was represented by Joan Agard. This magazine is obtained at Easter time and the price is fifty cents.

Laura Hawley '41 Explains Outing Club

Laura Hawley said a few words about the Outing Club. She said that Sunday 74 young people enjoyed the first plans of the Outing Club in the form of a hike up Mount Mansfield. This week-end will celebrate some more fun with another hike. All interested in outdoor activities were invited to join this organization.

Mary Nelson, representing the Cynic and Press Clubs, invited all interested in writing to help in these groups.

Betty Taylor announced the names of the girls to serve on the health committee.

The Scribes, for freshmen only, was advertised by Jean Young. The meetings will be about every other week.

Mortar Board was represented by Jean Butler, who urged the girls to attend the Mortar Board dance Saturday, bringing the chosen boy along.

Mary Nelson, representing the Dramatic Club, spoke of its importance to those who are interested in acting.

Mary Howe gave a short talk on the W. A. A. Fifty points in sports must be obtained before one can become a member. Mary encouraged the girls by saying that with hard work, the fifty points are added fast.

With the help of their representatives, the various activities of U. V. M. were well explained in this first mass meeting of the Student Union.

The Goodrich Classical Club will hold a meeting Wednesday, October 4, at 7.30 p.m. at the home of Prof. L. M. Prindle. Initiation of new members will take place.

Well-Known Alumnus Returns This Week

Word has just been received that Paul P. Harris, U. V. M. '89, internationally famous as the founder of Rotary, will return to U. V. M. some time next week to be present at the homecoming celebrations the week-end of October 7. While in town he will be the guest of a classmate, J. L. Hall, and plans to visit his fraternity, Lambda Iota.

Mr. Harris entered U. V. M. from Vermont Academy in the fall of 1885. While in college he was a noted prankster. The Alumni Weekly said of him on the occasion of the presentation of his portrait to the Burlington Rotary by Pres. Guy W. Bailey in 1932:

"Mr. McIntosh, who was also a fraternity mate of Mr. Harris in Lambda Iota, gave a number of amusing anecdotes in which Mr. Harris was the hero. These included the story of the painting of Lafayette's statue with '89' in large figures. The blame for this deed was never attached to anyone, but Paul Harris was one of the students upon whom suspicion rested most heavily."

The life of Mr. Harris contains many picturesque incidents. As a boy he was regarded as incorrigible and his mischievous propensities continued into his young manhood. The older members of the Rotary Club of Chicago can relate by the hour stories of practical jokes of which he was author in the early days of the club.

In 1889 he entered the offices of a marble quarrying company at Rutland and spent a year in their service. He then moved to Des Moines where he entered a law office but finally chose to pursue his law studies at the University of Iowa. After completing his law course in 1891 he spent the following five years in seeing the world and learning to know his fellows by actual contact with them under all sorts of conditions.

These years were all full of adventure for Paul Harris. During this period he worked as a cub reporter on daily papers in San Francisco and Denver, rode the range in the cow country, picked oranges in southern Louisiana, sold marble and granite, crossed the Atlantic twice on cattle ships, and made a third trip to Europe on business for George W. Clark of Jacksonville, Fla., who later became the first president of the Rotary Club of Jacksonville.

By 1896, Mr. Harris felt that he had gained sufficient practical experience to be of use to his clients and opened a law office in Chicago. He later became a member of Harris, Reinhardt and Bebb. Chicago he considered a city of destiny wherein many of the social and industrial problems of the day must be worked out. If there was to be a social maelstrom he wanted to be in it. He pondered much over the condition of life and business in a large city. In 1905, as a result of his study and reflections, Mr. Harris had formulated a definite philosophy of business relations. Calling together three of his friends, each of whom was in a different line of business, he expounded his theory to them. This group met often

Mortar Board Dance To be Held Tomorrow

New Vermonters Orchestra Will Furnish Music

Fall has rolled around again and with it comes women's opportunity No. 1—Mortar Board. Even though it comes a little earlier this year, thus limiting the acquaintances you have made, it gives you more time to develop them afterward.

The line will form on the left about 8.30, or soon afterward. The New Vermonters will provide music as you like it.

Southwick will be in a fall harvest mood announces Mortar Board, under the general chairmanship of Phyllis McGovern '40.

Dean Simpson, Prof. and Mrs. Dykhuizen and Prof. and Mrs. Bickford are acting as chaperones.

For many years Mortar Board dances have been fall and spring traditions with unusually good results. It is sincerely hoped that this year's students will cooperate with the senior women's honorary society in making this one even more of a success than previous ones.

It is the only general women's choice semi-formal this semester and the first semi-formal of the year. Come on, girls, show the men how to have a really good time at such a dance. The success of this dance is entirely up to you. Admission is only $1.10.

Staff and Sandal Meet at Southwick

Mary Howe '40 presided at the first meeting of Staff and Sandal, junior women's honorary society, held at 4.15 Tuesday afternoon at Southwick. The following officers were elected: Chairman, Shirley Mayforth; Secretary, Jane Allen; Treasurer, Laura Hawley.

Both old and new members attended this meeting, the new ones receiving their Staff and Sandal pins from last year's members.

Dean Simpson, in a brief talk to the society, stressed the importance of beginning Lilac Day preparations early. The main theme of Staff and Sandal is to make, through its efforts, Lilac Day mean to Vermont women what Kake Walk means to Vermont men. New plans for a more efficient handling of the Lilac Day pageant included announcing a general chairman and members of the different committees in the next few weeks. Any suggestions for Lilac Day will be greatly appreciated.

REV. RITCHIE LOWE SPEAKS AT CHAPEL

The second chapel meeting of U. V. M., held on Wednesday, September 27, was led by Rev. Ritchie Lowe from Johnson.

The sermon was based on the sixth chapter of Jeremiah. From this, Reverend Lowe brought out the point that no one could be found who would exchange the new methods of life for the old ones. However, when considering attitudes of life, our thoughts should turn to the old methods for guidance. This fact was brought out in the notice that we ought to observe the many small churches in Vermont, built by our ancestors with love for the Father. The advice was given that we should find out about all things which are vital to us, such as: "What are we to do with our lives, time, and talents?" If we do as those people of yesterday, with their personal religious convictions, we would be much happier. "Walk with Jesus; He will walk with your soul."

All freshman women are requested to attend a meeting at Southwick at 7.30 tonight. A representative of each sorority and an independent will be there.

New Vermonters Band To Play at Dance Sat.

Dance fans will have the opportunity to swing and sway to the strains of Jack Collins, Cliff Agnew and their New Vermonters orchestra at the Mortar Board dance at Southwick tomorrow evening. This will be the first appearance of the fall season of the famous band that has thrilled dance lovers for the past two school years.

Organized by Cliff Agnew and Jack Collins in the fall of 1937, the New Vermonters have become one of the outstanding bands in this section. They have been featured at the Dartmouth Winter Carnival, Middlebury College Prom, Norwich House Hops, Green Mountain College affairs, U. V. M. activities, state high school proms, the Ethan Allen Club, and at the Burlington Yacht Club and Country Club dances during the summer months. They have been acclaimed by two national music magazines, Metronome and Down Beat, and were featured in both by write-ups and pictures.

This year's line-up promises even to surpass all past outfits. In the line-up are: Brass—Red Dower, Bob Minotti and Cliff Agnew. Saxes—Ray Labell, Mel Weaver, Doc Hayden and Doug Green. Rhythm—Bill Grady, Chet Minckler and Jack Collins.

So, girls, don't miss a chance to hear this fine orchestra with that "big moment" tomorrow evening. Dancing will last from 8.30 to 12.00 p.m.

Men's Rushing Enters Final Lap This Week

Fraternity houses are scenes of gala festivities as the Greek-letter men entertain the freshmen this week. For three nights, Monday through Wednesday, a definite schedule is followed, while Thursday and Friday nights, choices are optional. "Smokes" and lengthy discussions are the only types of entertainment this week, while lavish banquets will be enjoyed next.

It is noted that much midnight oil is being burned by many freshmen for the math and German assignments do not cease. However, after choices have been made and life regains its normality, then studying will really begin.

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Last Sunday evening a large group met in the parish house of the First Church and heard the program outlined for the year. Religion, vocation, and sex and engagement are to be the three major topics covering the year's work with one meeting a month devoted to each of these and a fourth meeting of the month to be a social or special meeting. Renwick Caldwell will be the leader of this week's discussion and the topic is to be, "Why Go to Church?" Come at 7.30 and add your bit to the ideas gained.

First Homecoming Day To Be Held October 7

Second Alumni Bazaar Will Attract Many Visitors

The University of Vermont gymnasium and baseball cage will be the scene of the second alumni bazaar. Advance reports from ticket sellers indicate that this year's attendance at the alumni bazaar, which will be held there as the crowning attraction of the University's first Homecoming Day, is going high over the top. The University of Vermont alumni office, which is running the bazaar, last week sent eight thousand invitations for the event to alumni near and far. They also invited the public, the students, the faculty—in short, all friends of the University. Last year approximately two thousand invitations were sent to alumni, all living in Vermont and its vicinity, in contrast to this year's eight thousand. Five thousand attended last year's bazaar.

This year's edition, colorfully costumed, with new features, will offer diversion for young and old. Supper will be served from 6.00 to 8.00 p.m. Children will have their own special supper and entertainment. Pastimes for a wide variety of tastes will be available. Bazaar-goers can have their fortune told, shoot at targets, fish, go to the movies, have their pictures taken, see a marionette show, play games, eat, and dance—all in a single evening, and without leaving the bazaar.

The midway, opening at 6.00, will occupy the gymnasium cage, while dancing, starting about 9.00, proceeds upstairs in the gymnasium.

The bazaar is to follow and climax a crowded day of football, cross-country, cane rush, fraternity tea dances, and returning alumni. Vermont gridsters meet St. Lawrence in the first home game. The cross-country team meets Union. Freshmen and sophomores, between halves of the St. Lawrence game, stage the cane rush, traditional interclass struggle.

Six Freshmen Have Classical Scholarship

Six scholarships of two hundred dollars each, awarded for study in the classical course at the University of Vermont to first-year students not residents of Vermont, have been conferred this year on six freshmen coming from the states of New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut. Four of the recipients are women and two are men. To be eligible for these scholarships a student is required to have completed four years of secondary school Latin with honor grades, and is expected to take Latin and Greek in college. Scholarships are renewed for succeeding years if the student maintains a high standing in college and continues to study the classics.

The scholarships are intended for men and women who want a classical training as preparation for such professions as law, medicine, business, social service, journalism, education, and the ministry. The awards are made by the classical department.

The six freshmen who are holders of this year's scholarships are: Mary P. Butler, Taunton, Mass., who prepared at Taunton High School; Abbie A. Fritche, Ardsley, N. Y., Ardsley High School; Hyman Ginsburg, New Britain, Conn., New Britain High School; June W. Hoffman, New York City, Hunter College High School; Patricia M. McGuire, Utica, N. Y., Utica Free Academy; Walter H. Maurer, New York City, Jamaica High School.

Members of W. A. A. and Outing Club sign up right away for the hike to Bolton Lodge, Sunday, October 1. Saturday morning is the deadline. A big turn out is anticipated.

CAN WE IMPROVE OUR RUSHING SYSTEM?

For several years the Interfraternity Council has scheduled men's rushing to take place almost directly after the opening of school at a time which we believe is already filled with a great deal of activity for the new men. Under the circumstances we rather doubt the wisdom of the Council's decision. Consider the situation.

Immediately after Freshman Camp the newcomers stream back to Burlington to turn their attention to the matter of enrollment. Having enrolled, a baffling problem confronts them. Not only are their surroundings strange to them but the nature of their work also serves to increase their perplexity. The transition from high school or prep school is not an easy one. For many of them it is their first experience away from home alone for an extended period of time. Assignments are longer; students have difficulty in selecting the information desired by their instructors. The threat of future hour exams hangs over them. Nearly two weeks of concentrated rushing is heaped on at this point, and at the close of this period the men select a fraternity. The whirlwind process has given them little time to pursue their studies and only a short period to acquaint themselves with the men of the fraternities. It is impossible for them to accomplish both of these ends—one must suffer at the expense of the other.

Now to view the situation from the other angle—from the fraternity men's point of view. True, they are familiar with procedure here at the University but in spite of that the begeinning of a new year is sure to bring an onrush of activity. Added to the work of getting settled and making plans for the year are the duties of carrying out any work connected with extra-curricular activities. With their studies they have more than enough to keep them occupied without piling on the additional burden of rushing. In order to put on an effective rushing campaign their studies too must suffer.

How are we to avoid the evils of the present system? Two alternative systems seem feasible. The first, already in use at several institutions similar to Vermont, would be to require all students, freshmen and upperclassmen alike, to enroll a week or ten days in advance in order that they may carry out their rushing plans without interruptions or distractions. No classes would be held during that period; the extra time would be used for rushing alone. It is quite possible that Vermont women would also be interested in this system. The biggest single objection to this system is that it would shorten the summer recess which is used by so many students for work. Vermont is naught but a poor man's school and most of the students need all available time during the summer in which to earn a little money.

The second system which might find favor in the eyes of the Council would be to hold rushing later on in the year. Probably the best time of the year for all concerned is that period directly after the end of football season before students go home for Thanksgiving recess. At that time the freshmen would really have an opportunity to get into the swing of things and they would have more time to spend on rushing. Then too, the additional time would have allowed them to get a clearer picture of the fraternities on the campus and their choice would probably be more wisely made. There will be those who will argue that illegal rushing would result from such a procedure but we believe that the Council could lay down stringent regulations which would eliminate such an eventuality.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

We were pleased and flattered to read your editorial of September 26.

Not in a spirit of bickering, but rather in explanation we would like to explain our purpose in publishing the expense figures of the various fraternities. As even you have misunderstood us, Mr. Editor, we feel that even more of the new men may have done the same.

The purpose behind the publication of the authorized figures of each fraternity was not that the freshman might go bargain hunting, but that he might not be driven away from a house in which he was seriously interested by statements of rival fraternity men to the effect that that house's fees were exorbitant. This is not a silly argument, Mr. Editor, for as a freshman myself, I was informed that the initiation fee of your own fraternity was over $100.

Do you prefer to have freshmen going around in darkness like that, or to acquaint them with the truth by means of verified, published figures?

The Interfraternity Council feels that this latter will be a strong factor in eliminating one of the worst features of dirty rushing. Actual published figures can embarrass only those who have cause for embarrassment.

Yours for sportsmanship,
KEN BEATON, Editor,

QUOTABLE QUOTES

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"I want my son to go to a school where they teach all forms of government. I want him to know all there is to know about Communism, Fascism and Socialism, as well as representative forms of government. I want him to know all the good and the bad points of all these theories of government, as they have been worked out in actual practice in the past and in the present." Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, votes unequivocally for freedom in education.

"Education exists not merely so that the rising generation may face, discuss, and, if possible, decide questions basic to political society and human life. It exists also to provide the highest goods themselves. It exists to foster moral, intellectual and spiritual growth. Its results should be a sound character, a disciplined mind, and an elevated spirit." University of Chicago Pres. Robert M. Hutchins eloquently describes the great ends of higher education.

"In these troublous times, democracy's strongest safeguard against the inroads of totalitarian philosophies is education. At this very moment the traditional values of our civilization are being challenged, and the colleges and schools of the country will have to assume a more important rôle than ever before in guiding our youth to examine intelligently our culture of the past, and more particularly, the events and movements of today." College of the City of New York's Pres. Nelson P. Mead states an important preface to another year of higher education.

Enrollment in the Indiana University R. O. T. C. has grown 389 per cent since 1917.

There will be a meeting of Bluestockings, Wednesday evening, October 3, at 7.30 in the North Lounge at Southwick. All members are requested to be present.

SCULDUGGERY

During the height of the hatless fad a few years back, an automobile salesman was trying to sell a car to John Cavanagh, the hatter, at his home in Connecticut. The salesman was hatless and was told by the butler that that would never do; so the butler (good guy) dashed into the house and brought out one of Mr. Cavanagh's own hats for the salesman to wear while making the call. Mr. Cavanagh commented on the salesman's excellent taste in the selection of his hat. He also bought the car.

CALIFORNIAN STUDENTS COMPLAIN OF FLIES

(Associated Collegiate Press)

A note of not-so-heavy thought was introduced into a week of serious editorializing when the University of Redlands Bulldog came out with discussion of a problem that is now only peculiar to the sunny-as-advertised State of California. Get out your best summer-time thinking cap and read this:

"Unnecessary sound can be quite a distraction to concentration when one is trying to study, but there are other distractions which can be just as bad. One equally annoying hindrance to concentration is a squadron of flies. And our library is the home of many buzzing squadrons. It's about as easy to study with flies on one's nose, on one's book, on one's elbow, and in one's hair as it would be to study on the corner of Fifth and Main on Saturday night (try it sometime). To have flies in one's studies is worse than to have flies in one's soup. Will someone please buy the library a fly spray gun and a gallon of ammunition?"

The Oberlin College mock political convention is the oldest student activity of its kind in the United States.

Upward Trend On Marks Evidence At University

More of the students in the college of arts and sciences at the University of Vermont received high marks in their work last year than in the past ten years, except for the college year 1935-36, according to an announcement from the office of Dean Elijah Swift. The percentage of students making an average of B, or 85 percent, was last year 16.8. In 1935-36, when the percentage was highest, it was 18.6. In the past five or six years the percentage of students who made a B average has shown a decided tendency to increase, going from 9 percent in 1930-31, to an average of about 15.8 percent for the last five years.

Four students from the freshman class of last year have been awarded the Howard prizes for excellence in scholarship. These students, all Vermonters, were the only members of the first-year class to maintain A averages, equivalent to 95 percent, throughout the whole college year. They are Isabelle M. Carter, St. Johnsbury; Jane R. Judd, Randolph Center; Jean M. Evans, Burlington; and Chester W. H. Partridge, South Burlington. Special commendation was given to Evans, who carried a heavy schedule of study, much of it advanced work, and to Miss Judd, whose record was unimpaired in spite of a month's illness during the school year. Evans is the son of Prof. Paul D. Evans, head of the University history department. Miss Judd's father is principal of the State School of Agriculture at Randolph Center and was formerly a member of the faculty of the agricultural college at the University.

The Howard prizes were originally awarded to the students passing the highest entrance examinations in Greek, Latin, and mathematics, but in recent years they have been awarded for excellence in the work of the freshman year.

In addition to the four students of this year's sophomore class who made all-A records for last year, 20 made one-half A records, or averages of 90 percent, and 25 made B records, averaging 85 percent in their work. Of this year's juniors, two made A averages, seven one-half A averages, and 23 B records. This year's seniors had eight with all-A records; 13 with half-A standing, and 18 with B standing. Eight in the elementary education course made one-half A records, and fifteen made B averages for the year.

The eight seniors who received no mark for the entire year below A are Jean Brehmer, Rutland; Jean Butler, Burlington; Marcelyn Heath Clark, Burlington; H. Goodman, Hartford, Conn.; Mary C. Nelson, Woodstock; Alta Plumb, North Springfield; H. K. Riggs, Richmond, and Ethyle Wolfe, Burlington.

The two juniors receiving all A's are Margaret Beattie, St. Johnsbury, and Jessie Swann, Danvers, Mass.

SCIENTISTS DENOUNCE FASCIST ATTITUDE

Washington, D. C. (IP)—Altogether 1,284 scientists, including three Nobel prize winners, 64 members of the National Academy of Science, and 85 college presidents signed a denunciation of Nazi and Fascist attacks on scientific freedom, which declared, in part, that "We publicly condemn the Fascist position toward science . . . . in the present historical epoch democracy alone can serve intellectual freedom," according to a recent issue of Science News-Letter.

The manifesto cites ruthless Nazi persecution of scientists—1,600 teachers and scientists had been driven from their posts by the fall of 1936—and asserts that "any attack upon freedom of thought in one sphere, even as non-political a sphere as theoretical physics, is in effect an attack on democracy itself."

Persecution of Jews and "racial" theories of science, publication of one of which furnished the occasion for the manifesto, are condemned in no uncertain terms.

War Affects Rhodes Scholars This Year

War—the great destroyer of progress and routine living in college as well as well as out— is again disrupting the lives and the plans of countless U. S. educators and educational organizations.

Although the nation is not directly engaged in the second great European conflict, here is a quick survey of how the war is affecting higher education today:

Rhodes scholarships have been suspended for this school year. The 1939 scholars-elect will remain in this country, and those already in England have been asked to return to the United States as soon as passage can be arranged. But scholarships now in force are not cancelled. They are only suspended until circumstances make it possible for them to be resumed.

In addition to the Rhodes scholarships, all foreign student exchanges between this country and Europe have been cancelled. More than 300 students are affected by this war-time measure. In addition to this, some 7,500 students who each year study abroad at their own expense will be forced to continue their education here.

First announcement of a curricular change in a United States university comes from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which has instituted a new advanced course in marine engineering. This move was made because of the prospect of an enormous expansion in naval and merchant shipbuilding in the next ten years. United States Navy officers will aid in giving the course.

R. O. T. C. students worrying about their status should the United States be drawn into the war, have this announcement of an army official to establish their responsibilities:

"The R. O. T. C. cannot be called into service by the Federal government, as it has no jurisdiction of the university units." R. O. T. C. students need not serve sooner than a person who has not had such training, the official indicated.

Ohio State University co-eds have organized a personal appearance clinic to teach correct dress and make-up.

LIBRARY BOOKS RATED WITH EYE TO FUTURE

Austin, Texas—(ACP)—A new wrinkle in literature evaluation—grading books by warfare's standards—has been uncovered here by Donald Coney, University of Texas librarian.

The National Library of Edinburgh, Scotland, according to Mr. Coney, now rates its books and manuscripts "A," "B," and "C," with an eye to preserving its most valuable material in times of war.

"A" books are to be protected against air rades "at any cost," "B" books, if possible, "C" books constitute the others, Mr. Coney said.

"We've been trying to collect only 'A' books here," the librarian of the University's 565,000 volume collection commented, "but it appears that the Scots have devised a novel use for 'C' material.

"Presumably in times of stress they could be spread thick on the library roof to ward off aerial bombs."

CATHOLIC ORGANIZATION TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS

New York City—(ACP)—Marking the first attempt ever made to unify Catholic college students for the discussion of social problems, a new National Federation of Catholic College Students has been formed here at Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart.

At a meeting attended by representatives of many colleges, organization plans were laid for a federation that would coordinate the work of Catholic student federations already formed on some 35 college and university campuses.

Speakers at the organization session indicated that the new federation would not be a pressure group, but would be concerned with the social legislation affecting the youth of the nation. The president of the group is Miss Gertrude Kirk of Dunbarton College, Washington, D. C.

Goddard College is believed to be the only institution of higher education in the United States that does not use academic regalia at commencement exercises.

Cynic Reporter Interviews New English Instructor

The English department of the University of Vermont is very fortunate this year in acquiring the services of the well-known author, lecturer and traveler, Elliot Merrick. Raised in Montclair, N. J., Mr. Merrick has traveled widely and has spent two and one-half years in Labrador with the Grenfeld Mission. It was of Labrador that he wrote his first book, "True North," published in 1933.

In an exclusive interview for the CYNIC Mr. Merrick, who is a tall, good-looking and thoroughly likeable young man, revealed that he has had a most interesting background of various occupations. While in Labrador he taught a mission school of half-breed children—half Eskimo and half Scotch. While there he married a trained nurse, and during their last winter in Labrador they took a trip into the interior of Labrador with the trappers. They were gone between four and five months.

Mr. Merrick revealed that besides traveling extensively, he has been a newspaper reporter, editor of a country weekly, an advertising writer in New York City, and for the past six years he and his family have lived in Craftsbury, Vt., where he taught in Craftsbury Academy for the last year.

Vermont Inspired One of His Novels

Mr. Merrick says that living in Vermont has been a great experience and inspired him to write a story of the Vermont hills, "From This Hill Look Down," which was published in 1935. This was followed by "Ever the Winds Blow," a novel. (Asked about the substance of this book, Mr. Merrick at first said he didn't know, but later said he guessed it was something about the revolt of youth.) His latest work, the novel "Frost and Fire," which has met with widespread approval and acclaim, is also a story of the Labrador which the author knows so well.

Mr. Merrick stated solemnly that fitting farming and writing together was a great idea both physically and mentally, and that writing in the morning made hoeing corn in the afternoon very nice! He also gave a bit of advice to would-be writers in saying that the ideal way of writing was to set aside regular hours in the morning and evening, and to force oneself to observe those hours faithfully. "I once read," said Mr. Merrick with a twinkle in his eye, "that writing consists of applying the seat of the pants to the seat of the chair, and I have always found it to be true!"

Newspaper Work Helped Merrick Write

From his work on various newspapers Mr. Merrick feels that he has gained several valuable advantages. He has found that newspaper work, although it is a quick dash-it-off variety of writing, teaches one to work fast and accurately and not to be temperamental.

Faced with the inevitable question, "How do you like Burlington, U. V. M., etc?" Mr. Merrick gave extremely satisfactory answers. He considers Burlington very attractive, and thinks that Lake Champlain is one of the most beautiful in the world. He expressed surprise that the lake is not more widely advertised as a beauty spot of the United States. H feels that few people here realize h lucky they really are to have the ad tages of country and city together.

"A week-end in Burlington cer isn't like one in New York," sai Merrick thankfully. "In New Yo spend about half of the week-end out into the country and getting whereas here you have the adva of both. Personally, I'm all f country life."

Besides his book successes, Mr. rick has written stories and article such well-known magazines as Scribn American Mercury, Readers' Digest, Yorker, and Yankee.

Asked for his political views, our ne instructor became enthusiastic in explaining his interest in the cooperative and decentralization movements.

Vermont Should Encourage Small Enterprises

He feels that small shops in the country can be almost as efficient as machine centers in the great cities, and would be much better for the independent spirit of the people. He also believes that Vermont should encourage small, locally owned enterprises, or she will lose her economic independence and become spoiled. "The whole tendency nowadays seems to be to make everything big and squeeze out the little fellow," explained Mr. Merrick. So much for politics.

Besides being a very interesting person himself, he has a charming family consisting of a very lovely wife and three extremely bright and likeable children, namely, Elliot, Jr., who is seven, Austin, five, and Suzan, two. Coming from the freedom of a farm to the city is quite a change for them, but apparently they enjoy their surroundings.

This, then, is our new English instructor in a bird's-eye interview. May some of his success and useful experience transmit itself to us.

Rules from the 1860 student handbook of Westminster College that make us glad we're collegians in 1939: "Attendance on circuses is not allowed, and students are never allowed to be on the streets nor in the stores, about town, except on business, which is to be promptly attended to; nor to be away from their own rooms, except at appropriate times for recreation in some inoffensive and honorable manner."

Talladega College has adopted a program whereby all members of the student body, staff and faculty participate in making and executing the controlling policies of the institution.

Cats Open Season Against Amherst

Lord Jeffs Impressive in Work Outs
Both Lines Strong, Backs to Decide Issue

En route to Amherst, Vermont's 1939 grid squad swings into an eight-game schedule with tomorrow's opener against Lloyd Jordan's potent Lord Jeffs.

Coach Johnny Sabo, plagued by the eligibility bugaboo, has only two full ens at hand. Sophomores and juniors the weight of the outfit, with Bill , reserve back, the only senior.

o is expected to send six veterans ve sophomores over the top. Backs odys and Johnny Spasyk and line- Dick Patterson, Norm Dubie and Rice are the neophytes.

mont will rely on a running and g attack spearheaded by Frankie r, junior halfback from Brattleboro. gy Bill Pye, converted end, will rate from the blocking back slot and l also do a share of the punting. aylor and Spasyk, the quarterback, may et kicking assignments, too. Kodys is the plunger.

On the line, Patterson has been looking good enough to get the call over Whizzer White at one end. Jim Corbett is a fixture at the other wing. Two bruising veterans, Boots Lawrence and Swede Carlson, are at the tackles, while Dubie pairs with the sturdy veteran, Norm Strassburg, at guard. Rice, big Cushing graduate, leads Earl Reed by a hair in the race for the center berth. Both will see abundant action.

Veteran Squad

Amherst, big and rugged on the line, may be caught short in the backfield. Three backs are gone from last year's team, which marched undefeated through a stiff program, yielding but six points the entire season.

The Sabrina line teems with veterans. Back is Capt. Bill Cordner end; tackles, Prescott Coan and Wimpy Smythe; guards, Gene Hubbard and Holby Whitten; and center, Doug Pillsbury.

Amherst's squad is ample and a goodly crew of talent is in the scramble for the three vacant backfield posts. The openings are for a passer, punter and signal caller. Joe Firman is the lone veteran. He will probably play fullback. Bob Potter, Ernie Lawton and Jay Christy lead the flock of contenders. These four all won letters last year, although they did not play regularly. A sophomore, Tommy Mulroy, also shows up well.

Jordan has had fifty-six candidates to work with. The Jeffs impressed in scrimmages with Springfield and American International. As things stand now, the Sabrinas will field a heavy, experienced line to front the light backs.

Amherst's schedule lists few, if any, breathers. Brown will be met in addition to Little Three Rivals, Wesleyan and Williams.

Ready to Go

SABO AND EVANS

FROSH OUTLOOK VERY PROMISING

It is too early to comment fully on the 1939 edition of the frosh football team. During the two weeks of practice the first-year men have devoted most of their time to running Amherst plays against the varsity. Therefore Coach Fuzzy Evans has had little opportunity to drill his stalwarts in the fundamentals of blocking and tackling, wherein lie their weak spots.

It is to be hoped that by October 7, when the schedule opens against Vermont Junior College, the turnout of thirty will have resolved itself into a rather formidable eleven. As yet Mentor Evans will give no definite information regarding his starting line-up. Those who have shown the most promise in their respective positions are Phil Cheraroni, John Noble and Joe Gull, centers; John Chernanski, Frank Swift and Bill Benoit, guards; Urson Otto, Harris Thurber, H. P. Wood and Harry Paris, tackling; Bob Hennessy and Jim Flemming, ends.

In the backfield there are Tom Sanders and Mike Cozzolino, quarterbacks; George Carey, Norman Beaulieu and Francis McArdle, halfbacks; Walt Koldoza and Harry Parker, fullbacks.

Weight and experience, as always, will be decisive factors. This year's aggregation, for the major part, has these all-important qualifications.

Owls Kick Off To Phi Sigs

With the start of the 1939 touch football competition scheduled to begin October 3, the fraternities are busy getting their teams ready for the campaign. The physical education department has released the complete schedule of competition and everything is in preparation for the opening day when the Owls kick off to Phi Sigma Delta in the season's initial contest. The SAE's, last year's winners, drew a bye in the opening round as did Phi Delta Theta, Delta Psi, Sigma Phi and Kappa Sigma.

Thus far the Kappa Sigma's have the best hold on the trophy which was put into rotation in 1935 for they have won the tournament twice, once in 1936 and again in 1937. Other winners are the SAE's in 1938 and the ATO's in 1935.

One new rule has been put into effect this year which states that no freshman is eligible to play unless he is a bona fide pledge of the fraternity prior to October 10. This rule will undoubtedly affect most of the fraternities. No changes have been made in any of the other rules.

The complete schedule follows:

Tuesday, October 3—Lambda Iota vs. Phi Sigma Delta.

Thursday, October 5—Tau Epsilon Phi vs. Alpha Tau Omega.

Friday, October 6—Independents vs. Sigma Nu.

Byes—Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Delta Theta, Delta Psi, Sigma Phi, Kappa Sigma.

Second Round

Tuesday, October 10—SAE vs. winner of Lambda Iota-Phi Sigma Delta match.

Thursday, October 12—Phi Delta Theta vs. winner of Tau Epsilon Phi-Alpha Tau Omega match.

Thursday, October 19—Sigma Phi vs. Kappa Sigma.

Semi-finals

Tuesday, October 24 and Thursday, October 26.

Tuesday, October 31 — Championship game.

Kimball Predicts Successful Grid Year

Kodys Best Blocker, Cats Will Trounce Midd.

Although the official Vermont pigskin season does not get away until next Saturday, the Sabo gridsters have already had one battle, their annual tussle with scholastics—and have lost!

Ineligibility has always been an added headache to Coach Sabo and this year has been no exception. In fact, the toll has been unusually heavy, for on this year's scholastic casualty list is the name of Leighton "Bud" Kimball '39, captain of both football and baseball. Bud has finally succumbed to the professor's axe, and as a result, the team will be unable to have his services and will be considerably weakened.

However, having perpetually seen Bud around Centennial sizing the boys up, and knowing how difficult it was to get any information from the coaches, we thought we would catch hold of "Kimmie" and try to get from him some Vermont football dope.

"SIDELINED"

We caught sight of him in a corner of the Kappa Sigma house ready to go to work on the books (baseball isn't too far away). But he couldn't resist talking football a few minutes with us, and the result—this story.

Bud naturally felt very bad about not being able to lead the boys on the field this fall. He thought the boys could really use him this year. (When couldn't they use you, Bud?) However, he predicted that he would bear down on the books and beat them yet.

While discussing the team in general and its chances of having a successful season, Kimball became very enthused. He likes very much the shifted line-up which includes Bill Pye at halfback. Bill, in his opinion, will become an outstanding back just as soon as he becomes acquainted with his new position. The converted end is tall, rangy, an excellent pass receiver, and not bad as a ball carrier.

Another boy to find real favor in Bud's eyes is Ed Kodys, the blocking sophomore who has taken over Kimball's place at fullback. Bud rates Kodys one of the hardest blockers he has ever come across, even better than Pike Trigilio of last year's team. Quote Kimball, "I remember last year when he hit me. Boy, he can block."

As far as the ends are concerned, Sabo wouldn't have to worry, Bud said. Even though Pye is in the backfield and Dick Salmon, the other varsity end of last year is ineligible, the end positions will not be weak. For with Patterson, Corbett and Whizzer White, Sabo can easily plug the holes. "Too bad White isn't heavier. He is fast, smart, and has plenty of guts."

Norwich Hot

When we tried to nail Bud down to a prediction of the winner of the Amherst vs. Vermont game, we hit a snag. He wouldn't make any prediction whatsoever on this first game. He did, however, predict a very successful season providing injuries did not riddle the team. He was willing to bet his shirt that Vermont would trim Middlebury this year. But he was not too enthusiastic about the Norwich game. "The Norwich boys have been gunning for Vermont for the last two or three years and are out to get that game. If Norwich is able to use her freshmen, the game being played at Norwich this year, they probably will beat us. That, of course, is not taking into consideration the breaks of the game."

In conclusion, Bud wanted to wish Coaches Sabo, Wietz, and Evans all the luck in the world. For, as we readily agree with Bud, they have been getting tough breaks all along.

Sports Casts

By the Sports Editor

Twenty-five men and a prayer will trot out onto the Amherst gridiron tomorrow afternoon. When the Vermont eleven lines up for the opening kick-off, the Catamount bench will be as deserted as the streets of London after an air raid siren's piercing shriek. Fourteen men, a coach, an assistant coach, and a manager are a mighty small group to hold down a bench, particularly when there are small high schools in this state that boast four full teams. It's rather a shame, too, for while in the past Coach Sabo has been criticized by the Coffee Corner quarterbacks for his reluctance in sending substitutes into games, this year even if he desires to change his so-called policy, he has not the available men with which to work. And we are all well aware of the fact that this 1939 football edition will not be a replica of the Brown team of '28 which is famous for its linemen known as the Seven Iron Men who played every minute of every game that year. (We're a trifle rusty on our statistics but the fundamental facts are verified nevertheless.) It's at times like these when that Ghost team that we mentioned in our last effort would be mighty useful to Vermont. This reminds us that we have found a tackle for said team—San Savin, husky lineman on last year's frosh contingent before he was seriously injured. Getting back to the varsity, there is no ignoring of the fact that Vermont has a green, untried backfield and Amherst is one tough team to try it against. Frankie Taylor, naturally, is right at home in the running back position and his versatility will be more than useful. However, while Bill Pye is about the sweetest end we ever saw, expecting him to be equally successful in the backfield is comparable to expecting a second baseman to be a good pitcher, too. But Bill is a very capable gentleman and one never knows. At any extent, if plays are worked out properly, his pass-snatching talents will be as noticeable in the backfield as they were on the flank.

Ed Kodys, the bucking back, is another unknown quality, for while he was a stellar performer for the frosh last fall we attempt under no circumstance to make a comparison between frosh and varsity football. The same holds true for the fourth member of the quartet, Johnny Spasyk, who will make a really good field general if he is as smart on the gridiron as he is in the classroom. Nevertheless, there's an old saying that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link and the same undoubtedly holds true for a football team. We're afraid Vermont is in for a tough Saturday afternoon.

Movies Cause Interest In Hygiene Lectures

Last year all freshman men at the University of Vermont studied hygiene in a new and different manner. The course was given entirely by means of moving pictures, shown in the University's Fleming Museum, and when Dr. F. S. Kent, medical director, and Prof. H. A. Prentice, head of physical education for men, looked over their student's grades, counted up absences, and compared the results with statistics from hygiene classes of the previous year, they found that students had made better grades under the new system, by an average of 4 percent per student. They asked the students if the course seemed interesting, and answers indicated that it did. Another check on this was furnished by the record of absences, which was less than half what it had been in 1937-38, the last year in which the orthodox lecture system was used in teaching hygiene. 2.3 percent absences were recorded for 1938-39, as contrasted with 5 percent absences in 1937-38.

The examination given at the end of the new course was judged by the medical director to be more difficult than the one given in 1938, after the lecture method of presenting hygiene, yet grades were better.

This was the first time a hygiene course all in movies has been given in this part of the country. The results of the first year's experiment were considered very favorable by the department of physical education, and the same method will be followed this year. Close attention will be paid to methods of teaching with the use of moving pictures, and it is expected that more data on the best methods of instruction will be obtained.

Doctor Kent and Professor Prentice believe that if the teaching of hygiene is more efficient by the use of motion pictures, as it appears from this experiment, the method possesses significance for all schools throughout the country where hygiene is given.

"State departments of education might render much assistance by providing the equipment on a portable basis and thus spread hygiene instruction throughout all schools in a very effective manner."

Catamounts Succumb to Invincible N. Y. U. Team 77-0

In their opening game of the season the Vermont gridders were defeated by New York University last Saturday afternoon at Ohio Field with the final score standing 77-0. The New York team is perhaps the greatest eleven in the East this season and had no difficulty in overwhelming the Green and Gold. Twenty thousand persons turned out to watch the well-oiled Violet machine operate at a 12-score speed.

Catamount to Meet Bulldog in Yale Bowl

The approaching Saturday will find the stout-hearted wearers of the Green and Gold pitted against the powerhouse which will represent Yale this year. Every Vermont player who makes the trip will enter the fray. Coach Rattan realizes what his team is up against, and wishes to save his first stringers for their coming tilts with colleges more nearly in their class.

Yale's starting backfield will include Albie Booth, who was the star of last year's frosh combination. Many critics predict great things of this sophomore for this season and he will certainly bear watching.

Opinions of Contemporaries

Bob Dunbar last Friday in the Boston Herald remarked, "Vermont, which tackles N. Y. U. and Yale on successive Saturdays, has the toughest assignment among the New England college small college teams. Little is known about the Vermont strength, but the team is unlikely to get away to an auspicious start."

Another writer after the N. Y. U. tilt in remarking about the size of the Green and Gold eleven said that if Vermont had big George Chalmers, N. Y. U. end, he would be cut up into a couple of guards.

Post Accepts Position As Coach of Track

As predicted, Archie Post, U. V. M. '26, has accepted the position of coach of varsity and freshman track during the 1930 season. In addition to his coaching duties, Post, replacing Jack Robinson, will assist Howard A. Prentice in the Department of Physical Education.

The World Front

At the present time when life is saturated with news of war and international politics; when every newspaper is a veritable encyclopedia of history, political science and propaganda; when every radio blares forth the views of countless commentators; and when every man considers himself a political statesman, a column on world relations and politics may seem to be "too much of a muchness" (with apologies to Lewis Carroll). However, we are going to make the attempt anyhow, though we risk being swamped in a sea of confusing and irrelevant details. Our aim in writing this column is to present in brief form some of the more salient factors of the news and also to give a picture of the present world situation from the viewpoint of the students and the faculty of this University. In this way, perhaps, we can bring before everyone a cross-section of student opinion as well as a review of striking details in the news. In this undertaking we solicit the aid and toleration of the student body and faculty. Any information, any views that members of the faculty or student body may have will be gladly received and used in this column. We wish to make it as much as possible a University forum.

Supreme Irony

Glancing through the news of the past week-end and the early part of this week we notice two details which, though minor, seem to us worthy of note in the matter of detail being flung at us.

The first is to the effect that Mme Alexandra Pilsudski, widow of the man who played the leading rôle in the liberation of Poland, has fled her native country and is now in exile in Lithuania. In the long struggle for Polish independence from czarist Russia and imperial Germany, she served as her husband's able right hand. Today she experiences the bitter sight of her country once more being overrun by the very people whom she once fought. In an age of irony this is perhaps the bitterest of them all.

Caesar Up-to-date

In London last week Edward Benes, former president of Czechoslovakia, urged his German-oppressed countrymen "to carry on the struggle against Germany from the last village up to Prague, in every workshop, in every enterprise where you are." Brave words from a man who still hopes to see his country freed and enjoying a carefree existence.

Quotation—Caesar (Commentaries) (Book I, chapter 31), speaking about Ariovistus, the first German king: "The man was barbarous, wrathful, reckless, and his regime could no longer be endured." Well, I guess that proves there's something for our own times even in the classics. (Latin instructors, please note.)

Well, that concludes our sketchy contributions for this time. Next time we hope to be back with something more vital, and more weighty. Pardon the seeming sketchiness of a first effort. Au revoir!

TRAINING PROGRAM FOR SECONDARY TEACHERS

Ithaca, N. Y.—(I.P.)—An enlarged program for teacher-training leading to improvement of the quality of secondary school teachers was announced by Dr. Edmund E. Day, president of Cornell University. Beginning this autumn, a new five-year curriculum for the training of teachers, leading to the degree of Master of Education, will be launched by the Graduate School of Education.

New courses include a study of human growth and development involving coordinated and adapted courses in biology and psychology; social foundations of education; an integrated course in the art of teaching; a study of school organization including extra-instructional and professional relations and problems; and two seminars in the fifth year on the philosophy of education and in problems of teaching.

The candidate's fitness for teaching will be judged during the training program by general intellectual ability and alertness, general scholarship, scholarship in the fields in which the student plans to teach, physical fitness, emotional stability, interest in teaching, and desirable personal and social qualities.

General ability in the use of English will be an important test of fitness. Range of vocabulary, ability to organize and express ordinary ideas in correct, straightforward English, ability to read silently with comprehension, and ability to read and to speak with ease and expression, will be some of the things expected of the prospective teacher.

STUDENTS REPRODUCE ANCIENT JEWELRY

Los Angeles, Calif. (IP)—Students at the University of Southern California are using a technique for making imitation turquoise discovered four thousand years ago by Egyptians working in the shadows of the mighty pyramids.

Today that art, with the aid of a particular type of alkali found only in Death Valley and the Panamint range, has been revived and used with astounding effectiveness by Prof. Glen Lukens of the college of architecture and fine arts.

"Because of the mystic and sacred powers that turquoise implied, Egyptian workmen kept the secret to themselves," Professor Lukens explained in describing the difficulty confronting him in re-discovering the technique. Six years of research, which included studies of translations of ancient manuscripts in the British museum, were necessary before the technique could be developed for practical modern use.

Producing the most intense blue known to artists, the imitation turquoise is so vivid that a vase of similar coloring will stand out even in a darkened room. Students are shaping the clay paste into jewelry for rings, bracelets and brooches, which are fast becoming the vogue on the campus.

Considering

By Morganna

As song writers put it, "How Strange It Is, the Weather." On second thought, it's not so peculiar. Considering the European situation, why shouldn't the weather be temperamental? They say the same sky looks down on all the world. It's got a good reason for looking down on it.

That little snow storm the other day was a pretty good idea. It gave those freshmen a taste of what is to come. They were scared green that they'd be snowed in by Thanksgiving. Maybe F. D. R. was right in moving the holiday back a week.

Speaking of Thanksgiving, it's a good thing that the United States is preoccupied or we'd have civil war on that subject. That is, Plymouth, Mass., vs. Washington, D. C., with Vermont as referee. Might have been quite a battle, too.

On the subject of good battles, there should be one on Saturday. Amherst, they say, puts up a tough fight. On our end, we say Vermont's no mean opponent. The flesh may be weak but the spirit is pretty darn willing. The Lord Jeffs will find Catamounts have claws.

Back to the weather again, you gals better pray that it doesn't rain Saturday night. "Aincha comin' out?" It's your chance now. Well, there's one young lady we know of who shook in her size 4 shoes at the thought of asking one of the B. M. O. C. She consulted every single girl in her dorm and gathered enough courage to call his house. It happened that he wasn't there and, while she waited, she lost her morale. Her friends propped her up at the phone and she called again. There he was. She squeaked her little question and, believe it or not, the reassuring masculine voice said "Yes!" After which the gal fainted with joy and spent the night with her face in a mudpack.

Which shows that you'd better coue. That young thing mentioned above is going to have a marvelous time and she knows it. So are you.

This certainly is a rambling discussion and the pity is it started out to be about the weather. Who cares about the weather anyway? We've only got to live in it.

thereafter, gradually adding to its number and evolved a scheme of organization which finally consummated in February, 1905, in what is now known as the Rotary Club of Chicago. Through the propaganda of Paul Harris this novel organization soon had counterparts in other cities in the United States. In this extension work the acquaintances Paul Harris had made in the five years that he knocked around the country were of material assistance to him in the establishment of new clubs.

Mr. Harris is president of the National Association of Rotary Clubs; president of International Association of Rotary Clubs; president emeritus of Rotary International; vice-president of the International Society for Crippled Children. He is a member of American, Illinois State, and Chicago Bar Associations, and regular contributor to legal periodicals. In 1929 he refused nomination to trusteeship in this University.

He has read extensively of philosophy and religions, and in literature his favorite author is Dickens. He is a lover of nature and likes to hike through the country, and he probably knows as much about the Sand Dunes of Indiana as any man in Chicago. Hunting and fishing are his favorite sports and he finds them excellent means of building up his physical powers.

In 1933 the Rotary Clubs of the 37th District dedicated Mr. Harris' ancestral home at Wallingford, Vt., as a museum for things Rotary.

Said the Burlington Free Press editorially in 1934: "With Rotary clubs in 44 nations, Paul Harris has become a sort of unofficial ambassador from the United States to all parts of the civilized world. Wherever he goes among civilized peoples his welcome is enthusiastic because the spirit of Rotary is there. He is a practical example of the mighty power generated by an idea."

BETTER FOOD WILL SAVE YOUR HAIR

Clinton, N. Y.—(ACP)—Men, if your hair is growing thin in places and baldness is approaching, you should eat more and better food to arrest the receding hair-line.

That is the assertion of Prof. Earl O. Butcher of the department of biology at Hamilton College who recently gained evidence for his statements in experiments completed on white rats. Dr. Butcher proved that demands for energy and for body repair are first met before the hair receives its quota of nutrition.

Business and domestic worries, the common excuse given for falling hair, may cause the loss of appetite and in that way decrease the intake of food necessary to nurture the hair cells, Dr. Butcher says.

Dr. Butcher noted that white rats get a new growth of hair every thirty-five days. If the animals, however, are underfed, their bodies continue to grow in length, and they are as active as ever, but their hair growth occurs only every fifty or sixty days, if at all.

Undernourishment retards the hair growth through the endocrine glands. Just exactly how these glands allow the other necessities of the body to be satisfied at the expense of the hair is being further investigated. Another challenge to scientists is the extent that endocrine glands can be altered so that hair can be induced to grow.

"Less worry and better appetites, more rest and less energy-consuming activity should be the salvation of America's hair problem," Dr. Butcher declared.

Fall Track Under Way

The speed kings are starting their fall training rather slowly so that they can really get up on their studies before training starts in earnest.

Coach Post has his boys fairly equally divided between the hurdles, weight throwing and the dashing demons of the stretch.

To give you an idea what Coach Post is up against: at the end of the track season last year he had six hammer throwers. Where are these powerful hurlers now? What became of all this fine material turned out at the expense of their talented instructor? Two are no longer in Vermont, another two have graduated and yet another one is in medical school.

To all Vermonters interested in track Mr. Post says: "The longer you wait before joining the team, the poorer your chances get."

HOMING HATS

Because hats have a funny way of disappearing from restaurant hooks when you aren't looking, men are having their telephone numbers stamped in their hatbands. If the hat disappears on purpose, the idea doesn't work, of course, but oftentimes the hat is taken by mistake. In this case a telephone number is a better bet than your initials—and worth trying.

Dr. Beebe To Lecture On Galapagos Islands

At present nearly all effort is being concentrated on the preparations for the lecture on October 16 to be given by Dr. William Beebe, who will speak on the Galapagos Islands. The lecture will be held in Memorial Auditorium and a loud-speaking equipment is to be installed and handled by the electrical engineering department.

Any student interested in selling tickets for this lecture is asked to leave his name at the museum. Tickets are fifty cents and seventy-five cents for reserved seats. A free ticket will be given to each student for every nine sold.

There is a very interesting season planned with many unusual art exhibitions.

On October 5 a very interesting exhibit of old wall papers opens. Accompanying this there will be a broadcast by Mrs. Moulton on the "Development of Wall Paper."

During the first two weeks of December there will be two large Flemish tapestries hung on the wall upstairs for exhibition. The tapestries are titled "Triumph of War" and "Triumph of Peace." Each one is about twenty feet long and they are loaned for use here by the New York Museum as anti-war propaganda.

HOW TO BE AN EDITOR IN SIMPLE LESSONS

Pullman, Wash.—(I.P.)—Anybody can run a country newspaper, according to Herbert Jenkins, editor of publications at Washington State College.

All that is necessary, he states, is that a fellow be a good reporter, editor, proofreader, head-line writer, circulation manager, advertising salesman, layout man, printer, pressman, linotype operator and machinist.

Of course, he adds, it helps, too, if he has some knowledge of engraving, type faces, papers, inks, postal regulations, libel laws and accounting. In his spare time he can serve on six or seven town committees, attend all community affairs, and try to collect from delinquent subscribers.

FIFTY BOSTONIANS WILL ATTEND BAZAAR

At least fifty Bostonians who are University of Vermont graduates as well will visit Burlington to attend the second annual alumni bazaar October 7. The alumni office at the University, which has charge of the bazaar, to be held in the University gymnasium and cage, has just received, and filled, a request for a block of fifty tickets for the Vermont alumni group of Boston. This is another evidence of the large advance sale of tickets already reported by ticket salesmen.

Some University of Louisville buildings originally housed a juvenile reform school.

WILBUR BEQUEST GOES FOR SCHOLARSHIPS

A fund of $25,000, the income to be used primarily to help deserving students, has become the property of the University of Vermont through a trust agreement executed by the late Hon. James B. Wilbur of Manchester.

The trust fund was established for Mrs. Ella Pardee Hayes of Denver, Colo., on whose death it was to go to the University. Mrs. Hayes died June 11, and Pres. Guy W. Bailey of the University has been notified by the Bankers Trust Company of New York that the fund is now available for the purposes provided in the trust.

Pan-Hellenic Discusses Sororities With Frosh

Dean Mary J. Simpson Talks on Sorority Life

The first Pan-Hellenic meeting for freshman women was held at Southwick Friday evening, September 29. A representative member of each sorority spoke briefly on some particular phase of fraternity life. Dean Simpson first addressed the girls, speaking of sorority life as an enriching and elevating experience, but also explaining to the freshmen the advantages of being an independent.

Eileen Rooney '41, Alpha Xi Delta, spoke on "Friendship," stressing the fact that fraternity is respect, love and loyalty to others.

Sigma Gamma was represented by Gertrude Burbank '40, who talked on "Service," both to chapter members and the whole campus.

Jean Saul, Delta Phi Epsilon, advanced the argument that sororities tend to keep scholarship high among their members.

Gail Klinger '42, a member of Delta Delta Delta, spoke on "Cooperation," explaining that this is a source of strength for both the individual and the chapter, and maintaining that it is a fine approach to unselfishness and true happiness.

Alpha Chi Omega's representative, Mary Letta Root '41, talked of "Personal Development," accomplished through the close bonds of sorority life.

Jean Harshbarger '40, Pi Beta Phi, spoke on another phase of development, the social side, and she enumerated the social events of the sororities during the college year.

Louise Mann '42, of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, stressed the relationship of graduates to their college experiences, and the preparation for life which college gives in many ways.

Independent Point of View Presented

After each of these girls had talked over her particular point of sorority life, Flossie Wade '40, representing the Independents, enumerated the many advantages of being an Independent, and stated that all those qualities which go to make up sorority aims and ideals can be acquired outside fraternities if they were earnestly desired.

The freshmen were then given pamphlets containing the names of the sororities, names of the members, and itemized lists of sorority expenses.

This was the first meeting of its kind ever held here at the University, and it is hoped that it will be successful in teaching to the freshmen and transfers the advantages of both sides of the question, whether one becomes a sorority member or an Independent.

Betsy Marlow '40 is the presiding president of Pan-Hellenic.

LARGEST FROSH CLASS IN HISTORY OF U. V. M.

Enrollment figures just released at the University of Vermont have for the fourth consecutive year broken the records with the largest freshman class in the history of the University numbering 467, and the total number of students figured at 1,470. This is 22 more than last year's peak.

The senior class is 211 strong, the juniors have 268, the sophomores 331, and the freshmen 467. Unclassified students number 22, graduate students 40, and the Medical College enrollment is 131. There are more undergraduate students than last year, more graduate students, more special students, and the medical students are the only group to show a decrease. This is due to restricted enrollment in medicine. The Medical College has several hundred applications each year, for a freshman class which is limited to 32, but the number of students is kept down so that a high standard of medical instruction may be maintained.

THE MORTAR BOARD DANCE

Large Crowd Attends Mortar Board Dance

A log fire burned brightly at the west end of the dimmed ballroom. Corn stalks, branches of burnt orange, flaming red and brown foliage, under which lay fat, yellow pumpkins, decorated the other walls and a huge bouquet graced the mantel. That was the setting for the annual fall Mortar Board dance which was held Saturday evening, September 30, at Southwick Memorial Building.

Cliff Agnew and his New Vermonters, who have become so popular that they are in demand at important affairs all over the State, swung their sweet music for the capacity crowd that thronged to the affair.

Co-eds were attired, with few exceptions, in long, semi-formal gowns and the boys in business suits.

The programs were little replicas of Mortar Boards and on them was printed the dance, date, time, place and chaperones.

Phyllis McGovern was general chairman of the affair. Jean Butler took charge of getting chaperones; Flossie Wade, programs; Betty Myers, decorations; Mary Howe, tickets; and Mary Nelson, publicity.

Cider and doughnuts were the refreshments served. The chaperones of the dance were Dean Mary Jean Simpson, Prof. and Mrs. Bickford and Prof. and Mrs. Dykhuizen.

Radio League Discusses Neutrality Controversy

The Vermont Cynic Radio League presented a timely discussion of the United States foreign policy and the present neutrality controversy on Thursday, September 28. Under the chairmanship of T. Huntley '41, president of the International Relations Club, K. Johnson '41, K. Hoffman '40 and R. Wolfe '42 expounded their views as to the proper course the United States should take in maintenance of our neutrality. J. G. Cohen '42, Cynic radio editor, announced the program and read the latest newscasts on the situation.

All who took part in the discussion agreed that our primary purpose was to keep our country out of any foreign wars, but there was some disagreement as to the best method of so doing. Some provisions of the 1937 neutrality act were praised, others were criticized; the 1939 neutrality act was given especially detailed attention by the various speakers. Although the purpose of the discussion was not to arrive at any definite solution, everyone present offered his opinion and the situation was thoroughly discussed.

KAPPA SIGMA INITIATES SIX MEMBERS SUNDAY

Alpha Lambda Chapter of Kappa Sigma initiated six men into the fraternity Sunday afternoon at the chapter house on Main Street. The new members of the fraternity are: I. B. Ross '41, T. F. Crimmin, Jr., '41, R. G. Healy '41, D. V. Collins '41, H. I. Williams '41, and E. N. Rock '41.

New Rushing Rules Planned by Sororities

This year Pan-Hellenic has established a new system for women's rushing, featuring first semester pledging. Pledges may not be initiated until after mid-years, however, to establish their scholarship requirements.

All sororities cordially invite freshman women to attend their open house to be held Thursday, October 5, from 7.00 to 8.30 p.m. and Friday, October 6, from 4.00 to 5.30 p.m. Freshmen are urgently requested to visit all sororities to get acquainted with the girls and to look over the fraternity houses.

Other open houses will be held October 12 and 13 and October 19 and 20. On the Thursdays the hours will be 7.00 to 8.30 and on the Fridays, 4.00 to 5.30.

October 26 Pan-Hellenic, representing all sororities, is holding open house at Southwick for all freshman women and on November 3 Pan-Hellenic will be hostess at a tea to be held at Southwick.

Final parties, each sorority having two of any type it chooses, will be held from November 6 to 24. Preceding pledging which is scheduled for Monday, November 27, will be a two-day neutral period which it is expected every fraternity woman and every freshman woman will do her utmost to enforce.

I.R.C. to Hold Opening Meeting of Year Oct. 12

The International Relations Club, which is open to everyone, will hear Professor Milliken of the political science department at the initial meeting of the year, which will take place on October 12.

Professor Milliken will speak on the "American Foreign Policy and Warships of Today," the first of a group of themes that are to be discussed this year.

Topics of essential importance have been chosen, and they will undoubtedly be of vital interest to everyone, as foreign and international affairs are certain to play an eminent part in each person's life.

Freshmen especially are invited to attend and to enter the open discussion which is a part of each meeting.

TEA DANCES HELD BY TWO WOMEN'S SORORITIES

Two sororities on the campus, the Alpha Chi Omega and Tri Delt, held tea dances before the Mortar Board dance on Saturday night. Vics were used to furnish music for the couples at both houses.

The Alpha Chi dance was in charge of M. Bodette '40 and Dr. and Mrs. Daggs chaperoned.

Joené Agard '42 and Emily Abbott '40 had charge of the Tri-Delt dance. Dr. and Mrs. Stultz were the chaperons.

Eighteen Answer First Call for Debating

Answering the first call of the season, eighteen forensic hopefuls met Wednesday afternoon with debating coach, Merrill D. Powers, to discuss plans for the coming debating season. Prospects for another banner season are bright, as many experienced speakers were among those reporting.

Several Experienced Men Back This Year

The speakers this fall will argue the merits and demerits of the question, "Resolved, That the federal government should own and operate all railroads." A. Becker '41, with a full year of varsity experience, will be the mainstay of the men's team. A. Wolk '41, H. Durfee '41 and T. Huntley '41 also have had varsity experience, and should secure berths on the team. However, they will be pressed hard by J. Cohen '42 and F. Bardossi '42, who formed the nucleus of last year's freshman team, and give promise of turning into varsity material.

The men's team has no definite plans for the season as yet, but arrangements are being made for home debates with Bates and Keene Normal College in October and November, respectively. There is also a possibility that the team may attend a debating tournament at Dartmouth in November.

Trudy Johnstone '40 and Eleanor Brody '40 will carry the brunt of the speaking assignments for the women this year, although a few of the other candidates have had some experience, and will certainly take part in many contests. The women will officially open their season with a debate with Bates at Bates. A home encounter is being arranged with Keene Normal College for November, and a trip will be taken to St. Lawrence University some time during the fall.

Both Teams to Hold Regular Meetings

Both men's and women's teams will hold regular meetings every Tuesday afternoon at 4.00 o'clock to discuss the debating topics.

Coach Powers has issued a call for freshman debaters for Wednesday afternoon in 3 South College at 4.00 p.m., and reports that he expects a very large turnout, as over eighty freshmen signified an interest in debating during the recent freshman orientation week.

Those who answered the call for varsity debaters in addition to those named above are as follows: A. Caldwell '41, T. Kambour '41, M. Levin '41, G. Haines '42, Mary Nelson '40, Gwendolyn Blanchard '40, Katherine LeBaron '41, Evelyn Fuller '41, Ida Hull '42 and Harriet Nelson '42.

OUTING CLUB AND W.A.A. SPONSOR JOINT HIKE

Fifteen enthusiastic hikers turned out for the Outing Club and W. A. A. joint hike to Bolton Lodge Sunday, October 1. After lunch and tea (Bob Linsley poured), most of the group climbed Bolton mountain. There was no view because of the low hanging clouds and mist. Four girls remained at the cabin and made themselves most useful by cleaning the cabin thoroughly and making soup for the tired climbers. All returned by truck to Burlington.

160 Students Attain Dean's List Average

Fifty-two Seniors, Forty-two Sophs, and Sixty-six Frosh Qualify

According to records recently released by the University, fifty-two seniors, forty-two sophomores, and sixty-six freshmen placed on the Dean's list last semester. A complete list of students who qualified will be found below.

In making out the lists an A is counted as 95 percent, a B as 85 percent, a C as 75 percent and a D as 65 percent. An A average means a record with no grade below A; ½A-½B is an average of 90 percent or the equivalent of a record in which half the grades are A and half are B or better; a B average is an average of 85 percent. "No" means an average below 85 percent; "Inc." means an incomplete record. Nothing below 85 percent is regarded as a B average. A student may, however, have grades below B provided these are balanced by a sufficient number of grades of A, and still attain a B avarage.

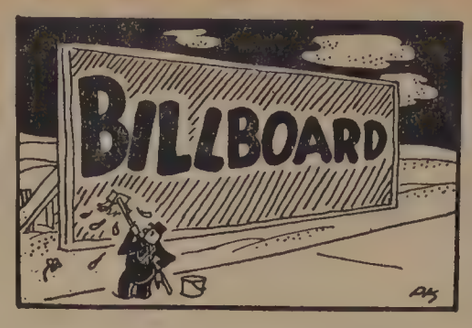
An event which bids fair to become one of the most popular in alumni circles is the fall Homecoming Day, scheduled for the first time this year. The importance of such a day cannot be stressed enough for far too often alumni lose all contact with the University. In many cases once students receive their degrees, life at the University ceases to exist. Such an event as that planned for this Saturday not only gives alumni an opportunity to renew old acquaintances but it also stimulates alumni interest in the University.

This latter is of supreme importance because it is a well-known fact that alumni support is sadly lacking at Vermont. The alumni could be of tremendous assistance to the University in many of its undertakings but such is seldom the case. The pleas for assistance of the Alumni Council usually either elicit a weak response or are entirely ignored. Nor should it be thought that the Alumni Council makes any exorbitant requests of the alumni for such is not the case. Their plans usually incorporate some idea which would benefit the alumni fully as much as it would the student body. A rousing response would insure the success of such enterprises—a half-hearted response brings mediocre results.

Any success at arousing alumni interest during recent years can be credited to the Alumni Secretary, Mrs. Isabelle Y. Gallup. This very capable lady attacks her problems with amazing energy and produces surprising results. Hampered by insufficient funds, she has been unable to put on any elaborate campaigns but despite that handicap she has gone ahead with her plans and produced gratifying results. Although some alumni have proved their loyalty time and again, many have failed to give assistance of any kind whatsoever.

Mrs. Gallup was largely responsible for the success of last year's Alumni Bazaar and has this year been appointed general chairman of that function. This year's bazaar promises to be a bigger and better affair than last year's which was the first to be held. But the bazaar is not the only event on the schedule to entertain the alumni for the program contains a variety of things to do. The cane rush will be held between halves at the St. Lawrence game; the Union cross-country race will be held that afternoon; and fraternity tea dances will precede the dance, dinner, and bazaar.



Much work has been done to make this first fall Homecoming Day a success. Let's all get behind it and see that it not only goes over but also develops into a yearly affair.

Last year we heard a good deal of the criticism which was hurled at the head of Eugene Gasperini, editor-in-chief of the 1940 Ariel, because the yearbook failed to appear exactly on schedule. Such criticism was unjustified and we believe that in every case it was made by people who knew little or nothing about the facts of the case. If anyone is of the opinion that the yearbook appeared late because of the incompetence of the staff or any similar reason we should like to correct his impressions at this time.

The real reason for the delay was that the Ariel staff decided to change the size of the pages from the customary 7½- by 10½-inch page to a page measuring 9 by 12 inches. Justification for this change is apparent from the enthusiasm which greeted the yearbook's appearance.

But such a change necessitated much extra work on the part of the staff. Copy which for years had been transferred from the previous issue with only minor changes had to be rewritten and rearranged for the new style of make-up. Only by dint of extra labor and long hours was the book finally brought to completion.

We commend the editor of the 1939 Ariel for the artistry and beauty of his book. The improved result was well worth the delay.

There will be a meeting of Bluestockings, Wednesday evening, October 4, at 7.30 in the North Lounge at Southwick. All members are requested to be present.

SCIENCE

The straw hat for coolness idea is based on actual fact. Temperatures, taken when the street temperature was 97 degrees Fahrenheit, showed the inside of a panama hat to be only 77 degrees. Temperature inside a stiff straw was also lower—79 degrees.

The World Front

Well here we are back again. In the few days that have elapsed since the last issue things have been moving right along in the international game. Warsaw has at last capitulated after one of the most heroic defenses of modern times. Hitler has asked for peace on his terms, as predicted. Meanwhile Russia continues to mystify the world by her sudden moves—planned to the minute and having the force of high-powered shells.

Hitler on Spot

The big question mark in Europe today is the fate of Rumania. As we see it Germany and Russia will either split up the country—Germany taking the oil fields, Russia taking Bessarabia or else Russia will mark time and keep Germany away from the coveted oil wells. One thing is certain—Germany is bound to make demands on Rumania sooner or later. Oil is a vital need to Germany at present with the entire country on rations so far as gasoline is concerned. Meanwhile Russia has stolen another march in eastern Europe by making Estonia a virtual protectorate under Russian control. The Baltic regarded by Hitler as a sphere of German influence now comes under the shadow of the "hammer and sickle."

Hitler now finds himself on the spot. In his Danzig speech he threatened to unlease an unprecedented offensive war if Britain and France refused a peace on his terms. The Allies refused. What will Hitler now do? The special session of the Reichstag called by Adolf Hitler as we were going to press is undoubtedly intended to map out the next move Hitler is in a bad position. He threatened action—in order not to lose face with his people he must provide that action. Further conquest in eastern Europe is blocked by Russia. The Western Front is the only solution. But the launching of an offensive on the Maginot Line would result in terrific losses of men. What will Hitler do? The world waits.

Men in Command

Looking at the Western Front we find that the war there is resolving itself into a struggle for position. Sooner or later one side will launch an offensive of major proportions. That offensive may be the bloodiest of modern warfare as sheer man power is sent against impregnable fortifications.

The men who lead the armies are now in their element; theirs is the power now. Here they are in brief review:

General Maurice Gamelin, France—67 but doesn't look it—has the air of an alert business man—has never known defeat—always was at head of his class—graduated first in his class at St. Cyr—admirable memory—strong critical sense—pleasant disposition—one of Joffre's best aides in the last war—rose in four years of war from major to general of the Ninth Division—chief of general staff in 1931—commander in chief in 1935—quote: "One must not always command. One must sometimes persuade."

Colonel General Walther Von Brauchitsch—may become as famous as Von Moltke, Schieffer, Ludendorf—a lieutenant at 19—"a soldier first, last and all the time"—self-affacing—shuns publicity—has no political leanings—infrequent speaker—rise of National Socialists and the purge of February, 1938, brought him promotion.

Viscount Gort, Britain—a product of the "Old Army"—shy and quiet—a pleasant manner—member of Lord Kitchener's "Old Contemptibles" in World War—wounded three times, has Victoria Cross, Distinguished Service Order, the Military Cross—1927 Shanghai Defense Force—1932 Brigadier General, India—1935 Major General—1936 Commandment of Staff College at Camberley, and in 1937 Chief of Imperial General Staff.

War Literature

It's about time we close but before doing so we should like to recommend some literature valuable to an understanding of the present situation: "Background for War"—Supplement Time Magazine—on sale at all newsstands—a group of articles that appeared in Time and are now in pamphlet form.

"News of the Week" section, New York Times—any and all weeks, this is indispensable.

"Shadow Over Europe"—Shephard Stone—The Foreign Policy Association.

But now as time grows short and space is filled we tune off on the international scene. See you Friday.

Fleming Museum Now Aids in Class Work

The professors are beginning to use museum facilities for class work, the Monday lecture of the general zoology class on "The Use of Projection Equipment" being held at the museum. The embryology class met there on Thursday morning to see two motion pictures on embryology. Also, Professor Kenyon gave a demonstration experiment for his elementary education class with the globe and projection lantern of the museum, showing the path of the sun on the revolving earth in daylight and darkness.

Arrangements are being made to borrow an exhibit of various pictures of Paris from the Dartmouth Museum of Fine Arts for use later in the year.

The museum is now the distributor of a very important series of motion pictures and lantern slides (of which there are one thousand), the former entitled "Chronicles of America," and the latter, "Pageant of America." They have beeen loaned indefinitely to the museum by the State Department of Education, which had the use of the pictures last year in the normal schools, and are now available, free of charge, to the schools of Vermont.

The motion picture projector which the Lions Club gave to the museum two years ago with the plan of loaning it to schools in the State is to be used by the school of South Burlington this year. H. B. Eldred, assistant director of the museum and member of the South Burlington School Board, will have the direction of the use of the projector. The machine has been in constant use, even during the summer, when the Elizabeth Lund Home was permitted to draw on the classroom film library to show in this projection.

This Week at Southwick

Tuesday night at 7 o'clock the first boys' dancing class for beginners will be held in the ballroom. It is requested that only beginners attend and please be on time. Anyone who cannot come this Tuesday but would like to come in the future, can make arrangements for a make-up class by calling Mrs. Bickford during her office hours.

Mrs. Bickford will be at Southwick, upstairs, from 2.30 to 4.30 every Wednesday afternoon. If you wish to get in touch with her, please try to do it then. The telephone number is 2024-M.

The Photographic Club will hold its first meeting at Southwick on Wednesday at 7.30 p.m. Anyone interested is invited to come.

Thursday night at 7 o'clock the girls dancing class for beginners will be held in the ballroom.

Have you any hobby or interest such as knitting or some other type of handicraft? If so, get in touch with Mrs. Bickford and perhaps arrangements can be made for classes or meetings.

FAMOUS CHILDREN

Freddie Bartholomew, outstanding child star of the screen, has just won a victory over his equally famous Aunt Cissie. Freddie is now the owner of a green felt hat which he not only wears with street clothes, but with his pajamas and with his swim suit at the beach as well. The hat was purchased by Freddie's father over the protests of Aunt Cissie, who held out for years against a hat because it would hide Freddie's curls.

PROFESSOR DEAN SPEAKS AT COLLEGE ST. CHURCH

Prof. Leon Dean gave a very interesting talk at Collegium Sunday night on Thomas Chittenden, the first governor of Vermont. He described realistically the character of "Old Tom," who was typical of those hard-fighting men who pioneered in bringing Vermont to statehood.

Refreshments of grilled cheese sandwiches, cocoa and doughnuts were enjoyed.

Annual Alumni Bazaar To be Held Saturday

Saturday marks a big day in U. V. M.'s social calendar—Homecoming Day. Returning alumni will be entertained by a cross-country meet between U. V. M. and Union, a football game against St. Lawrence and last but not least a bazaar in the gym and baseball cage lasting from 6.00 to 8.00 p.m. According to advance reports the second alumni bazaar promises to be an outstanding success. The U. V. M. alumni office in charge of the bazaar has sent some 8,000 invitations to alumni in all parts of the country. A crowd topping last year's five thousand is expected.

The bazaar offers varied entertainment. Fortune telling, target practice, fishing, movies, games, marionette shows and dancing are among the many features of the bazaar midway which offer enjoyment for all. Dancing will be in the gymnasium proper starting at 9.00 p.m.

Among the famous alumni men returning for the Homecoming celebration is the well-known Paul P. Harris '89, famed as the founder of Rotary. He has traveled in many countries and is internationally known as a spreader of Rotary ideals.

Twelve University of Vermont undergraduates will be selling tickets for the bazaar at the football game. The girls are: Sally Rome, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.; Ruth Miller, Putney; Jean Morse, Essex Center; Barbara Gallagher, St. Albans; Barbara Smith, Fairfield, Conn.; Grace Weaver, Brattleboro; Doris Schlaf, Rockville, Conn.; Eleanor Shandoff, Burlington; Frances Abel, Montclair, N. J.; Betty Cooper, Merchantville, N. J.; Corinne Hollowell, Cranford, N. J.; and Elizabeth Cook.

DR. RAINER SCHICKELE TO STUDY AT HARVARD

Ames, Ia.—(I.P.)—Dr. Rainer Schickele, assistant professor of economics at Iowa State College, has been awarded a post doctoral fellowship for 1939-40 by the Social Research Council.

Dr. Schickele, in accepting the fellowship, plans to devote the year to advanced study in the fields of economics, sociology and political science. He plans to make a systematic application of economic principles to problems of resource conservation and maladjustments in rural economy. He will spend a considerable part of the year studying at Harvard.

Fraternities Plan Men's Rushing Banquets

The class of 1943 has "an excellent group" typified the comment of the fraternities on the hill when recently posed with the interrogative "What do you think of the 1939 crop of freshmen?" Not wishing to surrender any information concerning their rushing plans, the fraternities did break down nevertheless and render their banquet dates. The Delta Psis with S. K. Gilbert '40 as chairman of the rushing committee plan three banquets for the frosh on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The plans this year are secret as of the rest of the frats. However, last year they took the boys to Dr. Wheeler's camp and treated them to corn-on-the-cobb. The Kappa Sigmas, at whose head E. Simpson '40 and J. Royer '41 are serving as co-chairmen, are also having their banquets on the first three days of the week. Hotel Vermont accommodated their pledges last year. The same nights for the banquets goes for the S. A. E's, F. Taylor '41 being chairman this time. Twist-O-Hill was the treat last year for the same event. Sigma Nu elected W. Robinson '40 and W. Pye '41 co-chairmen and are feasting the beginners accordingly. Sigma Phi are following suit with B. Allen '40 as chairman at the Sigma Phi mansion next week. Incidently, Sigma Phi's have high hopes for this crop. For Phi Sigs the frosh will get a Wednesday royal filling with A. D. Wolk '41 starring as chairman. T E P's with E. Berkowitz '40, J. Bloom '41 and S. Firestone will fill their pledges up on Monday night. The Owls will treat their hopefuls in the same manner with K. F. Beaton '40 as chairman for the great occasion. Phi Delta Theta presents H. Middleworth '40 as chairman for the banquet. Last rush the Phi Delts took the cap bearers to Oak Ledge Manor. Last but not least come the A T Os, who took their adoptions to Mount Philo last October. This year J. Davis '40 is in charge of the A T O banquet on Tuesday and Wednesday eves.

So open those belts, freshmen, and eat while the eatin's good.

PROFESSOR BURNS TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Dr. George P. Burns, head of the botany department at the University of Vermont, will attend a convention of Collaborators of Northeastern Experiment Stations for Pasture Research, which is to be held at Pennsylvania State College, Tuesday and Wednesday, October 3 and 4.

The Band Wagon

By Bob Johnson

Knight's Keefe-men

When in Plattsburg get an earful of Sonny Keefe and ork currently playing at the Knight. Featured are Sonny Keefe, piano; Ray Blood, trumpet; Tommy Herbs, drums; "Romie" Perry, tenor and clarinet; Johnnie "Same Place?" Paolo, tenor; and the latest edition Jimmy Bennett on trombone. Every man is an experienced and accomplished musician. Their library consists mainly of specials which make the combine exceptionally full. Jimmy plays some of the finest sliphorn these ears have heard outside of and yet including many of the names. Philbert says "A real treat."

Continentals

Clyde Stearns and his Continentals are again at a local nite-spot. Lefty Woods playing some terrific piano, and Milt Hudson on doghouse, pound out plenty of rhythm. Clyde, himself, is greatly overshadowed by Tommy, sparkplug of the Keefe-krew. Joe Michaels on tenor has a tough job in trying to fill the shoes of Bill Hesse and "Snuffy," who have gone on before. The band features novel trios—trombone, mellophone, and tenor and again two clarinets and trombone. Milt is really one of the finest bassists this town has kept.

Platter Patter

Don't miss "Pastel Blue" by John Kirby—featuring Chuck Shavers—who wrote the mood—on trumpet. It gets us.

Far more exciting are the Krupa releases on Columbia exhibiting nice ensemble and terrific solos—and mainly showing what can be done with folk songs.

Always good are those Barnet and Miller waxings for Bluebird.

We Wonder Why!

The music accompanying movies has to be so corny as well as most of the featured spots in them!

Guy Lombardo says swing is too fast—when his own fast tunes are faster and more rigid than any swing band would play them? Get out your metronome and find out.

Teddy Wilson's band has been having such a tough time?

"Young Man With a Horn" was bought by a movie company and shelved. What Mr. Hays thinks is harmful for the public is sometimes interesting—or is it?

Some sort of law isn't passed to prevent other bands from stealing styles like that of Glenn Miller?

Philbert never grows up?

Bing Crosby is forced to groove so many discs in that super slow manner which really handicaps him?

R.O.T.C. Band in Action First Time Saturday

The University of Vermont's military band gets its first opportunity to display its adroitness next Saturday, October 7, when the colors are formally presented to the two freshman companies of the R. O. T. C. at 7.30 a.m. The band will again play in the afternoon at the Vermont-St. Lawrence game to be played at Centennial Field.

The band has been rehearsing practically every night since the 15th, and lately they have been drilling on the back campus under the able tutelage of Sergeant Pickett. The drill has consisted mainly of marching, and forming the various letters to be used in Saturday's game.

The bandsmen are: R. E. Alberghini, W. J. Black, W. D. Bolton, R. L. Clark, J. Creed, P. S. Czachor, C. C. Drown, R. W. Earley, W. M. Emerson, R. M. Grover, G. L. Haines, M. W. Canfield, W. S. Keith, P. R. Landry, M. Lavalle, R. L. Marcalus, E. Mayville, D. R. McRell, R. J. Moffitt, W. Musicant, B. Perkins, W. W. Pierce, D. Rousseau, F. Shaw, M. Shuman, P. F. Swift, A. Thorpe, W. B. Tooles, J. H. Tooles, M. Viens, W. A. West, J. R. Williams, R. Winslow, O. Yandow, E. Eaton, E. S. Irwin, F. Procter, I. Goodman, H. Stanley.

Led by Joseph Lechnyr, the band will provide music at the various athletic contests as well as military functions.

Green and Gold Gridders Trip Amherst, 7-6

Taylor Scores All Cat Points

Halfback Sprints 35 Yards To Tally, Makes Conversion

Asking no quarter of an Amherst squad that outnumbered it almost three to one. Vermont's eleven rallied in the final half to nip the vaunted Lord Jeffs, 7 to 6, at Pratt Field, Amherst, Saturday.

Frankie Taylor, Catamount halfback, who ran wild last year, served notice that he would take up where he left off. It was Taylor who supplied Vermont's scoring impetus. Frankie sped thirty-five yards around end to a score early in the third quarter and capped the performance by booting the tie-breaking extra point.

Vermont employed chiefly defensive tactics. The unyielding qualities of the Green and Gold's rugged line surprised the experts. Johnny Spasyk's steady, accurate punting aided no little. Time and again a Spasyk boot would set the Jeffs back on their heels, to be further thwarted by the Cat front wall.

Amherst, which could have made good use of an adding machine in totaling its roster, sent three full teams into the battle and still had the S. R. O. signs out on the bench. Vermont used but seven reserves, and these only sparingly.

Johnny Sabo's men had their backs to the wall the entire first half. Smashing line play and Spasyk's kicking staved off Amherst threats for one quarter and a good part of another, but it was merely prolonging the inevitable.

Firman Scores

The Sabrinas finally hit pay dirt late in the second period. Moving from the Cat 47-yard line, they sent Ernie Lawton off on a reverse that netted 17 yards. Then Bobby Blood, speedy sophomore back, cut loose behind good blocking and went down to Vermont's three, from which point Joe Firman bucked over on second down. Capt. Bill Cordner missed the conversion which later was to prove so important.

Vermont looked better as soon as the second half got under way. The Cats lost no time in making their initial first down, rushes by Taylor and Ed Kodys doing the trick.

The ball changed hands a few times before Spasyk set the Sabomen rolling, jackrabbiting his way from the U. V. M. 48 to Amherst's 35 on a punt return.

Tallies on Fake Pass

On the very next play, Taylor faded back, faked a pass, then tucked away that leather and headed for home around his own left flank. The Jeffs weren't completely fooled. Their tailback had a shot at Taylor, as did one end, who recovered fast after a block thrown at him by Jim Corbett,. But the Brattleboro Express wasn't making any whistle stops. Holding to the sidelines, he outfooted the Sabrina defenders and raced across standing up.

Broutsas held while Taylor smoothly place-kicked the point.

The game's swift change of complexion apparently took the heart out of Amherst The Jeffs controlled the ball most of the remaining time, but lacked drive. They never put together a string of first downs longer than two. For that matter, neither did Vermont. But the Cats were content to take the defensive, interrupting Amherst threats here and there with a blocked kick, or an intercepted pass.

Amherst made eight first downs to the Green and Gold's one. The Jeffs outrushed the Cats, 147 yards to 57, and gained 29 yards through the air to Vermont's six. But Vermont scored more points.

FRANK TAYLOR

Frosh Eleven Takes Shape

Though hampered by rainy weather, the frosh gridmen are beginning to shape up. The squad has practiced now for almost three weeks, alternating between scrimmaging with the varsity and dividing up into two elevens. Against the varsity the workout has consisted of executing single and double wingback attacks for the latter to stifle; among themselves defense drill is the main objective. Also some time has been spent on kick-off formations, learning the rules thoroughly, and some blackboard work.

Coach Fuzzy Evans, with the help of Dave Jones, last year's varsity captain, has formulated a tentative first team. When questioned as to whether this was anything more than a temporary choice, Fuzzy strongly emphasized that "every berth is still wide open."

At left end is Jim Fleming of Wilbraham Academy, West Springfield, Mass. The other side of the line is held down by Bob Hennessey, who won his letter at Central High in Bridgeport, Conn. Garnering the left tackle slot is H. P. Wood, known as the "mighty runt." Weighing only 140 pounds, he prepped at Lowell High. Urson Otto is stationed at the other tackle post. Another Massachusetts product, he is hard pressed by Harris Thurber. John Chernanski of Allentown High and Bill Benoit, who hails from New London, are slated for the guard positions. In the center of the line is Phil Chesaroni, who comes from Newton, Mass. Ranging from Otto's 190, the average weight is approximately 165 pounds.

The backfield is not so definitely decided upon. Tom Sanders, a Hoosier lad, will do the quarterbacking. Employed as a blocking back, he is also the best passer on the squad. Frank McArdle, Norman Beaulieu, another tosser, and George Carey, who runs and punts, are fighting it out for the halfback berths. Either Harry Parker or Walt Kolodza will start as tailback, the former having a slight edge.

PYE NAMED GRID LEADER

On the eve of its departure for Amherst the University of Vermont football team elected William I. (Apple) Pye of Rutland as captain. He takes the place of L. C. (Bud) Kimball of Lowell, Mass., who was declared ineligible. Pye is a junior, taking the business course. Outstanding at end last year, where he rivalled the exploits of Frankie Taylor at half, he has been shifted to half this year to bolster a sagging backfield. He also plays varsity basketball.

Cat Star Comments On Gridiron Prospects

Evades Questions About Self; Prefers to Talk About Team

By "THE WATER BOY"

A fake pass, a 40-yard touchdown run, an accurate placement—the score, Vermont 7, Amherst 6. The date, last Saturday; the situation, the third quarter, Amherst ahead 6-0; the man, Frankie Taylor.

Yes, the "Brattleboro flash" was up to his old tricks again—thrilling runs, long passes, hard tackles, and a Vermont victory, his latest contribution being a spectacular 40-yard touchdown run off tackle, terminating a well-executed fake pass play.

Scenting a pleasant post-mortem, we dropped in on Frankie last Sunday night at the SAE house and caught him relaxing in an easy chair. We started to work on him immediately and forced him to replay the Amherst game all over again.

Spasyk Smart

When we asked him how he felt as he pushed over the lone Vermont touchdown and point after touchdown, Frankie started to tell us how smart a quarterback was Johnny Spasyk, the sophomore back who last Saturday played his first game in varsity competition. However, we wouldn't let him evade our question and finally received an answer. "The team was very tired, but very determined. The spot was ideal for an off-tackle fake pass; it was the first time that we had come into scoring distance. I couldn't let the boys down."

(Note.—The Amherst game was played in very warm weather. Amherst, taking full advantage of its man-power, used at least three full teams. Considering that the entire Vermont squad numbered only twenty-three men, it is amazing how the U. V. M. team stood up under the ordeal. Guts—and how!)

The Amherst club looked real good to Taylor. It was, in his opinion, even better than the Rutgers team which last year beat Vermont 15-14. Their line was very strong, all that it was reputed to be—and clean, too. But the Vermont line was outstanding and even better. They charged hard, blocked well, and gave everything they had.

Pye at End

At this point of the conversation we brought up the subject of Bill Pye, the new Green and Gold leader. Pye, although started in the backfield, was soon shifted to his old position at end, Broutsas filling in the backfield. We asked Frankie where, in his mind, Pye would fit best. Quote Taylor, "Bill is good anywhere. But the rangy lad can certainly pull those passes down at end. He is sort of awkward now in the backfield, due entirely to his greenness at that position, and rather than wait until he becomes acquainted with his new position I would play him at end, especially with 'Chuck' around."

Ed Kodys was the next man put up for consideration. With Taylor, Ed rates as high as Trigilio as a blocker. Frankie smiled and thought how ideal it would be to have both Ed and Pike along in the same backfield. Why there would be nothing to it!

Thanks Frosh

Coan and Whitten were terrific in the Amherst line, the latter being one of the best guards, if not the best, whom Taylor has ever opposed. Outstanding in the Vermont line-up? Taylor started to name each and every player who participated—all except Taylor. (Of course, running 40 yards for a touchdown, kicking the extra point, and playing a brilliant defensive game, wouldn't make Taylor outstanding at all.) Frankie gave a good share of the victory credit to "Fuzzy" Evans and his frosh. The yearlings played Amherst plays against the varsity all last week. In fact, how well Amherst was scouted, particularly in their passing plays, can well be seen by the fact that in the second half alone Vermont intercepted four passes to stop four Amherst drives.

Will Beat Midd

Frankie expects to meet a strong St. Lawrence club next week, more powerful than last year. Being scrubbed by Dartmouth would not soften them up any, for they made every use of their large squad. But Middlebury—they would take a licking from Vermont this year. Quote Frank, "There will be no overconfidence this year. We know what to expect, and even now are looking ahead to trim them properly and gain revenge for last year."

Lots of luck, Frank. Continue the good start, and beat Middlebury!

TAYLOR-MADE

It would be hard for anyone who didn't actually see the game to appreciate the weight of Vermont's victory Saturday. You had to see that Lord Jeff battalion, sixty strong, romping over the field in pre-game practice; you had to see Amherst reserves coming in a team at a time to sap the tiny Vermont squad's strength; you had to see the Catamount eleven come up off the floor to make one swift stab and then foil every Jeff threat.

All the Vermont men showed to advantage. Johnny Spasyk's punting was of gilt-edge quality. On the line, Jim Corbett, Boots Lawrence, Norm Dubie, Swede Carlson, and Norm Strassburg played like supermen. (Dubie and Carlson later dropped from exhaustion, the Swede passing out completely.)

But Frankie Taylor, the wonder back, was the big noise. Taylor seems to be good for at least one long run a game. Once he got started on his jaunt into the Amherst end zone everyone knew it was a touchdown sprint. There was simply no stopping him.

Saturday's statistics reveal how vital Taylor is to the team. Throughout the game, Vermont made twenty-one rushes, with Frankie carrying the mail thirteen times. He was responsible for forty-seven of the fifty-seven yards gained by Vermont overland. He was on the sending end of Vermont's only pass, and it was completed, at that.

JEFF JOTTINGS

A rummy game was in progress from the time the bus left Burlington to game time, with the honesty of all concerned continually in question. Participants were Messrs. Carlson, Royer, Corsonnes, Taylor, Flynn, and Broutsas. . . Big Al Shaw was far and away the heaviest eater. At one sitting, the Wild Man stacked away a dozen rolls. . . Between the halves the Vermont athletes were refreshed with tea and cube sugar. . . Reading matter was at a premium on the long trip down, with Life, Look, and the Free Press the reigning favorites. . . A fast traveling car grazed the side of the bus just outside of Brandon. The car kept on going, but a State Patrol car miraculously appeared on the spot within a minute and was on the culprit's trail. No damage was done. . . The Springfield Republican delegate was a gent by the name of Chevalier, U. V. M. '25. He and the rest of the press box were amazed at the strength of the Vermont line. The Boston Transcript man thought it as good as B. U.'s. . . . For such a moneyed house of learning, the Amherst field was rather shabby. When they drilled there Friday, the Cats were under the impression it was a practice gridiron. The seating capacity is meager. . . In the strength of their lecture Friday, Taylor, Broutsas, and Carlson could apply for jobs as publicity men for the Brattleboro Chamber of Commerce. . . Vermont rooters were fairly plentiful, but there seemed to be few students present. Davy Jones, last year's co-captain, was in attendance. . . Amherst had a frosh bloc, and the poor lads went through quite an ordeal at the hands of the upperclassmen. . . Al Shaw and Whizzer White spent half the return trip poring over results of other games. . . Amherst engages Brown in Providence Saturday. Quoth one Lord Jeffian, "We're considering sending the band along—and leaving the team home."

Harriers Point For Union

Having run the regular cross-country route for practice in the last two weeks, the varsity cross-country squad reported Friday to the Centennial Field track for a fast workout under the personal supervision of Coach Archie Post.

The practice route was changed to the track for the purpose of polishing up the hill and dalers for their forthcoming meet with Union this Saturday. The workout consisted of two half-mile runs, supervised limbering up, and jogging to and from the field. By having the men work out at the field, Coach Post was able for the first time to observe his runners all along the course and to introduce them to a little competition. As they circled the track, their faults were pointed out and remedied on the spot by suggestions from the coach. Leg action and arm and shoulder coordination were smoothed up and the boys who were running a set distance in competition for the first time this year learned by their experience how to distribute their speed according to their particular stamina. A few 220 and 440 men ran with the long-distance lads and the squad, being paced by these faster runners of shorter distances, picked up extra speed.

In concluding the workout Coach Post discussed the Country Club course and ground rules with the boys. One of the things he explained was the marking system. This might be of interest to those who intend to watch the meet Saturday. A red marker denotes a left turn, a white marker denotes a right turn, and a blue marker means to run straight ahead. The only absent member at practice was Jack Burgess, one of last year's frosh mainstays, who is out sick with a bad cold.

The squad in its entirety will be run against Union. Although just the first seven of each squad count in the scoring, the others have a chance to profit by their experience in actual meet conditions.

NORTH DAKOTA PROF AWARDED YALE PRIZE

Grand Forks, N. D.—(I.P.)—Dr. Max Demorest, assistant professor of geology at the University of North Dakota, has been awarded a Sterling research fellowship at Yale University. In 1930 and again in 1932-33, Demorest spent a total of twenty-five months in northern Greenland as meteorologist-geologist on the expedition sponsored by the University of Michigan and Pan-American Airways, and at Yale he will continue his study of ice structure and glaciers. Demorest obtained his doctorate from Princeton University last spring.

Columbia University has broadened its program of training for public service in law.

Doctor Riggs Tells of Research Work Done at Brown University

Sitting in front of a table on which was placed an apparatus strangely resembling an old-fashioned radio was Dr. Lorrin A. Riggs, instructor of psychology here at the University of Vermont. Though teaching an elementary course, his main field is research, in which he has made several important advances.

Through a special grant from the Carnegie Foundation, his "sanctum sanctorum," which is his laboratory, last year was at Brown University. Working with Prof. Clarence Graham, co-recipient of the grant, his problem was to determine the sensitivity of the eye to light. How important this is may be realized by the fact that a proportionally large number of persons are killed each year because of the glare of the headlights of an oncoming automobile.

We are all momentarily "blinded" in passing from a darkened theater into bright sunshine. Yet scientists know little about the adjustments that the eye makes when vision becomes normal again.

If you had stepped into his laboratory you would have seen him measuring the "lima-bean-sized" eyes of the horseshoe crab, which is similar to a spider; though not a human eye, his findings probably will apply to the physiological behavior of the eyes and optic nerves of all higher animals.

Specifically Doctor Riggs was measuring electrical effects as they travel along the optic nerve. In his experiments the eye and optic nerves are stimulated with flashes of light controlled by a shutter and diaphragm mechanism. As the flashes of light vary in brightness there are corresponding variations in the number of nerve impulses. Another part of the apparatus records the impulses set up by the light. These nerve impulses are amplified into sound and made audible through a loud speaker, so that you can hear a buzz or a hum. They are also recorded on a strip of film.

Doctor Riggs has already concluded that accepted theories about the eye's adaptation to light will have to be revised. At first a light beam seems to have little effect upon an eye accustomed to comparative darkness, it was found. Split seconds later the eye's blindness actually increases. But after a minute the eye reaches its most sensitive point before levelling off to normal visual ability.

In another experiment Doctor Riggs was interested in finding out whether a rat's eyes were sensitive to color. It was discovered that color changes are not visible. Also he was at one time desirous of learning when the flickering of a light appears to the human eye to be steady. Using a moderately bright light, about twenty-five flickers per second are necessary.

The weird-looking "gadget" previously mentioned is a chronoscope, an instrument for measuring minute time intervals, which he will use in classroom demonstration.

Serious and yet not minus a sense of humor, Doctor Riggs patiently answered our numerous questions. As we left him working at his desk we felt that Vermont was fortunate, indeed, to have him on its faculty.

Ten Years Ago In Sports . . .

Vermont Massacred by Eli 89-0 As Injury Plagues Catamount Ranks

After holding Yale to a single touchdown in a full quarter of play, Vermont rapidly began to give way as man after man left the field with injuries. Vermont was doubly handicapped through a shortage of players, and Coach Rattan finally found it necessary to ask permission of the Eli coaches to substitute men twice in the same quarter.

Albie Booth, 140-pound halfback, playing his first game of intercollegiate football, dazzled the 20,000 spectators with his kicking and running. Two touchdowns and five drop-kicks gave him a total of 17 points, individual high score of the game.

Phys. Ed. Department to Teach Boxing and Wrestling

A special course in boxing is offered this year by the physical education department. This course will start about the first of November and will continue to the Easter recess. A very competent wrestling coach has been secured and it is possible that Vermont may compete with other colleges on the mat.

Coach Gardner Working With Diamond Material

With a wealth of material in some positions and a notable absence in others, Coach Larry Gardner has been putting his baseball aspirants through a conditioning program which is to continue until adverse weather conditions bring it to a close. The return of the state championship infield should provide tough opposition for all newcomers. "Pie" Traynor, diminutive pepper-box still pulls them out of the dirt with regularity, and no doubt should make this year one of his best on the diamond.

Twenty-five Years Ago

Williams Wins by Windt's Drop-kick 3-0—Game Ends With Ball on Purple's Three-yard Line

Saved only by a phenomenal 22-yard drop-kick from the toe of Cliff Windt, Williams College triumphed over the Green and Gold by the scant margin of three points. The Catamounts outplayed their rivals, but were the victims of continual bad breaks. The worst of these was the final one, which ended the game with Vermont in possession of the ball on the Purple's three-yard line. Considering the fact that the Vermont stalwarts had had insufficient practice for this game due to the recent infantile paralysis epidemic they did extremely well in their first encounter.

Underclass Cane Rush This P.M.

The annual cane rush and tug-of-war will take place on the back campus this afternoon. The frosh will meet at 1.30 sharp, and march downtown to Miles & Perry, donators of the canes. They will return to the hill at 2.00 p.m. when the rush will begin.

Following the rush at 2.20 p.m. there will be a tug-of-war in which twenty men may compete.

S.A.E.'S TO STAGE VERMONT ST. LAWRENCE PRELIM

What might be termed a preliminary to the Vermont-St. Lawrence grid contest will be played Friday when the Vermont chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon meets the St. Lawrence chapter at the Sig Alph's back yard "stadium," 56 Summit Street.

A score or more Larry Sig Alphs are expected as week-end guests of the Vermont SAE's.

Post Drills 1943 Dalers

The frosh hill and dalers, although somewhat hampered by the poor weather of the past week, are busily preparing for a tough schedule.

The first barrier to an undefeated season comes on October 14, when the frosh travel to Hanover to meet a perennially strong Dartmouth squad. Last year Vermont lost a close meet by a mere eight points, and evidence points this year to an even closer finish, with a good possibility of a Vermont victory.

The squad is composed of about fifteen candidates, the outstanding one appearing to be Storey of Brattleboro. He will be considerably aided by a contingent of ex-Burlington High School stars including John Buttles, Bob Pond, George Little, and Paul Sutton.

New York offers a threat in the personage of "Lightning" Wedge and from Wilbraham Academy, Massachusetts, comes John Lightcap. We hope these two boys are as fast as there names would indicate.

Collectively, the squad looks very good, and with any breaks at all should add another banner season to the credit of Coach Archie Post.

Fordham Symposium Analyses Philosophies

New York, N. Y.—(I.P.)—A recent symposium at Fordham College analyzed the philosophies which have formed the basis of the political structure and theory during the past two hundred years.

Taking as their theme the age-old struggle between Idealism and Realism, the discussion attempted to bring philosophy down to earth and make it a workable thing. Specifically, the symposium embraced a discussion of the absolutism of Hegel which was the basis of Marxian Communism the Pragmatic doctrine upon which our New Deal is built and the Nazi outgrowth from Hegelianism into its present totalitarian dimensions.

"Our whole idea" commented Rev. David C. Cronin, director of the symposium, "is to show that Philosophy can be made to work—has been made to work. Philosophers have come to be considered impractical. Quite to the contrary, they are practical workers, investigating everyday beliefs."

An attempt was made to show that common impressions of reality are not always successful in facing the test of critical analysis and the elaboration on that theme by concrete adaptation to the representative Realism of John Locke and the contra-theory of Berkely.

Kant's Doctrine of "inner moulds" as outlined in the "Critique of Pure Reason" was analyzed as leading to the philosophy of Hegel and its contributing factors in world politics.

New Realism, an outgrowth of the Hegel impetus was also introduced and outlined. The symposium closed with a moderate synthesis of the conflicting doctrines or what is known as Scholastic Realism.

Phi Sigs and Owls Start Season

When the Phi Sigs and the Owls line up this afternoon, the 1939 interfraternity football season will be officially under way. Both of the above teams have been working out for a week or two and are primed for the battle to survive elimination.

Although hampered by the jumble of orientation and the duties of rushing season, team managers Jose Cabanzo of the Owls and Bob Goldberg of Phi Sigma Delta have whipped together two fairly good-sized squads. Their teams are composed solely of upperclassmen because of the new ruling prohibiting the use of freshmen not bona fide pledges. Almost undoubtedly later games will include the then bona fide pledges in their line-ups.

As it stands now, the Phi Sig starting line-up is as follows: Arnold Becker, Art Wolk, Milt Reiser, Sid Sissleman, Bob Wolfe, Julie Cohen, Bob Goldberg and Capt. Samuel Levine. Calvin Olshan, Harvey Lippy and Max Resnick will be standing by as substitutes.

The Owls had not yet decided the starting line-up when interviewed for this article. They reported, however, that it would be chosen out of the following group with the remainder as substitutes: Ken Beaton, Art Cenci, Frank Nye, Dave Johnson, Harold Willson, Ace Taggart, Herbert Coburn, Jose Cabanzo, Paul Poulin, Hi Bevins and R. G. Paterson.

The winner of this game will face the SAE's, last year's champs, who received a bye in the opening round. Others to receive byes were Phi Delta Theta, Delta Psi, Sigma Phi and Kappa Sigma.

Two other matches are to be held this week. Tau Epsilon Phi faces Alpha Tau Omega this Thursday. Friday, the Independents buck Sigma Nu.

Excepting the new ruling concerning freshmen, the games will be subject to the regular standing regulations.

IDIOSYNCRASIES

Charles MacArthur, Broadway producer and husband of actress Helen Hayes, had a suspicion that his approaching baldness was hurried by too much water on his head. Because bathing caps are a nuisance, MacArthur wears a derby in the shower.

HONORARY SOCIETIES TO HOLD ELECTIONS

The two honorary societies for upperclass girls have begun their annual activities. Staff and Sandal, the junior women's honorary society, has already met and turned over the executive positions to newly elected officers. The Sophomore Aides have not held their election yet, but a meeting has been called for the first part of this week by last year's head, Margaret Crowley.

The newly elected officers of Staff and Sandal are: Shirley Mayforth, chairman; Jane Allen, secretary; and Laura Hawley, treasurer. Other members of this group are Shirley Gray, Maywood Metcalf, Elizabeth Gurney, Kathleen LeBaron, Jeanette Whipple, Dorothy Emerson, Louise Mann, Mary Letta Root and Margaret Crowley.

The new officers of the Sophomore Aides are to be chosen from the following group of members: Joanna Metcalf, Sally Rome, Jean Young, Joan Agard, Judith Perry, Gratia Pearl, Jane Judd, Kay Holden, Frances Abel, Louise Davis, Harriet Nelson, Barbara Gallagher, Carol Bell, Miriam Fiske and Jeanne Woolley.

The two societies are composed of girls chosen for their service and scholarship. The societies aid Mortar Board in their many beneficial campus activities.

Photography Club To Meet Oct. 4

The Vermont Photographic Club is to hold its first meeting of the new school year at Southwick on Wednesday, October 4. The club organized on this campus but last year has grown rapidly and looks forward to a year full of the enjoyment of a great hobby—photography.

The club boasts of two fully equipped dark rooms in the basement of Slade Hall where work can be done by University students who could not otherwise carry on their hobby due to lack of equipment. The club makes it possible for members to buy paper and chemicals at wholesale, thus eliminating much unnecessary expense. It also brings to its members speakers and instruction in the camera art.

New this year will be a salon for the exhibition of the club members' work with prizes awarded for the best. Also new this year will be a series of talks on the construction of dark room equipment.

Again this year as last beginners will be instructed in the manipulation of films in the dark room and in the composition of a picture before it is taken.

Freshman camera enthusiasts are cordially invited to attend this first meeting to learn or to teach in the support of a club dedicated to the king of hobbies and the hobby of kings—photography.

FORDHAM STARTS SALES PSYCHOLOGY COURSES

New York, N. Y.—(I.P.)—The demand for registration in courses on Practical Sales Psychology, an outgrowth of an original plan, conceived by Dwight Bracken, placement director at Fordham University, to train undergraduates and younger alumni for possible connections with exhibitors at the World's Fair, although that is still the primary objective of the studies for second semester, has led to the decision to make them an integral part of the curriculum in other schools of the University.

Practical sales psychology as it will be given at Fordham is an integration of four major subjects: History, business psychology, public speaking and health training. The ancient, mediaeval and modern development and organization of world fairs and festivals will be studied and the practical application of their problems will be amplified by the lectures in business psychology with special emphasis on the psychology of the crowd and the various types of travelers from home and abroad, the development of good will and the creative use of the vital factor of enthusiasm.

A study of showmanship as defined by Elbert Hubbard "not a thing but the best way of doing everything" will be applied in all the groups of public speaking, business and salesmanship.

Kappa Alpha Theta Gives Fashion Show

A fashion show, displaying what the well-dressed girl is wearing was presented by the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, Friday, September 29. B. Turk and Bro. were the sponsors. Nearly one hundred students and guests attended the show.

Dresses, suits, riding habits, slacks, shorts, and shoes were displayed, ranging in price from $1.98 to $37.95. Dresses were made of wool, angora wool, flannel, or jersey and popularly styled by McMullen.

The twelve models were Jean Hall '42, Beryl Douglas '42, Pat Paciulli '41, Phyllis McGovern '40, Avis Cobb '40, Helen Maeck '40, Mary Jane Hammond '41, Margaret Esherick '41, Carol Bell '42, Anne Bottomley '42, Gratia Pearl '42 and Kay LeBaron '41.

Chapel will be held as usual Wednesday morning, October 4. Rev. W. F. Hastings of Middlebury is to be the speaker.

A total of 92.6 per cent of Rutgers University students use the college library during the year.

MUSEUM TO SHOW MOVIE "TIN HOUSE OF GODS"

The Fleming Museum at the University of Vermont has been able to attain a very interesting and instructive movie, "Tin House of the Gods," which will be presented in the Fleming Museum, Thursday, October 5, at 8.00 p.m. It was filmed by Theos. Bernard, the only white man to ever become a Tibetan lama. The movie is in color and vividly portrays life in the cities and homes of Tibet. This movie is free to the faculty and students of the University. It is hoped that a large number of them will attend.

The movie may be presented later at the City Hall Auditorium for the public.

President Roosevelt was an honorary patron of the Niagara University junior prom.

First Homecoming Day Greets Visiting Alumni

St. Lawrence Game, Fraternity Tea Dances, Dinner, Dancing, Midway to Feature Program

It's Homecoming Day at the University of Vermont this week, Saturday.

The two outstanding features of the day, sandwiched among cross-country runs and teas and other attractions, will be the football game with St. Lawrence and the Second Annual Alumni Bazaar in the evening.

"It was a good bazaar last year," stated Mrs. Isabelle Y. Gallup, alumni secretary, "and it's going to be better this year. All our committees are working splendidly and profiting by last year's experience. There will be more and bigger attractions and more people. The large number of alumni returning for the day will help out immeasurably."

Many alumni are returning from New England, New York, New Jersey and other points. About fifty are coming in from the Boston area according to present indications, and other alumni clubs from as far west as Buffalo are sending delegations.

The R. O. T. C. band of the University, 1939 edition, will be on dress parade at the field for the first time this year. Boxes are being reserved at the game for returning lettermen. Between the halves the traditional cane rush will be fought out between the two lower classes. Ticket girls in the stands will sell tickets for the evening activities at the gym.

The big midway of the bazaar will be located in the baseball cage of the gymnasium. The decorated main floor of the building will be reserved for dancing. Along the midway will be sideshows, games of skill, sales booths, refreshment counters. Supper will be served, with a special supper and entertainment features for the children.

The day opens with the Vermont-Union cross-country run, starting at 1.30 at Robinson Hall and finishing at the gymnasium.

Fraternities will hold teas the latter part of the afternoon, and are cooperating with house decorations and other special efforts in recognition of the occasion.

For Friday night, the eve of the big day, students are planning a huge bonfire and rally. Editorials and news stories have been appearing in the CYNIC, student newspaper, urging support of the day and its activities. One fraternity reports a sell-out of tickets to the bazaar. Sigma Alpha Epsilon has gone to the extent of scheduling a football game with the Alphs of St. Lawrence, which will be played in their backyard "stadium" Friday night as the sun goes down.

"We are putting a lot into this," stated Mrs. Gallup, "and we want everyone to understand that it is not only for alumni and students but that the public is cordially invited."

Eight thousand alumni have been circularized for the event, which is the first big homecoming football day sponsored by the Alumni Council. The October issue of the Vermont Alumnus, first of the college year, has also been distributed in time to reach its subscribers before the event.

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP TO MEET SUNDAY

The topic for Sunday evening, October 8, at 7.30 is to be "Petting." This is under the second topic of our series, which is sex and engagement. A doctor is to be the speaker and we feel it will be a worthwhile meeting. Singing of hymns together precede the meeting proper, and discussion and refreshments follow. Come and have a good time.

Professor Kirby Plans Musical Presentations

Professor Kirby is looking forward to an outstanding year for this year's musical presentations by the glee club and choir. All of forty men and fifty women reported to the music department in response to the call to those desiring to become a member of the glee cub.

The singing organizations are usually desired at occasions on the campus and are starting the college year off early by being invited to sing in the concert at Southwick Memorial on Saturday, October 14, at 8.00 p.m. There has been a men's choir selected from the regular group to sing for this occasion. The choir presented its first offerings at chapel, Wednesday, under the direction of Prof. W. G. Kirby for the morning services and were highly appreciated by the attendants of the sermon.

Like the organizations of debating and football and other athletic teams, the glee club makes an annual trip to Boston, where the New England College Glee Club Association has a festival every spring. This festival, I might add, is something to see. Each individual club presents its own contribution, which is usually unusually outstanding because the club makes its own selection, and then finally the groups en masse sing in unison. This last presentation is very effective.

Professor Kirby plans to present also Vermont's annual opera this spring which is presented at Southwick Memorial, too. We do not know the opera intended for this season; however, last year "The Merry Wives of Windsor," which the glee club gave last year, was very successful.

We can look forward to a concert by the musical group this year and from the sound of the rehearsals so far, those who appreciate good singing should take advantage.

For this Christmas Professor Kirby has preparations for choir selections of carols and such. The choir will also characterie the Lent and Easter ceremonies.

Health Council Meets To Plan For Tag Day

The Health Council held its first meeting of the year at the home of Miss Cummings, Wednesday, October 3, to draw up plans for the coming year. Arrangements were made for the Annual Tag Day which will be held next Tuesday and Wednesday, October 10 and 11. This drive is conducted annually by the Health Council for the benefit of its Loan Fund which is accessible to women students in need of medical attention of any kind. These loans, up to $10 in amount, are granted by Miss Cummings in conjunction with Dean Simpson and can be repaid within three years after graduation without interest.

The following girls headed by Elizabeth Taylor '40, have been chosen to maintain the health standards of the campus:

Mary Arms '40, Barbara Bishop '42, Mary Bissell '42, Gertrude Burbank '40, Connie Cushing '43, Maria Dietrich '42, Jean Dewart '42, Harriet Dustin '42, Ruth Eldredge '40, Madeline Greaves '41, Alice Heath '40, Doris Jareckie '42, Jean Morse '40, Elvira Palermo '40, Irene Prondecki '41, and Betty Whitney '40.

Mr. Oatley to Speak To R.O.T.C. Battalion

Ceremony Based on Old Custom of U. S. Army

Mr. H. B. Oatley, B.S. 1900, will address the R. O. T. C. battalion, especharacteristic the Lent and Eater cerecially the class of 1943, upon matters pertinent to the preparation for citizenship at the annual ceremony of the escort to the colors by the class of 1942 and the presentation of the class of 1943 to the colors.

New Recruits Taught Battle Honors

This ceremony, based on the old army custom of annually presenting the recruits to the colors, usually on the regimental organization day, at which time the recruits of the preceding year were taught the regimental history, its origin, battle honors and its outstanding professional and civil accomplishments in the field of competition and relationship with the adjacent civil community. The dual status of the soldier as a member of a uniformed force and as a citizen of the community was emphasized. On conclusion of the ceremony the recruit felt that he had been formally inducted into the regiment and that he had lost his status of recruit; in other words, he had been accepted for full duty.

In keeping with this tradition the military department utilizes the opportunity to present to the freshman his obligations to the University, the State and the Nation through an alumnus whose experience has fitted him for the task. The presence of Mr. Oatley was secured through the efforts of the president, Doctor Bailey, speaking with him personally in order to be sure of his acceptance.

Classmate of President Bailey

Mr. Oatley received his degree in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Vermont in 1900, a classmate of President Bailey. He has served in numerous capacities in the field of mechanical engineering and now holds the office of vice-president of the Super Heater Company of New York. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Society of Testing Materials, Engineering Institute of Canada, Northeast Coast Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders (England), American Society of Naval Architects, Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, Engineers' Club of New York, Mt. Stevens Club of Montreal, Canada, and Mohawk Club of Schenectady.

Mr. Oatley was commissioned as a lieutenant (j. g.) in the regular Navy. April, 1917, serving on the U. S. S. Ohio, the U. S. S. Salem and the U. S. S. Indiana until August, 1918, when he became a member of the Designing Committee, U. S. R. A.

Served as Alumni Council Head

Since his return to civil life, Mr. Oatley has been active in University affairs, serving as president of the Alumni Council for five years, 1932-1937, when he was elected a trustee of the University, which position he still holds.

The schedule for October 7 follows:

Assembly, 7.30 a.m.

Escort to the colors, class of 1942.

Presentation of class of 1943 to the colors.

Presentation of distinguished guests: Col. E. L. Gruber, 7th F. A., commanding Fort Ethan Allen; Lt. Col. S. V. Constant, commanding 1st Squadron, 3rd Cav., Fort Ethan Allen; and Lt. Col. J. W. Cotton, Infantry, district instructor Organized Reserves. Dean George F. Eckhard, B.S., C.E., College of Engineering, will introduce Mr. Oatley.

All members of the faculty, the student body, the alumni and friends of the University are cordially invited to be present at the ceremony.

150 Freshman Men Pledged Fraternity

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Leads With 27 Pledges; Kappa Sigma and Sigma Nu Second and Third With 21 and 16 Respectively

Culminating a hectic week of rushing activity, 150 frosh men had pledged up with the fraternity of their choice late last evening, with many fraternities reporting that they expected to put more buttons on more men e're the dawn broke. As the CYNIC went to press approximately thirty men were still on the "undecided" list.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon led easily with 27 neophytes, the Kappa Sigs were second with 21, and the Sigma Nu's third with 16. Alpha Tau Omega and Phi Sigma Delta tied for fourth place with 14 men, while Phi Delta Theta came fifth with 11 pledges. Ten men pledged Delta Psi, 9 pledged Tau Epsilon Phi, 8 went Lambda Iota and 4 signed up with Sigma Phi.

The frosh accepted their bids in Professor Carroll's office between 1.30 and 5.30 p.m. They wrote their choice or choices in order of preference, and Professor Carroll, who did a very commendable job as faculty director of rushing, matched these choices with the list of bids submitted by the various frats, permitting the candidate to join that group which gave him a bid and which stood highest on his own list.

The complete list of pledges, as it stood at press time late last night is as follows:

Slack Reports Changes In This Year's Ariel

From advance reports of the 1941 Ariel given out by R. O. Slack, editor-in-chief, this year's annual is expected to be different from any published in the past. He said, "Due to the great changes and better book put out by Hugh Gasperini, it will be easier to get one out this year. We are going to publish this year's book earlier than last year's and will change several things in it to better advantage. The staff is working full force and we will try to continue the good work done by Gasperini last year."

An innovation this year will be a special feature article on the year's social events, accompanied by a series of photos portraying the same. Also, the sequence of departments will be rearranged to a more natural and interesting order. Following the faculty section will come honorary, feature and athletic stories and the junior class list and ads will be last. This new Ariel will publish more candid shots than ever before. Editor Slack feels that the school colors, green and gold, are the most appropriate for the cover design and his staff artists are working on a design now.

The staff, composed solely of juniors, is made up mainly of those sophomores who scrubbed Ariel the previous year. The new editor-in-chief is elected by the

Outing Club Plans Hike To Camels Hump

Nature lovers come out for the hike to Camel's Hump, Sunday, October 8. The scenery will be at the very peak of autumn beauty this week-end. The trail through Montclair Glen is especially scenic at this time of year and affords many lovely views of surrounding country. The trucks will leave the hikers at Barrows Camp, from which they will proceed up the mountain. Camel's Hump was very appropriately named and is now known to some people as the Couching Lion.

Not only are these trips through beautiful country, but they offer the best opportunities to make new friends. Where could there be a better place to get acquainted than at the top of the peak while everyone eagerly devours his lunch or in the trucks coming back when tired limbs and sore muscles are forgotten during hilarious singing?

All those who enjoy hiking at its best sign up now at the Outing Club bulletin board or in the Y room. Trucks will leave the men's gym at nine o'clock. Everyone bring his lunch and thirty-five cents for transportation and excellent tea. C. F. Nussbaum '41 is in charge.

If you want to make some warm friends and forget studying for a whole day, hunt up some old hiking clothes and we'll see you at nine Sunday.

Everybody out!

EDITORIALS

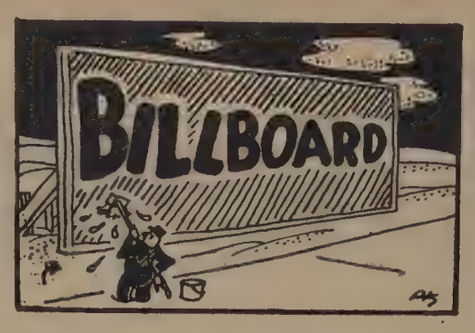
From north, south, east, and west—from city and from hamlet—from office and from farm come countless alumni of the University to enjoy that long-awaited day, Fall Homecoming.

To those alumni who will be present tomorrow to participate in the festivities we extend a most hearty welcome on behalf of the student body, the faculty, and any others who have aided in the preparations for the day. We believe that we really have something to offer the alumni on this, their first fall reunion. Elaborate preparations have made possible a day which is packed to the brim with things to do. Sporting events, a supper, the bazaar, and a dance offer a well-rounded program—one which should satisfy any and all tastes.

We urge you to make the most of this pilgrimage back to your alma mater. Enjoy the beauties of the Green Mountain state and of her daughter, the University of Vermont. Renew old friendships, refresh yourselves with the traditions of your university and when you return to the tiresome routine of everyday life you will have a feeling of refreshment such as could be obtained in no other manner. Incidentally, now is the time to mark your calendar and begin preparations for another visit to Burlington in February for Kake Walk and still another in June at Commencement.

May your present visit to Vermont be a most enjoyable one.

In regard to this first Fall Homecoming we have one comment to make to the student body. The success or failure of this venture rests largely in your hands. If the alumni are shown an enjoyable time they will return each fall but if their reception is not all that it should be any subsequent invitations to return in the fall will be doomed to failure.



A real demonstration of school spirit on the part of the student body tomorrow at the St. Lawrence game would help more than anything else that this writer can think of to impress the alumni. When that small squad of men trot out on the field tomorrow let's let them know that we're behind them and let's keep cheering them until they have hung up another victory for the Green and Gold.

The fraternities can also do their share to enliven activities. As it is now almost every fraternity on the hill is holding a tea dance after the game. That's all well and good but why not go a little farther than that?

It would be a simple matter to make a few welcome banners to display in front of the houses and another way to put a little spirit into the occasion would be to stick up a number of "Beat St. Lawrence" placards and banners.

School spirit can either rise to new heights or be allowed to wane into obscurity as a result of the reaction of the fraternities to this and other similar challenges for it is only through the help and cooperation of such undergraduate organizations that any form of spirit exists.

We congratulate those men who were fortunate enough to pledge fraternity yesterday. It is a privilege which not all can enjoy and it is an honor which all should appreciate. The advantages of fraternity membership have been discussed so frequently that we shall not bore our readers with more on that subject. Rather, we take this opportunity to say that we hope your choices have been wise and to express one other hope, namely, that the next few years will furnish you a wealth of fellowship and happy times.

Tickets for alumni bazaar are now on sale at the alumni office in the Medical Building.

Juniors—Have your two dollars ready for Ariel photographs.

All who are planning to enroll in Music 8 and 9 please turn in enrollment cards to the secretary of the Music Department, Mrs. Katharine Eckley Dopp, immediately. Also, any students who are intending to take violin, please report to Mrs. Dopp immediately, with enrollment cards.

Saturday, October 14, the Faculty Club is planning to hold a dinner for all members of the faculty of the University. Since this will make it difficult if not impossible to obtain chaperones for tea dances fraternities are asked not to schedule tea dances for that date.

E. SWIFT,
Dean.

Everyone is invited to the Methodist Church college group meetings. This week an outdoor meeting is to be held at East Woods and students planning to go should be at the University gym at four o'clock. Refreshments will be served but each person is expected to bring his own cup and spoon, preferably a tin cup.

Additional violinists are needed for the Chapel and University Orchestras. Anyone interested in trying out should see Professor Kirby of the music department. Members of the Chapel Orchestra receive pay.

All student organizations desiring to hold meetings at Southwick should arrange ahead through the office of the Dean of Women so that conflicts in meeting places and in the personnel of the groups involved may be avoided. The weekly program is announced on Thursdays but in case of special circumstances when meetings cannot be arranged so far in advance it is possible to make reservations at a later date.

Dean of Women.

I.R.C. Now Assumes Position of Importance

In these times when everyone is vitally interested in foreign affairs, the International Relations Club assumes a position of great importance at college. It is hard for people to get together and discuss the situation outside class or an organized meeting. Under the leadership of T. Huntley '41, Louise Mann, '41, Margaret Drum '41, and W. M. Colehammer '41, the club provides these organized meetings. The audience is often addressed by experts in the field of International Relations.

The first open meeting of the club is on October 12. Then the Political Science Department's Professor Milliken will speak on "American Foreign Policy and Warships of Today." The freshmen and other interested people are urged to attend these meetings whether they expect to join or not.

This is the first year that club has been functioning under the new constitution drawn up last year by B. Frank '39, B. Lisman '39, Louise Mann '41, and J. Evans '41. This year for the first time there will be a definite membership, but if you are interested, just come to the meeting on October 12.

Robert Morss Lovett, University of Chicago emeritus professor, has been appointed government secretary for the Virgin Islands.

With common policies and ideals, these Bell System companies all work as one to give you the finest and friendliest telephone service—at lowest cost.

Med-School Dean Announces Changes

Dr. Kemp Expresses Plans In Cynic Interview

Dr. Hardy A. Kemp, newly appointed dean of the Medical College, spent the first free moments he has had in two months giving to the CYNIC a few of his impressions and plans concerning U. V. M.

Doctor Kemp already feels right at home among the Green Mountains, probably because of their similarity to the Ozark Mountains of southwest Missouri, among which his early life was spent.

Except for a short time spent in army life and as a doctor in Missouri, he has spent the years since his graduation from St. Louis University in 1926 in Texas.

Doctor Kemp was recommended by the Association of American Medical Colleges to which the University had appealed. It was very much interested in a man from outside the medical faculty who would further public health facilities.

When he arrived "to see and to be seen," he found this medical college very unique in medical education. He was very much encouraged by the prospect of "its future not all in the past."

Several changes are being made in the curriculum. These have been formulated and planned by Doctor Whitney, Doctor Buttles and Doctor Soule for several years. The arrival of Doctor Kemp served to complete the arrangements.

Seniors who have been sent to various hospitals in the State for part of their instruction have not met with modern equipment and advanced facilities so this practice is being discontinued. Work in the state institutions at Waterbury and Pittsford will be curtailed also.

A month's obstetrical training at the Wesson Maternity Hospital, Springfield, Mass., and another month on urology at Worcester City Hospital, Worcester, Mass., will be substituted. Full use of clinical facilities at the DeGoesbriand and Fanny Allen Hospitals has been acquired.

Doctor Kemp states that he is looking forward to the time when a diagnostic center, fully staffed with full-time medical students, will be available.

Fraternities Hold Rushing Parties

Fraternity rushing was brought to a climatic point this week when all the men's fraternities held rushing banquets for prospective pledges.

These banquets which have become established as a vital part of the rushing schedule, gives the freshman, as well as the fraternity, a final time to look each other over.

They were held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings by the various fraternities, with some of the fraternities having two and even three banquets during the first of the week.

Rushing chairman of the fraternities are as follows: Delta Psi, S. K. Gilbert '40; Kappa Sigma, E. Simpson '41 and J. Royer '41; Phi Sigma Delta, A. Wolk '41; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, F. Taylor '41; Sigma Nu, W. Robinson '40 and W. Pye '41; Sigma Phi, H. Allen, Jr., '40; Tau Epsilon Phi, E. Berkowitz '40 and J. Bloom '41; Lambda Iota, K. Beaton '40; Phi Delta Theta, H. Middleworth '40; Alpha Tau Omega, J. Davis '40.

Military Notes

The Military Department announces the following promotions for bandsmen, effective October 4: Staff Sergeants—Frank R. Proctor '41, Israel Goodman '41, and Edward O. Eaton '41. Sergeants—Russell L. Clark '42, and David G. Rousseau '42. Corporals—Peter S. Czachor '42, and Edward C. Mayville '42.

Madison, Wis.—Louis Kaplan, assistant librarian at the University of Wisconsin, is the author of the latest publication of the University Press entitled: "Research Materials in the Social Sciences." The publication contains an annotated guide to bibliographies and other source materials.

PHYLLIS McGOVERN NEW STUDENT UNION PRESIDENT

Phyllis McGovern, senior home economics student from Cambridge, has been elected president of Women's Student Union for the year. This is the highest position attainable by a University of Vermont woman. Miss McGovern takes the place of Hester Kehoe of Rutherford, N. J., who did not return to the University this fall. Elizabeth Taylor of Burlington, a senior in the secretarial course, was elected to the position of house chairman.

Women's Student Union is the organization through which University of Vermont women govern themselves.

The World Front

One of the most outstanding manifestations of the present world situation is the clear demonstration of the interdependence of one event on another in the international scheme or pattern of occurrences. As never before it is easy to see how the action of one nation has repercussions which affect all nations. Students of international politics, of history, of modern communication, of world-wide trade and other fields have voiced this truth again and again until it has become trite, but today it is just as true as when first uttered.

Freighters and Neutrality

On Sunday of last week a Danish freighter was torpedoed by a German U-boat without warning. That event if considered carefully is a distinct warning to those who are now discussing in the halls of Congress the future policy of the United States in regard to conditions in Europe. It is being proposed that all goods shipped from this country be carried by foreign vessels and that the title of such goods be vested in the purchaser before they leave the country. It is also suggested by those favoring the revision of our present neutrality law that American merchant vessels should be forbidden to carry arms, or travel in any of the war zones to be designated by the government acting through the President. The torpedoing of the Danish freighter brings into sharp focus the need for such a provision.

The Germans have made clear their intentions. There is to be no distinction between neutral and belligerent vessels—all are subject to attack. Further than that, it doesn't matter whether a neutral vessel is carrying no arms or supplies that can be used in their manufacture, all kinds of goods will be considered as contraband and of assistance to belligerents and are thus subject to destruction. If we want to persist, as the isolationists would have us do, in following our outmoded neutrality bill to the letter and making no provision for preventing American ships from entering danger zones, we must also be ready to jump into the European conflict at a moment's call.

Revision Needed

It is about time that the hidebound isolationists at Washington who are blocking all attempts at revision of the present law came too, to the fact that the law as it now stands is a menace to American security. They must also give up the futile belief that what happens in Europe does not affect us. We must revise our neutrality law so as to give the government freedom to meet contingencies as they arise and not be shackled to a law that was outmoded before it was passed and was drawn up before the present crisis.

The proposers of revision are not saying that we jump headlong into a war but are suggesting that provisions be included in the present law which will make America's entrance into the war less likely than it is now. The provision which I have pointed out above is among those suggested. The present law makes no such provision. Rather it makes no provision whatever for the designation of combat areas which American vessels should avoid, nor does it provide for transfer of title in goods bought by belligerents in this country. The result is obvious. If we persist in subjecting our ships to the danger of torpedoing, naturally we must not object if some are sent to the bottom without warning.

So it is that we say that revision is necessary if we are to avoid taking part in the present conflict. Those who are arguing that it is unneutral to Germany

Museum Displays Wall Paper Reproductions

Reproductions of wall papers which were on the walls of homes in the early days of our country, some dating earlier even than the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, are to be shown in the art gallery of the Fleming Museum at the University of Vermont, the exhibition opening Saturday, September 30, and continuing until October 25. Historical subjects are used in some of the designs; of Vermont interest is one called "The Champlain." The original paper came from a house in Brattleboro, and dated from about 1790. Ranging westward, another paper, coming from a house in California about 1850, depicts the pony express, the stage coach, and the (then) modern locomotive.

Many of the colorful prints are reproductions of papers from houses that are well-known landmarks in New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire, and reflect the stateliness of some of the rooms they adorned, for a number of these rich designs decorated the walls of the homes of the wealthy from such towns as Salem, Marblehead and Ipswich in their heyday. Such prints as a copy of an old French paper found in the Theodore Roosevelt House in New York, dating about 1800, and papers from the Elbridge Gerry House in Marblehead, about 1790, the May Alley House, Marblehead, 1790, the Creamer House and the Waters House, both in Salem, are to be seen in the exhibition.

Colonial Scenes Featured

A very old paper is shown in a reproduction of "The Century," from Colonel Pope's mansion, dating from about 1760. "The Col. Pope," No. 83, is considered one of the finest block papers ever found, dating from 1935.

Said to be one of the best of the simple designs is a hand-blocked print, the "Salem and Portland" paper, which comes from the Longfellow House, as does a French rococo design, No. 59. A pattern known as "Colonel Gothic," in the original color and on a polished ground similar to those produced in France, was found in an old house in Boxford, Mass.

A number of scenic papers include Watteau designs, the pony express, stage coach and locomotive pattern already mentioned, and the lovely "Fruit Design," thought to be a Zuber & Co., dating from 1790.

The collection comes from Blanche A. Byerley, New York City, and has been shown in many museums and art galleries throughout the country for the past two years.

The Universities of Texas, Oklahoma and California at Los Angeles have been given special Will Rogers Memorial Scholarship funds.

Reporter Presents Interview With Prominent Senior

Jean Butler was born some twenty years ago. This fair city of Burlington claims her as its own, for Jean has lived here all her life. Jean remembers little of her early life. "Rather uneventful," said Jean, "except I do remember that I was continuously falling off a bicycle I had."

An inkling of the excellence of her scholarship was displayed when Jean graduated first in her high school class. For this she was awarded an honor scholarship to the University. This scholarship, coupled with the fact that she was of "local color," was a prominent factor in Jean's decision to come to Vermont.

The fall of 1936 saw Jean added to the University's student body. She still can remember the difficulty she had in trying to solve the mazes and problems in the intelligence test she took, and the trouble she encountered in finding the north and south end of the Old Mill. "Indeed, I still get mixed up," says Jean.

Miss Butler believes the idea of fraternity is excellent basically. Her sorority is Delta Delta Delta. Her favorite fraternity is Sigma Nu. She is definitely in favor of early rushing for women, and thinks that the system to be used this year will work out fine.

Jean has been exceptionally active on the campus in extra-curricular activities. She is president of Mortar Board, women's senior honorary society. She belongs to the John Dewey Club, Newman Club, Outing Club Council, Dramatic Club, Pan-Hellenic and is picture editor of the CYNIC. She has been on the dean's list every semester, was on the Faculty-Student Council in her sophomore year, and was class vice-president as a junior. Jean also was a member of Staff and Sandal, women's junior honorary society, and was W. A. A. recording secretary.

Jean doesn't believe in love at first sight. "Maybe second or third," said she. Her ideal man must be tall, lithe build, and he can't be conceited. "This is man's chief fault," thinks Jean. He has to be considerate, a congenial companion in all ways, and ought to like the outdoors and appreciate music. He also should be athletically inclined. "I kind of have a yen for athletes," confessed Jean.

JEAN BUTLER '40

Miss Butler asserts that early marriage is a good idea. A woman should get married before she is twenty-five, and a man before he is thirty, thinks Jean.

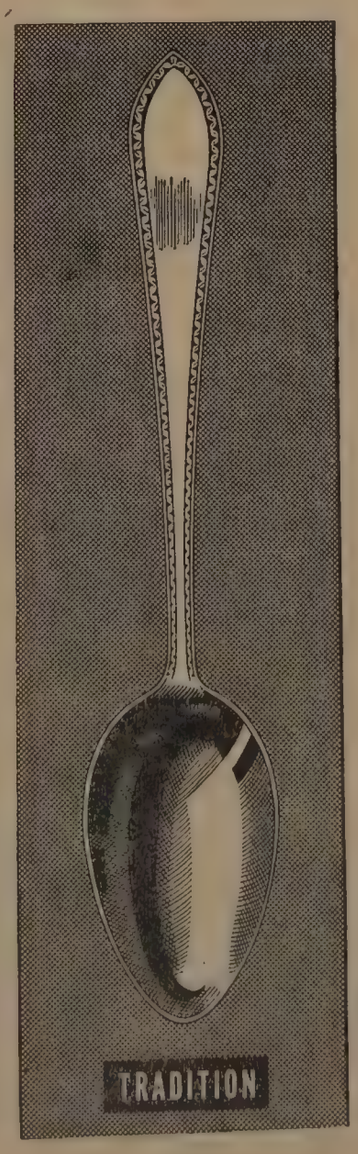
Jean takes the literary scientific course and is majoring in French. She plans to teach after graduation.

She was afraid to predict the outcome of tomorrow's football game, but said that we'd win. She also thinks that girls should be allowed to go out for cheerleading. It might develop a little spirit, which is so deplorably lacking at Vermont, asserts Miss Butler.

Miss B's favorite likes and dislikes are as follows: Food, baked ham, ice cream; car, Ford; flower, gardenias; magazine, Reader's Digest; newspaper, New York Times and the CYNIC; actors, Charles Boyer and Robert Donat; actresses, Claudette Colbert and Irene Dunne; sport, horseback riding; pet dislike, being interviewed. (This reply concluded the interview.)

U.V.M. LIBRARIANS ATTEND ASSOCIATION MEETINGS

Mrs. James E. Donahue, Essex Junction, librarian of the Wilbur Library of Vermontiana in the Fleming Museum, University of Vermont, Miss Helen B. Shattuck, librarian of the University's Billings Library, and Miss Mary B. Bates, associate librarian of the Billings Library, are attending the meetings of the Vermont State Library Association and the Vermont Library Commission this week in St. Johnsbury. The meetings of the two organizations are being held jointly, from Tuesday to Thursday, October 3-5.



The University of Chicago has an endowment fund of $65,400,000.

Y. W. C. A. Notes

The Y. W. C. A. cabinet met with its newly appointed advisory committee Tuesday afternoon at Southwick. Different phases of the work of the Y. W. C. A. were explained to the committee by the girls on the cabinet. Florence Wade '40, president of Y. W., gave a very interesting talk about her experiences as a student social service worker in Boston.

Plans were also discussed concerning the possibility of having music at the chapel at regular intervals. Further details of this will be printed in a future issue of the CYNIC.

Gifts to colleges declined only 2.3 per cent between 1930 and 1938.

Catamounts to Battle St. Lawrence Sat.

Battle of Lines Seems Evident; Misty Rice Replaced by Reed

With a victory over Amherst under their belts the Catamounts are girding themselves for Saturday's battle with St. Lawrence. This, the first home game, of the season, will take place before a large Homecoming Day crowd. Coach Sabo has been going easy on scrimmages during the latter part of this week so as to avoid all injuries possible. In Monday's heavy scrimmage with the frosh, Cliff Long, sophomore candidate for a tackle berth, was laid up with a shoulder injury.

Misty Rice, ace center, injured in the Amherst battle is reported to be coming along fast under lamp treatments but will probably be unable to play Saturday. However, Earl Reed can take up his job right where Misty left off. The rest of the lineup will probably be the same which faced the Lord Jeffs at the opening whistle. Sparked by Frankie Taylor in the backfield and presenting a line which stood up under the battering of three complete Amherst teams Vermont presents a formidable front.

Looking over the Larries we find that they are about the same as last year. Their middle line is well balanced and strong. In the game against the Dartmouth Indians last Saturday they were mowed over by superior strength but showed power in scoring once on the Big Green. The team is led by Capt. John Burger, ace pivot man. Flanking Burger are guards George Zook and Al Patricia with a strong reserve in Lewkowitz, Hayward Plumadore and Irving Meltzer will undoubtedly be in the tackle slots at game time Saturday although other candidates are plentiful. Coach Clogston had had the most trouble with his wing positions this year. At right end he has placed Bill Whitton and at left end Koloski, a tackle in last year's eleven.

The backfield is sparked by John Goodrich at fullback, flanking him are Lazoski and Kunz, two fast and scrappy halfbacks. The signal calling position goes to Traynor. Backfield reserves are numerous with Bud Blanchette, Hal Goodemote, Louis D'Avanzo and Frank Thomas all in the running for a ball-toting assignment.

Summing up both teams, we find Vermont with a slight advantage in both the line and backfield. All indications point to a battle of well-balanced lines.

Here are the probable starting line-ups:

Phi Sigs Advance On Owls Default

Phi Sigma Delta advanced to the second round of the interfraternity touch-football tournament Tuesday when Lambda Iota failed to appear for a scheduled game. The Phi Sigs were thus awarded a default victory. They meet S A E, defending titlist, Tuesday.

T E P, Sigma Nu, and A T O rosters follow. The Independents do not have an official player list.

R. SMITH LEADING IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The second round of the tennis tournament got underway October 4 with R. Smith one jump ahead of the field. He won his first round match by default from C. Kimball and advanced into the semi-finals when he was scheduled to play the winner of the J. O'Brien-W. Pratt match and this match was cancelled.

Other first round results found W. West advancing into the second round by a well-earned 6-4, 6-1 victory. Les Brown reached this round and the right to oppose W. West when he won a default victory from J. McCabe. W. Harvey topped C. Barber 5-7, 6-3, 6-4 and will face F. Potter who won a thrilling 8-6, 6-4 contest from A. D. Clark.

G. Stanley defeated D. Zwick 6-0, 6-1 and will oppose W. Black who won from A. Caldwell 6-0, 6-4.

These quarter-final matches must be completed by October 7. The former date of October 3 has been pushed back because of inclement weather. With a break in the weather the third round will be completed by October 9 and the finals by October 11.

In the golf tournament B. Perkins won a place in the final round by a default victory from L. Brown. He will face the winner of the S. C. Palmer-E. J. Keenan match for the championship.

HOYT LEADS FROSH IN COMPETITIVE WORKOUT

The frosh dalers had their first taste of competition when they ran full out for the first time Monday afternoon under the watchful eye of Coach Archie Post. Hoyt lead the field home and was followed by Storey and P. N. Marg who came in second and third respectively. Russel West was fourth. Buttles paced the group until his stamina failed him, and he was forced to drop back finishing fifth.

Time track will be held either Friday or Monday and this will give Coach Post a much better chance to really judge the capacities of the boys.

A little additional development should produce an excellent group of runners.

The coming Dartmouth meet will give the boys a chance to really show what they can do, and although not much is expected of them in this meet, this experience should enable the frosh hill and dalers to win their last three meets quite handily.

Coach Post explained that the main objective of a freshman cross-country team is to develop about four or five boys into varsity calibre material. This would give a fine nucleus to work with in order to produce a winning varsity team. The remaining boys not of varsity calibre should obtain fine physical development and satisfaction from running.

Vermont Cross-Country Ready for Union

Webster Boys Turn in Best Practice Times

From all indications shown by the first timed run of the season held Tuesday, the varsity cross-country team is in fine condition for Saturday's meet with Union. This year's squad is in better shape for their first meet than any in the past few seasons and several low times were turned in during the Tuesday run.

The best time was made by the Webster duo, Charles and Fred, in a dead heat, and the ease with which they coasted in one minute and four seconds above the record run of Bob Peterson's made in 1937, points to highly probable record breaking by these two. In second and third places were Capt. Harry Ketchum and Frankie Livak, respectively, who are expected to finish early Saturday when pressed by the Union sod trodders. Showing immense improvement over his last year's work on the frosh squad, Dick Clark finished neatly in fourth place. Jack Burgess, still recuperating from a bad cold, ran for the first time in a week and finished sixth.

CHARLES AND FRED WEBSTER

The running times in their entirety are as follows:

Pl.	No.		Time
1	14	Fred Webster	25:36
2	15	Charles Webster	25:36
3	24	Harry Ketchum (capt.)	26:15
4	16	Frank Livak	26:37
5	7	Dick Clark	26:44
6	8	Harold Willson	27:17
7	6	Jack Burgess	27:19
8	24	John Brousseau	27:25
9	25	Don Moran	27:28
10	9	Lyman Gallup	28:52
11	12	Jerry Palmer	29:56

It should be noted that the times of the first four finishes were within a minute of each other and that the next four were also that close. This is exemplary of the balance of this year's squad. It is also expected that the team will be bolstered in a couple of weeks by the addition of last year's varsity veteran, Rogers, who has been prevented thus far from running because of employment.

Coach Ketz of Union is bringing up three veteran varsity men from last year —Santora, Melowitz and Johnson—and they are expected to make a good showing. In fact, Santora is being compared to Hawks of Union, who in '27 and '28, fought out a much publicized duel with Vermont's "Iron Horse," Rolly Steel.

Excepting these three experienced runners of last year, it is reported that the Union team, on the whole, is unbalanced and in none too good condition. Men who ran about tenth or eleventh last year are up in fourth or fifth position this year, not because of great improvement but because of lack of better men. This is Coach Ketz's sixth year of competition with Vermont, however, and from the caliber of running shown by his boys in the past it seems well to take these alleged indications with a grain of salt.

The run will start at 1.30 p.m. Saturday in front of Redstone campus and will terminate between 1.45 and 2.00 o'clock in front of the gym. The start of the meet has been set earlier to accommodate the students and visiting alumni who are planning to attend the football game. Let's have a good crowd to greet our boys at the finish line.

CURLYLOCKS

The hatless fad, which was at its height in '32 and '33, but which is now definitely on the wane, was neither new nor collegiate. It dated back before the American Revolution, to the time when English dandies carried their hats in their hands to avoid mussing their curled and powdered wigs.

Spasyk Speaks on Spirit

A few days ago we heard Johnny Spasyk deliver a few choice words entirely extemporaneously on the subject of school spirit here at Vermont. We invited Johnny to write an open letter to the school at large for publication in this column. Two days later we were handed the following letter and after reading said epistle we decided that there was much meat contained in it. Here it is in unadulterated form:

To Students of U.V.M. and Boulder in Particular:

Saturday is Homecoming Day. It is the day of our first football game at home. It is also the day, each year, after which we begin to hear the moaning and bewailing of those who lament the passing of school spirit. Being one of the lamenters, I hope that the cries of myself and my fellow mourners may be heard.

While perusing some old school books I came across a list of freshman customs of the University. Here they are:

1. The Frosh cap or toque is worn until Founder's Day, on all days except Sundays and holidays, when that or some other headgear is worn.
2. It is customary for Freshmen when walking on College Street to use only the south side.
3. Upon meeting the President of the University or the Deans of the four colleges, Freshmen should touch their caps.
4. A cheery "Hello" is the customary greeting among Vermont men.
5. It is the duty of Freshmen to learn the Vermont songs and yells upon arrival at college.
6. Freshmen should not wear "prep-school" insignia.

Going further back I find that all Freshmen were required to carry matches for the convenience of the upperclassmen (cigarette lighters would not do), that no Freshman could go about with a growth on his upper lip, and that all Freshmen must be present in all cheering sections.

All violations of these rules were brought before a committee who meted out punishment accordingly. Some Freshmen were told to run the gauntlet. Others were sent to three, four, or five fraternity houses. Still others were told to carry placards which advertised the extent of their misdemeanors.

As for my personal stand on the matter, I am not in favor of browbeating and subjugating the Freshmen. However, I do believe that there should be certain rules and regulations which these first-year men should be required to follow. It is through such regulation that the new men learn that they are a distinct part of U. V. M. and that they have a place to fill in the life of the college.

We, here at Vermont, are at a disadvantage. Having but one dormitory for men, we are scattered throughout Burlington. There are no centralizing forces to bring us together in large numbers. Instead, we gather in small groups, apart from one another, and only rarely extending our activities beyond this little world of ours. Therefore, by some means, ws must be made to feel that we are all a part of a great university, all striving for the same things, and obtaining them only through the cooperation of each and every one.

We have gone back a long way, but with the proper leadership and with the help of every student, we can soon regain much of the lost ground. This leadership can only be taken by Boulder. If the members of Boulder direct, those of Gold Key and Key and Serpent will follow. And so I say to Boulder:

> "You, yourself, have felt the lack of school spirit which has prevailed upon this campus. This lack of school spirit is due to the individualistic feeling which the students on this campus feel. It is up to you to make all feel that they are a part of a great school. If you direct, we will follow. What are you going to do about it?"
> JOHN SPASYK.

Johnny's letter needs no further amplification.

As quarterback of the football team and president of Gold Key he knows of what he speaks. We wonder what action, if any, will be taken.

We'd Rather Be Wrong !

We did it again! Our record is still intact! Sometime last spring we organized and made ourself the charter and lone member of a 100% Wrong Club never dreaming that we would be able to uphold the remarkable precedent of erroneous prognostication throughout the fall of 1939, but now we see that that which was merely a gleam in our eye last spring is now a realization. Five times we have ventured out on a shaky limb and forcasted the outcome of future events and five teams we have been wrong. It all started when we thought we would be safe in selecting a powerful Vermont basketball team to rout a sloppy Middlebury team. A Panther center by the name of Krauszer tossed in 18 points, Vermont lost a basketball game, and we embarked on a career of prediction which no one will ever equal—or want to. This past Amherst-Vermont game was the end. But it is a beautiful martyr's death when we realize that at least the school, our alma mater, has profited by our destruction. And it is destruction, too, for what man with soul so dead never to himself hath said that something would turn out one way five times in a row and be wrong all five times. It gives one a rather bleak outlook on life to consider that eventually we will want to select Vermont to win a football game but comprehending the Damoclean sword ever hanging over our head will be forced to deny ourself that privilege. So now we crawl into our hole high up on the Outing Club's Mt. Mansfield in full realization of the undeniable fact that Kismet frowns upon us. We haven't been right since we picked the Boys in Grey in the famous Bull Run sponsored by the I. C. Y. A. Now there is no future for us except to turn professional and commercialize our talent. We've heard of people who rent themselves out

INTERFRATERNITY DANCE TO BE HELD OCT. 14

Saturday, October 14 is a gala day for fraternity men. All Greek letter men, new and old will swing their partners at the University gym to the popular jive of the New Vermonters, the orchestra that thrilled you at the Mortar Board dance. The dance committee will be Jerry Katz '40, George Noonan '40, Jack Bloom '41, Bill Pye '41, Bob Farnham, '41.

The scene of festivities will be a transformed gym, decorated with fraternity banners. The main purpose of the affair is to acquaint the pledges with the other fraternity men.

In the light of past interfraternity dances, it is only right that we assume that the night of October 14 will be one of the most exhilarating nights of the fall season.

THE WORLD FRONT

to revise the law are forgetting that the law as it now stands gives Germany a distinct advantage over the allies—Britain and France—as she may be able to get arms from Russia while we are denying Britain and France the right to come here to our shores and bear away arms in their own ships. They are also forgetting that in their anxious desire to be impartial they are sacrificing the best interests of their own country. The proposed revisions to the neutrality law would, if carried through, lessen partiality toward one set of belligerents and at the same time increase our security. Are these not sound enough reasons on which to base a plea for revision?

NEW ASSISTANT ADDED TO STAFF AT LIBRARY

The new assistant at the Billings Library is Dorothy Dickinson, daughter of the late Prof. L. P. Dickinson, formerly head of the department of electrical engineering in the Engineering College of the University. She replaces Mary Lane, who has left the library to take a position with a library in Barrington, R. I. Miss Dickinson took her degree in Library Science from Simmons and since then had worked at the Clark University Library in Worcester, Mass., until coming here.

KING OF SWING BREAKS INTO SOCIETY CIRCLES

What will the music lovers say when they get word of the terrible calamity which was discovered at the recording room in the music building this morning, October 5, of the year 1939, at exactly five minutes to eleven? Don't tell anyone, but among the veddy, veddy valuable collection of the most esteemed composers was found a recording by the king of swing himself, Benny Goodman. It happened to be one of the many Goodman quartets. What an unpleasant surprise . . . or was it. . .

Sophs to Clash With Frosh in Cane Rush

Ye annual cane rush twixt the classes of '42 and '43 will be held Saturday, October 7, between the halves of the St. Lawrence-U. V. M. football game.

The oldest records available show that cane rushes were held as far back as 1883. No doubt they were held even earlier. This just about makes it the oldest event that has been held over from the good old days when ladies wore bustles and keg and flag rushes were in style.

The cane rushes were conducted in a different manner way back thar, than they are now. They were in no way connected with the first football game, and were usually held on the back campus.

One class challenged the other; usually the frosh challenged the sophs, and a bunch of canes were handed out. Then it was every man for himself with no holds barred. (You could even bite—that is, if you didn't feel like living any more.) The fun started when every man dove in hook, line and sinker. Those were the good old days when pants were cheap and you were lucky if you came out of the rush with any part of your pants on.

The fight lasted until the authorities or the fire department intervened. The rest of the day was spent picking up the pieces and a few of the casualties. Some fun, huh?

But times have changed and now we have rules. Coises, sez I.

Following are the rules for this year's cane rush:

1. The massacre will last five minutes.
2. Canes will be placed on the 50-yard line, between the halves, and each class will form at the opposite end of the field.
3. At a given signal the canes will be rushed.
4. Blackjacks, pea-shooters, water-pistols and sling-shots are taboo.
5. A pistol shot will close the battle—maybe.
6. At the close of the match the Boulder men will count up the number of canes.

The cane rush is one fight that isn't one-sided, and everyone is expected to come out even if you do get clubbed a little.

Ten Years Ago In Sports . . .

H. A. Prentice Mentor of Frosh Basketball

Howard A. Prentice, present physical director and former Vermont captain and three-sport star, was again chosen by the University Athletic Council to boss the frosh hoopsters.

Last year Prentice led his charges, who played some of the State's best amateur teams, through five victories in seven starts. His appointment this year assures the freshmen of a season as successful as those of past years because of his known ability to produce winning teams.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Heavyweights From Maine Down Varsity 21-0

Outweighed sixteen pounds to a man, and lacking that fighting spirit which almost downed Williams, a sluggish Catamount club was crushed by a Maine powerhouse 21-0. In the beginning Vermont seemed to show more skill than her opponents, but she soon weakened under the heavy onslaught of Maine's en masse center plays. Her line cracked again and again and it seemed as though she wasn't giving Maine the opposition she was capable of giving.

Sophs Win Interclass Events—Frosh With Ranks Depleted Lose Cane Rush 35-65 and Tug-o'-war

The sophs succeeded in clearing things up pretty generally in the interclass events of last Saturday, taking the cane rush 65-35 and the tug-o'-war in two straight pulls. The fact that the freshman football men were all at Middlebury while the sophomores had not only football men but the benefit of previous experience may have had something to do with the result. There were about seventy-five freshmen and over ninety sophomores. Could it be that all the rest of the freshmen were at Middlebury?

He is majoring in dairy manufacturing and works for the dairy of the agriculture school.

WINNOWINGS STAFF HOLDS FIRST BUSINESS MEETING

Monday afternoon the staff of Winnowings From the Mill held its first business meeting with Mary Letta Root '41 in charge.

Winnowings is a literary publication of entertaining short stories, clever poems and inspiring essays which is published annually in April for fifty cents a copy. This project is very worth while and needs the full support of the student body to make it even bigger and better this year.

Anyone having any ambitions in the line of journalism or of seeing their worthy efforts in print should get in touch with Jean Brehmer '40 at Grassmount. There will also be a notice for business scrubs on the bulletin board next week.

SUICIDE

"His old battered hat lay beside him," says the New York World-Telegram, reporting a suicide. Research fails to disclose any man or woman with a new hat who ever committed suicide. Suicide is a case of collapsed ego—and psychologists say that a new hat and an inferiority complex don't go together.

Frosh to Play V. J. C. At Montpelier Sat.

Journeying over to Montpelier on Saturday, the freshman eleven will open its schedule against Vermont Junior College. The latter has the advantage of having already played a game, for last week Spaulding High, always a powerful team in their league, fell prey to the Juniors. Nevertheless, the freshmen have a fairly balanced machine and are suffering from no lack of high morale.

Practice this week was devoted largely to running through St. Lawrence plays against the varsity. Because they have had to learn a good deal of opposition plays, the first-year men should have a polished attack; but that is not the case. Seeming to be just the reverse, their offense is not too smooth as all the new formations tend to be confusing.

The defense is now strong; the rather heavy line showed much determination to overcome its former weakness. In their drills dummies were used in order to ward off danger of injury right before the game. Exactly the same forward wall as printed in the last issue will start: Fleming and Hennessey, ends; Wood and Otto, tackles; Chernenski and Benoit, guards; Cheraroni, center.

Coach Evans will not definitely decide until game time whom the backfield will consist of. It is almost certain, however, that Sanders, on whose shoulders rest most of the passing, will call the signals from his quarterback position.

Carey and Buch will do the punting, although the latter may go in as a substitute. McArdle and Beaulieu are still tooth and nail for the other halfback berth.

Judging from this week's workouts, Parker will do the fullbacking, with Kolodza ready to fill in.

Fuzzy Evans will not be pinned down to saying that "his boys" will win; however, "his boys" have, of course, decided the outcome.

Coffee Hour, 2 to 4 p.m. at Southwick, October 8, 1939.

to haunt houses (no cracks) but we're going to be much more unique and distinctive. In the future we're going to rent our services to colleges all over the country who would probably pay big money to have us select their opposition to win football games. But we shall not allow our newfound proclivity to turn our head. We know that our first loyalty is to Vermont and with such noble thought in mind we would suggest to Coach Johnny Sabo that he do away with daily practice sessions and permit us to put the Rex on an opposition by selecting them to beat the Cats.

A gentleman by the name of John Henry Newman once wrote Apologia pro Vita Suo which was, quote, occasioned by the necessity of his defending himself against the charge that he did not consider truth a necessary virtue, unquote. At least no one is directing such an accusation against us (we hope) for we pride ourselves on the fact that at least we had (and have) the courage of our convictions—misrepresentations of fact as they are. We still maintain that Amherst was undefeated in 1938, that Amherst routed Williams 41-0, that Vermont's blocking was poor in practice, that Frankie Taylor is a good back, that Bill Pye is a good end, and that all the more credit is due Coach John Sabo and Vermont for its most pleasantly surprising victory. For the past two weeks, we've been writing about Vermont's green team. Apparently the Cats look well in green.

We Are Not Alone

By "Pooh"

It seems that "la vie Boheme" is dying on its last legs. It is staggering, gasping, reeling. In fact, it is in a sorry plight. What are we going to do about it?

Naturally the first thing to do is to decide just what in the world it is. Nothing like starting at the beginning. Let's see: What do you think it is, Samuel? Oh! You don't know. Well, that's a start, anyway. Gaiety. Song and dance. We're off!

I know a lawyer—a very staid and dignified lawyer, who works in New York. He thinks a real Behemian life is this: to go home and play gnomes and fairies with his various and sundry offspring. Maybe it is.

But I thought Bohemian meant gypsy. The kind that rushes from little town to little town in the hills of Ireland and Scotland, living in what he calls a caravan. Perhaps he stole the name from the Arabs. At any rate, these caravans, I think, are painted all sorts of eye-shattering colors, like a nightmare-after-lobster. Funny how gypsies love violent colors.

Then again (for heaven's sake let's settle on something), a Bohemian life might be just exactly what we want it to be. We all being humans, and therefore just a little bit insane, everyone has some dream of what he wants to do before he "gets old." Usually he ends up doing just the opposite; but that's beside the point. Isn't it? Ignore that.

Oh, there are wonderful ways of living "la vie Boheme"! Miniver Cheevy could have dressed up in clanking armor and paraded up and down Fifth Avenue saving damsels in distress—if he'd thought of it soon enough. It would have been a superb idea if Hitler had decided to be a vagabond instead of a soldier. Then he would have spent most of his time being taken in for vagrancy, and languished in an attractive cell, lazily drawing swastikas on the wall. That would have been nice.

There's a certain room in Allen house where you are immediately upon entrance throttled with piny fumes, and blinded by blazing red curtains and Indians prancing on the war path. Someone got the idea that a "return to ye primitive" would be an idyllic existence. So they returned, all right! Vive la vie Boheme!

If one of the professors ever came to class barefoot, because it was more comfortable, you'd be bound to discover sooner or later that he was a Bohemian. If you probed very deeply into the matter you'd undoubtedly discover, too, that he was very slightly insane. Most Bohemians are. In which case I wouldn't really mind very much being insane. It gives you an excuse for a lot of things. Such as blissfully sliding down slides in a children's playground. "Poor thing—she's not quite in her right mind. Isn't it pathetic?" Or climbing trees. Or a million or so other things.

It's a marvelous life!

Coach Powers Holds Meeting With Debaters

Meeting with Coach Merrill D. Powers of the debating team Wednesday afternoon, twenty aspiring freshman speakers were introduced to debating as an official University activity. Coach Powers outlined briefly the various freshman and varsity prizes and trophies awarded annually to members of the various forensic teams and competitors in the annual speaking contests. At the conclusion of the meeting a list of references pertaining to this year's subject, "Resolved: That the Federal Government Should Own and Operate all Railroads," and advised the candidates to read up on the subject.

Prospects look good for a successful season for the frosh, as there were many experienced speakers among those reporting. According to Mr. Powers the frosh will employ the round table type of debate-discussion this year if such encounters can be arranged with other schools. No definite schedule has been arranged as yet, but arrangements are being made for debates with Middlebury, St. Michael's and Dartmouth freshman teams, with Green Mountain Junior College, and with several high schools throughout the state.

The Bailey Cup Debate, between the freshman and sophomore men, and the Carleton Cup Debate, between the women of '42 and '43, will be held during the first part of November.

The complete list of those reporting is as follows: L. Jones, S. Baum, B. Glass, R. McDonald, R. Grover, J. Brill, S. Smith, D. Healy, R. Bickford, S. Grossman, W. Wood, D. Zwick, W. Harvey, Rose Woodland, Julia Strong, Janet Hackwell, Huddee Zwick, Eleanor Hannah, and Patricia Bisson.

"Music For Fun" Group To Meet at Southwick

Do you like to play or sing occasionally "just for fun"? An opportunity at Southwick is being arranged, the first meeting being scheduled Wednesday, October 11, at 8.00 p.m. Professor Blume will be there to discuss plans and direct the group. Both men and women are invited.

If you play an instrument, or sing, and yet are not in one of the regular musical organizations, here is a chance to keep in practice. You may find someone there who can accompany you or join you in some small ensemble. Regular attendance, although desirable, is not compulsory.

Last year a small orchestra grew out of the "music for fun" group. Rehearsals were held once a week and a program given, by invitation, at the Old Ladies' Home.

Notices are being placed in the main corridor of the Old Mill and in the Y room. Sign up if you are interested, indicating what part you sing or what instrument you play.

It is expected that some of the music used this winter in the "music for fun" group will come from the new state music library secured from the Carnegie Foundation through the Music Committee of the Vermont Council of Adult Education.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and all of his commissioners will give a lecture course this year at New York University on the city's government.

Vermont Triumphs in Second Straight Game

Catamounts Continue Victorious March by Beating St. Lawrence 12-0

Before a large Homecoming Day crowd the Catamounts took over the stubborn Larries of St. Lawrence by a score of 12-0 for their second victory of the year and their first home game. Frank Taylor, Vermont's touchdown artist, accounted for both tallies. He scored on a beautiful end run of 64 yards in the first quarter and then again on a lateral from Spasyk in the second quarter. That ended the scoring for the afternoon. The second half developed into a see-saw struggle in which Vermont maintained its 12-point margin.

Taylor Kicks Off for Vermont

Taylor kicked off to Goodemote to start the game. On the third play of the half Vermont took a 5-yard penalty for being offside. A spirited exchange of punts followed with Johnny Spasyk of the Catamounts booting them out of bounds beautifully. Spasyk returned one of Kunz's punts on a twisting run to St. Lawrence's 38-yard line. Frankie Taylor then tried the center of the line but lost two yards. On the next play the ball went to Frankie again and this time he pointed goalward. Breaking through a big hole in St. Lawrence's mid line the "Brattleboro Express" skirted the Larry secondary and with only two men after him he made a brilliant cutback near the sidelines to elude both pursuers and go over standing up. The kick for the extra point went wide. Near the end of the quarter the Catamounts drove to the Cantonites' 11-yard line on two reverses and an end run by Taylor. But hopes for a score were disappointed when Spasyk fumbled on a line buck and Patricia recovered for St. Lawrence.

Corbett Recovers on the 1-yd. Line

In the second quarter with St. Lawrence on their 40-yard line Kunz dropped back to punt, only to have Reed block the punt neatly. The ball rolled to the 1-yard line where Corbett recovered. Taylor's try at center was stopped cold. Another try through right tackle was productive of no gain. Then Kodys faked a line plunge and Spasyk lateraled to Frankie, who skirted right end and went over without a hand being laid on him. Again the kick was wide.

Just before the half ended the Larry passing combination of Goodrich, pitcher, and Traynor, receiver, completed three long passes, one nullified by both sides being offside. With St. Lawrence almost on Vermont's 20-yard line, another Larry pass was grounded in the end zone. The half ended as Corbett and Nichols nailed Goodrich for a 10-yard setback.

In the second half the Larries proved stubborn and despite several Vermont drives neither side scored. Vermont was in scoring position when Carlson intercepted a Goodrich pass on the St. Lawrence 32-yard line. A Tayor-to-Pye pass carried the Cats to the St. Lawrence 8-yard line. With four minutes left to play Taylor and Broutsas failed to make the necessary yardage and another attempted Taylor to Pye aerial was grounded.

Larries Launch Passing Attack

St. Lawrence filled the air with laterals, Goodrich clicking with eleven completions in eighteen attempts. Despite repeated drives the Larries lacked the scoring punch. Johnny Spasyk's educated toe was an additional factor against them. Vermont, however, clearly showed vulnerability to a pass attack. Time after time Goodrich faded back and sped the ball into the hands of receivers running clear in the flat. The contrast between the two teams is evident when we consider the fact that St. Lawrence gained 149 yards

Dr. Kemp Addresses Medical Association

"The future of the College of Medicine of the University of Vermont still is and still shall be the training of the private practitioner."

Dr. Hardy A. Kemp, new dean of the College of Medicine of the University of Vermont, addressing the members of the Vermont Medical Society at their 125th anniversary meeting held today and tomorrow in Burlington, spoke of the changes taking place in the instructional program of the college but assured the members, many of them graduates of the University, that the fundamental purpose of the school would remain the turning out of private practitioners.

Through the recommendation of the American Medical Association the system of preceptorships, which has been in vogue at the college for several years, sending seniors out to work with private doctors, will be dropped, as will much of the apprentice work in institutions of the state. Specialized work in such institutions as the Wesson Maternity Hospital, Springfield, Mass., and the Worcester City Hospital, Worcester, Mass., will be substituted. Clinical work in the Burlington hospitals is also being expanded and the medical faculty is being enlarged to include a number of men from the hospital staffs.

Vermont Dairy Operators Plan Meeting Here Soon

Vermont Dairy Plant Operators and Managers and Milk Distributors are to meet October 25 and 26 at Burlington. The Eighteenth Annual Short Course Conference for Dairymen offered by the Department of Animal and Dairy Husbandry of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College is to be held at that time as is the Annual Meeting of the Vermont Dairy Plant Operators' and Managers' Association.

Last year the registered attendance at this meeting totaled 177, including a number from surrounding states. A larger number is expected this year.

Several speakers of national prominence are already engaged as well as local and New England leaders in the several branches of the dairy industry

Questions of current vital interest to both small and large milk distributors are to be discussed as are problems that concern owners, directors, operators and manangers of creameries that handle wholesale market milk or any of the manufactured dairy products.

T. H. Weed, president of the Association believes the program as arranged is the best ever and he predicts a record attendance.

Detailed programs for distribution are being prepared. Requests for copies should be addressed to Dr. H. B. Ellenbeger, Head, Department of Animal and Dairy Husbandry, University of Vermont, Burlington, Vt. There are no registration fees or other charges for this course.

Association Calls for Works of Blind Auditor

Executive Committee Seeks Existing Works of Rowland Robinson

Letters and papers of all kinds from the pen of Rowland E. Robinson, the famous blind author who lived in Ferrisburg, are wanted by the Rowland E. Robinson Memorial Association, whose executive committee met last night at Rokeby, the Robinson homestead. Sketches, letters, notebooks, or any writings of Mr. Robinson, would be gladly received, as loan or gift, by the Association, which is working to keep for the future the writings and personal belongings of the author.

Mr. Robinson's works, including books and sketches, and his personal possessions, are carefully kept in the ancestral homestead occupied by Robinsons for generations, where Rowland T. Robinson, son of the author, and his wife now live, but it is thought that other letters and documents may exist, and the Robinson Association would like to receive any such material. Prof. Leon W. Dean of the University of Vermont, president, or Mrs. Charles L. Haight, Vergennes, secretary, may be addressed in regard to gifts or loans of Robinson material.

Members Plan Meeting

Members of the Association will have the opportunity of meeting in Burlington some time this winter, when a social evening is planned. Discussion of this occasion was carried on at the meeting, and entertainment, perhaps a short dramatization of selections from some of Mr. Robinson's books, was proposed. Further details of the gathering will be announced laer as they are completed.

With 34 new members joining the Association since last May 14, a renewed invitation is extended to all who are interested in the writings and life of Rowland Robinson to join. Information may be secured from Mrs. Haight of Vergennes, membership secretary, or Professor Dean of 308 S. Prospect St., Burlington, president.

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP DISCUSSES "PETTING"

The Pilgrim Fellowship met last Sunday evening and was attended by a large group of approximately fifty students. The meeting was opened with the group singing hymns.

Rev. Charles Stanley Jones led the evening discussion, the topic of which was "Petting." The group contributed their opinions, which made it a worthwhile discussion. One point which was emphasized was the mistake many young couples make in believing that love is the most important consideration in a marriage.

The meeting was brought to a close after refreshments were served. It is hoped that this record attendance will prevail throughout the year. Everyone is welcome at these meetings.

Large Group of Alums Return to Burlington

Home-coming Week-end a Success And Alumni Bazaar well Attended

Inaugurating a new event on the University of Vermont campus, the first annual Homecoming Day was held last Saturday.

Outstanding features of the day were the Vermont-St. Lawrence football game in the afternoon, which the Vermont eleven won, the planting of a tree of friendship on the campus by Paul Harris '89, founder of the International Rotary, and the second annual alumni bazaar in the evening. Other Homecoming Day events were the Union-Vermont cross-country meet preceding the football game, the Vermont harriers emerging the victors, and the annual sophomore-freshman class struggle, the "Cane Rush." Tea dances were in progress at all the fraternity houses from 5 to 8 p.m. A two-hour alumni supper was held in the cage from 6 to 8 p.m., and an alumni dance took place in the gym from 8 till midnight.

Many alumni from New England, New York, New Jersey and other points returned to the Alma Mater to relive their undergraduate days. About 50 alumni from the Boston area attended, and alumni clubs from as far west as Buffalo sent delegations.

Alumni Attend Football Game

A large crowd witnessed Vermont's impressive victory over a good St. Lawrence team, and the alumni and students cheered and sang lustily led by the entire cheerleading squad. The 1939 edition of the R. O. T. C. band of the University was on dress parade at the field for the first time this year. Between the halves, the traditional cane rush between two lower classes, under the supervision of Boulder Society, was fought out, the freshmen capturing the most canes. Boxes at the game were on reserve for returning lettermen. Tickets for the evening activities at the gym were sold by ticket girls in the stands.

Immediately after the football game Paul Harris, founder of Rotary International planted a tree of friendship on the campus in front the gymnasium. Mr. Harris attended the University during the years 1885-1889 and was a member of Lambda Iota fraternity.

Fraternity teas were held during the latter part of the afternoon, all of the fraternities being beautifully decorated in recognition of the occasion and in honor of the homecoming alumni.

Bazaar Proves Very Popular

The big midway of the bazaar was located in the baseball cage of the gymnasium. The decorated main floor of the building was reserved for dancing. Along the midway were shows, games of skill, sales booths, and refreshment counters. An alumni supper was served, with a special supper and entertainment features for the children.

On Friday night, the eve of the big day, a pep rally and smoker took place in the cage, Coaches John Sabo and Roy Wietz giving short talks and the students joining in with cheers and songs. After the rally, a bonfire was lit on the back campus, and when the fire died down the mob followed the band downtown for a snake-dance up and down Church Street.

The first annual Homecoming Day proved to be an immense success and will, no doubt, become one of the outstanding annual events on the campus in the years to come.

Famous Artists Coming For Local Concerts

One of the finest treats Burlington has the privilege of enjoying is the Artist Series presented by the Mary Fletcher Hospital Auxiliary at the Memorial Auditorium. This fall there are to be three concerts including artists that are sure to maintain the standard set in past years by Fritz Kreisler, Josef Hofmann, and the Ballet Russe.

On Thursday, October 19, Luboshutz and Nemenoff, pianists of outstanding distinction, will present fascinating explorations toward the ultimate possibilities of duo-piano art. Augentinita comes on Wednesday, November 1, with her company of Spanish dancers and musicians.

Sunday, November 19, marks the climax of the series, when the Auxiliary presents the noted Negro contralto, Marian Anderson, hailed as the foremost singer of our day.

Sigma Gamma will hold open house in the south lounge at Southwick from 7.00 to 8.30, Thursday night. All eligible women are cordially invited to attend.

EDITORIALS

"You Could Hear a Pin Drop"

John Spasyk's letter which appeared in Friday's issue of the Cynic contained a challenge which cannot be ignored. His points were well taken; his arguments, sound. The letter which appears on this page seems adequate answer to his challenge. Let us hope that the plan proposed will solve the much-discussed situation.

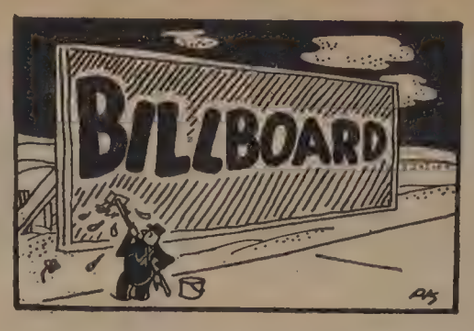
Certainly there is a real problem here for the whole student body to consider. While those who attended the St. Lawrence game may feel that the response of the crowd was better than that at previous contests, we believe that they must agree that there is still much room for improvement.

There was some (not enough) cheering when Vermont made a good run, but there was an all too apparent lack of noise when the team was experiencing a little difficulty with the opposition. That is the precise time that the team should receive the support of the student body.

An interesting experiment was conducted Saturday when the St. Lawrence team was making consistent gains by virtue of a successful aerial attack. A bobby pin, borrowed from one of the co-eds in the stands, was dropped and those sitting in the immediate vicinity distinctly heard it as it struck the wooden planking. Such was the volume of the cheering at that point of the game. Small wonder that the hair of Vermont cheerleaders turns prematurely gray.

Once again this writer addresses a plea to the student body—a plea for them to learn the cheers and to really get behind the team—win, lose or draw.

Compliments and Advice to the Beautiful



Pride swelled our bosoms the other day when we read the following editorial which appeared recently in the Worcester Telegram. We reprint the paragraphs in their entirety with the only comment that we hope Vermont girls will not allow this compliment to go to their heads but will follow the Worcester editor's advice and not attempt to enhance their beauty. The editorial:

"A Swiss hairdresser, Werner by name, said the other day that Vermont girls are the most beautiful girls in the United States. He was speaking before a meeting of hairdressers and cosmetologists, and the meeting—need it be said?—was being held in Vermont, in Burlington.

"Presumably, Werner has traveled all over the United States, and has looked with expert eye upon the girls of all states, else he would not dare generalize concerning the comparative beauty of girls in one state or another. Presumably, also, he will not soon dare to set foot in the South, in California, in Kansas, in New York, in Massachusetts. or anywhere else where feminine beauty is a matter of pride. He will be lynched, or perhaps even coldly ignored.

"Not that his tribute to Vermont girls was unjustified. Doubtless Vermont girls are at least as beautiful as girls of other states, if not more so. The point is that Werner, whatever his convictions on the subject, should have kept his mouth shut rather than make rash remarks which he would have difficulty proving and which may get him into trouble.

"If Vermont girls are the nation's most beautiful, it were better they should not know it, for they may try to enhance their beauty, with unhappy results."

All who are planning to enroll in Music 8 and 9 please turn in enrollment cards to the secretary of the Music Department, Mrs. Katharine Eckley Dopp, immediately. Also, any students who are intending to take violin, please report to Mrs. Dopp immediately, with enrollment cards.

Additional violinists are needed for the Chapel and University Orchestras. Anyone interested in trying out should see Professor Kirby of the music department. Members of the Chapel Orchestra receive pay.

Campus Comment

To Students of U. V. M. in answer to John Spasyk's letter:

John Spasyk's letter appearing in the Sport's Column of last Friday's Cynic certainly shows that although we are definitely lacking an all-around school spirit we still have a few students who are desirous of regaining the student support and cooperation which used to prevail on our campus. Before we have lost all ground Boulder will take steps to organize the student body into a unified group and try to do away with this individualistic feeling, this being possible it is understood only with each student's cooperation.

It is Boulder's plan to call a meeting before our next home football game of all the men's and women's honorary societies, with at least one representative from each sorority and fraternity on the hill required to attend. At this gathering plans will be explained whereby new cheers, the learning of old ones by the students, and organized cheering at the games will be obtained.

As for the customs which the Freshman used to be required to adhere to, it was the duty of Gold Key to enforce, but Boulder will now back any action taken by them in regard to the reinforcing of these regulations. We would suggest that Gold Key hold a meeting or meetings and that compulsory attendance of all Freshman men and women, with optional attendance for upperclassmen, be the rule, At them the cheers and songs of the University would be learned, and in this way Gold Key could help Boulder in the reorganization of a new college spirit for the University of Vermont.

Lastly Boulder would like to have all students interested in this rebuilding, who have any suggestions write either the Campus Comment column or Boulder itself, and each idea will be presented to the student body.

Hoping for cooperation from each of you.

BOULDER.

P. S.—Watch the Cynic for further announcements!

To the Editor of the Cynic:

According to your headline writer in the Cynic of October 3, there were "Tea Dances Held by Two Women's Sororities." Right on top of page 1, too.

If there be any men's sororities lurking in the shadows, let us expose them at once.

Away with these foul insinuations!

HIKERS ENJOY VIEW FROM TOP OF CAMEL'S HUMP

Twenty-five enthusiastic hikers enjoyed the beautiful scenery from the top of Camel's Hump, Sunday, October 8. The group left the gym at nine-fifteen, arriving just below Barrow's Camp at ten-thirty. The trail was completely covered with the red and yellow leaves of autumn and the views from the vantage points along the way could adeptly be called an "artist's paradise." After a well-earned rest and lunch, the hikers made use of the bunks in the lodge and sang songs. The group returned by way of the Montclair Glen trail which leads over the hump.

Radio Program Featured Alumni Bazaar Plans

Julius Cohen '42 was again master of ceremonies at the weekly Cynic Radio League program.

Prof. L. S. Rowell '25 of the Zoology department next spoke. Professor Rowell was in charge of building and maintenance of booths and decorations of the alumni bazaar which was held Saturday night in the gymnasium. He spoke of the interesting attractions and the good food to be enjoyed by all. He wanted it understood that the bazaar was not confined just to alumni but that everyone interested in having a good time was invited.

Prof. Leon W. Dean '15, editor of the Vermont Alumnus and director of the University News Service, gave a skit with the assistant director of the University News Service, Mrs. Dorothy Kennedy Slayton '35. The skit was a satire describing the work of the Alumni Council on the bazaar and the bazaar itself.

Of some interest is a release the United Press sent over the wires just before the radio program went on the air. The release, sent all through New England, told of the bazaar and homecoming day. This shows that the University News Service has stimulated keen outside interest in events of this institution.

Vermont Junior College Swamped by Frosh Team

Kittens' Speed and Power Overcome Opponents 20-6

Displaying a wealth of speed and power, the Frosh steam roller crushed a light and scrappy Vermont Junior College eleven 20-6 at Montpelier Saturday. The Kitten offensive consisted for the most part of off-tackle smashes, and end runs with now and then a tricky reverse. However, when a few yards were needed they had little trouble picking them up through center.

Frosh Score Early

The Kittens drew first blood in the opening minutes of the game. Taking possession of the ball on the enemy 40-yard marker, they reeled off a series of yard-eating running plays which alternately hit the right and then the left sides of the line. They reached pay dirt via two first downs, but missed the extra point.

Sanders Intercepts

In the third quarter an intercepted pass with a 35-yard run by Tom Sanders coupled with a 20-yard pass from the Hoosier lad to Kalodza and three first downs, overcame 40 yards of penalties and three fumbles to terminate in a second Green and Gold score.

Fourth Quarter Rumpus

Once more in the fourth quarter the Frosh power plays came into their own. An intercepted pass in enemy territory followed by a quick succession of end runs on which the runner was afforded excellent blocking, and Parker was over for the third score.

The Junior College lads began to play wide open football as their rooters yelled loud and long for a score. They filled the air with long and short passes. Their blockers worked fiercely to break a man into the open field, but the Frosh line held. Finally the inevitable happened. A long ariel settled into the waiting arms of Beaulieu who wasted no time putting the yearling team 55 yards closer to a score. Never did things look blacker for the opposition. The Kitten machine rolled over a few more yards. Suddenly in the midst of the Green and Gold attack a high fumble occurred. A Junior College quarterback swooped in, grabbed the ball, and lit out behind excellent interference for an 85-yard run and six points.

The Yearlings Lined Up

At left end we find Koladza, a hard tackler and a good pass receiver. In the left tackle berth stands Wood, an engineer. Chernansky guards the plot around left guard. Chesarone takes care of the enemy when they come through center. The personification of aggressiveness squats at right guard in the person of Bill Benoit. Otto resides at right tackle. A phantom who causes enemy interference no end of trouble, Bob Hennessy, haunts right end.

In the backfield we find Ted Sanders a good passer and able blocker. A demon in an open field, Beaulieu carries the mail from left half. Carey at right half takes care of the punting duties. At fullback we find a powerful plunger in Harry Parker. Sitting in the middle of the bench or striding beside it we may observe a smiling personality who has been constantly putting out winning ball clubs, Coach "Fuzzy" Evans.

To Play Dartmouth J. V.

The Kittens will be given their first severe test next week when they will be pitted against the Dartmouth J. V. They will have one more week to become more accustomed to each other, and to learn a type of play usually different from that to which they have been accustomed in high or prep school.

Substitutions

McArdle, Buck, Fleming, Parris, Thurder, Gull, Cain, Klein, Cozzolino, Wanvig, Lankton, Lincoln, Swift.

MORTAR BOARD SPONSORS FOOTBALL MEETING FRIDAY

Both men and women are invited to attend a football meeting Friday night at Southwick. Coach Evans of the physical education department will talk about football rules and explain how the game is played. This is a fine opportunity to learn more about football so that the remaining games will be more enjoyable, and to get acquainted with the members of the physical education department and other students. The students will have a chance to take part in a discussion about football.

Following the football talk, there will be an hour of dancing to the music of the victrola. There will be no charge for this, and it will not count as a night out for the girls.

Prof. and Mrs. Prentice and Coach Evans will chaperon. This affair, sponsored by Mortar Board, will start at 7.30 p.m. So come on out to Southwick; remember—Friday, football, fun, and free!

Vermont 12-0

on aerials and 48½ on running plays, whereas Vermont 148 yards rushing, 29 yards passing.

Vermont showed great strength in line play. So uniform and well-knit was the performance of the entire forward wall that it seems almost unfair to cite individual performances. Spasyk proved himself a capable pilot as again and again he backed St. Lawrence against their own goal line with coffin-corner kicks or else brought the crowd to its feet with brilliant runbacks of punts. Taylor, of course, was the Catamount pivot man as he was against Amherst.

For St. Lawrence, Goodrich and Kunz were standouts, the latter for his punting, the former for his brilliant passing and general all-around play.

Vermont Cross-country Beats Union 22-37

Webster Brothers Place First and Third

Showing exceptionally fine form the varsity cross-country team started its season with a victory by defeating Union Saturday twenty-two to thirty-seven. Foreshadowing the results by turning in the lowest times in last Tuesday's trial run, the Wesbster boys, Charlie and Fred, placed first and third in a hard-pressed duel with Union veterans Santora and Melewitz.

Starting with the winning time of Charlie Webster that missed the record run of the Vermont course by four (4) seconds, Coach Archie Post's boys turned in times unusually low for this time of the season.

CHARLES AND FRED WEBSTER

This is how the first thirteen runners crossed the finish line:

Place		Team
1	Charles Webster (24:44)	Vermont
2	Santora (25:15)	Union
3	Fred Webster	Vermont
4	Melewitz	Union
5	Livak	Vermont
6	Ketcham (Capt.)	Vermont
7	Brosseau	Vermont
8	Johnson	Union
9	Clark	Vermont
10	Burgess	Vermont
11	Pearson	Union
12	Collins (dead heat with Conley)	Union
13	Conley	Union

The run started in front of Redstone at 1.30 and proceeded down to the Country Club, twice around the course, and back up past Redstone to the finish line in front of the men's gymnasium, making 4½ miles in all. The group moved off at a smart clip, being paced by Vermont's Gallup, but remained bunched until the end of the first lap around the course at the Country Club. During the second lap the distance and brisk pace began to show its effect and the runners started to spread out. They arrived at the finish line in this fashion excepting the dead heat between Collins and Conley of Union and the duel between Jack Burgess of Vermont and Pearson of Union which was terminated by Burgess nosing out his opponent in the last thirty feet. John Rogers who has just been able to join the team, ran Saturday and although he did not place well looks promising.

Verifying reports received before the meet, the Union team has been greatly weakened by the loss of varsity men graduating last June. Santora, Melewitz, and Johnson, the three returning varsity mainstays of last year made a good showing by placing second, fourth and eighth. However the sophomores running varsity for the first time fell below expectations.

Elated by his team's victory Coach Post commented on it with an eye to the approaching Dartmouth meet. He said, "Of course for the first run, I'm well pleased with the condition the boys were in. I hope they keep it up. We will certainly have to run some to produce similar results at Dartmouth next Saturday." Due credit is to be given to Paul Audette, Red Root, Bill Swift, Dave Kenet and the other volunteers for their efficiency in keeping the course free from traffic at street intersections.

PHI SIGMA DELTA INITIATE SEVEN MEN

Seven men were formally initiated into Phi Sigma Delta fraternity at the Phi Chapter House last Friday night. The initiation was held in conjunction with the fraternity's homecoming week-end.

The following men, six sophomores and one junior, were initiated: R. S. Goldberg '42, W. M. Musicant '42, C. Olshan '42, S. S. Lissleman '42, S. Levine '42, M. R. Resnick '42, and H. Lippe '41.

Sports Casts

By the Sports Editor

Still Undefeated

Back in the days of the Notre Dame Four Horsemen the late Knute Rockne had under his expert tutelage a line known as the Seven Mules. We're afraid that we cannot think of an equally appropriate name for our line unless we call it the Men of Gold because of their obvious value. It might display a bit more school spirit if we called said line the Green Men of Gold, but the only green part of these men is their jerseys. It was sheer beauty watching the St. Lawrence backs receive the ball from center, take one step, and then have a horde of men in green pounce upon the various parts of their anatomy. If the Larries had hopes of circling the ends, Corbett or Paterson would make quick work of the interference so Taylor or Pye or Kodys or Reed could knife in and make the tackle. If every yard that the Larries gained by rushing was a dollar bill we doubt if we could afford a new suit. However, we abhor having to pay a dollar for every yard they gained flinging passes. The upstate New York team had what is probably the best passing attack we'll see on Centennial Field this year (and they say Norwich's Domina is no slouch in this department). We still cannot understand how none of those heaves resulted in a touchdown. But when it comes to consideration of the aerial game the U. V. M. combination of Taylor-to-Pye looked plenty good in the late stages of the first half when Bill picked one out of the clouds and leaving a trail of maroon shirts sprawled on the ground behind him placed the ball in scoring position for Frankie. Johnny Spasyk's punting was a joy to behold. Johnny is no giant and where he gets his tremendous kicking power is a mystery to us. The important part, nevertheless, is that he has it. His talented toe saved a few bad situations for the Catamounts and more than once resulted in Vermont getting into scoring position. The big thrill of the game, however, came in the first quarter when Frankie Taylor sliced off-tackle on the right side of the line, effected a quick cut-back and sprinted about 65 yards for Vermont's initial tally. We think that the best part of that run occurred on about the 10-yard marker when it seemed that Frankie was trapped and would be driven out of bounds. But with a beautiful change of pace and a swing of his hips he slipped between both men to cross the goal line still upright.

Cross-country Triumph

From the results of the Vermont-Union cross-country run early Saturday afternoon we're inclined to think that Archie Post has one sweet cross-country team. Vermont placed first, third, fourth, fifth and sixth and Charlie Webster, the slight sophomore running and winning his first varsity meet, was only five seconds above the course record. We wonder by how much he would have broken the record if the Union man who placed second had been even within hailing distance.

A Few Suggestions

We beg indulgence for another few lines, but we have a few suggestions to make. The first is that Vermont students should yell above a whisper at football games and give the cheerleaders some support. The second is that the cheerleaders should brush up on their technique and put a little more drive and pep into their antics. The third, and from some points of view, the most important, is that in the future Boulder should supply medical attention at the three frosh-soph clashes, for Saturday a freshman broke his nose in the cane rush and there seemed to be absolutely no one of any medical experience willing to even stop the flow of blood.

Can This Be True?

By HARPO

Between the halves of the game they placed the hooked sticks in the middle of the field. The gun was fired and I was off—I must have been to even enter the thing. Well I finally grabbed the cane along with about ten other nuts and started yanking at it. That was when all the fun began for everyone but me.

The first thing I knew was that I had a mouthful of "terra firma," grass and all. I was just getting ready to spit out some of the nice tasting stuff and get a better grip on the cane, when I felt as if a two-ton truck hit me. This sudden collision dented my left fender in about three inches. In fact it took off some of the paint and I haven't been able to sit down the correct way since it happened.

This disconcerting accident wasn't the end of my troubles because someone clubbed me with a good sized piece of something and the next thing I knew was that my rear axle was out of joint and I was flat on the ground again. Good old mother earth!

Well here I was again flat on my back but still hanging on to the cane. Every once in a while someone would get ambitious and leave their footprints in my face until I actually felt like a heel. But even that didn't daunt my spirits—much.

Up to this time I was in a fairly good state physically and even mentally, believe it or not. The thing that got me down was when I grabbed a hold of my leg and started yanking on it. There was so much confusion that I thought the darn thing was a cane. That burned me up until I thought my gallstones were going to pop right out of their sockets. It's a good thing I've got them nailed down.

Back to my leg again. If the finishing signal hadn't gone off I'd still be on the field chewing on it. As it was they had to tell me the rush was over.

Did I get my cane? No, but I did get a good size ten footprint on the back of my neck and I don't like it one bit either.

Moral—If at first you don't succeed just try until you get slugged again—that is if you're not already in the hospital.

SPECIAL NOTICE

The hose fight, the third of the interclass battles between the freshmen and the sophomores, will be held Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock at the south side of the gym. Each side is given a hose and the class which washes the other away is the victor. This is the deciding struggle as to the superiority of 1942 or 1943, each class having won a fight. Boulder, which supervises these contests, urges the boys to wear old clothes.

PROF. KIDDER TALKS TO COLLEGIUM GROUP

The members of Collegium heard an inspiring talk by Professor Kidder at their meeting Sunday night. The topic was "Religion and the College Student."

Professor Kidder first outlined the major considerations in a student's college life, emphasizing the importance of health, mental power and manners, finally pointing out the close tie-up of religion with every phase of this life.

The meeting closed with a social period, when refreshments of cider and doughnuts were enjoyed.

A. S. M. E. to Banquet At Hotel Van Ness

At the October 6 meeting of the A. S. M. E., Chairman F. A. Johnson '40, announced a banquet to be held for all A. S. M. E. members and for all freshmen interested this coming Wednesday night. The banquet will be held at the Van Ness at 6.30. George Moran, an engineer connected with the Jones and Lamson Machine Co. of Springfield, Vt., will be the speaker of the evening. The banquet is under the direction of a committee consisting of M. Newton '40, W. Young '41, and K. Grout '42.

After the discussion of the banquet Professor Daasch, new head of the mechanical engineering department, gave the members encouragement, advice, and assured them of the department's willingness to cooperate with them.

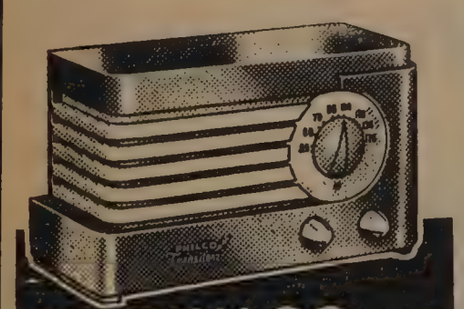
Chairman Johnson then read a paper he had received from A. S. M. E. headquarters announcing prize paper awards. These were discussed with much interest and the meeting was adjourned.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT PROGRESSES

The W. A. A. seems to have the toughest luck when it comes to the weather but this Saturday the Scavenger Hunt is again being planned as one of our weekend activities. It will be at 2.00 o'clock at Southwick and all arrangements are as before.

The members of W. A. A. are also arranging to have a party, possibly a Hallowe'en affair, although the date is only tentative as yet.

Each year Middlebury girls and the Vermont girls get together for a play day in which several different sports are played and a great deal of fun is had by all. This year arrangements have already been partially carried out and we expect to have a definite date to give you very shortly. Two hockey teams from each school are expected to play hockey so if there is still anyone who has played or wants to learn, there is plenty of time to get on either team.



The tennis tournament is drawing to a close—slowly but surely. Bad weather conditions have halted these playoffs considerably.

The girls who have not played their games are urged to do so. Please telephone results of freshman games to Sally Rome—49—and results of upperclassmen's games.

The Vermont Cynic

VOLUME 58 BURLINGTON, VERMONT, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1939 NUMBER 8

Dr. Beebe to Speak Monday, October 16

Famous Lecturer at Memorial Auditorium

Under the auspices of the staff of the University of Vermont's Robert Hull Fleming Museum, Dr. William Beebe will be at the Memorial Auditorium on Monday, October 16, to lecture on "Galapagos: World's End." Everyone has heard of Doctor Beebe of the Bathysphere fame, who wrote "Half a Mile Down," so few of us will want to miss him. The time of the lecture is 8.00 p.m., October 16; the place, Memorial Auditorium on Main and S. Union Streets; and the prices are fifty and seventy-five cents for adults, twenty-five cents for all college and school students.

"Galapagos: World's End" is seldom heard by Doctor Beebe's audiences, but is one of his most absorbing lectures. It is illustrated by movies taken on his expedition to the mythical Sargasso Sea and the real Galapagos Islands. The explorer made this voyage on the Arcturus, and saw many of the strangest wonders of marine life. The films are made even more spectacular by shots of iguanas, prehistoric lizards that still exist on the Galapagos. Another weird sight is the volcanos of Albermarle Island which erupt from the surface of the sea itself.

And if you are one of those who may grant that the movies will be good, but believe that a dull style of lecturing will more than offset the pictures, you will be pleasantly surprised, for the many of us who have heard him before will speak lavishly about Doctor Beebe's delivery. His humor is wonderful, and his informal manner is contagious. You always leave his lectures wondering if there are many other men who can so perfectly blend science and human interest.

Photography Club Meets at Southwick

The regular weekly meeting of the Photography Cub was held at Southwick, Wednesday evening. The officers elected for the coming year were: President, Alice Howe '42; secretary, Mildred Mack '42; and treasurer, A. Clark '40.

The club was greatly encouraged by the large attendance of both old and new members, and it hopes there will be even more. The meetings are held every Wednesday evening, and plans are being made to have speakers either from the faculty or from outside.

Elaborate plans for various kinds of work have been drawn up. There will be more laboratory work and the members will make their own Christmas cards. Different members will aid the others in silhouettes and coloring their photographs. If possible, there will be an exhibition later at Southwick. Some of the news pictures may also appear in future CYNICS.

The club has secured more equipment such as an enlarger, and the dark rooms at Slade are open to members every afternoon and evening until 10.15. With such preparation the club will certainly make itself bigger and better this year.

A. A. E. E. TO MEET ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

E. C. Bailey, chairman of the A. I. E. E. Club, announces that a meeting of that club will take place on Wednesday, October 18, at the Fleming Museum. A business meeting will be held, followed by movies and the serving of light refreshments.

The office of secretary-treasurer is now vacant due to the absence of M. Phillips '41, who is now enrolled in Annapolis.

Freshmen Win Annual Cane Rush

Outing Club Plans Hike to Mansfield

Sunday will be the day when all Vermont students should turn out for the hike to Mansfield, which is Vermont's back campus. Mountain Day always had a place on the University calendar until this year. With the addition of the homecoming week-end, Mountain Day has been omitted. In order to carry on this long tradition of an annual hike, the Outing Club has set aside this Sunday as the date for the hike. The group will start from the Half-way House at Underhill, proceed up the mountain to the Nose, across to the Chin, and down by way of the Sunset Ridge trail.

On a clear day one can see the Presidential Range in the White Mountains, Mount Royal near Montreal, and Whiteface in the Adirondacks. The autumn coloring of reds, yellows and oranges mixed with the evergreens forms a beautiful landscape for the group to enjoy. Lunch and tea will be served at the stone ski hut a short way down the other side.

Everyone interested sign up on the bulletin board before Saturday noon. Bring lunch and thirty-five cents for transportation. Meet at men's gym at nine o'clock, Sunday, October 15. See you there!

SIGMA PHI TO HOLD TEA DANCE SATURDAY

Beautiful Sigma Phi Place will be the scene of festivities Saturday afternoon, October 14, when a tea dance will be held in honor of its pledges. N. W. Thompson '41 is in charge and Major and Mrs. Coffin have kindly consented to chaperone. The dance is to be held from 4.30 to 8.30 and a buffet supper will be served.

CHEMISTRY CLUB TO MEET WITH NATIONAL SOCIETY

The American Chemical Society is holding its sectional meeting at Middlebury College Thursday night, October 12. Several members of the University of Vermont Chemistry Club are planning to attend.

NORWICH TO IMPORT CO-EDS FOR SATURDAY

During the past week an invitation has been received from the Coast Guard Cadets for one hundred U. V. M. girls to attend a dinner and dance at Norwich University after the football game there on Saturday. Arrangements are being carried on through the dean's office, where girls are being chosen to represent each class and, if possible, each dormitory. Transportation will be provided.

Debating Team Off To Running Start

Starting last Tuesday with the first of the regular Tuesday afternoon meetings, the debating team, under the supervision of Mr. Powers, got off to a running start. The season, even looking as far ahead as one must, looks unusually promising. The first home debate will come off some time within the next two or three weeks, with Bates College. This will start the debating ball rolling, to be followed with a whole avalanche of successive debates.

As yet plans are only formulative as far as trips are concerned. The first big trip is set tentatively for November 29 to December 4. It will probably cover the following list of New York colleges and universities: Clarkson Tech., St. Lawrence, Union College, N. Y. U., Brooklyn College, Columbia University, Fordham, Manhattan College and Rutgers.

Tentative plans are also being made for a trip during Easter vacation, which may possibly go down through Washington, D. C.

There is also a possibility that U. V. M. may participate in a debate with Dartmouth.

A partial list of the men's debating team members is as follows: Arnold H. Becker '41, manager; J. G. Cohen '41, A. D. Wolk '41, T. R. Huntley '41, H. Durfee '42, R. Wolfe '42, A. Caldwell '41. When the formulative stage is passed a more complete list will be available.

STUDENTS HEAR DR. LADD AT WEDNESDAY CHAPEL

There was a very satisfactory attendance at chapel Wednesday for the talk given by the Rev. Percy Ladd of College Street Church. Reverend Ladd spoke on the meaning of the activities in which college students participate, and the courage that it takes to uphold one's standards in a new and different environment.

The choir, conducted by Professor Kirby, repeated the same anthem it sang on the opening day of chapel.

Mortar Board Sponsors Meeting at Southwick

Both men and women are urged to attend a different kind of meeting and entertainment which will be held this evening at 7.15 at Southwick. Coach Evans of the physical education department will talk about football rules, explain how the game is played; so that from a spectator's point of view the students will be able to understand more of the game and enjoy it thoroughly. After the talk by Coach Evans there will be a general discussion, followed by an hour of dancing to the music of the victrola.

Members of Mortar Board, senior women's honorary society, are in charge of this affair; so come on out and get more familiar with the rules of football so you may get a real thrill out of the remaining games.

Prof. and Mrs. Prentice and Coach and Mrs. Evans will chaperone the entertainment.

This is absolutely free for all and will not count as a night out for the girls. So, remember to come to Southwick for the free football discussion this evening at 7.15.

I.R.C. Holds First Meeting of Year

The International Relations Club held its first meeting of the academic year last Thursday evening at Southwick; Prof. Milliken, recently acquired from the Yale political science department, was the speaker.

After a few opening remarks from Taze Huntley, the club's president, Professor Milliken was introduced and discoursed on "Submarines, Armed Merchantmen, and Neutrality" to a gathering of sixty interested members for almost two hours.

At the outset of his talk the speaker asked his audience to forgive any overemphasis in the rôle of the armed merchantmen, the latter subject being one in which he had done much investigation.

"Of much importance," Professor Milliken stated, "is that Germany has declared she will forego searching ships and adopt a policy of unrestricted war since Britain has begun arming her merchant marine." That the practice of equipping ships, for all obvious purposes used for commerce, is provocative of war, few authorities will deny.

Clarifying the groups of opinion into those who desire:

(1) outright participation in war by arms and men;

(2) to aid the allies with every means short of war; Professor Milliken termed these the "let's have our cake and eat it" group;

(3) neutrality;

(4) neutrality even to the point of isolation—the Hiram Johnson followers,

Professor Milliken pointed out that the "armed merchantmen may be the element which would sway the group who are willing to give all but military aid into the first category."

He explained that in former times trading vessels carried guns for protection against pirates, but with the almost virtual disappearance of the latter there was now no need for a ship to defend herself thusly; it might be construed that the arms were to be used for offensive purposes.

Fraternities to Join In Honor of Pledges

To Hold Dance On Saturday Night

In honor of the 150 new fraternity pledges the Interfraternity Council is giving its annual dance on Saturday, October 14. The time is 8.30 to 12.00, and the place is our good old gym. Because its purpose is to introduce the pledges to the fraternity men and to each other, the dance has to be limited to fraternity men and their pledges.

The dance is sponsored by the Interfraternity Council, actively represented by a committee composed of J. Katz '40, G. Noonan '40, J. Bloom '41, W. Pye '41 and Bob Farnham '41. Expenses will be shared by all the fraternities. The committee has been fortunate in securing Prof. and Mrs. Bickford as chaperones. Semi-formal attire will be regulation for the evening.

One factor that promises to make the affair a success at the outset is the presence of Cliff Agnew and his New Vermonters to play the music. This eleven-piece band is even bigger and better than last year. Witness their playing at Mortar Board. You would hardly know the gym after gay fraternity banners have hidden its bare walls, dimmed lights obscured its cobwebby corners. A promenade can even be had for the athletically inclined in the form of the running track.

Some of the fraternities will probably hold tea dances prior to the main affair. And if you get hungry the W. A. A. will be there to refresh you.

Tri-Delts to Entertain International President

Mrs. T. Dayton Davies, the international president of Delta Delta Delta, will be a visitor of Eta chapter at the University of Vermont on October 16 and 17.

While she is in Vermont, Mrs. Davies will renew associations formed at the fiftieth anniversary convention held in Swampscott, Mass., in June, 1938, when she was elected international president of Delta Delta Delta.

Eta chapter will give a tea on Monday afternoon, October 16, from 4.00 to 5.30 in honor of Mrs. Davies, and on Tuesday night, October 17, the Eta Alliance chapter of Delta Delta Delta will entertain her at a supper party.

Mrs. Davies is a graduate of the University of Washington and before she became international president of her fraternity she served for two years on Interfraternity Cooperation for the National Pan-Hellenic Congress. Prior to that she served for six years as a province officer for Tri Delta.

Listed in Who's Who of American Women, she is a member of the Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations, a former board member of the Seattle Visiting Nurse Service, a member of the Seattle Children's Orthopedic Hospital Association and the Seattle Symphony Orchestra Committee.

Tall, slender and brunette, she is an ardent sportswoman. With her husband and two children, a boy and a girl, winter finds her on the slopes of Mt. Rainier and Sun Valley in ski togs. Badminton, tennis, swimming and yachting in Puget Sound are all favorite activities. She and her husband, T. Dayton Davies, Seattle financier, have added flying to their many hobbies, Mr. Davies holding a private pilot's license. In their seaplane, the "Shoo-Fly," they call on their many friends in Victoria and Vancouver, British Columbia, as well as on those on the Sound and surrounding lakes.

Alpha of Vermont chapter of Sigma Phi announces the pledging on October 6 of Richard Hay '43 of Burlington; on October 9 of Clifford Pease '43 of Burlington and Edwin Blakely '43 of Burlington.

Kid Stuff

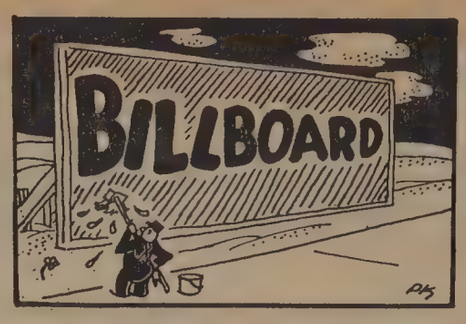
Recently some unknown party entered the Delta Psi Fraternity house and made off with a goodly number of the cups won by that fraternity in the various competitions held each year at the University. Not content with this, the same party (presumably) entered the same house a few nights later and removed nearly all of the remaining cups, leaving but two trophies to grace the shelves of the Delt house.

At the time no mention of these depredations was made in the columns of this publication in view of the fact that it was believed that one of the main purposes of the marauders was to achieve publicity for their exploits. To gain publicity seems to be the motive of many would-be criminals, so we thought it best to ignore the whole matter. We believed that the persons who removed the cups were possessed of a perverted sense of humor, that once they had stirred up a little excitement on the campus the cups would be returned.

They partly achieved their ends because the campus was agog over the matter for several days. But the excitement passed away and the cups were still not returned. Then Boulder's plea was ignored and hence this editorial.

Much as we disagree with the sentiment involved in the purloining of the cups, it is not our purpose here to heap crimination on the heads of the culprits. Suffice it to say that the act was puerile and distinctly high-schoolish.

And now, to get at the crux of the matter, it would be most sporting of the guilty party to return the cups at once to their rightful owners. They have had their little fun; let that be sufficient. Notwithstanding the fact that the authorities have been called in on the case, we believe that if the cups are returned now, the fraternity involved will request that no official action be taken. A fervent wish is voiced that the cups be speedily returned.



Help Wanted

On this page of the Cynic will be found those songs and cheers which are most widely used at the University of Vermont, your University. They are published here for a specific purpose, namely, that you may learn them.

Hand and glove with this idea is another movement afoot on the campus—a movement which should be given your heartiest support. The members of all the honorary societies, both men's and women's, together with representatives of every fraternity and sorority on the hill and the cheerleaders are meeting Sunday afternoon at Southwick for the purpose of drawing up a suitable plan for teaching the cheers and songs to the entire student body.

The cooperation of all campus organizations will be needed to make the venture a success and with this point in mind we offer here a few suggestions as to how this end may best be attained.

One fine opportunity to learn the songs and cheers is afforded every Monday evening when fraternity and sorority meetings are held. At such a time the majority of the student body is assembled in one or another of these groups and this would be a wonderful opportunity to rehearse the songs and cheers. We recommend that each organization appoint a cheerleader to supervise this work and request the cooperation of everyone in this worthwhile attempt to revive school spirit at Vermont.

Breakfast at the Pi Phi house, Sunday, October 15, 9.30 to 11.30—25 cents. Everybody come.

Every girl who signed up for Y. W. C. A. work at the Elizabeth Lund Home is requested to put a copy of her afternoon schedule in the ballot box in the Y room. Important!

All who are planning to enroll in Music 8 and 9 please turn in enrollment cards to the secretary of the Music Department, Mrs. Katharine Eckley Dopp, immediately. Also, any students who are intending to take violin, please report to Mrs. Dopp immediately, with enrollment cards.

Additional violinists are needed for the Chapel and University Orchestras. Anyone interested in trying out should see Professor Kirby of the music department. Members of the Chapel Orchestra receive pay.

SOPHOMORES

All sophomores wishing to scrub basketball see Manager Wysolmerski, call at the graduate manager's office, or see Assistant Managers Wright or Davis. Scrubbing basketball will enable you to earn your numerals or get a managerial position. You are exempt from physical education while you are scrubbing.

There will be a meeting of all persons connected with the business end of the Cynic at 1.15 Tuesday, October 17, in the Cynic office.

Vermont Songs and Cheers

Champlain

(While this U. V. M. classic is sung, every man rises to his feet and removes his hat.)

Sing a song, a rich refrain,
And let echo swell the strain
To our lake, our loved Champlain,
Lovely Lake Champlain.

CHORUS

Sing a song, a rich refrain,
And let echo swell the strain,
Lovely Lake Champlain.

Mirrored mountain's craggy crest,
Waves before the storm-winds pressed
Cannot rob thy beauteous breast
Of its charm, Champlain!

E'en the sunset's golden glow,
Given back from Mansfield's brow,
Makes thy face still fairer now,
Ever fair Champlain.

When we think of college days,
When we sing our college lays,
We will not forget thy praise,
Our loved Lake Champlain.

Words by C. W. Fisher '84.
Music by C. S. Putnam '82.

Vermont Victorious

High o'er the waters of Lake Champlain
Waves the Green and Gold,
The emblem aspiring to wondrous fame
In all tradition told,
Now we remain to uphold the name
Of Vermont, strong and true,
So to keep all things we love at U. V. M.
Is up to each of you.

CHORUS

Let's fight for Vermont,
Let's fight for Vermont,
For our Alma Mater dear,
Let's fight for Vermont,
Let's fight for Vermont,
Whose sons have ne'er known fear.
We will tear up our mighty rivals
And we'll pile up score on score.
Come, boys, let's fight, fight, fight, for old Vermont,
For Vermont evermore.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the Cynic:

Criticism is easier to give than to receive even though the advice may be classified as constructive criticism. I hope you will consider this criticism I am about to offer as falling in the above-mentioned category.

Life, just previous to our generation, was something to be experienced and enjoyed. Today it is something to be experienced and then become distasteful. Life today is chaotic. It is based on technological unemployment and unexplainable political moves. It surprises and shocks us. It has produced a generation of dissatisfied and discontented youth. It will go on producing dissatisfied and discontented youth so long as they enter the world unprepared to receive the surprises and shocks it has to offer. Our marvelous educational system has tried to solve this distressing situation but it has missed its mark considerably. Our schools educate everyone with the possibility that he may become President of these United States some day. It is possible but highly improbable. But now I am wandering from the point.

You are possibly wondering now how life and the preparation for it concerns you. You publish the school paper, the Cynic, subscribed to by every student on the campus. You possess the tool to help supplement the education and opinions the students glean from their class work in the University. Do you use it to its fullest possibility as such? No! You waste this tool on football games, social events, and school spirit. I readily admit that all these things are important to the rounding out of a college student's activity. My college days were sadly deficient in these things, but a much more important phase of college life took its place. I was introduced to politics, government, and history—not from the textbooks, but from actual student activity in these fields. I was a general science student but that did not give me an excuse to neglect the political sciences. In reality it necessitated and made it vital for me to give some time to these fields.

So should it be in the University of Vermont. Why not use your precious tool? Initiate a column dealing with news events of the week. Have a social science instructor give his views on an important international happening. Initiate forums which would discuss world problems. I'm sure some instructors would volunteer an hour a semester to address such a forum.

If there is no student political life on the campus, awaken some. Crusade for these ideas. Remember, life is not a football game.

Marvin Sheldon.

METHODIST COLLEGE GROUP STAGES PICNIC

The Methodist College Group enjoyed a picnic at East Woods Sunday night. A large group met at the gymnasium and went by car to the Boy Scout cabin there. The boys played touch football and a supper of hot dogs, rolls, and coffee was served. Afterward the students sang hymns and listened to a story read by F. P. Spaulding.

The University of Texas has received $60,000 to be used as a trust fund for the handicapped to be named in honor of humorist Will Rogers.

Vermont Gridmen Oppose Colby

Colby Has Veteran Line; Teams Evenly Matched

Led by Coach Johnny Sabo, an abbreviated Green and Gold football squad entrained this morning for their oncoming tussle with Colby College. The Cats will tomorrow attempt to make it three in a row.

The Colby club is similar in many respects to the cohorts of Sabo. Colby thus far is also undefeated, having won from New Hampshire 20-6 and having licked Lowell Tech by four touchdowns.

Vermont's opposition boasts of a well-balanced club, having a strong veteran line, a fast backfield, but not many reserves. The Colby backfield consists of Dick White at quarterback, Hatch and Daggett at the halfback posts, and Captain Bruce at fullback. White is a senior, a veteran of two years' varsity experience. He is an excellent blocker and a stalwart on the defense. Both halfbacks are speed merchants and are potential all-state material, while Bruce at full does all of the line plunging.

Pearl Best

In the line Colby has no less than five veterans. Only O'Neil at center and Helin at left end are sophomores with no varsity experience. Pearl, varsity tackle, may be rated the best in the Colby line. In his sophomore year he attained all-American honorable mention and he should be even better this year due to his added experience.

The Vermont line-up may be somewhat changed. Norm Strassburg may be missing in the line due to an injured ankle. His post would be filled either by Nick Nichols or Cliff Long. The center position is uncertain. Misty Rice may have recovered sufficiently from his charley horse to warrant his return. Or Reed may start regardless, due to his excellent showing in the St. Lawrence game. Otherwise the seven "stone barriers" will be intact. The backfield will consist of Johnny Spasyk, who will continue to do the punting and who will play the safety position, Ed Kodys at blocking back, and Bill Pye and Frankie Taylor at the halves, the running attack being centered about the latter.

Probable line-up:

VERMONT	COLBY
Corbett, l.e.	l.e., Helin
Carlson, l.t.	l.t., Hughes
Dubie, l.g.	l.g., Baum
Reed, c.	c., O'Neil
Strassburg, r.g.	r.g., Daley
Lawrence, r.t.	r.t., Pearl
Paterson, r.e.	r.e., Maguire
Spasyk, q.b.	q.b., White
Pye (capt.), r.h.b.	r.h.b., Daggett
Taylor, l.h.b.	l.h.b., Hatch
Kodys, f.b.	f.b., Bruce (capt.)

Varsity Harriers Travel to Hanover

With one scalp under their belt already, the varsity cross-country squad goes to work on Dartmouth this coming Saturday. They will leave at eight o'clock Saturday morning, stop at Barre at nine-thirty for a light lunch of eggs, toast and milk and continue on to Hanover for the meet to be held at two-thirty.

The Dartmouth tussle will be a much harder one to win than the Union contest. The Indians have a strong veteran team and are in very good condition.

Coach Post plans to take ten men down to Dartmouth—Ketcham, Livak, C. Webster, F. Webster, Burgess, Brosseau, Clark, Rogers, Willson and another man not yet decided upon.

SOUTHWICK NOTES

Next Tuesday night at 7.00 o'clock the boys' dancing class will be held as usual. It is not too late for beginners to start these classes, but please come out right away.

On Wednesday from 2.30 to 4.30 Mrs. Bickford will be at Southwick. This would be an excellent opportunity to talk to Mrs. Bickford about forming a handicraft club or a discussion group. If you are expert in some craft, or would like to become so, here is your chance to organize. It would provide fun as well as instruction. The telephone number is 2024-M.

LEADS CATS TO COLBY

COACH SABO

Kittens to Tackle Dartmouth J.V.'s

Crushing all of its opponents save one for the last two years, the freshman eleven will again tackle its nemesis, the Dartmouth J. V.'s this Saturday at Centennial Field. Interestingly enough, it was Frankie Taylor's outfit which was beaten.

The Vermont Junior College game revealed several important factors to the Kitten rooters. Substituted for McArdle at left half, Wanvig did a bang-up job both on the offensive and in halting would-be yard-gainers. He is certain to see much action in the forthcoming contest. Because their end runs and line bucks proved successful only three passes were thrown, two of which, Sanders to Kolodza and Sanders to Beaulieu, were completed. However, since the Indians have a heavy squad, an aerial attack will be used to a larger extent.

Per usual, the drill this week consisted mainly in running off the enemy's plays against the varsity. Both the first-year men and the senior team appeared greatly improved, the former executing the attack with precision, the latter skillfully nailing the runners, in some instances throwing them for losses.

Blocking technique still hampers the Evans men, although in the last quarter the series of plays preceding Parker's touchdown showed that department was not exactly green.

On Saturday the line will start unchanged, beginning at the left side, Kolodza, Wood, Chernanski, Chesarone, Benoit, Otto and Hennessy. As the Kitten rolled off yardage so easily, thirteen substitutes were given their now-or-never opportunity; but should the Dartmouth game be tougher the line will remain intact.

At this writing only Sanders and Parker are known definitely to start. The halfbacks will be chosen from Beaulieu, Carey, McArdle and Wanvig. Buck will probably be used to fill in at fullback.

CATS MEET DARTMOUTH, FORDHAM ON COURTS

Fordham and McGill join Dartmouth this winter in giving the University of Vermont one of its most colorful court schedules in recent years.

The Cats have fifteen games listed for the coming campaign, nine contests at home and six on the road. McGill will be encountered in the opener, December 2, and Fordham will display its wares on December 15. The Dartmouth affairs are both in December, December 7 at Burlington and December 20 at Hanover.

The schedule closes on February 24 with the Trinity game, which will feature Kake Walk week-end.

The schedule:

Dec. 7.	Dartmouth	Home
Dec. 12.	St. Michael's	Home
Dec. 15.	Fordham	Away
Dec. 19.	Tufts	Away

Frosh Harriers Hold First Time Trials

Meet Dartmouth Saturday; Injuries Worry Archie

Coach Archie Post gave his freshman dalers their first taste of competition Monday, when time trials were held. Six men finished within a minute of each other, showing that there is a fair balance of power on the team. Buttles led the field home with a time of 17:25. Hoyt and St. Mary finished in second place in a dead heat in the time of 17:30. Crown was fourth with 18:23.5 and Ladd was fifth with 18:29. The time was fairly good for the first trial, considering that the boys are nearly all green.

Coach Post seems to fear injuries more than anything else. St. Mary has been troubled by his right foot and Crown turned his ankle in Monday's trials. The seriousness of Crown's injury is as yet undetermined, but a few days ought to tell the story.

In regards to the Dartmouth meet Saturday, not too much is expected, as it is the first meet of the season, but the freshmen might spring a surprise.

Coach Hillman of Dartmouth claims that his freshman club is weak this year, but the truth of that statement remains to be seen.

Coach Post will be able to really determine the strength of his team in the coming meet. If the boys come in bunched, regardless of what place, it will indicate a well-balanced squad.

The records for freshmen in the State are as follows: In 1936 Yuell of Dartmouth ran the course in 16:27. In 1937, Burnham of the Aggies completed the course in 16:26. Diminutive Charlie Webster, current star of the varsity team, smashed the course record with a brilliant 16:21.2 in 1938.

The results of the time trials indicate that the present crop of freshmen have a few men better than a minute off the record. Considering the fact that the majority of the boys are inexperienced, and that time trials have not the lift or drive of school competition, the boys ought to show a lot more a little later in the season.

Due to an earlier start the majority of the squad men are in better shape for this time of year than those of previous years.

Coach Post believes that if the team comes through the coming Dartmouth meet without injuries, the rest of the season has a very bright outlook.

Complete results of time trials are as follows:

1.	Buttles	17:25
2.	Hoyt	17:30
	St. Mary	17:30
4.	Crown	18:23:5
5.	Ladd	18:29
6.	West	18:39
7.	Blanchard	18:54.8
8.	Zwick	19:12
9.	Fisk	19:15
10.	Story	19:16.3
11.	White	19:20
12.	Lightcap	19:40
13.	Howe	19:51
14.	Pond	19:59
15.	Bennetts	20:43
16.	Jennings	21:10

Recognition For Cross-Country

The times are not too often when we mount the rostrum and give out with a few ideas or suggestions or whatnots not only because we do not have an over-abundance of them, but also because we are usually well satisfied with the way things are conducted here in general. Notwithstanding, today we have something to say—or request. Every afternoon a certain group of men stroll into the locker room, don running shoes and appropriate paraphernalia, and start running. At first consideration this really doesn't seem like so much. However, these men not only start running but they keep it up and after what seems like hours they arrive back at the gymnasium, weary after covering what seems like every square yard of highway and sod between here and Vergennes. And if perchance you do not consider this such a heart-rending task just recall the times when 10:15 was but a few minutes away and you had to jog up Main Street hill for something less than a mile. And these men do not have any woman panting alongside them for inspiration—be that what it may. This running and running and running and more running is not merely a once-a-week affair either. Every day (Sundays exclusive) they run and on Saturday they do not have to run—instead they race. Racing for five long miles is no child's play either. We've heard of the terrors of running the 440, of sprinting 100 yards and then continuing that mad pace for another 340 yards. However, we are inclined to think that even this is preferable to racing up and down our Green Mountains for five gruelling miles. It is with all this in mind that we suggest to the Athletic Council or whatever group comprises the powers that be that Archie Post's cross-country team receive a trifle more recognition for the outstanding work that it performs by being awarded a major "V" instead of the amœba-like letter which doesn't half cover the manly chests which now must wear them.

School Spirit and Such

This department would like to take this opportunity to commend Boulder for its immediate response in word to Johnny Spasyk's letter printed in this column a week ago today. We hope that this response in action is outlined in this issue of the CYNIC. At any respect, we feel that Boulder will take immediate steps to bolster morale in this institution. With that in mind, we turn our thoughts to a phase of school spirit which is perhaps too personal for Boulder's consideration. It is the matter of cheerleaders here at Vermont. Our personal opinion is that we now have a very able-bodied group of men leading the cheering at the football games. However, we are inclined to think that these men are either not making the most complete use of their talents or are not aware that they exist. Our football games themselves need no enlivening. But our support does. There were times last Saturday when honestly one could hear some co-ed drop a stitch in her knitting. It is with such conditions as this in view that we heartily suggest to our cheerleaders that a few simple acrobatics would be instrumental in bringing forth noise—and noise is what we want. However, the most constructive step of all would be for everyone—cheerleaders, students, and, yes, faculty to learn the cheers which appear elsewhere on these pages.—A. D. W.

Stating that the armed merchantmen helped precipitate United States entrance in the last war, Professor Milliken revealed that a vital factor was the status of such a vessel. Was it a warship and hence subject to international law (able to be in neutral port for only twenty-four hours, not able to take on or unload cargo, etc.), or was it an ordinary ship of trade? Controversy is still being carried on in order to determine the ship's legal position.

Another subject of considerable debate is under whose protection are those citizens traveling on the high seas during war? Are they under their own country's protection or that of the flag which the ship flies? The United States has pledged itself to the responsibility of its citizens. What will be the consequences if the United States should forcefully back up its pledge?

Delving into further detail, the speaker concluded his talk with the challenging statement "that the move to repeal the present embargo can be considered by belligerents an act of partisanship as the repeal would favor the allies."

Following his talk Professor Milliken answered questions from the floor.

W. A. A. NOTES

The Women's Athletic Association will hold the scavenger hunt on Saturday, October 14. The girls are to meet at Southwick at 2.00 o'clock for instructions. They will be divided into equal numbers and the hunt will be under way. Prizes will be allotted everyone—winners and losers.

A paper is hung up in the Y room on which girls may sign up for the hunt.

A Fenn College student is planning the construction of the world's longest pendulum. It'll be 211 feet long.

PHI SIGS UPSET SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Staving off a last-ditch rally by Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Sigma Delta ousted the defending champions from the interfraternity touch football tourney, 14-7, at back campus field Tuesday.

The Phi Sigs made two quick-scoring thrusts after a deadlocked first half. The S A E's began to move when it was too late, tallying in the last few minutes.

The win advanced Phi Sig to the semi-finals. Other combines still in the running include Delta Psi, the Independents, Sigma Phi, Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, and Tau Epsilon Phi. The final game is scheduled for October 31.

Everyone come to the Pi Beta Phi breakfast Sunday morning, October 15, from 9.30 to 11.30. Frances Lynch '42 is in charge of arrangements. Oh yes, please don't forget to bring twenty-five cents.

The World Front

When the statesmen met at Munich on that fateful day of last year, Russia stood on the sidelines, an unwanted country. Her interests were ignored. Today in the European conflict Russia occupies the leading rôle—Russia is the enigma of Europe. Nations wait with anxiety her every move.

A month ago Hitler was the head man in Europe; today Stalin has usurped the leading rôle. Behind his gestures lurks a mind which millions of people would like to read, but his plans remain shrouded in mystery. In a month of war Stalin has been the big winner in Europe.

Gains of a Month

On Friday Hitler boasted of a great victory, of a gain in territory, yet he overlooked the fact that Stalin had more to crow about than he did. Without fighting, Russia got White Russia and the Polish Ukraine back, Estonia became a protectorate, and Latvia was forced to make concessions. Meanwhile Lithuania and Finland are also being approached in a diplomatic sort of way and asked to give up their freedom.

On the political side we find that Hitler has had to make an about face and eat several chapters of "Mein Kampf." In the second place, Germany has been blocked in the East and has lost all her influence in the Baltic. Hitler must be wondering what sort of partner he has allied himself with. Will Stalin be satisfied with what he now has?

All this brings us around to the question of whether Russia will aid Germany to the fullest or not. It seems highly doubtful. Russia cannot be too anxious to set up a strong Germany in Europe. Rather, Russia may want to see both sides weakened in this war so she would hold the upper hand at a peace conference. Meantime it seems that Germany will have to be the goat and pay the price for all future Russian victories. So we see that already Germany is beginning to feel doubt in her alliance. Her position is precarious to say the least.

Senate Bored

Turning to America we find the neutrality debate still raging. Both sides have been eloquent and earnest in their pleas. Yet it seems that many of the arguments being advanced are mere repetitions of those previously given. The isolationists have lost ground in that they have failed to emphasize their strongest point—that repeal is a step toward getting us into war. It seems that some move of decision or aiding a decision should be made. The debate may rage to the close of the war according to present indications—which may not be a bad idea at all.

Quotes of the Week

We would like to close this week with quotes of the week. Sometimes a few words said by men in high positions light up a situation more clearly than anything else that can be said. Here are our choices:

"If you believe what is now being preached throughout this country, you will send munitions without pay and you will send your boys back to the slaughter pens of Europe."—Senator Borah.

"I do not believe we can become an arsenal for one belligerent without becoming a target for the other."—Senator Vandenburg.

"It was for Hitler to say when the war would begin, but it is not for him nor his successors to say when it will end."

". . . . neither will the German Reich go to pieces nor will a second treaty of Versailles be made.—Adolf Hitler.

That's all for today, I guess. See you next issue.

Military Notes

The R. O. T. C. Band will play again this Saturday, October 14, when the University's freshman eleven meets the Dartmouth freshman team here on Centennial Field. Much praise is due to bandsmen and their able leader for the many hours of practicing put in since the start of the fall term. It must be noted that our band deserves just as much school spirit as the various teams, and if it were not for the band our games and student rallies would lack that "certain something" that the music gives them.

There will be a meeting of Gold Key at 6.30 p.m. on Sunday, October 15. Place is the Kappa Sig house. Don't forget.

Press Club Notes

Headed by Mary Nelson '40, the University Press Club has started what promises to be one of the most active years in the twenty years of its service. With Flora Fifield '42 as work supervisor, the thirty-odd candidates are busy collecting news that their classmates have made and sending this news to each person's respective home town paper and school periodical.

This year for the second time there will be a limited membership system employed. Present candidates will soon be judged for their dependability, accuracy, and originality; and the twenty who best fill the bill will become members, while several others will automatically become reserves.

The girls of the Press Club have also planned to enlighten their season's program with various social meetings which will be announced in the near future.

Mortar Board Member Tells Life Secrets

Perhaps the most outstanding things, at first, about Mary Nelson are her size (or the lack of it) and the way her eyes twinkle when she laughs. Her mouth turns up at the corners all the time, and when she is pleased, or is smiling just to put a nervous freshman at ease, she gets little "good-humor wrinkles" alongside her eyes, which are deep blue.

This seems like a rather desultory way to record a semi-serious interview, but it will serve as an introduction to the Mary Nelson I met—the Mary Nelson who tried to think seriously about her philosophy of life and finally agreed that it must be to "get the most out of it."

Miss Nelson was born in Westford, Vt., on December 8, 1918, but gives her address now as Woodstock. She remembers little of her childhood, but says she was an "awful-acting" little girl. As a matter of fact, Mary is quite afraid that she was a tomboy. Her favorite exercise was climbing trees, and she loved to walk fences.

U. V. M. was almost inevitable for Miss Nelson as both her mother and father are graduates, as are several cousins of hers. She thinks it is a wonderful place (as indeed it is), but sincerely believes that college is a lot more than just studying for marks. The activities and friendships which are made in these years are of infinite importance. Miss Nelson has carried out her belief with amazing thoroughness, as she has been active in many and varied types of projects, and has acquired a reputation for dependability and no fear of hard work, and is a member of Mortar Board. Her scope of extra-curricular affairs has included the John Dewey Club, Dramatic Club, the debating team, CYNIC and other school publications and activities.

Miss Nelson is enrolled in the social science curriculum and is majoring in history. When she graduates, Mary would like either to do graduate work or teach history. (She has a special desire for the future, but she made me promise not to put it into print.)

The pet likes and dislikes of Mary Nelson are as varied as her interests. She is interested in historical movies, and for reading matter prefers biographies or historical novels, preferably European history. Swimming is her favorite sport.

It was really difficult for Mary to think of anything she dislikes, but decided that she hates being late for things, wishes people would be quiet during study hours, and is annoyed by fraternity politics. "But she really doesn't mind mice," remarked an interloper upon the conference.

Frat Men and Co-eds Clash on Norwich Issue

The following notices were posted yesterday on the women's bulletin board in the Old Mill, indicating that there seems to be considerable feeling on the Norwich matter.

The notice directed to the girls was signed "A Group of Fraternity Men," while the answer addressed to the fraternity men was unsigned.

Co-eds of U. V. M.

We hereby issue a formal complaint in connection with the coming week-end. Realizing our inefficiency as escorts we do nevertheless make the following comments:

1. Perhaps making yourselves more attractive as to dress would bring you more favorable results. (You're not at Bennington College.)
2. Although we know that Norwich BOYS are nice, there are a few GOOD MEN here.
3. Furthermore, we feel that it is your duty to cooperate with us and our pledges in making our interfraternity dance a success.
4. We wonder if the parental wrath would not fall upon yourselves if it were known that your would-be associates are now Soldiers and Sailors.
5. In the same breath we remind you that the Fall Formals are approaching. (Middlebury co-eds are only 37 miles "NEAR.")

THIS letter is not official but it expresses the sentiments of almost all fraternity men.

THINK IT OVER, GIRLS!

A GROUP OF FRATERNITY MEN.

To the Fraternity Men

The U. V. M. co-eds are indeed sorry that the fraternity men of the University are opposed to a goodly number of us attending the Norwich dance.

The moral to this note is, "Five cents spent on Monday insures a date for Saturday." After all, we didn't accept until Wednesday and few if any refused a date for interfraternity before then.

Speaking of Middlebury girls, it's going to be a good dance that has to close up at 10.30, plus the fact that—as said by a Middlebury D K E—"four out of every five girls are good-looking and the fifth goes to Middlebury."

As for our dress, we hadn't noticed any great ideal to follow set by the so-called stronger sex. If you can wear your sloppy clothes, why should we waste our smoothest.

So it's Saturday night at Norwich for U. V. M. co-eds, where men are men and our charms are appreciated—A WEEK AHEAD!

P.S.: Don't forget, women's formals are coming soon, too. We'll show you who can get their bids in early.

St. Paul's Episcopal Church

The Young People's Group of St. Paul's Episcopal Church has regular meetings again this year at 7.30 every Sunday evening. The topics of the evening are brought forth by questions of the members, which usually leads to a lively and broadening discussion. This informal method has proved very successful and takes in numerous subjects.

Rev. A. D. Kelly, the head of Episcopal Student Work, will be here the Sunday before Thanksgiving, November 26. His discussion is looked forward to with as much anticipation as is the arrival of Rev. Lawrence Rose here in Burlington some time the latter part of November, home on furlough from Japan.

Plans Made to Expand Free Medical Service

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the free clinical, medical and dispensary service supervised by the Medical College of the University of Vermont and jointly financed by it and the city of Burlington is being observed this week with the opening of larger and more central quarters, containing more extensive equipment and having more complete service. The dispensary and city medical service was established twenty-five years ago under Dean Henry C. Tinkham of the Medical College.

Seniors in the Medical College of the University are assigned to duty at the dispensary and under the new arrangement some of them will be in residence day and night. Additional time will be contributed by faculty men. New clinics in psychiatry and venereal diseases are to be added soon to those already existing. For greater efficiency the offices of city physician and director of the Free Dispensary have been combined. The new location makes possible more cooperation between the dispensary and other relief agencies which already have their offices in the building.

A laboratory, equipped with microscope and other instruments and materials, a drug supply room, a dark room for developing x-ray plates, an office, and new diagnostic appliances, including a fluoroscopic machine, are all additions to the physical facilities for the students' use, and for the care and treatment of patients. New equipment, adequate for home deliveries of maternity cases, has also been acquired.

The University has spent $6,000 in remodelling work. It also pays a $2,400 yearly rental in addition to maintenance expenses such as fuel, lights and heating. The city this year contributes $5,000 as its share of the dispensary's expenses, with the University's contribution running to approximately twice that figure. The city also pays $2,400 toward the salary of the city physician who supervises the service.

Do you know the Kaywoodie Flavor?

Some pipes are "in a hurry"—fast and furious—consume tobacco like a four-alarm fire racing through a hay-mow. Kaywoodie takes it easy, as a good pipe should. Coaxes out the flavor of your favorite leaf. Makes it mellow. Smooth . . . Just for fun, we tried to measure this famous but elusive Kaywoodie Flavor in a good tough laboratory exam, and found (1) Kaywoodie's smoke is actually cooler than other pipes, cooler than mouth temperature!—never hot or irritating (2) the smoke is what the French call sec—dry and free from bitter juices. So get to know the Kaywoodie Flavor—now! Shown above, No. 76B.

Cynic Radio League Questions Co-eds

An innovation to the VERMONT CYNIC Radio League was ushered into last Thursday's program at five thirty-five.

With Julius Cohen '42, the CYNIC radio editor, acting as master of ceremonies, Roland and Ronald, commonly known as Norman Altenberg and Copeland Marks, members of the class of '42, conducted a quiz battle entitled "A Sequel to the Hose Fight," between the fair sexes of the classes of '40 and '42.

Upholding the banner of the sophomore class were the Misses Barbara Butterfield, Jean Wooley, Jane Wray and Sally Rome. Representing the senior class were the Misses Jean Butler, Judy Flack, Holly Fletcher and Jean Harshbarger.

The battle lasted for a period of eighteen minutes with Roland firing questions at all angles upon these bewildered girls.

When the cannonading of questions had subsided, the judges, Messrs. Dodds and Ratledge of the botany department, had to get in a huddle so that they could render a fair verdict. While the girls were waiting in suspense, the judges handed announcer Julie Cohen the verdict. The senior girls proved that they had gained a little more knowledge as they defeated the sophomores by a score of 55-52.

The members of the winning team were presented with passes to next week's Radio League program, which is expected to be another unique affair.

RECEPTION FOR FACULTY TO BE HELD OCTOBER 18

The annual Faculty Reception will be held this year on October 18 at the Southwick ballroom. The affair will begin at 8 o'clock with the reception of new and old members. An interesting entertainment program has been planned under Professor's Herreid's direction. There will be a puppet show, which has proved so popular on this campus, dancing, and an opportunity for all to visit and make now acquaintances.

PROF. EVANS SPEAKS TO FOOTBALL FOLLOWERS

A group of about fifty men and women met in the gym at Southwick at 7.30 Friday evening, October 13, to hear Coach Evans discuss the appreciation of football from the spectator's point of view. Coach Evans increased the interest and helpfulness of his talk by illustrating various points on a blackboard. General discussion followed the talk.

The meeting, sponsored by Mortar Board, ended with an hour of dancing to the music of the victrola. Professor and Mrs. Prentice were chaperons.

Museum Shows Displays To Vermont Teachers

During the State Teachers' Convention here, the Fleming Museum exhibited points of interest and education concerning the State of Vermont. Among the projects shown were relief maps of the State and displays which showed the transportation, geology, geography, conservation, health, and interests of Vermont. The research was done by the Museum staff. The various parts of the exhibit will be available to the supervisors of the Vermont High Schools after they have been shown and the Museum is standing all expenses.

The cause of education is being furthered by the Museum in still another way. They are now working on the trees, leaves, and birds common to Vermont. Water colors of these, accompanied by explanations, will be shown in the Museum on their completion and later distributed to the high schools.

Alpha Zeta Fraternity Holds First Meeting

The Green Mountain Chapter of Alpha Zeta held its first meeting of the year in Morrill Hall October 12.

The meeting was called to order by Chancellor Lucien Paquette. All student members were present as well as a number of faculty members. Dean Hills of the Agricultural College was one of the guests of honor.

The chief speaker af the evening was Doctor Woods of Kentucky who is president of the American Vocational Teachers Association. Doctor Woods is also a very prominent Alpha Zeta member and he extended greetings from the National Chapter.

OUTING CLUB PLANS STERLING POND HIKE

During these beautiful October days one should enjoy an Outing Club hike, which is sponsored each Sunday. Next Sunday, October 22, the destination is Sterling Pond and mountain. The group will use the University station wagon and private cars, thus limiting the number. Names should be left at the Outing Club bulletin board (north of Book Store) before Friday noon. The first to sign will be able to go.

BLUESTOCKINGS TO MEET ON NOVEMBER 7

Bluestockings, a literary society on the campus, will hold a meeting on November 7 at which the members will study Barrie's literary contributions. The works of two of their own members will be read and discussed also.

Bluestockings, of which Phyllis Williams is president, has done a great deal towards interesting the students in the literature of great authors.

The first meeting of the French Club, Le Cercle Français, will be held Friday, October 20, at 7.30 in Southwick. There will be an election of officers. Everybody come.

A.S.M.E. Hold Banquet At Hotel Van Ness

George Morin Discusses European Industrial Conditions

On Wednesday evening the local branch of the A. S. M. E. held a banquet at the Hotel Van Ness. After the dinner the group sang and were entertained by Professor Aldrich and his accordion. Toastmaster Johnson then introduced Maurice Newton '40, who elaborated on A. S. M. E. plans for the coming year. Then Professor Sussdorff made the gathering acquainted with the speaker of the evening, George Morin.

Mr. Morin, a production engineer of the Jones and Lamson Machine Company of Springfield, Vt., gave an informal talk on industrial conditions in Europe at the present time.

Discusses Munich Convention

To begin his discussion he gave his opinion on the reasons behind Chamberlain's actions at Munich last year. At that time, he said, English production was not geared for war. At the same time, he compared his observations of this summer with that of the previous year. At the present time England has plenty of munitions, modern production equipment, raw materials, and gold reserves to buy foreign goods. The only cause for trouble, Mr. Morin said, was labor's insistence on their union rights, which is not possible under wartime production. For instance, one example he gave was that in the operation of a machine lathe with a lead screw, a class (1) machinist is required to operate the machine. A class (2) machinist, according to labor laws, is not allowed to operate the machine even though he is not using the lead screw.

The second part of his discussion concerned the industrial conditions of France. There he noted plenty of material and great organization of man power. French air production this summer was behind schedule due to old equipment. However, English planes are being used in France. Men and women at the outbreak of war were conscripted immediately, if not for use in the army, for use in the shops. Each one had a definite job planned in advance. As is England, France is not stinting on war materials and machinery.

Shortage in Germany

The final part of Mr. Morin's discussion concerned conditions in Germany. While there he noted the shortage on all kinds of materials. In a big truck factory he found production limited because of the allocation of materials by the government. As an illustration, this particular company has to wait four years for delivery of machines to manufacture government trucks. However, he noted very efficient use of man power in factories. No equipment can be bought outside of Germany except by barter. All of their resources are conserved to the utmost. Being a Vermonter, he was struck by the maximum use of land. There were no fences marking boundaries; each farmer ploughed his land right up to the next and in so doing every bit of the available land was used.

As a conclusion Mr. Morin gave the following statements:

1. Germany's aims were primarily offensive, while England and France's were defensive.
2. England and France have plenty of gold reserves, raw materials and equipment.
3. Germany lacks man power, gold and foreign credit.

The committee, composed of Howard Tatro, Edward Irwin and Lawrence Agan, was appointed to arrange a social evening and program for the next meeting, scheduled on October 25. A special invitation will be extended to all freshman men.

Scribes to Hold Organization Meeting

The first regular meeting of this college year of the Scribes will be held at seven o'clock Thursday evening at Southwick. At this meeting two committees will be appointed, one to form a constitution and another to nominate officers to be elected for the ensuing year. All old members as well as others on the campus who are interested, especially the members of the freshman class, are urged to be present.

The Scribes, a literary society of which Jean Young is president and founder, was organized following Christmas vacation last year and offers its members an opportunity to delve more deeply into literary subjects.

DR. BROWN DISCUSSES SOCIAL VALUES OF WORK

At the meeting of the Pilgrim's Fellowship Sunday night, October 15, Doctor Brown, superintendent of the Mary Fletcher Hospital, spoke on "Social Considerations in Various Vocations."

Doctor Brown described the hospitals in Puerto Rico, explaining the importance of their work down there. He then listed various vocations in the order of the importance of their services to society. He considers the vocation of teaching to be the most important and the work of a doctor second. He placed the lawyer at the bottom of the list.

The main theme of his speech is well summed up in the following sentence: "You should not only give but you should also share."

Mrs. Elder will start meeting her class as scheduled on Tuesday, October 17. All who have not already turned in their enrollment card are asked to bring them to the first meeting of the class.

Eighteen Girls Seek Co-ed Major Title

Winner Will Reign At Military Ball

The following is the list of girls selected by the Champlain Sabers to compete for the honor of 1939 co-ed major:

1940—Jean Harshbarger, Catherine Clark, Marjorie Bell, Claire Rock.

This year there has been a slight change in method of voting for the campus co-ed major, an annual event at U. V. M. First the freshman and sophomore military men will nominate two girls from each class from the list selected by the Champlain Sabers, honorary senior military society. These girls will be nominated on Friday and Saturday mornings at military classes. Then from this group of eight girls the entire student body will have the privilege of voting for the one who they believe is most entitled to reign as co-ed major, and the final winner's name will be kept secret until some time during the Military Ball. At this time the girl selected is presented with a saber, and thereafter presides at all outstanding events held by the military department.

Twelve Students Reach Mt. Mansfield Summit

Twelve hikers scanned the lofty heights of Mount Mansfield, Sunday, October 15. The group hiked to the top by the Half Way House trail and went down to the stone ski hut for lunch and tea. There was an inch of snow covering the summit and without the sunshine the air would have been very cold. After lunch the group divided, six going a half mile to the Nose and the rest traveling across to the Chin. All returned by way of the Sunset Ridge trail. The scenery was especially beautiful for the snow-capped mountain was a sharp contrast to the colorful valleys below.

A truck brought the weary hikers back to Burlington. C. L. Nussbaum '41 was in charge of the hike.

A.I.E.E. to Meet Wednesday, October 18

The first fall meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will be held Wednesday, October 18, at 7.30 p.m. in the Fleming Museum Auditorium.

Through the help of the General Electric Company the sound movie, "Excursions in Science," has been obtained as a special feature. This picture is an amazing display of the latest scientific developments in one of the world's greatest science centers, the General Electric Laboratories.

Besides the picture program and regular business meeting it will be necessary to elect a new secretary-treasurer to replace Melvin Philips '40, who transferred to Annapolis this fall.

All electrical engineers are requested to attend and bring fifty cents for their annual dues. Others are cordially invited.

PROF. YOUNGERT SPEAKS TO COLLEGIUM

Last Sunday night, October 15, Professor Youngert was the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Collegium. The topic of his speech was "Tools." By the use of analogy he explained how we could use our physical, mental and spiritual tools to best advantage.

Hard Workers All

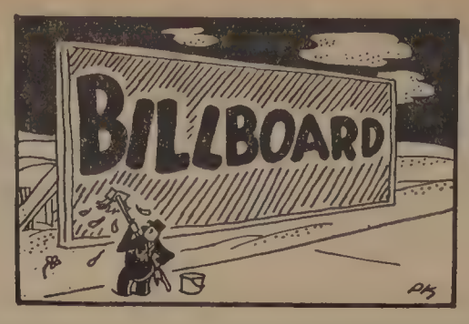
In almost every issue of this publication can be found stories praising the work of those men who represent the University on the athletic field. Now the stories deal with football and cross-country. Later on it will be basketball and after that baseball, tennis and track.

So too it is with the other organizations on campus for the majority of them receives mention during the year at some time or other. There is one organization which, although richly deserving of the highest praise, is usually forgotten when compliments are being distributed. This organization contributes much to the success of a large percentage of college activities and its cooperation is never lacking in any proposed undertaking. We are referring now to the R. O. T. C. band and to the fine work they do for the benefit of the University.

The student body sees the band at football, basketball, and baseball games, and at Kake Walk and on various other occasions. But most of them do not see or are they aware of the long hours of practice put in by the members of the band. During the first few weeks of school the band met ten times a week. Five days a week at 7.30 each morning they gather together for an hour and at 4.00 each afternoon they got together for another session. Such a schedule must have been difficult to follow, especially during men's rushing. Many of the band members are freshmen who at that time were trying to orient themselves in their now surroundings. Some of the other men in the band, like so many students at Vermont, are compelled by financial reasons to do part-time work in order to remain in school. Yet they carry on in the face of these difficulties. Such unselfish devotion to the University should not go unnoticed. Theirs is a shining example of what school spirit can be and we commend them highly for their effort.

We should not fail to mention the splendid work done in the past by Joe Lechnyr, leader of the band, and by Ralph Percival who served last year as assistant band leader. Both of these men have worked hard and long at the task of organizing and instructing the band and deserve much credit for the results obtained.

United, They Yet May Stand



It was recently called to our attention that when the notice announcing the Sunday afternoon meeting of campus organizations at Southwick was printed last week the society which called the meeting neglected to invite the Independents. We wish not only to apologize for this oversight but also to state the case for the Independents.

According to unofficial reports more than fifty percent of the student body at Vermont is eligible for membership in the Independent organization. However, in spite of the low membership fee (fifty cents a year), only about thirty students are active in the organization.

We assume that in most cases financial reasons prevent students from going fraternity. If this is so these same students should avail themselves of this opportunity to band together in an organization which offers many of the advantages of fraternity life at a greatly reduced price.

It is true that the Independents have no house in which to hold their meetings and other functions but we understand that they have permission to use Fleming Museum for the purpose of holding meetings. Last year there was considerable talk of a house for the Independents but we have heard nothing this year on that score.

It seems too bad that more students do not affiliate themselves with this body for it seems reasonable to believe that if only half of the Independent students were organized and paying dues they could soon afford to rent suitable quarters and accomplish other worthwhile ends. We urge non-fraternity men to consider this alternative to fraternity life.

Every girl who signed up for Y. W. C. A. work at the Elizabeth Lund Home is requested to put a copy of her afternoon schedule in the ballot box in the Y room. Important!

Additional violinists are needed for the Chapel and University Orchestras. Anyone interested in trying out should see Professor Kirby of the music department. Members of the Chapel Orchestra receive pay.

Vermont Songs and Cheers

Champlain

(While this U. V. M. classic is sung, every man rises to his feet and removes his hat.)

Sing a song, a rich refrain,
And let echo swell the strain
To our lake, our loved Champlain,
Lovely Lake Champlain.

CHORUS

Sing a song, a rich refrain,
And let echo swell the strain,
Lovely Lake Champlain.

Mirrored mountain's craggy crest,
Waves before the storm-winds pressed
Cannot rob thy beauteous breast
Of its charm, Champlain!

E'en the sunset's golden glow,
Given back from Mansfield's brow,
Makes thy face still fairer now,
Ever fair Champlain.

When we think of college days,
When we sing our college lays
He will not forget thy praise,
Our loved Lake Champlain.

Words by C. W. Fisher '84.
Music by C. S. Putnam '82.

Vermont Victorious

High o'er the waters of Lake Champlain
Waves the Green and Gold,
The emblem aspiring to wondrous fame
In all tradition told,
Now we remain to uphold the name
Of Vermont, strong and true,
So to keep all things we love at U. V. M.
Is up to each of you.

CHORUS

Let's fight for Vermont,
Let's fight for Vermont,
For our Alma Mater dear,
Let's fight for Vermont,
Let's fight for Vermont,
Whose sons have ne'er known fear.
We will tear up our mighty rivals
And we'll pile up score on score.
Come, boys, let's fight, fight, fight, for old Vermont,
For Vermont evermore.

This Week at Southwick

Tuesday at 7 p.m. the boys' dancing class for beginners will be held in the ballroom. It is not too late to join this class if you register soon.

On Wednesday afternoon from 2.30 to 4.30 Mrs. Bickford will be at Southwick. This would be a grand opportunity to talk with Mrs. Bickford about your hobby. If you are expert in some type of handicraft, or would like to become so, it is very probable that classes can be organized. They would provide fun as well as instruction.

Yearling Gridders Score, 13-0, Over Dartmouth Jayvee Eleven

Because two plays clicked perfectly, the Kittens clawed over the heavy Dartmouth J. V. line by the comfortable margin of 13-0. No last-minute Frank Merriwell was needed, as the yearlings' first touchdown came in the second quarter, and this last session score fell in the category of excess profits.

Beaulieu's 30-yard runback of the visitors' punt put the ball on the 18-yard stripe. McArdle skirted around end for a good four yards. Parker picked up another through center. Third down—four yards to go—McArdle took the pigskin from Parker, on a reverse, plowed through tackle behind fairly good interference, and crossed the line standing up. Sanders' boot for the extra point, Beaulieu holding the ball, went between the cross-bars.

After McArdle's kick-off, the Green team ran the ball for a first down on two power plays. But it was of no use as the half ended.

Early in the game Kolodza intercepted a pass, weaving his way for 25 yards up to the 30, but in the next three plays the freshmen were unable to gain and were forced to kick.

McKelroy received Chernanski's kick-off deep in his own territory; Dartmouth punted out of danger on the first down. Beaulieu maneuvered around the right side for 5 yards. McArdle plowed through center for 2. The latter's kick was bocked by Schott, captain of the opposition, and a J. V. guard pounced on the ball, resulting in a 30-yard loss. After Wood and Parker halted the Green team on two reverses, the Hanover men tried a couple of passes, the last of which fell just short.

Neither side could advance the ball in the succeeding plays. Again the powerful Dartmouth line, by far the superior, cracked in and blocked McArdle's punt. But the home forces recovered the ball, and after Beaulieu dodged would-be tacklers for a dozen yards, and McArdle rolled off one more, Buck booted. Running down fast, Hennessy halted the runner on the 40-yard marker.

Each team tried for another four downs and the quarter ended with the spheroid on Vermont's 32-yard stripe, the enemy on the offense.

The J. V's advanced to the 22, but the home line would permit no further penetration. McArdle got off a beautiful punt much to the relief of the rooters.

Wood's block of the Dartmouth boot set the stage on the 22-yard line for the touchdown. The ball was snapped to Beaulieu, who hurled a 15-yard pass to Hennessy; the latter whipped a lateral to Sanders, afterward blocking for him, and the quarterback lithely loped over the goal line. His educated toe failed as the ball went beneath the cross-bar.

Outstanding in the contest were Beaulieu, whose runback precipitated the first touchdown. He must have eluded at least six tacklers running back his interception. McArdle's kicks were blocked principally because the line did not hold; in general he played a bang-up game. Hennessy and Wood were consistent tacklers.

Vermont Uses Only 12 Men

Mules Send in Alternate Squads to No Avail

Employing but twelve men, ten of whom played a full sixty minutes, Vermont's eleven remained undefeated by holding Colby to a scoreless standoff at Waterville, Me., Saturday.

Vermont's minute squad surprised by forcing the play throughout. Colby assumed an unaccustomed defensive rôle.

A driving rain slowed up the game. The Catamounts missed up on three scoring opportunities, being called upon to halt but one Colby threat, and that a meager one.

As in both previous games, Johnny Spasyk's punting was a large factor. The sophomore signal caller was hitting targets at forty-five yards all day.

John Sabo's charges missed Norm Strassburg's savage tackling. Strassburg was unable to fill his right guard slot because of a badly injured ankle. A similar injury, not completely healed, kept Misty Rice, center, out of action. Vermont's only substitution was rangy Cliff Long, who went in to replace an injured Boots Lawrence. Lawrence recovered in time to play the second half, but Sabo decided to save him, since Long's caliber of play was not inferior.

After a drab first half, Vermont made two quick advances into Colby territory. Both threats were thwarted, however. The Mules recovered a fumble on their 12-yard line to stop the first, and a few minutes later Frankie Taylor's fourth down field goal attempt from the twenty went wide.

What was perhaps the Cats' best opportunity came in the battle's closing minutes. Taylor emerged from a horde of players with an intercepted pass, but two of his mates, stumbling in the mire, blocked his path and prevented him from gaining a clear field.

Vermont's defensive play was brilliant. The touted Mule ground attack went completely amiss when confronted with the Cat forward wall, and Vermont's secondaries showed marked improvement in pass defense, stalling Colby's air raids from the start. The Mules' best view of pay dirt was from the 34-yard line. Two elevens alternated for Colby, but neither could make headway.

Offside penalties were the only semblance of shady playing as the teams fought hard and cleanly.

Varsity Cross-Country Loses to Dartmouth

Final Score 22-36; C. Webster Places First

Hindered by a strange course and true Indian trickery the varsity cross-country team suffered its first loss of the season Saturday afternoon at Hanover. The final score was Vermont 36, Dartmouth 22.

As is becoming the habit, Charlie Webster took first place by a substantial lead of (37) thirty-seven seconds. The next two Vermont men to arrive were Fred Webster and Capt. Harry Ketcham in sixth tnd seventh positions respectively. Between Charlie Webster and Fred came a block of four Dartmouth runners. Undoubtedly it was this quadruple Indian combine that gave the meet to Dartmouth.

It seemed evident that this combine was effected by the peculiarities of the Hanover course and the crafty method used by Coach Hillman to bottle up his opponents.

The starting line at Hanover at the edge of a three-hundred-foot clearing. Past the clearing, the course is run through the woods on a narrow, winding path. At the crack of the gun, all Dartmouth men sprinted across the clearing and made their entrance into the woods before most of the U. V. M. runners. Once in the woods, the faster Dartmouth men strike a steady, fast pace while the slower ones bunch together and hinder the faster opponents from passing on the narrow trail. In this way, the fleeter Indians pile up a lead that can't be broken by the time the bottleup adversary gets into the clear.

Having been warned of the Dartmouth method, the two Webster boys flashed away at the start and succeeded in getting through with the leading Dartmouth runners. Charlie stayed right behind the pace-maker for two miles and then permanently took over the lead at the beginning of the third mile. Burgess and Ketchan who are slow starters but fast finishers ran their usual style and considering the already discussed running conditions, placed very well. Williams of Dartmouth who took fourth place is a veteran from last year's frosh team and has placed fifth in an Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. meet for frosh harriers. Wonson who took fifth place for Dartmouth is Hal "Chief" Wonson—leading Indian hurler of last year's baseball season. There is no doubt that Dartmouth has a fine bunch of cross-country runners this year. In fact Coach Hillman says it is the best team he has had since he has been coaching cross-country.

Coach Post says, "On the whole, we did pretty well. However I would have liked to have seen that combine of the four Dartmouth runners broken up. As usual we received the excellent Dartmouth hospitality." The team was met on arrival by two Green Key men and the track manager who stayed with them all the time. After the meet the visitors were taken over to the gym to watch a play-o-graph of the Navy-Dartmouth game, were given the use of Dartmouth swimming pool and were taken to supper at the cafeteria in the new dormitory.

Frosh Harriers Shade Green

Being more fortunate than their varsity brothers, the frosh harriers defeated the Dartmouth frosh 28-30. Althought Dartmouth took the first two places, the baby Catamounts took the next five places, giving them the meet.

Colby Holds Vermont Scoreless

There is only one thing—a Vermont victory—that could have made us feel any better than we did Sunday morning when we looked at the New York Times and saw in none-too-large and none-too-black letters that "Colby Ties Vermont 0-0." We rather figured that, Colby being the small college powerhouse that it is this year, if the Catamounts and Colby did battle to a scoreless finish the headlines would read to the effect "Plucky Vermont Eleven Holds Colby to Scoreless Tie." Instead we scan through page four of the Times and discover that Vermont must be rated a plenty classy team this year in small college circles. At the moment of writing this column all we know of the game is that material garnered from a hasty perusal of several of the better Sunday morning sport sheets. In case you men were busy Sunday sleeping off the effects of a good time at the Interfraternity dance or you women were busy sleeping off the horsey effects of a khaki week-end we'll review a few of the main points. Obviously the game was featured by marvelous line play and equally marvelous kicking. Both teams were in scoring position once. The Colby threat came in the second quarter when the Maine men thrust not too deeply into Vermont territory to be repulsed by an intercepted forward pass. In the third quarter, the Catamounts tore off a few first downs and found themselves on the Colby 16. However, Colby tightened its defenses and finally Frankie Taylor attempted a field goal which flew slightly wide of its mark.

Trivia

Fuzzy Evans' yearling team looked plenty good against the Dartmouth Jayvee eleven last Saturday afternoon. . . . The backfield in particular. . . . The line wasn't too outstanding, but that might easily be attributed to the power and weight of the opposing Green line. . . . Last year's frosh line was probably better. . . . But the '43 backfield seems definitely superior to last year's group. . . . Characteristic of Fuzzy's teams, there were always men in the same colored shirts running ahead of the ball-carrier and clearing the way. . . . Sanders showed up particularly well in this latter department. . . . He blocks like Pike Trigilio. 'Nuff said. . . . Beaulieu set up the first touchdown by virtue of a beautiful return of a kick. . . . His broken-field running was one of the fine points of the game. . . . Incidentally, he plays an equally proficient brand of basketball. . . . McArdle contributed some excellent boots despite being bothered immensely by a stream of Dartmouth linemen ganging up on him. . . . Cherazini, the frosh center, is the sparkplug of the line. Kladya, the left end, turned in an excellent performance. . . . Exceptionally fast, he intercepted a pass, blocked a kick, and managed somehow to get into every play. . . . The guard and tackle positions may be a trifle weak, but as we said before this weakness may be attributed to the power of the Dartmouth forward wall. . . . We liked the precision with which the frosh carried out their wide-open plays. . . . That forward-lateral play that resulted in the second touchdown was beautifully executed. . . . The varsity is going to have one sweet tussle come Saturday. Union tossed Middlebury on the seat of its collective pants 31-7 over the week-end and despite the Panthers' reputed weakness any team that bowls 'em over like that must be plenty good. . . . Charlie Webster's individual triumph at Dartmouth could be subjugated only by a Vermont victory. . . . Where such a slight young man get such marvelous stamina and drive is beyond us. . . . But we like it.

INTRODUCING

SHIRLEY TREAT

No sir, you'd never believe it. Believe what? That 5 ft. 5 in. (5 ft. 7 in. in high heels, mind you) could have as much energy as two dozen chorus girls. Yet it's true and the way Shirley travels around, that energy must be unlimited. Most of her energy is spent on a sense of humor that would make Simon Legree smile.

"People get the wrong impression about me," said Shirley; "they think I'm nuts, but I'm not, I'm just potty."

She lives in Fairfield, Conn., but the mail goes to Bridgeport because she lives in Fairfield and if anyone should ever look her up in Bridgeport they wouldn't find her because she does live in Fairfield.

Shirley has started to wear silk stockings again. No more boycott of Japan. "I'm boycotting Germany now. No more beer," she declared.

The length of classes is an intriguing subject to Treat. "I think the classes should be held during the ten-minute period and the rest of the time used for promenading." And she ain't lyin'!

Shirley is the recording editor of the CYNIC besides being a member of the French Club, Dramatic Club, and the University Players.

Crazy about dramatics, Shirley has acted in about five college plays.

"But I'm sick of being a moron in the plays. Why can't I get killed or something?" (A typical Treat remark if there ever was one.)

Likes and dislikes are important in Shirley's young life. Some of her pet dislikes are the sweet essence of agriculture that blow over from the University Farm. Also dictators (the rats), mothballs (they stink), and winter squash (it goes the wrong way).

Pet likes are roast beef, lobsters, French fries, hotdogs, knitting (especially dropping stitches), Glen Miller and modern dancing (she flits).

But all of her life isn't a bowl of cherries, not by a long shot. Shirley is the dormitory flatfoot (policeman to you) at Slade Hall. Says she, "I'm what keeps the burglars away—can you blame 'em?"

Living on the third floor has done her a lot of good. "You see, it's very simple, I keep my girlish figure by galloping up and down the stairs." Gosh, that's better than eating Rye Krisp says I.

Well, the conversation continued like this for about two hours with all the honors going to "la belle" Treat. Every half hour was intermission time—I'm sure we must have drunk a gallon—not cider, just plain water. This was when Shirley got real confidential—incidentally this is strictly off the record—Brown has such nice people.

Before leaving Shirley gave me her foolproof method for studying (she's a dean's lister, so take notice):

"I study with the radio on full blast and with something in my mouth—that is, other than my tongue. I generally have a book handy."

Seriously, though, Shirley has an enviable record at the University in activities, good marks, and, oh yes, fun.

Rice Institute has been given a whale for its biology department.

The Band Wagon

By BOB JOHNSON

Disc-ussion

Leading the way for Decca is the J. Dorsey outfit, "So Many Times," "Body and Soul," "Comes Love." Personally we go for Helen O'Connell singing "All of Me," but we're not responsible for any femmes swooning over the Bob Eberle vocals.

Another Decca favorite, Woody Herman with "Love Me" as sung by Mary Ann McCall—and we'd love to—and on the hepper side, the old favorite, "Rosetta."

For Bluebird, Glenn Miller has two sides in typical fashion—"In the Mood" and "I Want to be Happy." You'll think them terrific.

Under the same blue label Ziggy Elman plays prettily "You Took Advantage of Me" and "I'm Yours"—two oldies. Zig has our sympathies after the pushing around he's taken with Goodman—always for the band—he's that kind of a guy.

For Victor, Bob Zurke's new Zwingcats give out with two high tunes, "I Found a New Baby" and "Devil and the Deep Blue Sea." Great piano a la Zurke.

On Columbia, don't miss the new Jack Teagarden waxing of "Aunt Hagar Blues" and "I Swung the Election."

Orchids

From the long-suffering musicians to a Canadian drummer who is perfecting an automatic boxing glove to handle all persons requesting "Beer Barrel Polka." One of the Nobel prizes should be headed in his direction.

To Down Beat for coming out twice monthly; now we'll be able to get more info into these columns—and we ain't lyin'.

To Jimmy Lunceford, who was forced to cancel his fall European tour only to be handed an engagement at New York's Paramount—the first sepian swingsters to be featured there. Missing is Sy Oliver, trumpet and arranger, who has turned his hand to arranging alone.

Localights

The WCAX quartet featuring "Father" Jarvis, piano; Ray Dorey, bells; Rollo Beaupre, drums; and Ray LaBelle on clary. The combine is handicapped by poor acoustics and the hangover of the bells. The boys are really solid, however, and play some lovely stuff.

Two months ago (today—at this writing) a local drummer and favorite with the fellows was listed as a drowning fatality. Lest we forget—here's to you, "Iggy."

The New Vermonters—a strictly non-college band with the exception of co-leader Cliff Agnew—is apparently doing a fine job, being well received. Is there dissention in the ranks?

The Catamounts are being featured after the "Little Army-Navy Game" at Norwich next week-end. For novelties and small jobs the outfit is split into two groups of five—each known as the "Kittens."

Dig the Debussy sides at the Carnegie room—he had a lot on the ball and we don't mean 8 ball.

Back to Big Bands

We're sure you're not missing the Jan Savitt Shufflers—truly tremendous!

Swing—long tabooed—has invaded the Rainbow Room under the baton of genial Al Donahue. Four years ago he was just a corny fiddler, but how he's learned—but definitely!

Bob Crosby, long noted for his dixieland, plays some of the sweetest stuff these ears have heard. Bill Butterfield, trumpet technician, has beautiful tone, technique and feeling. You'll surely agree if you caught their afternoon broadcast from the fair last week.

Philbert's here, biting my ear—reminding me that this is where we came in and until next week we're off—riding on a blue note and singing the praises of Krupa's new alto man, Neagle, I believe his name is.

Honor Societies Sponsor Novel Pep Rally in Gym

U. V. M. to Burn Union In Effigy Friday

At last we're really getting to work on our old familiar problem, school spirit, which is of such vital importance to this campus at this time of year.

Sunday afternoon all the honorary societies held a joint meeting with the cheerleaders and representatives of the fraternities and sororities at Southwick. C. H. Schofield '40 presided.

Big plans were made for the pep rally this Friday evening, which is going to prove more novel and peppy than ever before! The order is somewhat reversed and begins at 6.45 instead of 7.00, when the band, forming at Converse Hall, visits all the dorms, and raises the students to arms, in other words, to a snake dance downstreet! Then everyone is coming back to the gym for speeches, yells, and songs. Representatives of different honor societies will say a few words as well as the coaches and members of the team. Another novelty—a girl cheerleader will probably be added to the squad and give new vim and vigor to our lung exercising.

Other new ideas have been formed It may prove more satisfactory for everyone to stand while cheering, give us more volume. When you're huddled on the bench, you're so conscious of the cold, you can't even remember a yell. It has been arranged for the student cheering group, which has been so successful, to sit nearer the fifty-yard line at the game.

Fraternities and sororities are especially urged to teach their pledges the songs and cheers.

CYNICS, containing these songs and cheers, will not be issued Friday afternoon, but will be distributed at the pep rally.

The big rally will wind up with the burning of Union in effigy outside the gym.

So learn your cheers, and everyone out! Forget your hour exams for a few hours and remember Union may be a hard team to beat!

Sir Wilfred Grenfell To Speak Sunday Evening

Sir Wilfred Grenfell, missionary and author, who has done much for Labrador in establishing hospitals and other institutions there, will be guest speaker at the Methodist Church vestry Sunday evening, October 22, at 7.30. Doctor Grenfell should be of special interest to all Vermonters for he is connected with the Dog Tavern, a mission in Ferrisburg for raising funds for the poor Labrador fishermen.

The Episcopal and Methodist Church College Groups are acting as co-hostesses in entertaining the two Congregational Groups but all students are invited to attend.

OUTING CLUB PLANS SEASON'S LAST HIKE

Sunday, October 22, the Outing Club will be taking advantage of this gloriously invigorating weather with a trip out to Smugglers' Notch and Sterling Pond. They'll leave the cars below the notch and climb in a direction northeasterly from Mt. Mansfield, then down to the pond, which is situated directly in the mountains. They will possibly also climb the Madonna and return on a different trail. If so, it will mean that they've gone over what's known as the Elephant's Head, overlooking Smugglers' Notch, and down into the notch itself. The trip, particularly at this time of the year, is bound to be a success, and there will no doubt be many hitting the trail for escape in nature's beauty from gruelling hour exams.

Let's Cheer! Boys Cheer! We're Winning This Year

In an attempt to do its part in the concentrated campaign to reawaken the dormant school spirit here at Vermont, and in the hope of uncovering some fine talent, the CYNIC is sponsoring a contest which we hope will supply the school with new and livelier songs and cheers.

The rules of the contest are as follows:

1. All members of the student body are invited to submit any number of songs and cheers.

2. Each song or cheer must be submitted on a separate sheet of paper, which must also contain the name, class numerals, school address and telephone number of the contestant.

3. Each contributor submitting a song must include the source and, insofar as possible, the tune.

4. The contestants will be judged by the members of the Senior staff and two prizes will be awarded by the University Stores—one for the best song and another for the best cheer. These prizes will be awarded in proportion to the number of responses we receive. Therefore, the more entries, the greater the value of the prizes!

5. All contributions must be mailed directly to Georgianna L. Steinman, contest editor, at Grassmount, by November 4.

6. The winners' names and their contributions will be published in the November 7 issue of the CYNIC.

Champlain

(While this U. V. M. classic is sung, every man rises to his feet and removes his hat.)

Sing a song, a rich refrain,
And let echo swell the strain
To our lake, our loved Champlain,
Lovely Lake Champlain.

CHORUS

Sing a song, a rich refrain,
And let echo swell the strain,
Lovely Lake Champlain.

Mirrored mountain's craggy crest,
Waves before the storm-winds pressed
Cannot rob thy beauteous breast
Of its charm, Champlain!

E'en the sunset's golden glow,
Given back from Mansfield's brow,
Makes thy face still fairer now,
Ever fair Champlain.

When we think of college days,
When we sing our college lays
He will not forget thy praise,
Our loved Lake Champlain.

Words by C. W. Fisher '84.
Music by C. S. Putnam '82.

Vermont Victorious

High o'er the waters of Lake Champlain
Waves the Green and Gold,
The emblem aspiring to wondrous fame
In all tradition told,
Now we remain to uphold the name
Of Vermont, strong and true,
So to keep all things we love at U. V. M.
Is up to each of you.

CHORUS

Let's fight for Vermont,
Let's fight for Vermont,
For our Alma Mater dear,
Let's fight for Vermont,
Let's fight for Vermont,
Whose sons have ne'er known fear.
We will tear up our mighty rivals
And we'll pile up score on score.
Come, boys, let's fight, fight, fight, for old Vermont,
For Vermont evermore.

Words and music by
Furman '19, Sharples '21, Killick '22.

TRI-DELTA HOSTESS TO NATIONAL PRESIDENT

Delta Delta Delta was hostess to Mrs. T. Dayton Davies, international president of Tri-Delta, Monday and Tuesday of this week. Mrs. Davies has been making a tour of eastern chapters of Tri-Delta during the past six weeks. Vermont and Middlebury were her destination this past week.

While in Burlington, Mrs. Davies was honored by a tea given by the members of the active chapter at the Chapter House on Monday. Barbara Butler '41 and Patricia Nadeau '42 were in charge of arrangements. A color scheme of silver, gold and blue was carried out in the decorations. In the receiving line were Mrs. Davies, Mrs. Pike, president of the Alliance Chapter, Mrs. Swerdfger, housemother of the Tri-Delta House and Kathryn Wortheim '40, president of the active chapter. Mrs. Slocum, Mrs. Collins, and Mrs. Lutman poured.

Tuesday evening Mrs. Davies was entertained by the Alliance at the Chapter House.

Mrs. Davies left Tuesday evening to visit Alpha Chapter of Delta Delta Delta at Middlebury.

Ira's Folly To Appear in November

It is planned that the U. V. M. pictorial, Ira's Folly, will come out the week preceding Thanksgiving vacation. The Thanksgiving issue will be the second college pictorial to be published at school here, and from advance reports it will be valued as a photographic record of the fall season.

With the idea in mind of putting out a record of all the main events of the year in pictures, the editors plan to publish three editions—one in November, one in February, and the third in May. This first issue will feature autumn student activities. There will be features on football, Outing Club hikes, and several fall dances.

In case some of you students don't know, Ira's Folly is the brain child of L. B. Whitcomb '40 and R. M. Story '40. It is an official periodical and is run solely by student members. Although the staff photographers are constantly taking shots about the school, if you have any pictures or suggestion which you think should be used please contact Dorothea Smith '41, telephone 508.

Many wideawake universities all over the country publish pictorial magazines about their school life and if the student body at U. V. M. cooperates, ours will soon rank with the best.

MORTAR BOARD SOCIETY PLANS TUTORIAL BUREAU

Following up its plans for service, Mortar Board, the senior women's honorary society has started its annual tutorial bureau. If anyone is having difficulty with her studies, it is a good idea to get some help now, while it is early. In case you would like to take advantage of this opportunity which Mortar Board is offering, please write your name on the sign in the "Y" room.

The tutors in the subjects will be girls who are recommended by members of the faculty.

Members of Mortar Board urge any girl in difficulty with any of her subjects to straighten out the trouble now; so that it will not be so frightening at midyear time.

Betty Myers '40 is in charge of the tutorial bureau.

FASHION SHOW AND TEA TO BE HELD SATURDAY

A fashion show and tea will be given by Delta Delta Delta sorority in the ballroom at Southwick, Saturday, October 28, from 4.00 to 5.30 p.m. Two representatives from each sorority and two Independents have been invited to serve at the affair. Debaters Start Season With Practice Debates

Team on Three Day Trip This Week-end

Serving as the first "scrimmage" of the season, a mixed practice debate on the subject "Resolved, that the Federal Government should own and operate the railroads" was held Wednesday at 4.00 p.m. before the combined varsity and freshman debate squads.

The very informal debate combined the regular orthodox style of speaking with the newer and increasingly more popular "Oregon style," whereby members of each team are allowed to "cross-examine" members of the opposition.

M. Levin '42, A. Wolk '41, and J. Cohen '42 each presented six-minute constructive speeches for the affirmative, and Eleanor Brody '40, Gwendolyn Blanchard '40 and Gertrude Johnstone '40 each did the same for the negative. Miss Johnstone then cross-examined the affirmative team and A. Becker '41 followed by questioning the negative. Miss Johnstone then concluded the arguments for the negative and Becker summed up the affirmative case.

A similar debate will be held next Wednesday, October 25, on the same subject, but at that time the women's affirmative will clash with the men's negative speakers.

Women Leave on First Trip

The women's varsity debating team, consisting of Eleanor Brody '40, Gwendolyn Blanchard '40 and Gertrude Johnstone '40 left Burlington early this morning for a three-day trip. The team will meet Bates College at Lewiston, Me., tonight and Keene Normal at Keen, N. H., tomorrow night.

Miss Johnstone and Miss Brody will uphold the negative of "Resolved, that the Federal Government should own and operate the railroads" at Bates. Miss Blanchard and Miss Johnstone will argue the same question at Keene.

This trip marks the opening of an active debating season for the women's varsity debating team.

Freshman Women Take Student Union Exam

The required test on Student Union rules was given to all freshman women, transfers and other women students who had not taken it and are under the jurisdiction of Student Union. It was held on Wednesday, October 18, in Williams Science Hall. All students failing to get a mark of 85 per cent or better will have their nights out taken away for one week, and will repeat the test until they pass it. Needless to say, there was a good deal more studying for this test than for the majority of hour exams. Following are the questions which appeared on it:

1. (a) State the Vermont Pledge. (b) Give first verse and chorus of "Champlain."
2. Definition of social evening. How many nights are given to your class?
3. Regulation necessary to gain permission to attend social functions at men's colleges.
4. In case of illness what procedure is followed?
5. True and false:

(1) After a 12.30 engagement one does not have to return to her place of residence.

(2) Any students planning to be out of town for a period of five hours or more must register with house president, house fellow, or house director.

(3) Each student must register herself for a social evening.

(4) Men callers may be received in dormitories before 12 o'clock noon.

An honor list will be made up of all girls receiving a grade of 90 per cent or above.

President Guy W. Bailey

No action on the part of the student body could be more appropriate than that proposed for this evening when the students plan to pay tribute to the ailing president of this institution. Nothing is more dear to the heart of President Bailey than the University of Vermont, its students, and their interests. Considering these facts, we doubt that any other gesture by the students could have been more appreciated by him.

Every Vermont student should keenly feel the honor they are sharing at this opportunity to pay their respects to President Bailey. Here is a man who, having been ordered to bed by his physician, yet refuses to yield to his illness but characteristically insists on carrying on with his work. Possessed of a tremendous energy, he ordinarily performs the labors of a veritable Hercules and even now he accomplishes the work of an able-bodied man.

An executive of remarkable ability, he has in the past not only carried on his duties at the University but also engaged in a multiplicity of other tasks. His has been a life of service for the benefit of his fellow men.

After earning the right to wear a Phi Beta Kappa key he graduated from the University of Vermont in 1900 with a Bachelor of Arts degree and immediately embarked on a philanthropical career. From 1904 to 1908 he served as a member of the Vermont House of Representatives and in 1908 he was appointed Secretary of State and maintained that position until 1917. In June, 1920, he was elected President of the University of Vermont although he had acted in that capacity for some time previous to that date. Since then he has guided the University's course with unerring skill. His kindness, consideration, and thoughtfulness have earned for him a lasting place in the heart of all Vermont students.

Evidence of his standing in his profession is seen in the fact that several colleges in the state have conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Although business activities have demanded a good deal of his time, he yet finds time between his other duties to act as president or director of several public institutions. Several lodges and clubs proudly point to him as an active member.

To sum it all up, here is a man of outstanding ability who holds nothing more dear than the welfare of the University of Vermont. On behalf of the student body we extend to him our wish for a speedy recovery.

Smoke and Fire

Recently we have again heard discussions on a condition which has prevailed at Vermont for some time and we feel it our duty to clarify the situation with a few comments. It is a question of the University's policy in regard to women's smoking.

After considerable discussion Mortar Board Society last year gathered the facts in the case and presented them to the administration with the request that co-eds be allowed rooms in the various dormitories in which they could smoke. This proposal was received and now awaits a convenient time at which the President can take the matter up with the trustees.

While the request seems easy enough to grant there are several complications which arise. Most of the University buildings are not fireproof and although a room might be fireproofed in each of the women's dormitories, it would entail considerable expense. Not only that, but the University is able under existing regulations to enjoy a fairly low insurance rate on these buildings. Should the present policy be changed, these rates would undoubtedly be raised accordingly.

We feel that these points should be considered before agitation is again begun in earnest.

Campus Comment

To the Students of U. V. M.

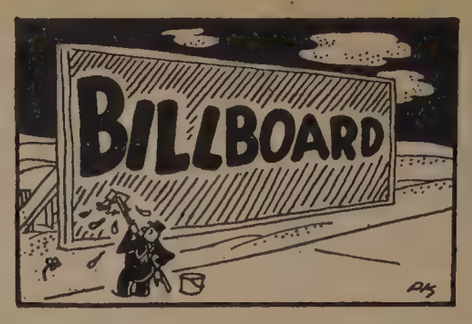
Especially dedicated to those students who are definitely not possessed with school spirit.

Let each and every one of us become diagnosticians. Our most important case is U. V. M. afflicted with the disease of "Non School Spirit." Now let us try to examine the patient to determine the cause of this malady and all arrive at the most logical solution as to what treatment to prescribe. It is necessary that we all start out with the same object in mind, and all use the same method, in order to obtain the best results.

Each fraternity and sorority is an organized group working for their separate causes, but scattered throughout the entire system of U. V. M. Helpful bodies in their own little locality but not strong enough in themselves to remedy this condition of Non-School Spirit. Nevertheless, if they combine with one another, strive for the same goal, fight the same battle, they can definitely start the student body on the road to recovery. Helpful bodies with a hard fighting nucleus (the honorary societies) will give us our first bit of good medicine. But in order to cure this affliction we have to treat the diseased parts first. Because treatment administered to the healthy parts will definitely do more harm than good.

As I have pointed out the fraternities, sororities and honorary societies are helpful organized bodies, the sore diseased parts are the disorganized individuals, namely, the now active Independent men and women of the college. Independent men and women who compose approximately 59.2 percent of the student body. Now with a body so disrupted it is neccessary to begin with the sore spots, the unorganized men and women.

Give them the treatment they deserve, rub them with the ointment of organization and school spirit and watch the results. Thirty half organized men cannot do this alone. We cannot compel the Independent men to attend our meetings, we can only invite them. Our funds are low and our powers are limited. We need Your support not your advice. Don't feel, you fraternities and sororities, that you have done your duty by just inspiring your own organization to show more school spirit; you have just begun. Take your organization first, teach them the cheers and songs they should know (upperclassmen first) then start with your pledges. After your own organization has done this get together with the other organizations on the campus and go after the sore spots. Organize the unorganized and have one organization representing school spirit. Concentrate your efforts on the unorganized men and women and with a little patience and continued effort the case of U. V. M. school spirit sickness will be cured.



Please do not misinterpret me, I am not begging or asking the fraternities or sororities to organize the Independents. I am merely presenting a plan to you whereby we can build up school spirit at Vermont.

At the meeting called by the Boulder Society Sunday afternoon I presented my plan for improvement in school spirit. Most of the representatives present at that meeting misinterpreted my statements. Now I hope I have at least made myself clear on this matter of organization. I do not want the other organizations to organize the Independent Society I want them to help me organize the non-fraternity men and women. I fully realize and know that the Independent men and women are disregarded by the fraternities and sororities and to a great extent by the college itself. To overlook about 59.2 percent of the student body is a grave mistake. They compose more than half the student body, they are scattered throughout the city and are unorganized. If the oversight is continued then the meeting of last Sunday may be regarded as a failure.

School spirit is not a material thing which one may carry around and show it to others. It is not an exterior exhibition of long power but it is something within the individual himself; which can only be brought to the surface by inspiration and love of U. V. M. Make each student realize he is a member of the college and our purpose and duty has been completed.

Before the meeting Sunday I was conversing with a member of one of the

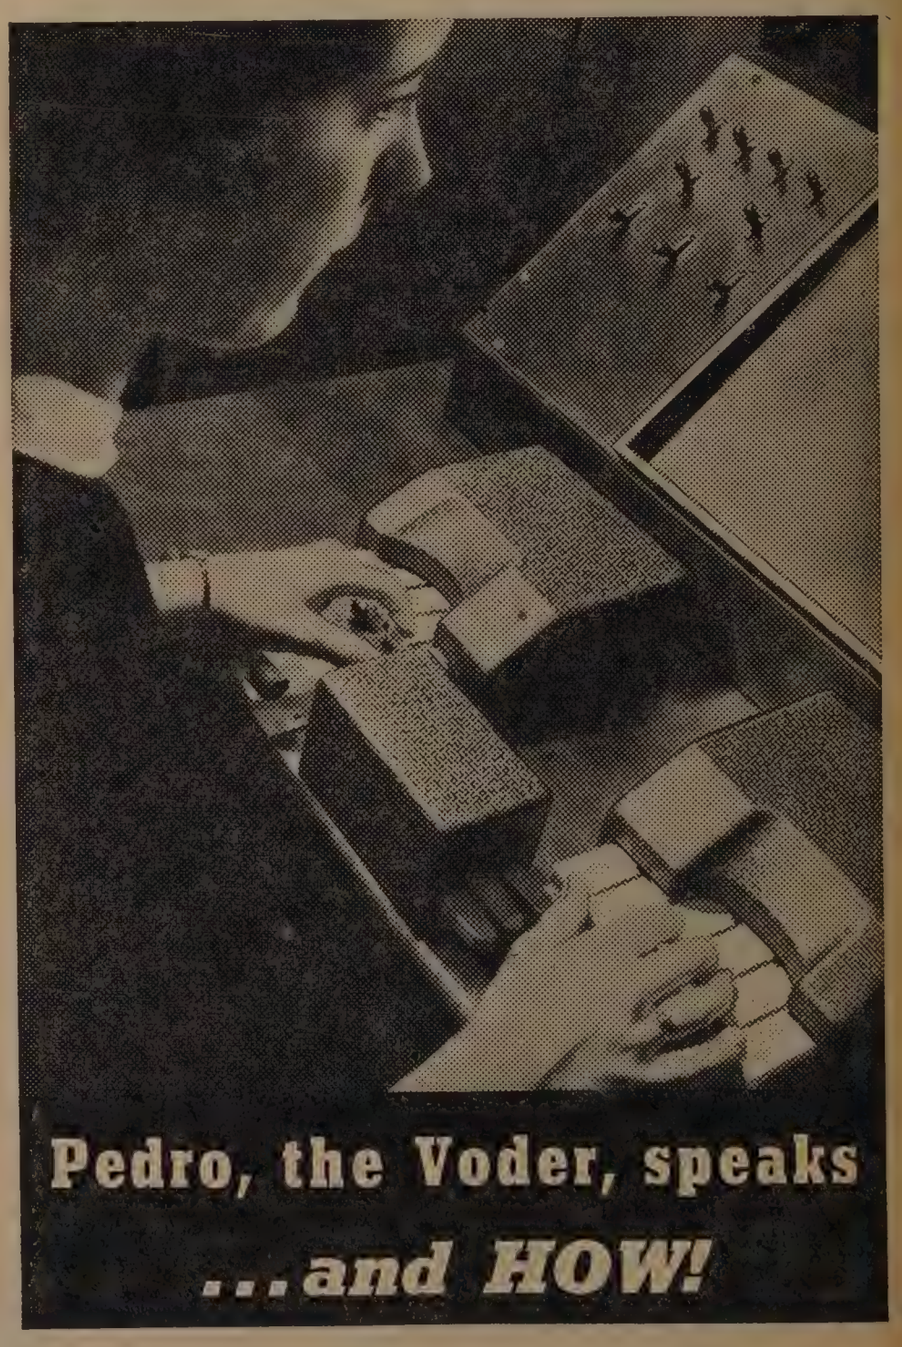
AGGIE CLUB HOLDS MEETING



The Aggie Club held its second meeting of the year on Tuesday, October 17, at Morrill Hall. A large number of members were present.

A short business session was held after which the members were entertained by "Hez" Webster, a graduate student from Cornell. He gave a very interesting talk concerning his experiences at that university.

There will be a meeting of the Press Club Tuesday evening at 7.30 in Southwick.

Unexcused absences will count as cuts in the system of limitation of membership.

Refreshments will be served.

THE VODER, nicknamed Pedro, is an amazing electrical device which actually talks—the first machine in the world to do that!

By pressing keys, singly or in combination, a skilled operator can make Pedro talk in almost human fashion—with varying inflections and in either a man's or a woman's voice.

The Voder is an outgrowth of fundamental research in speech sounds, articulation and voice reproduction being carried on at Bell Telephone Laboratories. Such studies have led—and will lead—to constantly improving telephone service for you.

A telephone call home would be appreciated. Rates to most points are lowest any time after 7 P.M. and all day Sunday.

Noted Adventurer and Scientist Lectures at Memorial Auditorium

By Janet Miller

Lucius Beebe, noted adventurer and natural scientist, gave an illustrated lecture on the Galapagos Islands, at the Memorial Auditorium, on Monday evening, October 16, at eight o'clock.

Mr. Beebe related to an appreciative audience, with the aid of slides and moving pictures, the remarkable wealth of material he accumulated on his visits to the Galapagos Islands, which later led him to write his first book, "The Galapagos."

The Galapagos itself is a group of islands lying off the west coast of South America. Due to the northern currents and the cold trade winds that result, the islands themselves consist of deserts and barren wastes. The razor-edged lava formations and the thorny vegetation presented an interesting background for Mr. Beebe's study of wild life. Several scientists, including Mr. Beebe, believe the Galapagos to be not islands heaved from the sea, but an extension of a plateau having some connection with Panama.

Mr. Beebe's party made two expeditions, the latter in the Arcturus, a sturdy freighter, which, as Mr. Beebe humorously put it, made him the owner of the fifth largest yacht. This well-equipped vessel took the party through the Panama Canal and out into the Pacific Ocean. Here Mr. Beebe illustrated the interesting and unusual nocturnal feat of extending a light four feet below the surface of the water, and studying the marine life thus attracted. During the day every effort was made to obtain new species of fish by dragging nets from a suspended platform. It was on one of these occasions that the smallest sailfish on record was caught, being only one and three-fourths inches in length and weighing only a few grams. The largest of these has been known to weigh sixty-five pounds.

Island of Birds and Reptiles

Finally, across the blue waters the first of the Galapagos was sighted, Tower Island—"land of birds." Here were to be found fowl of every description, and their tame and friendly attitude greatly helped the scientists in the study of their remarkable existence. Like all the others, this island has a lava formation and every plant is protected by a thick armor of thorns.

But birds are not the sole inhabitants. Lazing under infrequent patches of shade and scurrying over the hot lava are remnants from the "age of reptiles," lizards, which in many cases reach a length of four feet. These four-footed monsters are not as ferocious as they look, although they do emit a cloud of steam which somewhat coincides with the ancient accounts of dragons who breathed fire.

A few tortoises frequent the rocky wastes, but there are very few as they practically have become extinct, having been a chief source of food for whalers. Galapagos, meaning "vanished tortoise," could not have been a more suitable name for this group of unusual islands.

Among many interesting birds described were the gannets or boobies, a bird related to the pelican. There are two species, the red-footed and the blue-footed gannets. The former prefer to roost in trees, while the latter prefer to roost on the ground. There is no known reason why these distinctive kinds show such marked difference in the choosing of a nesting place.

Sight of an Eruptive Volcano

While on Tower Island, Mr. Beebe related that they saw an old volcano erupt suddenly and spill its boiling, sticky mass over the crater rim and start its six weeks' journey to the sea. This was an exciting adventure and marvelously illustrated.

The last of the Galapagos to be visited was Hood Island, the most southern of the group and the only known nesting place of that strange bird, the albatross, made so famous by Coleridge in his tale, "The Ancient Mariner." The albatross has long slender wings and remarkable powers of flight. Here also were found the long-horned wild goat and the sea lion. The former, on a few occasions, treed several members of the party. Mr. Beebe went on to remark, that although the Galapagos is on the equator, the penguins, inhabitants of the Arctic regions, find it cold enough to make it their home.

Having succeeded in their undertaking, the scientists gathered their specimens of underwater life and species of strange birds, filed their data, bid farewell to the Galapagos and returned home to place their material in aquariums and zoos for the public to enjoy.

This brought an unwelcome end to the fascinating tale. Mr. Beebe truly succeeded in making his adventures live again, through his easy manner and descriptive account, added bits of humor, and accompanying illustrations, and I feel that everyone who attended the lecture will agree the evening was one well spent.

The World Front

The sinking of the Royal Oak last week has given rise to some doubts on the part of British sympathizers as to whether or not the blockade of Germany is working. "Is it not becoming more and more evident that the submarine campaign is breaking the blockade?" they ask. To this question one cannot give a positive answer but according to reports from Germany the spectre of hunger is hovering over the land. Time reports that people are waiting in line for food and that what they get is usually only the slimmest of rations. The restaurants are about the only places where one can get enough food. Everywhere the country is beginning to realize the fact that a war is being fought and that here, perhaps, is that last supreme sacrifice that Hitler has been preaching for so long.

Misplaced Idealism

How eager are the people for this war? According to many the German people are eagerly pressing on behind their leader. But last week there was joy in Germany when false reports of an armistice were circulated in the country. Does this not indicate that the German people are just as eager for peace as the other nations? Doesn't it just indicate a certain weakness in the Nazi juggernaut of war? Of course, it may be argued that the joy at news of the armistice was joy because the Allies had capitulated to German demands but such a spontaneous demonstration must bespeak some degree of anxiety for peace on the part of the German people. No matter how one looks at it, the German people are just as much haters of this war as the Allies. The misfortune of the Germans is that as a race they have always been quick to follow a leader, to take commands, to be marshaled into battalions. In the last war it was the Kaiser, in this war it is Hitler. We look for the day when the Germans can free themselves from the double yoke of militarism and dictatorship. We look for the day when Germany will no longer be a synonym for ruthless aggression.

It is to be hoped that if Germany is brought to terms by the Allies that a just peace can be reached, a peace that will be permanent and sterile of those seeds which grow into future wars. It may sound foolish to sound an idealistic note here. But when all is said and done the fact still remains that even if a thing is unattainable one can still work for it. Out of the last war grew the League of Nations and, ineffective as it was, it proved one thing, that cooperation in the international community is possible if the nations are willing to forget their prejudices. It may be too much to hope for a permanent peace to result from this second world war, but it is an ideal to work for. A just peace would be the first step in that direction.

As we are going to press news reaches us that German planes have attempted a raid on England. Is this precursor of an unlimited warfare? We wonder if Germany can afford to unleash such an attack. In a modern war of revenge no city is safe. Berlin is just as vulnerable as London or Paris. The unleashing of bombing attacks would only result in the increased determination of the attacked people. Madrid proved that a determined people do not weaken even under the most extreme terroristic methods. We hope that nations now locked in battle realize the implications of a savage, unbridled air war. The future of Europe is hanging on a thread; it would not take much to divide the strands of that thread and plunge the entire continent into a state of barbarism.

CHURCH GROUPS TO HOLD COMBINED MEETING SUN.

The young people's group of the First Church will meet with the College Street Church and Methodist Church young people's group at the Methodist Church on Sunday evening, October 22. The speaker is to be Sir Wilfred Grenfell. This is an opportunity that no one should miss. Let's all be there.

Cynic Chatter

The new season's crop of dizzy remarks was opened with a bang by the history student who after a long discussion on Richard the Lionhearted, wished to know if that worthy was one of the new fresmen. . . . Incidentally U. V. M. scored a signal victory yesterday when frosh Bob Montgomery in the famous Weeping River turkey shoot scored a possible (100 x 100) at 100 yards with a group of ten shots measuring only 1⅜ inches across. . . Who is this man Montgomery? He's sensational.

Story of the week: One frosh approaches another for a cigarette. The approached one extended a case but on opening it he discovered that there was but one cigarette left. The chiseler unperturbed took his victim's last butt; but when the slightly resentful frosh offered his lighter, he waved him aside and produced a match and said with vast scorn, "What do you take me for, a beggar?"

Orchids to the fairer sex for that snappy reply to the men's letter in last week's Cynic. . . . However there is some truth on the other side of the argument. We heard a senior say, rather plaintively only today, "Why the dickens didn't I go to Norwich?" "I'd like to meet some of those pretty Vermont co-eds they're always talking about." . . . So would we, brother, so would we. . . . Speaking of military, if they start the next war at six we're going to miss it. . . . We're glad it's unanimous.

Westy.

WE ARE NOT ALONE

By "Pooh"

Then there are windows. "Oh, Windows," you'll say. "They're made of glass, and can open and shut, and every once in a while, when they get a bath, you can see through them."

Oh, but wait a minute! I feel the urge for fisticuffs creeping up on me. Look. Just look. (Ah—we have a point here! Look.) This is the point: Can you look? In other words, are windows made for looking, or are they made just to let in light? What about those funny frosted windows that no one could possibly see through without enlisting the aid of a brick? Good heavens—they wouldn't be made that way unless they were meant not to be looked through. (Or maybe the machine made a mistake. Darn it. There's another angle to be considered.) There are too may angles!

Suppose a window is to be looked through. Is the looking supposed to go on from the inside out or from the outside in?—or both? If you have curtains and shades on it, what's the point of having a window at all, since you're so bound to squelch its lookingness?

Oh, by the way, I'm not advocating the abolishment of windows. Horrors! That would be very inconvenient. Because think of all the things you can do with windows! They're superb for going out of, especially if a drain pipe happens to be near by. Sudden emergencies have a habit of blowing up. I know. They're the perfect temptation for the suicidally inclined. What could be more useful than that, I ask you!

Also, if the windows happen to have screens stuck on the outside, and you're searching vainly and violently for an argument, have you ever considered the approaching delivery man through the screen? The idea is to argue with yourself furiously as to whether he happens to be negroid or caucasian. There's a big future in that! It's very inspiring.

So neglect not the insignificant window. Remember that he is a very complex individual and must be handled with care. Poor misunderstood one! He has his little thoughts and his little ideas, and his little arguments, too. He even has a sense of humor. Witness the wintry morning, and you standing in front of him clad solely in pajamas—and he not budging!

Greetings and salutations, Little Window!

Employers May Now Call for 'Wisconsin Trained' Men, Women

Madison, Wis.—Through the cooperation of the Wisconsin Alumni Club of Milwaukee, and the state employment service office in that city, employers may now stipulate "Wisconsin trained" when asking for job applicants, since State University graduates will be so listed.

Rubens R. Clas, president of the group, and Walter Carson, club secretary, emphasized that the new plan is not meant to replace present placement activities of the University but rather to supplement them. A special folder of available "Wisconsin trained" persons will be prepared.

Museum Notes

Among recent gifts to the museum of special interest is a very beautiful Chinese red silk shawl with gold embroidery, given to the museum by Miss Katherine Wolcott, the niece of Robert Hull Fleming. Another gift of Miss Wolcott's, a special display at the museum now, is a Scotch bagpipe, a bag covered with Stuart tartan, the right to wear it being limited to the House of Stuart, the royal family.

Two very interesting pieces of firearms, given by Mrs. Weston of Essex Junction, include a large target pistol in a case, the unique feature being a detachable shoulder piece shaped like the butt of a rifle. The other one, an early type of revolver, called the "pepper pot" or "diringer" pistol, has an automatic cocking device, and all six barrels are cast as one piece. Mrs. Weston also gave the museum a flageolet, a musical instrument like the clarinet, which was used by her grandfather in the Plattsburg band in the 1840's.

The museum at Dartmouth College made the Fleming Museum the gift of a plaster cast of the footprint of a dinosaur. The original was taken from the roof of a mine in Wyoming and is now in the American Museum of Natural History in New York City. The foot of this gigantic reptile was two feet across.

Elbert F. Corwin of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute has invented a new device to aid airplane safety. It determines the "up and down" winds high in the skies.

Vermont Encounter Undefeated Union

Hammerstrom vs. Taylor; Both Clubs Undefeated; Union Reserves Plentiful

A ruggged Union College eleven, well stocked in every department, invades Centennial Field tomorrow for a game with Vermont.

Coach Nelson W. Nitchman's undefeated garnet gridsters boast experience, weight, and solid reserve strength. Union's hard-running fullback and captain, Sam Hammerstrom, leads a squad that is three deep at all points.

Union has a record identical to Vermont's. The New Yorkers have won two and tied one, trimming Haverford 41-16, and Middlebury 31-7, with a 7-7 draw with Trinity sandwiched between.

Hammerstrom has accounted for four touchdowns thus far. A big boy, he plunges excellently and is no gentle lamb on defense.

The garnet line consists of seven seaworthy veterans, all of whom played in the 7-7 Vermont-Union affair at Schenectady a year ago.

Nitchman's backfield is well rounded. The ball carriers, in addition to Hammerstrom are Jack Vannier, and a flashy sophomore Eddie Enstice. There are two competent signal callers, Dick Balsh, and Lee Sherman. Balsh will start in, his shoulder, hurt in practice a fortnight ago, responds to treatment as expected. Balsh handles a blocking punt, as does George Norris, who also does some running. Norris counted thrice against Haverford. Other backs to probably see action are: Bob Davis and Fred Papice.

The line will have Jim Bothwell and Jack Guibert at ends, Wally Baker and Augie Kluge at tackles, Johnny Krull and Dick Kearns at guards, and Bob Malloy at center. Line reserves are: Diamond Marotta, end; Bob Baker, center; Lynn and Goldblatt, guards; and Moe Weintraut, tackle.

The status of Norm Straussburg, ailing Catamount guard, is still in question. Vermont coach, John Sabo says that Strassburg will be available for duty tomorrow and may even start. Strassburg was out of last week's Colby game, Elmer Nichols replacing him.

Sabo isn't underestimating Union in the least.

"They have a good strong bunch," he said, "almost every man played against us last year. Their line is tough and this Hammerstrom will go places in anybody's ball yard."

Golf and Tennis Matches Reach Finals

Hampered by rain and cold weather, the fall intramural golf and tennis tournaments, directed by Archie T. Post, have been late in being completed. The golf tourney is over, being won by E. J. Keenan; one more tennis match remains, that being the championship tussle between G. Stanley and F. Potter.

By putting his way to victory over S. C. Palmer, E. J. Keenan reached the golf finals. Perkins attained the upper bracket by disposing of J. Houpis and L. Brown, the latter by default. All matches were played at the Waubanakee golf course. Matched play rules were used and each contest was eighteen holes in length.

With the championship yet to be decided, the tennis summary so far is as follows: West defeated Pine, 6-4, 6-1; McCabe defaulted to Les Brown; W. Harvey vanquished C. Barber, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4; F. Potter eked out an 8-6, 6-4 decision over A. D. Clark; G. Stanley, Jr., overwhelmed D. Zwick, 6-0, 6-1; W. Black disposed of A. Caldwell, 6-0, 6-4; C. Kimball defaulted to R. Smith; West over Brown, 6-1, 6-3; Potter took Harvey, 6-1, 6-8, 6-0; Stanley beat Smith, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4. In the semi-finals Potter defeated West, 6-1, 8-6, and Stanley drew a bye. As soon as these adversaries decide on a time the winner and champion will be crowned.

Director Archie T. Post, who deserves much praise for his efforts, expressed his disappointment over the small number of boys in the tournament and looks forward to a larger group in the spring.

Yearling Gridsters Riddled by Injuries

Chernanski Quits School; Otto Injures Ankle

With two victories under its collective belt, the frosh eleven will rest this week in preparation for the Green Mountain game which is to be played November 28 at Centennial Field.

Lady Luck played her vaccilating rôle in the Dartmouth game, as Bud Otto injured his ankle bringing down a runner. Swift, who has shown well in practice, will probably start in his place. Although it seems likely that Otto will be out for the remainder of the season, he may see action in the Middlebury game. Coach Fuzzy Evans has suffered still another blow, as Phil Chernanski, husky center, has left school. According to reports, Hennessy will be shifted from end, with one of the backs brought down to alternate with Fleming or Kolodza.

The yearlings' practice sessions have been spent running the Union plays against the varsity. Although the blocking in the J. V. game was improved, the line is still weak in that department; as a consequence, the forward wall has secluded itself from the rest of the team and has devoted a couple of drills towards perfecting this shortcoming.

McArdle may now be used as a punter, having done a good job in last Saturday's game. Beaulieu has proved himself to be the most effective ball carrier on the team.

The Green Mountain game should be a tough one, as the home team is still undefeated; but the two weeks' practice before the encounter should make all the difference.

Interfrat Football Nears Semi-Finals

On Tuesday afternoon a cold, shivering, fumbling Delta Psi team beat an Independent team, who were in the same straits, to the tune of 13-0. This places the Delta Psi team in the semi-finals. They will now have to face the winner of the Sigma Phi versus Kappa Sigma game. This was the first game for the Sigs and Kappas, as they have drawn byes thus far.

On October 6, the Independents beat the Sigma Nu's in a free-scoring game 37-25. This gave them the opportunity of playing the Delta Psi's which turned out disastrously for them.

In the other bracket the S A E's drew a bye, and then played the Phi Sigma Delta team who had won a forfeit from the Owls. The Phi Sigs downed a supposedly superior S A E club 14-7. This places the Phi Sigs in the semi-finals.

The Phi Delts drew a bye and are now awaiting the opportunity of playing the T E P's who defeated the A T O's 18-13 in a well-played and thrilling game. This game was not decided until the T E P's scored a touchdown on the last play of the game, giving them the win. The winner of the T E P versus Phi Delt game plays Phi Sigma Delta in the semi-finals. This game is scheduled for October 27.

The other semi-final game is scheduled for October 26. The championship game will be played October 31, weather permitting.

The cold weather which now faces us is certainly a distinct disadvantage to the competing teams in this tournament, but this cannot be helped.

Varsity Crushes Union 13-7

The Vermont Catamounts won their first intercollegiate football game since November, 1927, when they crushed Union 13-7 last Saturday. In their first home game of the year the Cats displayed a fighting line led by Capt. Bump Levine. With the aid of a Union fumble and a beautiful runback of a punt by Gardner, Vermont rang up two scores and clinched the game.

Fraternities Start Touch Football League

Touch football, as an interfraternity sport, will begin tomorrow with Kappa Sigma scheduled to meet Sigma Nu. Fraternities are now practicing the game and learning the rules which differ from heman football.

Spirit of '39

In just a few short hours several hundred or more loyal supporters of the Green and Gold will follow the band through the streets of Burlington, congregate at the home of President Bailey, sing "Champlain," and then proceed to the cage where the rally will be held. The only difference between this rally and the pep rallies held last fall will be that tonight the cage will overflow with humanity. Strange that we should make so dogmatic a statement? We don't think so. In these past two weeks Joe Vermont has completed his metamorphosis and has traipsed about the campus chock full of the good old college spirit, humming "Vermont, My Vermont" in his husky baritone, and mumbling his unprintable opinions of anyone who cavorts in a Union-suit. It seems that Joe, along with plenty of other Vermontians, has suddenly realized that he likes this here institution of learning. Maybe it's the women, or perhaps he enjoys the squirrels chirping on front campus, or perhaps the tradition of the Old Mill, or the streaks of white on Williams Science Hall, or "Mamie Riley," or the chapel at night, or the delightful shadows on the library late in the afternoon. It could be any of these factors or any of a thousand others that some day will cause Joe to think of his alma mater with a nostalgic tear in his eye or a quiver in his throat. At any extent, Joe has awakened and is suddenly fiercely proud of Vermont and all it signifies, which is why Joe Vermont will be in noisy presence at the pep rally tonight and why Joe Vermont will trudge home from Centennial Field late tomorrow afternoon with an aching set of vocal cords, regardless of whether he's deliriously happy because of another Vermont victory or because his team put up a grand fight, but were overwhelmed by superior forces. Joe Vermont has found himself!—A. D. W.

Nota Bene: So many people have beseeched us to make predictions on the Vermont-Union game tomorrow and all the other big fracases that we feel it our moral obligation to comply with their requests. Therefore:

Frosh Harriers Trounce Big Green '43

The freshman cross-country team scored a tremendous upset Saturday when they loped to a 25-30 victory over the Dartmouth freshmen. Although Dartmouth's Harmon and Hanlon finished one and two in that order, the Vermont squad showed tremendous team power and excellent team balance by placing five men in a row, Hoyt, Buttles, Ladd, West, and Crown in positions three to seven, respectively. This clinched the meet for Vermont with the remaining Vermont men battling it out to see if they could boost the Dartmouth score still higher.

An interesting feature of this race was the use of a different system for scoring the runners. Previously, the scoring method used permitted only the first five men of each team to determine the results of the meet. In this meet, a displacement system was used. This enables a runner, who is not good enough to run among the first five of his teammates or who has an off day, to still help his team to win by placing among the first twelve runners.

To displace means to allow one man to move another back. By the old method of scoring, if the winning team placed from third to seventh, as in this meet, that was all that could be done in the way of point scoring by that team, providing no other member of the winning team came in among the first ten. That would cause the other runners to lose heart as they have nothing to fight for. Under the displacement method, if a runner from the winning team places eleventh, although he does not add to his team's score, if the next runner is from the opposing team and is the fifth man in for his team he will be credited with twelve points towards the score for his team instead of eleven as under the old rules.

Out of the twenty-odd men who competed in the race, not one was troubled with stomach trouble, a turned ankle or any other common injury. This was indeed unusual.

Vermont certainly outdid itself in the meet as the freshmen were running without the services of their key runners. St. Mary has been out quite a while with an injury of the metatarsal arch of the right foot. It is doubtful whether he will be available for the coming meet with Waterbury High School. Only time will tell.

Cross-Country Teams Take to Road

Tomorrow afternoon will find both the freshman and varsity cross-country teams in action out of town. The frosh will compete with Waterbury High School at Waterbury and the varsity harriers will be racing the Bowdoin team in Brunswick, Me.

This is the second cross-country meet ever to be held against Bowdoin. Last year, when the first meet was held here, Bowdoin emerged victorious with a score of 26 against Vermont's score of 36. It is expected that several of Bowdoin's ace runners of last year have graduated and that the tables will be turned this time. There are three Vermont men running this year who placed high in the previous meet—Frank Livak, Harry Ketcham, and John Rogers, who took the first three places in that order. Adding to these the Webster brothers, it makes Vermont's chances of victory very strong. Coach Post took along nine varsity men to compete at Brunswick. They are: Capt. Harry Ketcham, Charlie and Fred Webster, Frank Livak, Jack Burgess, John Brosseau, John Rogers, Harold Wilson, and Dick Clark. The teams left Friday afternoon and expect to return Saturday night to Burlington.

While the varsity is fighting it out at Bowdoin the frosh dalers will be pacing the high school lads at Waterbury. The U. V. M. frosh have beaten W. H. S. in the last two meets and from all indications will chalk up the third straight win this year. Last year Jack Burgess, Charlie and Fred Webster took the first three positions in that order and the year before Lynnie Gallup came in first followed by Frank Livak. It is reported that the Randolph Aggies have beaten W. H. S. twice this season, and having beaten the Dartmouth frosh last Saturday, the U. V. M. lads ought to follow suit.

Coach Archie Post is very pleased with the showing made by the team, and said that the excellent team balance should enable the squad to win meets. Coach Post attributes their excellent showing to an extra week's start in practice sessions.

It certainly looks as though Coach Post will have a fine nucleus around which to mold his next year's varsity team.

Ten Years Ago In Sports . . .

The Vermont Kittens will meet Clark School in their second start of the season. After crushing Montpelier Seminary last week 12-0, Coach Berry's men hope to continue their march toward a successful season.

Boston University toppled a game but crippled Catamount team last Saturday by a 27-6 score. Vermont tallied on a 24-yard pass, Halligan to Segal, when Segal was illegally blocked by a Boston University player. Bump Levine, Vermont leader, played a fine defensive game. Fumbles played a major part in Vermont's defeat.

Coach Milt Aldrich's harriers have had extensive workouts lately and give promise of a successful season. Hadley and Wilder are the outstanding varsity men and are counted on to gain laurels for Vermont.

The Green and Gold hope to surprise Union on Saturday afternoon with their newly discovered aerial attack. The Winant-to-Halligan combination proved so effective against B. U. that Coach Rattan hopes it will prove the margin of victory over Union. The team is now in much better shape with most of its casualties of previous contests fully recovered and rarin' to go.

Prospects for a successful fencing team this year are very bright. A large squad has already reported and with Lieutenant Merrill of Fort Ethan Allen secured to coach, the outlook is very promising. Matches scheduled to date are with the Montreal A. A. A. at Montreal and with Norwich.

The Catamounts won their first intercollegiate football game since November, 1927, when they outfought Union 13-7 last Saturday. In their first home game of the year the Cats displayed a fighting line led by Capt. Bump Levine. With the aid of a Union fumble, Vermont drove across for their first score. Gardner set up the second tally when he twisted his way to the 1-yard line on a beautiful runback of a Union punt.

Coach Berry is whipping his undefeated Kittens into shape for their coming battle with Fort Ethan Allen, scheduled for Saturday afternoon. Little is known of the soldiers' strength since this is their opening game. The Kittens will be at full strength and hope to gain their second victory.

The Green and Gold of Vermont will clash with the Norwich Cadets on Saturday in the twenty-fifth annual renewal of their autumn clash. With Gray Coane lost to the Cadets due to a serious leg injury, the Catamounts are favored to upset Norwich for their second victory.

Vermont Freshmen Suffer 13-0 Defeat By Fort Ethan Allen Eleven

The Vermont freshmen went down to their first defeat of the season, 13-0, before a heavier and smarter Fort Ethan Allen eleven last Saturday. Consistent gains on the ground led to both the soldier scores in the first half. Captain Coburn led a belated attack in the second half which faltered in pay-dirt territory.

prominent fraternities on the hill. Our conversation eventually led to the point whereby he stated in not so many words, that if we organized the non-fraternity men, charged more reasonable dues and eventually rented a place for the purpose of holding meetings, we would be defeating our own purpose and become a fraternity I challenge anybody to an open debate on this subject wherever and whenever they choose to hold it. I will prove beyond a doubt to every fraternity and sorority on the hill, if they so wish it, that this idea is all wrong. I am available at anytime—just call on me and I'll come in person. But first of all you will have to prove to me conclusively that the sore spot, the main cause of the lack of school spirit, is not in the unorganized students of U. V. M. Before you answer my challenge, remember that a fraternity is not only a Greek-letter society.

We are all striving for the same goal. In unity there is strength but with only 40.8 percent of the college organized these is no unity and there cannot be much strength. We the Independents are contented to be left out of most of the social activities on the campus but please look upon us as men and women of U. V. M. Recognize us as students of this college who are capable of being inspired by the examples set before us by you. We are not proud, we will accept your support with all the good faith and spirit we possess. If you the organized groups, will do this then we will realize ourselves that we are a part of the U. V. M. machine.

I have heard many comments in regards to the lack of life on cheers, songs and cheerleaders. First let me comment on the cheers and songs. Ask yourself this question, How many songs and cheers do I know? After you ponder this question, answer this one. Do you know how to cheer and sing? Remember you don't have to be a Huey Long or a John McCormick in order to cheer and sing. Our cheers and songs are not too slow or half dead as some students believe—it is the student body who is half dead. In fact about 60 percent of them are in this condition. If the cheers and songs are learned correctly, and if certain words are emphasized at the correct time then our cheers and songs would be O. K. If you don't know how to cheer then ask the cheerleaders to show you how. They will be very willing to do this I am sure. We don't need more cheers we need more cheerers. Now for the cheerleaders. Some people have suggested that we discard some of our men cheerleaders and substitute women. This is a very good idea but the Athletic Council has ruled out women cheerleaders. Also if I am not mistaken, it is the wish of the college authorities that women must not appear as cheerleaders at athletic contests. We cannot hope to have school spirit and college support if we take it upon ourselves to run the college. The college authorities are capable of handling the affairs of the college and do not need the help of any athletic-minded co-ed. The men cheerleaders are enough and if there is sufficient school spirit and support we wouldn't need them either. So give these fellows the benefit of any doubts you may have as to their ability to lead cheers. Give them a little support and they can't help but show signs of rejuvenescence.

Did you ever consider how these fellows feel after they lead a half supported cheer, which reminds me of a groan of a sick cow but not quite as loud? I have. And I'll bet they feel like paralyzed veterinarians.

This part of my letter I address to the Independent men and women of U. V. M. When a student enters U. V. M. he automatically becomes an Independent. But he is free at all times to pledge any organization on the hill. After fraternity rushing all those men who are not pledges to a fraternity are known as Independents. Now it is his duty to join the Vermont Independent Society.

All those who do not become active members are independent Independents. For the mere price of 25 cents a semester an Independent may become active. We made an amendment in our newly-adopted constitution that a non-active Independent may not represent or take part in our athletic contests. This amendment was proposed and adopted for the main purpose of organizing and building up the Independent Society. Out of 333 non-fraternity men last year 30 men become active. Where are the other 303 men? I'll tell you. They are roaming around the campus like lost sheep. They are disinterested in school activities and definitely lack school spirit. The active Independents are sheep who have come to the fold. I'll act as your good shepherd, so come to my fold. This is a formal invitation to all you disorganized pieces of humanity. When you see the notice "V I Tonight," come to the meeting it means I want to see You. Don't let me get away with these insults. Come to our meetings and let me know you have at least resented my remarks about you. If you come once you'll come every time I assure you.

So Independents give U. V. M. your entire support through the organization of the V I, and show the entire college that you really do belong to the Phylum Chor data. Now what is the response of the student body? Have we school spirit? Answer this question by being present at the pep rally tonight. Blow the roof off the cage with your response. I'm sure the college would appreciate it. Cheer the team on to victory Saturday, fill the stands at least once. Now Boulder we let you carry the torch and lead these school spirits and let Taylor carry the ball and watch the team lead Union.

In case S. A. E. and the former K. E. L.'s are interested, their presence is requested at the Pep Rally tonight. I thought you might like to know about the campus activities, since you did not have a representative at the meeting Sunday.

Students know your cheers and songs, and in case you become hoarse Boulder will supply you with cough drops.

WISCONSIN PHOTOGRAPHS VALUABLE DOCUMENTS

Madison, Wis.—Rare books and historic documents, needed for research work at the University of Wisconsin library, but too valuable to be removed are being copied photographically by the State University, according to Prof. Laurence C. Burke, assistant librarian.

Using a miniature camera, the library is fulfilling the needs of definite research projects both here and throughout the country. When Wisconsin research men have need of certain volumes held by other universities, those institutions, instead of sending the material send a film of the desired information. These films are then projected on a screen.

University Student From India Describes Her Native Country

Reprinted from the ALUMNI WEEKLY

Jean of India

You wouldn't guess, if not told, that Jean Stewart, pretty, dimpled blonde junior social science student at the University, came to Burlington all the way from Gordon College, Rawal Pindi, India. Jean was born in Rawal Pindi. Her parents are missionaries, and her father is president of Gordon College. Jean is the student coming from the greatest distance to the University this year.

Jean has learned many American customs which she did not have a chance to observe in Rawal Pindi, and learned them so well that you would find it hard to believe she hasn't lived in this country all her life.

Until she was four, Jean spoke Hindustani, not English. Jean and her sister were in the care of their Indian ayah or nurse most of the time, so it was natural for them to learn the Indian language first. The girls' mother spoke to them in English, and they replied in Hindustani. The first time Jean came to America, when she was four, she learned English. This first American trip and another when she was a freshman in high school were Jean's only experience of America until she came here four years ago to complete her education. Jean studied a year at Horace Mann High School in Brooklyn before entering the University. She hasn't been able to go home for vacations, because the trip to India is a long one.

"We miss a year of school each time we come to America," said Jean, "because the school years come at different times. In India, school starts in March, and graduation comes the first of December."

Jean hasn't seen her parents since entering the University, but they are already planning to come to America to see her graduate in 1941. Last summer vacation Jean spent working as a waitress at Lake Fairlee in Vermont. She says she finds Vermont the most beautiful part of the country she has seen, and compares Burlington to parts of Switzerland, where she spent one summer in school. The scenery is similar, she says, with the city situated on a lake, surrounded by a background of mountains.

Extra Curricular Activities

Playing badminton and hockey, singing in the University choir and glee club, taking parts in plays and the annual opera, dancing in the Lilac Day spring festival—these are some of the activities with which Jean has been busy during her two years at the University. She has been elected house president of her dormitory for this year, has been selected to manage badminton for women on the campus, and is a member of the Dramatic Club. In winning these honors, Jean has displayed the typical energy and versatility of the American college girl. In addition, she can tell many a story of the English school 7,000 feet in the Himalayas where she studied before coming to the United States. There was, for instance, the time when one of the professors shot a leopard 500 feet from one of the girls' dormitories.

"All sorts of animals lived close around the school," says Jean—"lots of snakes, including cobras, and bears and monkeys, barking deer and jackals, and many other kinds." To get to the school at its 7,000-foot elevation, the pupils walked the last three miles, since there is no road for a motor vehicle to travel.

"Of course," said Jean, "you could be carried up in the rickshas or 'dandies,' borne or pushed by natives, but that's sissy stuff." The students climb 1,000 feet every Sunday to attend church. Woodstock is the name of this school, which rates scholastically with such schools in this country as Horace Mann. Its students are of many races. Teachers are often American, coming over to India to teach for three or four years and then returning to America. Some of the teachers, however, are Anglo-Indian.

Coeducation in India

Jean's school in the Himalayas is coeducational, as are most American schools. In Gordon College, however, headed by Jean's father, where he has introduced coeducation, this is a revolutionary innovation. The little Indian girls have never gone to school with boys. Many of them are taken from school as early as the third grade to be married. As time goes on, however, they are allowed to stay longer in school.

The coeducational Gordon College has to face many a problem in schooling together boys and girls who have been used to attending separate schools, and who don't know how to take the new system.

"It's funny to see the little Indian girls," says Jean, "who learn sports with my mother. They run stiffly, trying not to bend their limbs, as they've been taught that such freedom, common to all American girls, is unladylike."

"One question people always ask me," says Jean, "is why I don't have a deep tan, living in a tropical country like India. People don't get tans in India because there the sun is so strong that they have to protect themselves against it. It is customary to get much of the day's work out of the way early in the morning, before the sun gets high, and then to sleep during the middle of the day, coming out again at 5 o'clock."

Asked if she had seen Gandhi, the great leader of the Indian people, Jean replied that she had not, but "he kissed a girl friend of mine, who is now a student in Mt. Holyoke." Gandhi's place in Indian affairs is now being taken by a younger man, she said. Some of the nieces of this man, Pundit Jewhar Lal Nehru, are students at the school attended by Jean, and are taking high honors there, she reports. His sister, the Minister of Education, is the first woman to hold high office in India.

Many Classmates in Amerca

Many of Jean's classmates at Woodstock are now, she says, leading their classes in various American colleges. Fellow students from the school in the Himalayas are now enrolled in Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Northwestern University, the University of Virginia, Mt. Holyoke and Smith. Jean herself has done well scholastically. She takes social science, and is interested in journalism. Until she was eleven, Jean was taught by her mother at home. Jean's father and mother are both botanists, her father holding a Ph.D. and her mother a Master's degree from Columbia.

"In India," says Jean, "America is regarded as a very wicked country. There they get all sorts of movies which have been banned by our censors in the United States."

Jean is in demand as a speaker and has given talks at Hinesburg, Burlington and Milton, where she appeared three times. She has been invited also to speak at Vergennes. When filling such speaking engagements, Jean wears the two Indian costumes which are most commonly seen. One is the sari, a long strip of cloth of five or six yards, which is simply wound around one's middle and draped over the shoulder. This has been called the most graceful of all national costumes. The other outfit, worn by most Indian girls in school and in general use throughout the country, consists of a pair of long full trousers and blouse. A veil is worn on the head. School girls throw this veil back over their shoulders, but brides are required to cover their faces with it.

Man Presented in His Role of Villain

Oft' have we sat on our grandfather's knee, listening to the old bird expostulate on the fickleness of women. On occasion we have gone in for opera and have heard the same theory expounded in "Carmen." Perchance we have come across the lugubrious lover, drowning his sorrow in spirits. But here and now we have a tale which will demand pity from les femmes. We will uncover the male and present him in the villainous rôle; he knows no other. We have reached down deep in the crags and crevices of our cranium to recall this yarn secretly revealed to us by a former member of the Floradora sextet.

It was in the spring of '19 that Turtleneck Tech was holding its "perennial prom." In each maiden's heart was an arrow shot by her lover. In each swain's mind there was but one thought—how much will this watch hock for? One particular campus cut-throat, whom we shall conveniently call Sandy Devine, having given our word never to tell the blackguard's name, had for three years been ingurgitating the affection of Miss Tootsie Pie. Furthermore, in the light of many a moon had declared his grand passion for the selfsame damsel. A happier man could nowhere be found in these green pastures.

Came the night of the shindig and Sandy was busily engaged, studying for a relativity exam. But after a moment's battle with his inner soul he was easily able to tear himself away from his racing form. He oiled his shoes, sewed the removable lapels onto his coat, gargled, put in his best gold tooth, and in general made himself quite the debonair dapper. Hitching up old Bess he trotted out to call for his one and only, Miss Tootsie Pie. What a lovely lass she was in her calico kimona. Sandy wished he had some charcoal that he might sketch her for posterity to gaze at and perhaps remark, "A heavenly dream, a veritable nightmare!"

While dancing he felt surer than ever before that this dimpled darling was after all fate's gift. What lines, what a chassis! You see, he was well up on the idiom of the day.

When he had deposited his weary head on his pillow he could not sleep, so fixed was her image in his brain. After hours of mulling over the subject he was now firmly convinced that Evelyn Everglade should become his better half.

REDUCTION NEEDED IN COLLEGE ENROLLMENT

New York, N. Y.—(I.P.)—"The medieval age had its wandering scholar. We have our itinerant or fleeting scholar," writes Dr. Walter A. Jessup, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, in its Thirty-third Annual Report.

"The day may come when more colleges will perceive that the best job they can do is so much better than is now being done that they will no longer encourage the trek through the campus of hordes of credit hunters who are here today and gone tomorrow. Naturally, the question arises what might happen if some of our colleges were firmly and gradually to reduce their enrollment.

"Such a college could then devote its best efforts to improving its product (the student) rather than 'the institution.' So revolutionary a step would be almost unprecedented. The first lasting result might be to reduce the fleeting, itinerant student to academic, intellectual, and social stability."

A college could assume an entirely different attitude towards its student body if it decided to select five hundred rather than struggle to recruit two thousand, Dr. Jessup maintains.

With fewer to share in "scholarship" funds, adequate stipends could be paid, and these could be based upon need and achievement, and the promise for the future which both imply, Dr. Jessup contends.

Sigma Nu Becomes Hunt Club Saturday

The baying of excited hounds, hunters' horns, huntings, and ditties like—

"A-hunting we will go
We'll catch a fox
And put him in a box
And then we'll let him go," invaded the aural channels of a "scoopie" of the fourth estate. Curiosity, the outstanding characteristic of this class, motivated this reporter to investigate the phenomenon and discovered that at the stockholders' meeting of the Sigma Nu Hunt and Chase Club, Monday night last, plans were made to hold the annual fall dance at the Sigma Nu Hunting Lodge in the Williams Street preserves where no poachers are allowed.

Les Brown, master of the hounds, will be in charge, assisted by Wardens Bill Shea and Wheeler and Johnny Davis, stable boy, who will take care of watering the horses. Hunting licenses, good for one night, will be issued at the door except to stags, who will not be permitted to come due to the fact that this is exclusively a fox hunt.

"The Kittens," calculated to draw the fox in droves, will be protected by a split rail fence, and will play by the light of a brightly burning log fire.

The lodge walls will be decorated with moose and deer heads, pelts, guns, bows and arrows, according to the best traditions connected with the hunt.

We knew it would happen—but we'd hoped it wouldn't. The gulping season has been officially and dramatically opened for another college year—and watch out for your laurels, you "winners" of last year!

First entry in the 1939-1940 derby is Franklin and Marshall College's Jimmy Addy, a frosh from Pittsburgh. For a mere fifty-cent piece (they were getting ten-dollar bills for stunts last year), he calmly swallowed a shaker-full of pepper—and then not quite so calmly sneezed a mighty sneeze.

Camp Depression residents at University of North Dakota believe in elections that hurt the feelings of no one. After electing their president last week, they elected every remaining one of the organization's thirty-six members a vice-president. But, so the vice-presidents wouldn't have to do anything, the president was made secretary and treasurer too!

Colorful Military Ball To Be Held November 4

R. W. Robinson, Champlain Sabres Captain, to Present the Sabre to Vermont's Co-ed Major

With the new school term well under way, the time begins to roll around for the annual Military Ball which will be held November 4. But this year's ball promises to be strikingly superior to those held in the past, and here are the four big reasons why:

1. Co-Chairmen Carl Schofield '40 in charge of finance and Hank Middleworth in charge of production have something up their sleeves.

2. Aforesaid something up honorable sleeves is: An entirely new and different policy for this year's formal Military Ball.

3. This innovation has as its goal to make the ball the most important fall formal. In the past, local bands have played with only mediocre success sometimes. This year a band is being imported to assure the success of the band.

4. The fourth reason is the most important and Jim Carmody and his band is the big cause. Jim and his thirteen-piece band—incidentally, this is the largest band ever to play for a Military Ball—is one of THE up and coming swing bands. Having played on all of the large Boston radio stations, and a long engagement at Marblehead's elite night club, the "Fo'castle," is ample proof of the importance of this band.

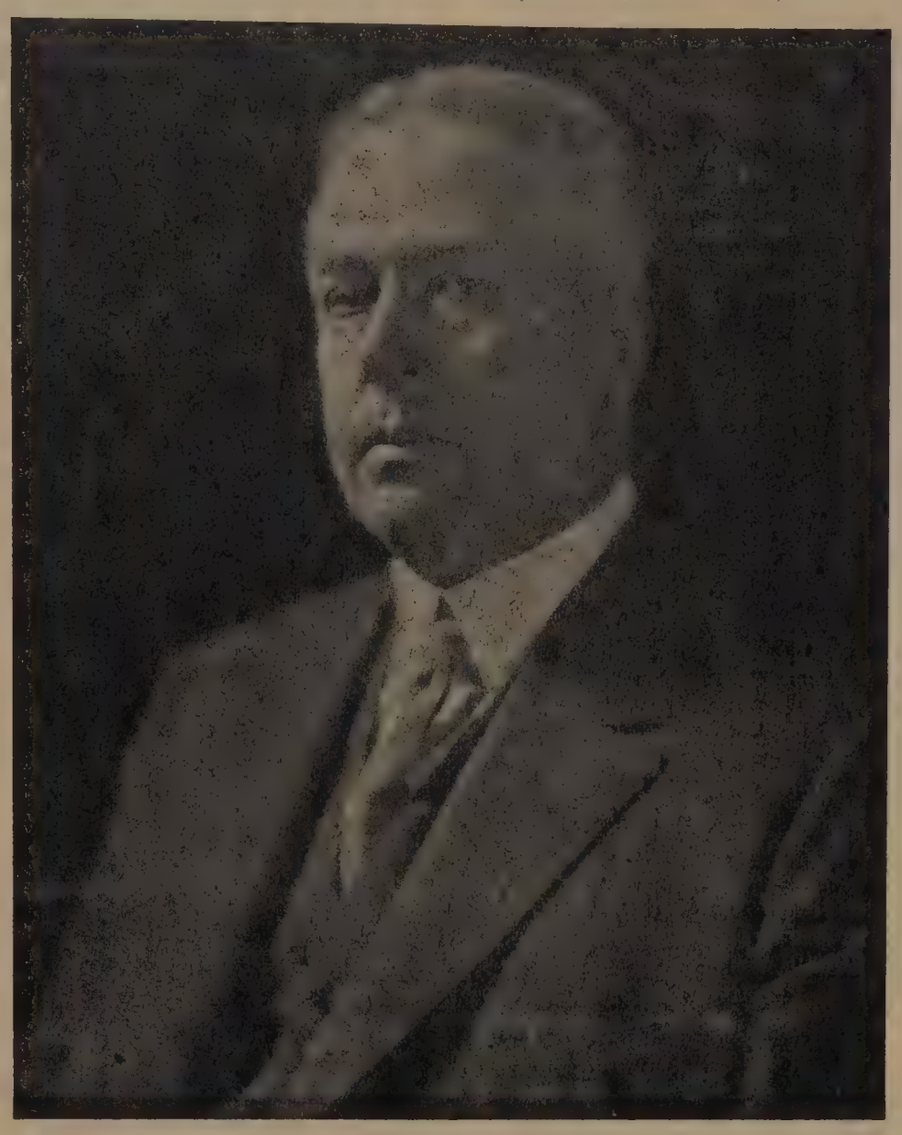
Will Present Saber

As in the past, the ball will be held in the gym with strictly military directions under the capable direction of L. Blanchard '40.

The climax of the ball will be when Capt. R. Robinson of Champlain Sabers will present the sabre to the co-ed major-elect.

Chaperones for the event will be Colonel and Mrs. Gilfillan, Colonel and Mrs. Dreibelbies, and Major and Mrs. Coffin.

Committees in charge are: Johnny Davis, tickets; Al Williams, publicity; Ev Bailey, lights; and Dave Stowell, incidentals.



Tickets will be on sale Wednesday, October 25, at the Bookstore and from the juniors taking the advanced military course. The juniors that sell ten bids get one free bid themselves.

Outing Club Holds Hike to Sterling Pond

Nine persistent hikers climbed to Sterling Pond, situated on the top of Sterling Mountain, Sunday, October 22. The group was transported to Smuggler's Notch in the University station wagon and ascended by the Long Trail. Upon reaching the Sterling Pond shelter they encountered a storm of hail, sleet, and rain. After lunch the sky had cleared so the hikers proceeded up Madonna Mountain from which they enjoyed beautiful views of the Adirondacks and the White Mountains. The autumn foliage is still quite good in spite of rains and winds.

The last Sunday hike of the year will be run Sunday, October 29, to Mansfield when the Vermont Outing Club will provide all enthusiastic hikers the remaining chance to take to the mountains. This trip promises to be a very enjoyable one in that it is in cooperation with one which Middlebury College is sponsoring the same day. The very active Middlebury Outing Club is expecting to transport seventy students to Underhill for the annual Mansfield trip. The Vermont students will meet the down-state delegation on top and is acting in a sort of capacity as host since Mansfield is part of our back campus. Everyone sign early and show Middlebury we have enthusiasts, too.

U. V. M's Most Loyal Supporter

Pres. Guy W. Bailey

U. V. M. Students Given Welcome by Pres. Bailey

Mr. Chairman and Men and Women of Vermont:

At the outset I wish to express my sincere appreciation for your kindness in paying me this voluntary visit.

Sometimes students visit me because they are sent for, but to have you come voluntarily, and in such numbers, is an honor that I appreciate and shall long remember.

May I assure you that you will always be welcome.

It is a great pleasure to be permitted the opportunity of publicly expressing my faith in those who have charge of the training of our athletic teams and also of adding my word of gratification because of the results attained.

During the past twenty-two years I have been faithful in my attendance at the football games. Inclement weather has not dampened my enthusiasm. This year, however, I have been obliged to content myself with the newspaper accounts and reports received from my friends. These reports have been most gratifying and have, I am sure, enthused every Vermont alumnus.

As an alumnus and an administrative officer of the University, I extend my congratulations to the coaches and the members of the team. Each one of you has typified the Vermont spirit.

In tomorrow's game I know that the University will not have to apologize for any discreditable act, but rather will feel proud of our representatives at Centennial Field. I wish you the best of success and assure you of my hearty support.

Good night, good luck, and come again.

NEW BOOKS ADDED TO BOOKSTORE LIBRARY

The following new books are available in the University Bookstore Lending Library: "So Stands the Rock," by Anne Miller Downes; "Watch for the Dawn," by Cloete; "The Sea Tower," by Hugh Walpole; "Let the Record Stand," by Dorothy Thompson; and "Not Peace But a Sword," by Vincent Sheehan.

SHORT STORY COMPLETED BY LITERARY SOCIETY

The Scribes, the sophomore literary society, held its regular meeting at Southwick Thursday, October 19, at 7.30 p.m. Poems and book reports were read and a short story completed by the members present.

Publications Delegates Leave for Convention

University delegates left for the convention of all editors and business managers of collegiate publications Monday, October 23. The delegates traveled by train to Des Moines, Iowa, where they are being entertained at the Hotel Des Moines. C. H. Schofield '40, editor of the Cynic, and R. M. Story, Jr., '40, business manager, will represent the Vermont Cynic. R. O. Slack '41, editor of the 1941 Ariel, and D. W. Thayer '41, business manager, are representing our annual yearbook publication, the Ariel.

The convention will consist of many conferences and discussions on the major aspects of collegiate publications. Particular stress will be laid on the general needs and difficulties found in the various colleges and universities in doing yearbook and paper publications. Speakers will represent both well-known authorities in the field and members of various student bodies. Among these speakers are the editor of the Collegiate Digest and the women's editor of the paper at Iowa State University. As well as a great number of conferences, many social gatherings and banquets have been planned to make this visit at Des Moines enjoyable as well as beneficial.

The delegates are planning to return after the close of the conference, to arrive here in Burlington, Tuesday, October 31.

DANCE SATURDAY NIGHT

The junior honorary societies, Staff and Sandal and Key and Serpent, are sponsoring an informal dance at Southwick on Saturday night, October 28. Admission is only 10 cents and it's a real bargain. With the exception of one or two sorority dances it is to be the only social event of the evening and a large crowd is expected.

CLASSICAL CLUB MEETS TO INITIATE THIRTEEN

The Classical Club, an honorary society for those who are taking the classical course, began its monthly meetings by initiating thirteen new members. Ruth Williams '40, president of the club, was in charge of the meeting, which was held at the home of Professor and Mrs. Prindle. The twenty-nine who were present sang Latin songs and played Latin games.

Practice Debate to Be Held Wednesday, Oct. 25

A mixed practice debate on the subject, "Resolved, that the Federal Government should own and operate the railroads," will be held Wednesday, October 25. This is the second practice debate of this type this year. Last Wednesday the same subject was debated, the men presenting the affirmative, the women the negative. In this debate the sides will be reversed, M. Levin '42, A. Wolk '41, and J. Cohen '42 each presenting six-minute constructive speeches for the negative, and Eleanor Brody '40, Gwendolyn Blanchard '40, and Gertrude Johnstone '40 each doing the same for the affirmative. Miss Johnstone will then cross-examine the negative team and A. Becker '41 will follow by questioning the affirmative. These two debaters will then sum up the main points of these two sides. This will be a very informal debate combining the regular orthodox style with the new "Oregon style," allowing "cross-examination" of opposing teams.

This debate will be held at 4.00 p.m. before the combined varsity and freshman debate squads.

Team on Three-day Trip

The women's varsity debating team, composed of Eleanor Brody '40, Gwendolyn Blanchard '40, and Gertrude Johnstone '40, left Burlington Friday, October 20, for a three-day trip. The team met Bates College at Lewiston, Me., Friday night, and Keene Normal at Keene, N. H., Saturday night. The debate at Bates was held before a clinic of eighteen high schools. Eleanor Brody '40 was the first speaker, followed by Gertrude Johnstone '40. At Keene Gwendolyn Blanchard '40 debated, followed by Gertrude Johnstone '40.

These debates were conducted American style and were non-decision debates on the subject, "Resolved, that the Federal Government should own and operate the railroads." This trip marks the opening of an active debating season for the women's varsity debating team.

GRENFELL GIVES TALK TO CHURCH GROUPS

Sir Wilfred Grenfell spoke before the large group of combined college groups at the Methodist Church vestry, Sunday evening, October 22, at 7.30. Doctor Grenfell told of his experiences as a young doctor in England making his decision to go to Labrador where there were few surgeons but many people needing help, while in England there were enough good surgeons. In Labrador he met many people with the same philosophy of life following as a motto "Follow Me" in giving free service to the poor fishermen. Faith is what life is built upon; for example, when we go to bed at night we expect to get up in the morning. The will of God should be fulfilled by everyone in whatever station of life he finds himself, for it isn't without some work we can expect to see the "Kingdom Come" as prophesied.

PHOTOGRAPHY CLUB TO MEET

The Photographic Club will meet Wednesday evening at 7.30 at Slade. Mr. Eldred of the Fleming Museum will be there to answer questions and give instruction.

Large Crowd Attends Novel Rally at Gym

Members of Honor Societies Speak; Joyce Bane, Grace Meeken Lead Cheers

School spirit is sure picking up on our campus as witnessed by the huge turnout Friday evening.

As planned, the band led a big and joyous parade, visiting all the dorms and adding to its ranks on the march. The procession started from Converse Hall, proceeded via Main and South Prospect to Redstone Campus, back and out Summit Street. From here the spirited throng crossed over to Pearl Street and then downtown. Numerous red flares added a great deal to the occasion in the way of festivity.

On their way up the hill the entire group made a call on President Bailey. They serenaded him with many Vermont songs and cheers after which he spoke to them. He said that as long as he was able he had been faithful in his attendance of the football games, but even though that has become impossible he knows he can count on the team to do its best and to uphold the honor of the college. He was very much pleased to think the students came to see him. He is greatly interested in the drive to increase the school spirit on the campus.

Cage Well Filled

From here the parade adjourned to the cage, which was very well filled up. Presiding was Carl Schofield '40, who greeted the students and applauded them on their increased spirit. He introduced representatives of the women's honor societies which included Jean Butler '40, Mortar Board; Louise Mann '41, Staff and Sandal; and Harriet Nelson '42, Sophomore Aides. These girls spoke of the importance of school spirit on campus and of the need for organized cheering at the games. Don Maley '41, Key and Serpent, and Bill Roeder '42, Gold Key, also spoke, emphasizing the need of student support in helping the team to defeat a strong team such as Union.

After singing and cheering (much interest added by two women cheerleaders) the assembly adjourned outside around a bonfire. Coach Sabo spoke a few words emphasizing the fact that Union would be a hard team to defeat but that cheering by spectators is a great help to the players. He also wished many of the alumni, who have been criticizing the school spirit on campus, had been back to see the crowd gathered there.

A great event was the burning of Union in effigy which was greeted by cheers and general uproar.

A very successful evening was brought to a close with more cheers and songs and it is to be hoped that this spirit will continue to increase as demonstrated.

NEW PHYSICAL TRAINING COURSE MEETS WEEKLY

A class for senior, junior and sophomore women who wish to secure training in physical education for high school girls, will be formed if twenty students sign for it. This course may be of special use to students preparing to teach home economics, commercial subjects, secondary education and art. First meeting of the class will take place Friday, October 27, 4.15, at Southwick. Folk dances, usable for high school girls, will be taught at this period. Later in the year methods of teaching social dancing will be given, games for high school age groups, at least one lesson in first aid and one lesson in camp craft, also some marching and exercises for small classrooms. This course will count as one hour physical education credit for sophomores. The class will not necessarily meet at 4.15 Fridays. A vote of the members as to the best time for meeting will be taken at first class.

The Rankine Memorial

Originating at Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg, Va., a movement is now under way among the engineering colleges of the United States to erect a fitting memorial to the late Prof. William John MacQuorn Rankine, one of the outstanding founders of modern scientific electrical engineering. This memorial, which will be erected at the University of Glasgow in Scotland, will serve a twofold purpose in that it will not only honor Rankine but will also make American engineering students more aware of the debt they owe this gentleman. We feel such a worthwhile movement is richly deserving of the support of all and in order to secure the support of students at the University of Vermont we quote some of the arguments advanced in behalf of the movement by M. W. Medford, Editor of the Virginia Tech.

"1. Since Rankine was chief among the founders of modern scientific engineering he has been of incomparable service to engineering and thus also of great service to all civilized mankind.

"2. Rankine's writings have played an enormously important part in the marvelous industrial development that has taken place in this country in the last fifty or sixty years and which has so fabuously enriched it; thus the United States is heavily indebted to Rankine and ought to honor him gladly and even eagerly.

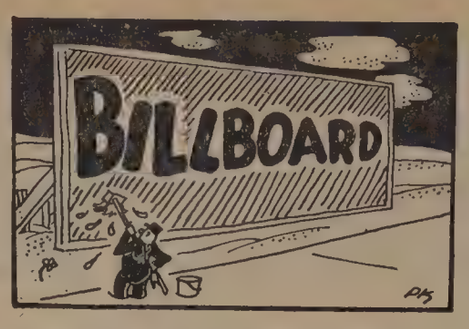
"3. There are memorials to many men whose contributions to the progress of engineering are not as impressive as Rankine's are, nevertheless there is nowhere in the world a real memorial to him. The memorial in question would right this grievous wrong.

"4. Such a fine enterprise conducted successfully would bring great honor to and increase the prestige of the engineering colleges and the profession of engineering in the United States.

"5. The individuals taking part in the enterprise would thereby lay up for themselves a precious and an abiding college memory of a worthy effort in behalf of idealism, culture, and Alma Mater.

"6. The memorial would have important and telling international repercussions.

"7. For the college engineering students of the United States to achieve this fine thing would appreciably increase the prestige of the whole Nation."



Such convincing arguments cannot be denied or ignored. A little simple arithmetic proves that if each of the engineering students in the country—some seventy-five or eighty thousand—would contribute the insignificant sum of twenty cents, the goal of $15,000 necessary to erect the memorial could easily be achieved.

Here, in brief, is the outline of a plan which could be adopted here at the University of Vermont. A faculty member could be appointed by the Dean of the College of Engineering for the purpose of making plans for the promotion of this project and helping the student engineering organizations in the execution of these plans. These above-named organizations could appoint committees to carry out campaign activities. Finally, these organizations could sponsor a tag day for the purpose of raising additional funds.

When we stop to consider that almost every bridge, machine, dam, or steamship which has been scientifically designed in the period covering the last sixty years has owed something to Rankine, it seems only fitting and proper that such a memorial should be erected.

Spirit, and How!

It can no longer be asserted that school spirit is in decadence at the University of Vermont. Cheering at the game Saturday was vastly improved and the success of the pep rally is attested to by the fact that the head cheerleader busted his suspenders through his violent exertions.

The speaker at chapel Wednesday, October 25, will be Rev. David Reid of the Methodist Church.

All freshmen, transfers and other new students who paid the $1 rushing tax but did not attend rushing banquets may receive a refund by presenting their receipts to Professor Carroll in the political science office between the hours of 2.00 and 4.00 p.m. on Wednesday, October 24.

All men interested in the rifle team are asked to attend a meeting of the team in the back armory, Friday, October 27, at 4.00 p.m.

Zuill Heads U. W. Home Ec School

Madison, Wis.—After an absence of several years, Frances Louise Zuill returns to Wisconsin to become the director of the home economics department at the University of Wisconsin. She succeeds Abby L. Marlatt, who has retired after directing the work for 30 years.

Miss Zuill is leaving the directorship of home economics at the University of Iowa.

Before joining the home economics staff of the University of Iowa, Miss Zuill was an instructor in home economics at Columbia Teachers' College. She has been visiting lecturer or professor at Johns Hopkins University, Cornell University and the University of Washington.

A University of Texas instructor has devised a process to "photograph mathematically" the atom.

The World Front

What of Germany?

The very conditions in Germany now must be productive of some discontent, of some mutterings. The neat Germans are having to do with one cake of soap per month. The latest issue of Time states that food is scarce and hard to get. The restaurants are crowded at all times. All taxes have risen—income tax 50 percent, beer tax 14 percent, etc. Even to ask for a raise is considered illegal. In the face of such conditions at the outset of the war, what straits can be predicted for Germany if the war lasts very long? The answer is evident. Germany will be reduced to a starvation basis. The thing statesmen would like to know is how long the German people's morale will hold up under such conditions. It is a point to ponder on.

Washing on the Line

The current hit tune in London is "We're Going to Hang Our Washing on the Siegfried Line." Youths march to the front with its words and melody on their lips. Twenty years ago similar youths marched to the front with the slogan of "On to Berlin" or "We'll Catch the Kaiser by the Seat of the Pants." Twenty years ago it was the imperialistic aims of the Kaiser that were being crushed; today it is "Hitlerism." A tragic list of circumstances seem to repeat themselves. Similar songs, similar aims—always it is youth marching to death for those aims, led on by the false promise of catch phrases.

Twenty years have not been enough to teach nations that war settles nothing. Twenty years have only proved an armed truce between nations girding for war. We wonder how many more centuries it will be before the sight of singing youths marching to death will be a thing unknown! Surely that time must come.

So it is that we feel America should do her best to stay clear of this conflict and attempt to preserve at home a will for peace, a will which can be directed toward other nations—a will for peace which will work constantly in a war-torn world to bring the conflict to an end and which will see that justice is done when peace does come.

Cynic Scrub Gives Opinion of College

Why I Chose Vermont

By RUTH BURNELL '43

A rough, narrow, and stony way, weaving its lonesome passage up, around, and over rocks with bushes on both sides, depicts the average country road of Vermont. Cellars and abandoned buildings as souvenirs of a by-gone age, may frequently be found behind the roadside bushes. Some paths may lead to the top of a pleasant hill, inhabited only by grazing cattle. Others may descend into dreamy valleys, romantic with ferns and waterfalls. Many of Vermont's prosperous farms, of which the state is a rich possessor, are found on such roads as these. Here, may be a neat barn with cows standing at their stalls within; there, sheep eating in a pasture, here, horses playing, kept within bounds by a stone wall; and there, the farmhouse with its dried corn hanging on the walls and milk cans standing on the doorsteps. Such is an idea of the State of Vermont.

To be as free as these winding roads is the desire of all college boys and girls. The place, offering the most of this freedom with the promise of the best results, is the natural abode of conscientious students. The country roads of Vermont and the lofty mountains seem to depict the morality of the Green Mountain State. They represent the straight and narrow courses to proceed through life, dominated by the presence of the Father.

The University of Vermont, situated in the city of Burlington, seems to reflect the individuality of Vermonters. This city, Burlington, with the background of the Adirondacks, is located on a side hill which slopes down to the eastern shore of Lake Champlain. Called by William Dean Howells, a famous author, "the most beautiful city in the world," it is a settlement of many lovely homes and broad and shady streets. Thriving with business, it is an important center of trade and commerce, satisfying its 25,000 population. Being situated between the Adirondacks and Green Mountains, it may suitably be called the "Switzerland of America."

With such surroundings, why would any boy or girl be a total failure on life's road? The personal characteristics of U. V. M. such as, pleasant environment and snappy climate, can do nothing but give a clear mind for studies. Thus this fact added to the high standard of the college, according to classical and social training, makes an ideal dream come true. Like the roads of Vermont, each pupil may proceed a different way but their principle is the same. U. V. M. guides them and U. V. M. of the Green Mountain State is right.

Therefore, "Vermont" is my college.

A. S. M. E. Notes

The U. V. M. chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers met in the engineering building, Friday morning, October 20. The topic of discussion was "Undergraduate Research" and was explained by Prof. H. Daasch of the mechanical engineering department. The subject, "Undergraduate Research," was chosen because interest in student papers for the annual A. S. M. E. conference warranted it. Also it was hoped to get more students into the prize paper contests.

Prof. H. Daasch began the discussion by his definition of "research" as applied to undergraduates. He said it should be more of a "re-search" than actual "re-search," mainly because of the limited time involved.

As subjects for "re-search," Prof. H. Daasch suggested the following eight topics:

1. Gasolines: Experimentation with local grades of gas with an eye towards comparative, relative costs or to variancies in quality over certain time periods.

2. Stress analysis: Analysis of simple sections by the aid of Professor Bullard's photo-elastic equipment.

3. Fans: Testing propellor type fans as a check against dealers' present ratings.

4. Refrigeration: Jet refrigeration with varying fluid substances.

5. Metal cutting: Determining life of tool with regard to different cutting fluids.

6. Time study: Winooski Mills were suggested.

7. Fatigue (of metals): Study of simple wire sections—perhaps with the aid of Professor Puffer's new fatigue stress machine.

8. Welding: With the aid of new microscopic equipment someone might observe the amounts and depths of carbon particles picked up by the different welding processes.

In summary, Prof. H. Daasch said the mechanical engineering department would help each student to its utmost if the student should begin any such set of experiments. It is hoped that many papers will be started as a result of this meeting.

Former Kake Walk Queen Answers Questions of Enterprising Reporter

By JANET MILLER '42

Claire, a true beauty in her own right and a good example of personality plus, curled up in an armchair by the window and prepared to answer the questions I asked her. She was very modest about the whole affair and kept remarking, "How silly to interview me." Modest? Yes, but those dark eyes sparkled with enthusiasm, that leads one to believe they play an important part in her charm. Why interview her? Well, she's a pretty popular young lady on campus and has participated in a great variety of activities: Press Club, Dramatic Club, CYNIC reporter, class representative, beauty contest, co-ed major candidate, and last year's Kake Walk queen.

CLAIRE ROCK '40

But to start at the beginning. Claire was born in Barre, Vt., one of four children. She graduated from Spaulding High School in 1936 and entered U. V. M. in the fall. At present she is enrolled as a senior in the home economics department. In her spare time she works at Reynolds' as the college representative, and says she intends to become a buyer.

As we chatted, it became easier to get her to talk about herself. It seems her favorite sports are horseback riding, swimming, and it's a toss-up between tennis and golf; (an added note) she loves to cook! She enjoys music a great deal, as she plays the violin. While on the subject of music, she mentioned Artie Shaw's band as her favorite, and she named "In the Mood" as the "swellest song."

Being interested in clothes, she picked Mademoiselle as "the" magazine and the Readers Digest as a close second.

And then came her No. 1 movie favorites. It was a toss-up between Tyrone Power and Cary Grant for the men, and Claudette Colbert and Irene Dunne for the women. "And what about the type of man you like?" The answer was prompt and emphatic. "He should be congenial, a good sport, and, above all, should have a keen sense of humor." I could see that she wanted to add a few more items, but they weren't forthcoming.

Two of her outstanding dislikes are "false sophistication" and "mustaches on men." And as for food, there is no warm place in her heart for either oysters or tripe. She evidently doesn't care for "seafood" such as the former. She is very fond of steak with mushrooms, done medium rare, and as for obtaining her favorite dish, she places all "stakes" on the Liberty.

From here the topic of conversation led to studies. Claire seemed to feel that chemistry had been the hardest for her, and Shakespeare the easiest and the most interesting. She is crazy about blue for a color, and as far as canines are concerned, shows partiality toward the Pekinese.

When asked about school spirit, she remarked that it was definitely on the up, but there was still room for great improvement. She feels that first-semester rushing is a very good idea and suggests the school's getting an indoor swimming pool.

As for picking her favorite sorority—there was not much choice. Being an Alpha Chi—it's tops with her. And all she had to say about the "frats," "There is no particular one. They all have a swell bunch of fellows."

And that brought a close to the interview. Claire's personal charm, genuine enthusiasm and well-earned laurels are certainly enviable. She is decidedly modest and very reluctant to discuss herself, which is a true virtue and a lucky companion for her popularity.

U. V. M. Jersey Leads Group at World's Fair

Word has been received that U. V. M. Rustic Alida was the highest producing Jersey during September in the Borden Dairy World of Tomorrow exhibit at the New York World's Fair. During a one-day official test made September 21 and 22 she produced 32.4 pounds of milk testing 6.469 percent or a total of 2.096 pounds butterfat. This should be equivalent to more than 60 pounds of butterfat for the month.

Alida is owned by the Vermont Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College, Burlington, Vt. She was shipped to New York to be a member of the 150-cow dairy herd maintained at the World's Fair by the Borden Company under supervision of the Dairy Breeds Committee. She was accepted for this exhibit even though she had freshened in November while most of her associates at Flushing freshened late in the winter. With this handicap it is all the more phenomenal that Alida should lead the Jerseys at this exhibit.

After the World's Fair closes on October 31 Alida will be returned to Burlington where she will reoccupy her accustomed place as a member of the Station herd. With this change she will have to become accustomed again to being milked while standing in the stall instead of while going around on the rotolactor which was used at the fair. Also, she will probably miss the thousands of spectators who have viewed her daily in her present quarters behind plate glass windows.

Norman, Okla.—(A.C.P.)—The culture, customs and languages of the American Indian will not be lost to posterity, if University of Oklahoma authorities have their way about it.

They have just instituted a new course in Indian language, the only class of its kind in the world. A faculty member is now compiling, with the aid of an educated Indian, a dictionary and grammar which may be used for teaching the language.

The Band Wagon

By BOB JOHNSON

Red Norvo

A pleasant surprise was this Norvo outfit . . . . pleasantest of all was the appearance of super-hep, lovely Kathleen (We Cried For You) Lane. That chirper—kicked around in some of our top-notch bands—still rates right up there.

Red's beautiful relaxed style on the bones—similar to Hampton's work—is the subtlest swing we know of. The band will be remembered by some as playing under the name of Bill Bemis at the Bay last summer. The arrangements were in the old Norvo tradition.

There was some fine trumpet, tenoring and alto as well as the Les Burness (ex-Shaw) piano and Red Bradner drums. The latter is a newcomer who in time we think should go far. Red's first location spot is the Ben Franklin in Philly—the spot that made James Hackett—for three weeks.

Charlie Barnet

Mourn of the month . . . . the burning out of the Barnet band at the Palomar . . . . complete loss of $10,000 library and instruments. "Fifty bucks to the man who finds my mouthpiece unharmed," says Charlie—and it was. HERE AND NOW—We start the move for Charlie as the band for the Kake Walk Masque.

Off the Wax

Don't miss the Hampton sides plus Chu Berry.

Ditto for the old Armstrong reissues.

Ditto again for the six sides needled by the Barnet bombers almost immediately after the fire. What an outfit.

We See

Glenn Miller opens an air commercial for Chesterfield in place of P. W. in December.

Chris Griffin has left Goodman for the more lucrative and easier life of a studio side man . . . . will Berigan (nothing bothers me) follow in his footsteps? Both got their starts behind the glass over the air lanes. And mourn again that—Bobby Hackett — Bixian cornetist — has ditched his band to join the Heidt-huskers. Oh the pity of it all! . . . . Perhaps Bobby is destined to be a kernel in the Heidt ear of corn or perhaps, with the aid of Frankie Carle (recently added on piano) he'll change the "Brigadier's" style.

Snatches

Good propaganda—but commercial—the story on the Andrews Sisters in Collier's.

Our favorite musical cartoon—the clarinetist blowing through a gas mask—which makes us think. War scares run hand in hand with tunes like "Beer Barrel Polka," "Oh, Johnny, Oh!" "Over There"—please, please spare us!. . . . . we're corny (Philbert says so), but not to that extent.

Musicians as a group are strongly opposed to war—no volunteers there.

Sandra . . . . local songstress . . . . definitely on the upbeat.

Rumor has Hal Kemp coming to the Queen City in the near future.

Philbert signs off—with a headache—which also means this is where we came in.

Eamon de Valera, premier of Ireland, has been awarded an honorary degree by Catholic University.

JOHN DEWEY CLUB HOLDS FIRST MEETING OF YEAR

The first meeting of the John Dewey Club was held Thursday, October 19, 1939, at Southwick. The speaker of the evening was Dr. L. A. Riggs of the psychology department, who spoke about his work at Brown last year. Doctor Riggs studied the optical nerve reflexes of the horseshoe crab, laying special emphasis on electrical currents.

Refreshments were served after the meeting which consisted of cider and doughtnuts.

Student Organizations Discuss World Problems

(Associated Collegiate Press)

As always happens when a great political or social question faces the nation, college students are today forming organizations to influence the opinion of their fellow students on the questions of war and neutrality.

At Prniceton University, undergraduates have formed "The American Independence League," which is "dedicated to the purpose of revealing, strengthening and expressing the determination of the American people to keep out of the European war." The League already counts one-third of Princeton's student body as members, and a second chapter of the organization has been formed on the Harvard University campus. Incidentally, national headquarters of the new organization are in the offices formerly occupied by the Veterans of Future Wars, now defunct.

Not quite so serious, but just as interesting, are two other proposals that have made their appearance in the last week or two. In the University of Pittsburgh's towering Cathedral of Learning there has sprung up the "Loyal Order of Sons of Leavenworth," whose slogan is "If America goes to war, we go to Leavenworth."

Here's an interesting paragraph from a letter explaining the organization: "Hurry! Form your own District Cell of the Loyal Order of Sons of Leavenworth! Pick your cell-mate while you may. Write now for free membership card entitling you to all the privileges of our future home. Write today to ask any questions you may wish about our secret shuffle, our national symbol—the ball and chain—or any other practices of our exclusive order."

On the Cornell University campus, Stan Cohen, columnist for the Cornell Daily Sun, stirred up a bit of interest with this telegram to Secretary of State Cordell Hull: "Sun political expert advocates corridor through Canada to join Alaska to Union, free enslaved minorities in Vancouver, protect economic future of nation. Would resort to force if necessary. Can we expect support of State Department?"

At this writing, the Hitler-like proposal has met with no response from Mr. Hull!

Barnard College next year will offer a special course on the history, economics and arts that characterize a democracy.

Dean Hills to Speak At Dairy Conference

On Thursday, October 26, at 9.30 a.m., Dean J. L. Hills will address the Short Course Conference for Dairy Plant Operators and Milk Distributors on "The Relation of the Experiment Station to the Dairy Industry in Vermont." Dean Hills has been director of the Vermont Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural College for fifty years.

Under his supervision the Station has done much for the dairy industry of Vermont and the nation in past years and is now carrying on many activities of vital importance which Dean Hills will discuss.

The public is invited to these lectures to be given in the Fleming Museum auditorium, Colchester Avenue, Burlington, Vt. The short course of which they are a part is offered on October 25 and 26 by the department of animal and dairy husbandry of the agricultural college. Complete programs may be obtained by addressing Dr. H. B. Ellenberger, head of the department.

The Vermont Dairy Plant Operators' and Managers' Association, of which T. H. Weed is president and L. D. Ware vice-president, will hold its eighteenth annual meeting in connection with these courses. The annual banquet is scheduled for 7.00 p.m. Wednesday, October 25, at the Hotel Van Ness.

University Acquires Nine Inch Telescope

A nine-inch equatorial telescope, complete with a seven-foot pedestal, and dome and revolving mechanism, has just been acquired by the University of Vermont. The telescope was formerly owned by Ex-Gov. Gregory Smith of St. Albans. It is reported that the lens was used in selecting the site of an observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., by Percival Lowell. The telescope was made a number of years ago by the celebrated telescope maker, Alvan Clark of Cambridge, and is considered one of the finest of Mr. Clark's various productions.

Prof. Arthur D. Butterfield of the engineering college at the University, who has charge of the telescope, says plans have already been drawn for an observatory which would include two telescopes, the one just received by the University and a meridian telescope; recitation rooms for astronomy classes; a photographic room, dark room, laboratory and director's office. With the acquisition of such an observatory, more extensive work in astronomy, both for science students and for students in the arts college, would be added to the courses of study offered by the University.

Despite its present low standing, the University of Chicago grid team has won more Big Ten championships than any other team.

Union Stops Taylor, Downs Vermont, 19-6

Cats Drop First Game as Hammerstrom Leads Garnet To Three Second Half Scores

After three quarters of gridiron tug o'war, Union College's football forces snapped the string with a pair of last period scores to whip Vermont, 19-6, at Centennial Field Saturday.

After Jack Vannier's long touchdown run had tied the score at six-all for the Dutchmen early in the third stanza, Vermont held stubbornly for a full quarter, but the Garnet finally capped a 55-yard drive with a score midway in the final round. The third touchdown, result of another long march, came less than a minute before the gun.

Sam Hammerstrom, Union's triple-threat fullback, more than lived up to advance notices. The husky Garnet leader dominated his team's offense, which rolled up 289 yards overland and 67 more through the air.

Hammerstrom tore through the Catamount line repeatedly on a spinner play, averaging almost seven yards per try. He made one of Union's scores, plunging for the second touchdown.

Union apparently had been gunning for Frankie Taylor, Vermont's fleet halfback. A swarm of maroon jerseys filtered through the Cats' weak side and nailed Taylor almost every time he carried. Vermont was able to gain only 30 yards through the Garnet wall. Taylor's passes worked to advantage, four of nine hitting the mark for a total gain of 56 yards.

One of Taylor's passes opened the way to the Cat score, which came midway in the second period.

With the ball on Union's 42, Taylor raced to his right and flung a forward to Jim Corbett on the opposite side. Corbett gathered in the toss on the thirty and scampered to the eight before being downed. Vermont advanced to within a yard of the goal line, but Union held for downs and Hammerstrom kicked out.

Johnny Spasyk, Cat quarterback and safety man, returned the punt 12 yards to the Garnet 23. A Taylor-Spasyk aerial connected for a first down on the seven. The Cats reached the one when Union was penalized for interfering with pass receiver Bob Paterson, and then Ed Kodys sliced off his own left tackle for the score. Taylor's placement try was wide.

Hammerstrom ran the second-half kick-off from his twenty to his thirty-five. The Union captain picked up 7 yards in two line plays, and then Vannier broke loose on his scoring trip. Finding a hole in the Vermont left side, the speedy Garnet back knifed through and then cut to the right, where a wall of blockers was engaged in mowing down the Cat secondaries. Vannier clung to the side-lines the rest of the way. He ran 57 yards. The conversion attempt, a pass from place-kick formation, failed.

The teams played on even terms the rest of the quarter, Spasyk spiking a Union threat with a prolific punt which carried a full 80 yards.

Union began to roll when the final quarter got under way. Moving from their 45-yard line, the Dutchmen piled up four first downs in quick succession, a pass from Hammerstrom to Bob Reynolds bringing the ball to the 1-yard line, from which point Hammerstrom plunged over.

Lee Sherman's try for the point was short.

Kodys, Vermont's sophomore fullback, injured his shoulder on the first play after the kickoff. He carried the ball 6 yards through the Garnet right guard and failed to get up after being tackled hard on the Cat 47-yard line. He was rushed from the field to a hospital, where the extent of the injury was not fully determined. It is not known how long Kodys will be inactive.

Soon after this play Vermont suffered a further setback when Vannier intercepted one of Taylor's tosses at midfield and ran to the Cat thirty-six before Al Shaw, Kodys' replacement, brought him down.

This interception launched the drive to Union's third tally. Three first downs brought the ball to within three yards of home, and then Jim Hillick sprinted around his own right end to score. Bob Davis booted the extra point.

Green Mountain Next for Frosh

Idle over this week-end, the Kittens grid squad points to Saturday and its second home game of the season against a strong Green Mountain Junior College outfit. The Kittens have been coming along fast under the expert tutelage of Coach Fuzzy Evans. With a victory over V. J. C. and another over a strong Dartmouth Jayvee eleven, the Kittens should be at their peak against Green Mountain.

The undefeated Green Mountain gang presents a formidable line-up. Bud Webster, hard-tackling, 220-pound lineman, is back in the line-up after an early season injury. Broadhead and Taft, injured in the Norwich game, are also available for Saturday's scrap. In their games thus far the Greenies have shown plenty of power and will prove a hard team to stop Saturday.

The Kittens, however, have plenty of power too. In the backfield Ted Sanders, an able passer and blocker, is a man who will bear watching. The Greenies will also have a hard time stopping hard-running Norm Beaulieu once he gets out in the open. Carey at right half has the booting assignment.

In the line Koladzya at left end, Benoit at right guard and Hennessey at right are all good men to have before a ball carrier. The rest of the line is well balanced.

Saturday's game will, therefore, bring together two powerful elevens and with both out for a perfect season plenty of fireworks should result. Last year the Greenies and Kittens fought to a scoreless tie. This year both sides will be out to change that state of affairs.

SIGMA PHI WINS 24-15 OVER KAPPA SIG GRIDSTERS

Last Thursday the ironclad Sigma Phi team beat the Kappa Sigma by the convincing enough score of 24-15. This was the first game for both teams, each having drawn a bye. On October 26 the Sigma Phi's will meet Delta Psi in the semi-finals, the latter having trimmed the Independents 13-0.

This afternoon the T E P aggregation will fight the Phi Delta Psi fraternity for the right to face Phi Sigma Delta in the upper bracket semi-finals.

A novel experiment may take place between the halves of the Green Mountain-Freshman game. For the past weeks a number of students have played rugby late in the afternoons; and, according to Archie Post, it would be of interest to the spectators, many of whom have not seen the game played, to watch a demonstration. But, as yet, this is still unofficial.

On Wednesday evening there will be a meeting of the Intramural Advisory Council. This organization is represented by one man from each fraternity. Among the items which will be discussed is the coming bowling tournament.

Webster Cracks Bowdoin Record

Paces Harriers to 27-28 Win; Leading Brother to Tape

The Catamount dalers chalked up their second victory of the season Friday, when they beat a fast Bowdoin team in a record-breaking run. The meet, second ever to be held with that school, ended in the score of 27 for U. V. M. and 28 for Bowdoin.

For the third time in as many meets Charlie Webster finished far out in front, followed directly by his brother, Fred. Charlie passed the pace maker at the beginning of the third lap and easily lengthened his lead to finish with a record run for the course of 23:20.2. It was noticeable to those watching that he was not thoroughly fatigued after the four and a quarter mile run and had he been pushed could have even done better.

Similar to the Dartmouth run, the opposing team pushed in a block of four runners to take third, fourth, fifth and sixth places. In the case of the Dartmouth meet, this was enough to edge out the U. V. M. boys, but at Brunswick, Friday, Coach Post had three of his runners follow the block to take seventh, eighth, and ninth places and give Vermont the one-point advantage in the 27-28 score.

The counted positions of the meet were registered as follows:

Runner	School
1. C. Webster (23:20.2)	Vermont
2. F. Webster	Vermont
3. Babcock	Bowdoin
4. Hagstrom	Bowdoin
5. Doubleday	Bowdoin
6. Jones	Bowdoin
7. Ketcham	Vermont
8. Livak	Vermont
9. Burgess	Vermont
10. Martin	Bowdoin

The team left Burlington Thursday around noon and arrived in Brunswick that evening, where they spent the night. The next day they were met and entertained by Bowdoin officials. One of the Bowdoin faculty men took the visitors down to see the ocean—only about three of the squad had ever seen it before. They were shown the school, taken for a swim in the Bowdoin pool and in general treated in a manner very commendable.

Freshman Dukes Beat Two Rivals

The frosh cross-country team made a double tally Saturday in the three-way meet between U. V. M., Waterbury High School and Burlington High School. Although the high schools had a good number of men out, they were small and Coach Post shortened the course length to two and a half miles. This is the first year that B. H. S. has competed in cross-country, although urged to do so for several years by Coach Post.

The order of finish was as follows:

U. V. M. '43—23 vs. B. H. S.—36

1. Hoyt, V.
2. LaPointe, B.
3. St. Mary, V.
4. West, V.
5. Burrill, B.
6. Ripper, B.
7. Buttles, V.
8. White, V.
9. Ladd, V.
10. Crown, V.
11. Paquette, B.
12. Paige, B.

U. V. M. '43—18 vs. W. H. S.—43

1. Hoyt, V.
2. St. Mary, V.
3. Morse, W.
4. West, V.
5. Buttles, V.
6. White, V.
7. Werner, W.
8. Ladd, V.
9. Crown, V.
10. Goffe, W.
11. H. Harvey, W.

Spirit, Guts, et al

We remember reading not too long ago of The Rover Boys at Yarvard or Fighting for the Glory of the School or something like that—equally fantastically heroic—of how Tom or Dick or Sam Rover would carry the ball for touchdowns mighty consistently and "pandemonium would break loose in the packed stands." We've always tried to visualize what pandemonium sounded like. Now we know. And it's just about the most beautiful exhibition of concentrated clamor we've ever heard. In fact, it probably will rank as the most memorable day in the two years and some odd weeks that we've been on the campus, only to be superseded by Saturdays still in the future. And a good share of the sheer beauty of the day rests in the fact that the students of Vermont are at this moment intensively proud of Coach Johnny Sabo and his little band of twenty-three men who refused to realize the overwhelming forces that opposed them and who, spurred on by the thunderous roar continually emanating from the Vermont stands, put up one magnificent stand after another only to be finally thrown back by superior reserve strength. Vermont has just cause to be proud of one of the guttiest teams ever to wear the Green and Gold and we know that the inspiration leaping out of the Vermont stands meant more to our team than foolish words on paper could ever convey.

The game itself seems somehow rather anticlimatic by comparison to the plucky fight of the Vermont team and the spiritual support of the Vermont rooters for it isn't the thought of Union's Captain Sam Hammerstrom ploughing through the Catamount line for long gains or those damaging Union passes that lingers in our mind. Instead we think of the ball in Union's possession practically on the Vermont goal line and the eleven most physically beaten men in Burlington who twice repulsed the Union powerhouse. Or else we think of Coach Sabo standing in front of the Vermont bench fervently wishing that he had much-needed reserve strength, the lack of which proved disastrous Saturday. Or else we think of Ed Kodys whose severe tackling and ball carrying was instrumental in Vermont's first half campaign and who is now out for the rest of the season with a broken collar bone. Perhaps he'll never play football again as he has broken that collar bone once before and had a great deal of trouble with it. Or we think of another sophomore, Norm Dubie, who was carried off the field once and was helped off the field the second time completely out on his feet because of the punishment he absorbed in the center of the Vermont line. Or we think of the top-coats and reversibles high up in the bleachers who would have been so happy if Vermont had won but were so proud of their team in defeat.

Another Cross-Country Triumph

There is another team which Vermont is proud of for last Friday afternoon Coach Archie Post's cross-country team added another scalp in the person of Bowdoin to its belt and Charlie Webster won his third straight varsity encounter, closely followed by brother Freddie. We're breathlessly awaiting the smashing of the course record by Charlie and although predictions are definitely not in our line we don't think we'll have to hold our breath very long.

A. D. W.

NOTA BENE: We were behind Coach Johnny Sabo 100 percent before the game started and we still are. Furthermore, we would like to suggest to the Coffee Corner quarterbacks that non-existent substitutes cannot be sent into a football game and that Johnny Sabo and Roy Wietz still know plenty more football than you or we.

SABO GETS GOOD TURNOUT FOR VARSITY DRILLS

Basketball men have already been called to the court at the University of Vermont and are brushing up under Coach Johnny Sabo for the season's openers in December.

A squad of a dozen are taking nightly workouts. Among them is a full quintet of varsity men, including Maley, Corley, Healy, Belardinelli and Allen. Two more varsity men, Taylor and Pye, will come in after football.

Up from last year's freshman team are Brown, a likely center, Wood, Roeder and Corsones. Corsones at the moment is busy with varsity football. Hawkins, a squad man for several years, is among those present, and Hart is back after an absence of a year. Noyes and Lynch, both upperclassmen, played on their freshman team, but are making their first run for the varsity.

A team captain will be elected tomorrow. Beauchemin, elected to the position at the close of last year, did not return to college.

TO HONOR SCHOLASTIC ELEVENS AT CENTENNIAL

Saturday, November 4, will be a red-letter day for high school football teams throughout Vermont. The University of Vermont has set aside that day to honor the high school football teams of the state.

On November 4 the University of Vermont meets Rensselaer in football in a two-o'clock game at Centennial Field, and invitations are going out to all high schools maintaining a football team to attend the Rensselaer-Vermont game as guests of the University of Vermont athletic department.

This Week at Southwick

Tuesday evening at seven o'clock the boys' dancing class will meet in the ballroom. This class is for beginners only.

Wednesday afternoon, from 2.30 to 4.30, Mrs. Bickford will be at Southwick. Telephone 2024-M. If you want to get in touch with her, do it then.

Thursday evening at seven o'clock the girls' dancing class will meet as usual.

Friday evening, October 27, there will be a class for those who attended the dancing classes last year. If enough people are interested, this class will be held regularly. Let Mrs. Bickford know if you will be able to be present.

New York City—(A.C.P.)—That the present European conflict is also affecting the hobbies and spare-time activities of college freshmen has been proven by a Hunter College survey.

Replying to a special questionnaire, new students indicated that their hobbies were analyzing newspaper propaganda, collecting war cartoons and leaflets, oratory, building airplanes, flying, and historical research.

The Rensselaer-Vermont rivalry dates back to 1900 and the series' standing up to this year's game is Vermont 9, Rensselaer 4. Consequently the high school guests will be assured of an interesting game between these two old rivals.

A Future Phi Bete Finds Distractions

Simply got to study tonight! I have to, so don't anyone come near my room, from now on I'm reforming—seriously, I'm going to be a real stude.

Gee, our room looks pretty nice, even if I do say so—not balanced formally or informally or anything, but I like it anyway. I like the curtains; there's something about them, maybe it's just the rugs, oh, I don't know. Hmm—studying—boring stuff—chem. quiz tomorrow—can't get another fine. I wish I could do these confounded problems—we never had these last year—how are we expected to do them? Gosh! I pity the kids who've never had chem., they must be in a fog—pencil needs sharpening—good thing I've got hard teeth, here's the book—where's my eraser? Who took my eraser?—It's a pity a person can't leave things around without having them taken every other day. Who forgot to return my eraser, to put it gently?—Oh, here it is—wish this darn light could be adjusted—it's always shining in my eyes. Look at that stack of letters—just look at it! I ought to answer some tonight if I ever want to get any more—can't though—got to study. Oh, I can't get anything done here—how on earth does a girl study at her desk? Gosh, I'm lucky to have her as a roommate. She's cute.

Where'll I study?—Bed looks nice.—Wheew—I must be sleepy—feels nice, too. Oh! I almost forgot T. Dorsey—darn this static—wish I could get one station instead of twenty all the time. There he is! To think I heard him this summer. Gee, listen, girl!—She's studying—can't bother her—listen to that man swing it—piece makes me think of last year's dances—what wolf affairs they were! Chem., almost forgot it. Girl, what's the test on? How do you do those? Oh, I remember. Uh-huh. Thanks. Gosh, you look sleepy.—2259. Al and 330g Cl at 350° A and—what's the pressure?

What? Telephone—thanks.—It's ten already—how'm I going to read that story I wanted to? The illustrations are so smooth—how on earth does John Holmgren draw like that?—and look at that one of Al Parker's! What'll I wear tomorrow night—12.30 night—it's a good thing—I'm so sick of being in all the time. You might know! I forgot to have my shoes reheeled—and my laundry! I forgot all about that!

What? Oh, no—I haven't done them yet. Well—I don't know what formula to use. Oh, that one. Gee, I'm dumb. Am I hungry! Girl, want something to eat? Let's go down and look around, there might be something left. Good stuff—this pudding—wonder where those extra sandwiches are.—Look at that chem.—how can I do that stuff?—I don't even know how it starts—I give up. Nobody can say I didn't try, either. Imagine—studying this late every night. I'm turning into a regular book-worm.

AMERICAN EDUCATION NEEDS RE-APPRAISAL

Washington, D. C.—(ACP)—Adopting resolutions which declared that American education needs re-appraisal in the light of the rapid present-day changes and issues which confront the democratic way of life, the National Catholic Educational Association concluded its thirty-sixth annual meeting at the Catholic University in Washington.

The convention keynote address of Rt. Rev. John R. Hagan, Diocesan Superintendent of Schools in Cleveland, Ohio, inspired the formulation of a resolution calling upon the association to work constantly for the return of religion to American education as the only means of guaranteeing the perpetuation of American democracy.

The association declared its hearty accord with the action outlined by the late Pope Pius XI, and by the Bishops of the United States at the opening of The Catholic University jubilee last fall, looking toward the installation of more comprehensive studies in the true principles of democracy in the Catholic educational system of this country. It recommended the project as worthy of the active support and cooperation of all Catholic educators. The University, which is now compiling these courses for parochial and high schools and colleges, was termed the capstone of Catholic educational endeavor in this country.

"Because religion may not be taught in tax-supported schools," the resolutions state, "and because families and churches have not the resources to maintain schools of their own in sufficient number to provide adequately for religious education, that which is most important in the preparation of the young for citizenship is neglected and left to chance. Here is an issue that the American people must face lest the schools they support continue to decline as means of individual and social betterment."

PROF. H. F. PERKINS GIVES LECTURE ON ARCHEOLOGY

The lecture on the archeology of the Champlain Valley, based on excavations which have been carried on in Panton for the past three years, and prepared and given by Dr. H. F. Perkins, director of the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont, is still drawing audiences, having been given once already this fall. Doctor Perkins gave the lecture three times during the summer. At some of the lectures lantern slides are used. Actual specimens obtained in the excavations are also shown and an account is given of the excavations, which have yielded material adding notably to the knowledge of the Indians formerly inhabiting the Champlain Valley.

Arrangements have been made by the Fleming Museum to accommodate the Champlain Valley Archeological Society again this winter with quarters and facilities for cataloging, listing and describing the new material which has been found. John H. Bailey, archeologist, who has been in charge of excavations near Vergennes for the past three summers, will be at the museum until January 1.

Hanover, N. H.—(A.C.P.)—If you think you can beat the operators of the many football pools, look at this record hung up in a recent contest at Dartmouth College:

Out of 739 entering game predictions in a typical week-end contest, only 13 students correctly predicted nine games out of ten. Not one called all ten games right.

He holds honorary degrees from Dartmouth, Norwich, the University of Vermont, Berkeley Divinity School and the University of New Hampshire. He is a graduate of Yale University and of Union Theological Seminary.

A large crowd attended chapel and heard him stress the fact that all we know and do is the result of our heritage and traditionary culture. We as citizens of the United States and Vermont must keep our goals high and not sway from them in order to pass on the best to future citizens.

MR. WALN TO SUPERVISE INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION

Education in trades and industries at the University of Vermont is to be under the supervision of James A. Waln, who is living in Burlington and took up his new duties at the opening of the present college year. Mr. Waln probably will not teach any courses this semester, but will be occupied with field work about the state. He is working in cooperation with John E. Nelson, state supervisor of trades and industries.

Mr. Waln took his Bachelor of Science degree in industrial education at Penn State in 1930. He has taught at Penn State College High School, in Allegheny County, Md., at the University of Maryland, and has been an evening industrial education instructor at Baltimore College. He has been associated with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Mr. Waln's sister, Nora Waln, is the author of "Reaching for the Stars," a best-selling book of recent date dealing with the people inside Nazi Germany.

Pan-Hellenic Sponsors Fun Night at Southwick

The second Pan-Hellenic function of the year will be held on Wednesday night when a Pan-Hellenic fun night will be held at Southwick. This also marks the first Pan-Hellenic rushing party.

Skits will be put on by each sorority and other recreational facilities are roller skating under the supervision of Shirley Gray '41; dancing with Mary Letta Root '40 in charge; ping pong which Charlotte Hall '40 will direct; and games directed by Elizabeth Taylor '40. Kathleen LeBaron '41 is chairman of the refreshment committee. Each class will wear a different colored ribbon for identification and the evening will be a markedly informal affair. All freshman women are urged to come as failure to attend this affair would seem to indicate a lack of interest in sorority rushing.

At a recent meeting of the Pan-Hellenic Council, Joené Agard '42, a member of Delta Delta Delta, presented a plan for a scholarship of $150 which would be awarded annually to some worthy Greek-letter woman. A committee would choose the recipient of this scholarship and it would be awarded through the dean's office. Miss Agard's plan provided that the sum be accumulated by four Pan-Hellenic functions per year and as a result the first of these functions will be the Tri-Delta fashion show and tea which will be given next Saturday afternoon, October 28. Two girls from each sorority and two Independents will serve, members of Mortar Board society are honored guests, all others paying twenty-five cents for their ticket of admission.

Coca Cola Machine Yields

The new foolproof Coca Cola machine which was placed in the Old Mill last year succeeded in withstanding the onslaught of the whole student body for nearly six months until one day a week or so ago it surrendered and gave up the ghost. However, it did so voluntarily and not due to the ingeniousness of the enterprising students who have spent weary hours figuring out how to beat the game.

A self-conscious young freshman strolled into the Old Mill with a solitary nickel in his jeans. After caressing it, he finally reconciled himself to a haunting desire for a bottle of the delicious cold beverage. This in spite of the fact that he knew that he could not stop with one bottle although his financial condition did not warrant a very large investment. Slowly he placed the lustrous coin in the gaping aperture of the machine and waited eagerly for the "pause that refreshes" to drop forth. It functioned all right and the boy grasped the bottle. But, lo and behold, no sooner had he taken it to remove the cap when another bottle appeared. Hardly believing his eyes, he grabbed the second, too. From then on, they came so fast that he realized that it was useless to handle so big an order alone as his arms and pockets as well as the window sill were filled to overflowing. It was not necessary to call anyone in, however, as several bystanders had already taken a hand in the matter. It is not clear to the writer whether the stream of living water was cut off due to a shortage in the magazine, or because of the action of some community-spirited spectator. Anyhow, it ought to give each of the pilferers a sense of inner satisfaction, knowing that they have performed a miracle that may not be repeated in the history of the college.

U. W. Students to Receive N. Y. A. Aid

Madison, Wis.—University of Wisconsin students are assured of N. Y. A. part-time employment during the 1939-40 school year with a total appropriation for that period of about $120,000 with the possibility of an increase Mrs. V. W. Meloche, manager of N. Y. A. and reported.

The estimated appropriation for next year is at least equal to the 1938-39 allotment of $119,610, Mrs. Meloche asserted. The University's extra quota of available jobs can be determined as soon as official word of the apportionment is received. Approximately 2,150 students applied for the N. Y. A. work last year.

President Bailey Discusses New Building To Be Erected Soon

From his home on South Willard Street, President Bailey, who has been confined to his bed since June 4, reports marked improvement in his unfortunate affliction. He now is able to sit up about two hours each day. Within two weeks he is hoping to walk again and then his recovery should be rapid.

Barring misfortunes, President Bailey intends to resume his tasks at his office in a month. In the meantime he is caring for all important matters daily from his room. He also has several appointments every day.

At present he is devoting considerable time to the newly proposed Waterman Building. On September 15, at a meeting of the full board of trustees, a sub-committee was appointed to consider and recommend the most appropriate site for the building and to make suggestions as to what the building should comprehend. The committee expects to report its findings to the full board at an early meeting.

Physicians attending President Bailey at a check-up at the Philipps House in Boston, a branch of the Massachusetts General Hospital, assure him that he will enjoy complete recovery from his disability, which is due to a damaged dorsal vertebra.

The faculty and student body will indeed welcome President Bailey when he returns from his prolonged absence.

Girls Entertained At Sunday Dinner

Time: One o'clock Sunday afternoon.
Place: Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity house.

Event: The attendance of fifteen co-eds at a dinner reception chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Bickford.

Thus a novel feature was introduced onto the University of Vermont campus by a fraternity house.

The co-eds were invited to a fried chicken seven-star dinner by the members of the fraternity and upon completion of the meal, everybody listened to the latest recordings of the popular bands.

A swell time was had by all and this new type of fraternity entertainment was a great success.

The committee for this unique affair was headed by Jerry Katz '40, assisted by Sumner Firestone '41 and Edward Berkowitz '40.

Earlier in the morning Mrs. Bickford gave an interesting and informative address upon "Practical Etiquette."

Intercollegiate athletic competition has been abandoned by Bard College.

MONOLOGUE FEATURED ON RADIO PROGRAM

Listeners to the CYNIC radio program last Thursday were delighted by Shirley Treat's monologue, entitled "An English Woman's Impressions of America." The other feature, of special interest to students in particular, was the short talk on "Increasing Responsibilities of University Students," given by M. Huttner, an alumnus of the University of Pittsburgh, who concluded with the hope that U. V. M. would come out on top Saturday. The program ended with an announcement of the new plans for the pep rally taking place Friday night.

Five Fraternities Hold Informals on Saturday

Upsetting all predictions and acting entirely contrary to their threat as posted last week on the bulletin board, the fraternity men on the hill finally broke down and escorted Vermont co-eds to the various fraternity informals held Saturday evening. The dances were held in honor of the new pledge groups, and the pledge presidents were honored by standing in the receiving lines.

At the Phi Delta Theta house W. Murphy '41 was in charge, and the New Vermonters played. Prof. and Mrs. H. G. Millington chaperoned.

C. Nussbaum '41, M. Resnick '42, and B. Rynowecer '42 had charge at the Phi Sigma Delta house, Henry Press furnished the syncopation, and Professor and Mrs. Gershoy chaperoned.

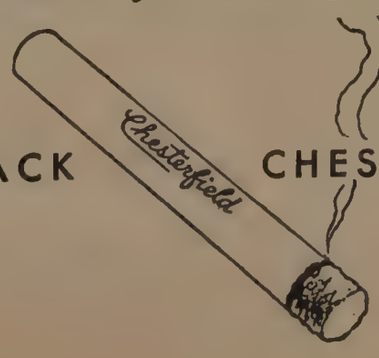
ROBINSON TO DIRECT KAKE WALK FINANCES

R. W. Robinson, president of the senior class, will be financial director of Kake Walk this year, according to reports from C. H. Schofield, chairman of this annual midwinter frolic. This decision was reached after careful consideration and discussion by last year's Kake Walk co-chairmen, H. Minckler '39 and J. Hunter '39 and by the present chairman, C. Schofield '40.

Last semester, when the 1940 Kake Walk committee was chosen, R. W. Gorton '40 was elected to the position of financial director, but due to the fact that he is unable to return to school this year, the students who competed for this post last year were considered and Mr. Robinson, because of his outstanding qualities was selected. He is a Sigma Nu, assistant baseball manager, has been active in interfraternity and intramural athletics, is secretary-treasurer of A. S. C. E., and was a Kake Walk winner in his junior year.

Tobacco...opens Doors to Fields where People Live, Work & Achieve

Today there are about 1,000,000 cigar stores, drug stores, country and grocery stores where you can buy cigarettes in the United States. These retailers, and the jobbers who serve them, have built up a service of courtesy and convenience unmatched by any other industry catering to the American public's pleasure.



THERE ARE ANOTHER MILLION people who are engaged directly or indirectly in the transportation of cigarettes to every town, hamlet and crossroads.

IT IS ESTIMATED that there are 1,602,000 tobacco farmers raising tobacco in 20 out of the 48 states. Good tobacco is one of the hardest crops to raise and bring to market, requiring great skill and patience from seed-bed planting to harvesting and curing. The modern tobacco farmer has done well the job of constantly improving the quality of his product.

THE AVERAGE LENGTH of service of the 13,230 people working in the Chesterfield factories, storage houses, leaf-handling and redrying plants is over 10 years. This means that every step in the making of Chesterfields, regardless of how small, is handled by people who have had 10 years of experience and ability in knowing their jobs.

TRULY TOBACCO OPENS DOORS to fields where people live, work and achieve, and Chesterfield takes pride in its ever increasing part in this great industry that is devoted entirely to the pleasure of the American public.

TO SMOKERS, Chesterfield Cigarettes have always said, and now repeat, that in no other cigarette made can you find the same degree of real mildness and good taste, or the same high quality of properly cured and aged tobaccos. Chesterfield Cigarettes are made with one purpose only...to give smokers everywhere the MILDER, BETTER-TASTING SMOKING PLEASURE they want. You can't buy a better cigarette.

Scribes Make Plans For Literary Contests

Calling all Scribes! Calling all Want-to-be-Scribes! On Tuesday night, October 31, at 7.30 there will be a meeting at Southwick—a meeting that no one will want to miss.

By way of novelty, a progressive story will be run off in addition to the reading and criticizing of any manuscripts that the members may bring. Jean Young, president, urges the new members in particular to bring something to read.

Details will be given at the meeting of a contest series shortly to go into full swing. Forecasts reveal that there will probably be a poetry contest, a short story contest and, possibly, an essay contest, the winning manuscripts from each group to be published in the CYNIC.

Thirty new members have signed up for the club. Now is their chance to get together at a meeting that promises to be no end of fun. Let's have a full house.

LITERARY GROUPS START PROGRAMS FOR THE YEAR

Scribes, the freshman women's literary organization, and Bluestockings, the women's honorary literary society, are now definitely launched for the year.

Scribes, which meets approximately every two weeks, is faced with a problem, however. The society, formed originally exclusively for freshman women, is now debating on whether to remain as it is, or to divide. If it divided, one group would consist only of sophomores, and the other would consist only of freshmen.

At the last meeting the organization discussed the contributions of some of its members. At the next meeting it will hold an election of officers.

Bluestockings has as yet made no definite plans for the year. The next meeting will be held on November 7, and at this meeting the members will discuss the works of Barrie.

REV. REID SPEAKER AT WEDNESDAY'S CHAPEL

The chapel service last Wednesday was opened by the sing of "Salvation is Created" by the University choir.

The Rev. David Reid, of Burlington, spoke on the theme "Finding God Through Christ."

Joené Agard '42 is to be in charge.

Tea will be served by two representatives from each sorority and from the Independents.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Middlebury to Join In Last Fall Hike

Notice to all ambitious men—and girls, too. This is your last and only chance to climb beautiful Mount Mansfield with the Middlebury girls—and fellows. Here's your big chance to meet those downstater gals and really get acquainted, for there is no place like the open trail and snug cabin for friendships to thrive. Vermont is playing the part of partial host because Mansfield is our back campus, so everybody out and make a good showing. Two weeks ago the group encountered snow on top, so wear your heavy clothes. The hikers will climb the Half Way House trail to the ski hut, where they will meet the Middlebury delegation and have lunch. There will be singing and a general get-acquainted period after. The return trip will be by way of the Sunset Ridge trail. Doesn't this sound like a wonderful day's pleasure? Of course it does! Remember the Middlebury gals and fellows are coming. So we'll see you at the men's gym at 9.00 a.m. Sunday, October 29. Bring your lunch, thirty-five cents for transportation and your ear muffs.

Exhibition for Blind Successful in Rutland

Word has been received by the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont that its traveling exhibit for the blind, which was shown recently in Rutland for the blind of that vicinity, was a success, and "afforded an opportunity to bring a new interest into the lives of many who, of necessity, have rather limited interests." This statement appears in a letter from Mrs. Samuel Frank of Rutland, one of the directors of the Vermont Association for the Blind, which handled the Rutland exhibition. The articles, especially selected for their interest to those who must "see with their fingers," were displayed in the new auditorium of the Rutland Library. Members of the Rutland Lions Club furnished transportation for blind persons from Rutland and neighboring towns to and from the exhibition.

In an article written for Outlook for the Blind, a publication devoted to the interests of blind persons, Dr. Harry F. Perkins, director of the Fleming Museum and originator of the exhibitions for the blind, has offered to send anywhere in the United States traveling exhibits of museum material adapted to the special needs of the sightless.

PROFESSOR DEAN TALKS AT PRESS CLUB MEETING

A talk by Professor Dean and a monologue by Barbara Gallagher '42, entitled "The Punishment of Mary Louise," headed the program for the Press Club meeting last Tuesday at Southwick. After the business meeting refreshments were served by social chairman Angie Ducas '41.

It was a compulsory meeting and counted as a cut for those members who did not attend.

Correction

The Military Ball will be held November 10 instead of November 4 as was stated in last week's Cynic.

Debating Teams Plan Active Fall Schedule

Women's Team Begins Home Debates Tonight

Opening the home forensic season of the current year, the U. V. M. women's debating team will clash with an invading team from Keene State Teachers' College this evening at 7.45 in the north lounge at Southwick. Harriet Nelson '42, Evelyn Fuller '41 and Kathleen LeBaron '41 will uphold the affirmative side of the topic, "Resolved, That the federal government should own and operate the railroads," for Vermont.

A team from McGill University will come here after taking on the Harvard University speakers, and will meet the Vermont men's team here, discussing the question, "Resolved, That the United States and Great Britain should get out of the Far East."

On Thursday, November 2, an innovation in debating at the University of Vermont will be experienced when representatives of the women's squad and men's squad form a team to meet a mixed team from State Teachers College of Salem, Mass. This debate will be held in Southwick, the Vermont team upholding the affirmative side of the railroad question.

On Thursday, November 16, a team from the University of Maine will visit the Vermont campus to engage in debate with the U. V. M. men's team. The question and place of holding the debate will be announced later.

On Tuesday, November 21, Bates College is sending a men's team to debate a University of Vermont men's team. The Vermont team will uphold the affirmative side of the railroad question. It is expected the debate will be held before the Men's Club of the Congregational Church in Charlotte.

The women's varsity team will travel to St. Lawrence University some time during the month of November.

A practice debate, combining the orthodox method of arguing with the newer and increasingly popular type, the Oregon style, was held by the mixed Vermont squads Wednesday afternoon on the railroad question. Gertrude Johnston '40, Kathleen LeBaron '41 gave constructive affirmative arguments, and A. Caldwell '41, F. Bardossi '42 and H. Durfee '41 upheld the negative constructive case. Miss Johnston "cross-examined" the negative team, and Durfee interrogated the affirmative. These same two speakers then presented the closing arguments for their respective sides.

Coach Powers announced that Vermont teams will employ this new Oregon style this season in intercollegiate debates if it can be arranged with other schools.

ORGAN MUSIC PROGRAM SPONSORED BY Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. is again active in serving people. It is sponsoring organ music every Sunday, from four until five, in the Ira Allen Chapel, except when there is a vesper service. Anyone may come when he wishes and may leave when he wishes.

Work at the Settlement House and at the Elizabeth Lund Home is well under way, and the work at Rock Point will begin soon.

Florence Wade '40, president of the Y. W. C. A., was in Boston October 21 and 22 to attend a meeting of the Committee of Student Christian Movement of New England.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Le Cercle Français held its first meeting of the year on Tuesday evening, October 24, at Southwick. A large group of students interested in trying out their skill in speaking French, turned out for the meeting. Professor Doane was also in attendance and spoke a few words to the group.

An election of officers for the coming year was held. The following officers were elected: President, J. M. Evans '42; vice-president, Catherine Shalucha '40; secretary, Gloria Oling '42; treasurer, A. Haritos '40; social chairman, Barbara Smith '40.

After the business meeting was completed, games were played and the new members given a chance to get acquainted.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, November 7.

Sorority Scholarship Plan to be Considered

If the plan recently presented to the governing organization of sororities at the University of Vermont works out, next year there may be a $150 scholarship open to some outstanding University woman who is a sorority member. The plan was worked out by Joené Agard of Jamaica, N. Y., and presented to the Pan-Hellenic Council, which governs Vermont sororities, being composed of representatives from each of the sororities on campus. It provides that Pan-Hellenic raise the money for the scholarship by holding four social functions yearly. Already planned is the first such occasion, with the Delta Delta Delta sorority holding a fashion show and tea this Saturday, October 28.

A specially appointed committee would choose the recipient of the scholarship, and and it would be awarded through the office of the Dean of Women.

In the voting last Friday and Saturday morning the men of U. V. M. chose for candidates in the finals for co-ed major the following girls:

1942—Frances Lynch, Sally Rome.

Aggies, Home Ec Girls To Dance at Southwick

A barn dance, to which all aggies and home ec-ers are invited, will take place tonight at Southwick. The party will last from eight to eleven, and there is no admission charge. Two or three parties of this type were very successful last year, and it is expected that the event of this evening will continue the tradition of giving everyone a good time.

Prof. and Mrs. Campbell will chaperone the dance. The committee in charge is headed by R. F. Evans '41 and he will be assisted by F. W. Nye '41 and E. F. Paquette '41. The home ec girls' committee is headed by Mary Letta Root '41.

Sororities Entertain Freshmen at Fun Night

Skits, Dancing, Games and Refreshments on Program

Pan-Hellenic sponsored the first get-together for freshmen and sorority women October 25 at Southwick. The group gathered at seven o'clock. The members of different classes wore different colored crepe-paper hair ribbons—pink for freshmen, yellow for sophomores, red for juniors, and white for seniors.

Each sorority gave a three to five minute skit demonstrating an advertising slogan which the audience guessed. Alpha Chi Omega and Kappa Alpha Theta portrayed the horrors of "Gaposis" to advocate the use of Talon fasteners; Alpha Xi Delta gave a Jello demonstration; Delta Phi Epsilon showed Ballantine's trade-mark; Delta Delta Delta demonstrated the power of Ovaltine to build up the weak little girl; the Pi Phi's watched the Fords go by; and Sigma Gamma did Snap, Crackle, Pop—Rice Krispies.

After the skits, some girls danced in the ball room, others played games in the dining room, and others roller skated or played basketball, badminton and ping pong in the gym. Refreshments of ice cream brownies concluded the program at about 8.30 p.m.

Alliance Francais to Hold Meeting Tonight

The Alliance Française will hold its first meeting of the year tonight at 8.00 o'clock at the home of Prof. and Mrs. Evans at 261 S. Prospect Street. All students of the University who have taken or are taking advanced French courses are invited to attend the meeting. The price of student membership for the year is $1.00. Tonight's entertainment will include the reading of a French play by Prof. A. B. Myrick, Mrs. J. T. Metcalf and Mrs. W. Coulman.

The club has arranged to have two guest speakers in November. The first lecture will be given at the Fleming Museum, November 6, at 4.00 o'clock. At this time Maj. Max Vivier will speak about the architect who laid out the plans for Washington, D. C., in his lecture "En Faiseur de Cités." The second lecture will be presented by Mr. Frederic Urmatt, November 22, at 8.00 o'clock at the Fleming Museum on the subject of "En Marge d'une Crise: Psychologie Comparée des Français et des Allemands."

This year there will be two prizes of $10 and $15 offered by the club to the students writing the best French essay or lecture.

INSPECTION OF MOTOR VEHICLES ENDS NOV. 1

The Motor Vehicle Department calls to the attention of owners of motor vehicles that the periodic inspection being held during this month is more than two-thirds over. From reports received in this office, from inspection stations and from observation made on the highway, it would indicate that a great number of owners have not had their motor vehicles inspected and received the windshield sticker.

It will be to the advantage of all owners of motor vehicles to have this inspection made before November 1 because on and after that date any motor vehicle found on the highways that does not show proof of inspection will be stopped and it will be necessary that the registration of this vehicle be suspended. The owner must furnish satisfactory proof to this department that such motor vehicle has been inspected before the suspension of registration may be lifted.

The Study Problem

With the arrival of the fateful period of hour exams many new students are undoubtedly experiencing a little difficulty with their introduction to college work. That was the experience of this writer and so, believing that a few words of advice and encouragement might be appreciated, he takes this opportunity to counsel the unfortunate and perhaps bolster their failing courage.

It is our belief that most students upon their arrival at school have had but little occasion to really study. By that we mean work of the concentrated type which requires intensive study. The average high school of today does not make very insistent demands on its students and as a result they arrive at college poorly trained for the work at hand. This proves to be a difficult obstacle but fortunately one which can be overcome with a little persistent effort. We hope our readers may get some consolation from these facts and feel that if their grades have not been too satisfactory to date, they are not alone in their misery and the obstacles facing them are by no means insurmountable.

So much for consolation, you say—now how about some advice? This is easily given and even more easily refused.

The usual tendency for one's mind when he sits down to study is a process known as day-dreaming. When this occurs the mind should be brought back sharply to the work at hand. Then, too, the student should adopt a favorable attitude toward the subject of his study. He should make a real effort to interest himself in the work for this will make it easier for him to keep his mind on his work.

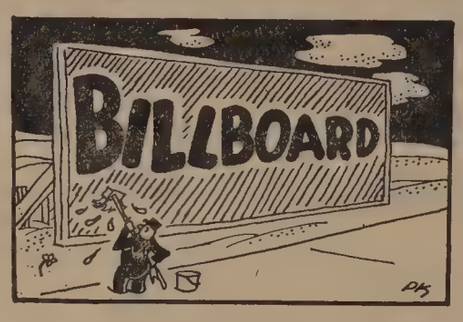
We assume now that the student's mind is in a receptive mood. At this point a rapid scanning of the assignment to get a bird's-eye view of the work will prove helpful. This should be followed by a detailed reading of the assignment to really fix the information in the mind.

As most students read too slowly they should constantly be attempting to increase their speed in reading. Tests prove that those who read fastest remember more facts than those who read slowly.

Most of the above comments do not pertain to mathematics or to sciences. In attacking assignments in these courses the student should first attain a full understanding of the processes involved before he attempts to do any of the problems included in the assignment.

These suggestions may be easily adopted by any student but in some cases this action alone may be insufficient to iron out all difficulties. If this is so, the student should appeal to his instructor for advice and possibly a little tutoring. Instructors, it will be found, are really human. They have the welfare of the student at heart and are not only willing but anxious to assist them in any possible manner. Often they will give freely of their valuable time if they feel the student is having difficulties despite real effort.

This assistance can be supplemented by aid from the various fraternities and sororities. Although a great deal could be accomplished by the Greek-letter organizations, only a few make any effort to straighten out any scholastic difficulties their pledges may have.



Here is a simple plan that any fraternity or sorority could adopt. Appoint a committee to determine the difficulties of each pledge and then institute a series of study hours at which some upperclassman who has had the course could assist them in their work.

This is only a brief treatment of the problem facing new students. We further recommend conferences with the deans and with faculty members who have had the advantage of much experience. The Book Store probably has pamphlets containing suggestions on how to improve study technique.

Pi Beta Phi Correction

A notice was sent out by the office of the Dean of Women for all freshman women and eligible transfers to bring the Pan-Hellenic sheets of the various fraternities' expenses to the dean's office for correction. Comparatively few sheets were returned. Pan-Hellenic wishes to make this correction clear. On the sheet Pi Beta Phi expenses were stated nearly double the amount they actually are for both initiates and upperclassmen. Get your corrected data at the dean's office for exact figures.

Independents' Spirit Discussed by Mahoney

On Friday, October 20, there appeared under the heading of Campus Comments a letter from J. P. Mahoney '41, president of Vermont Independents. As a result of this letter Mr. Mahoney has received compliments as well as criticisms concerning his method of approach. It seems that along towards the end of his letter he invited S A E and K. E. L. to attend the pep rally Friday night. It was over this point that he received his severest criticism.

When the CYNIC was handed out Friday night at the rally there were about 80 percent of S A E members attending. This article, of course, did not aid in any way their feeling of friendliness toward the Independents. To put it bluntly, they were sore.

Mr. Mahoney claims that he used as a basis for his invitation the fact that there were no representatives from S A E at the meeting Boulder called to talk over the situation of school spirit.

S A E also claimed they saw no notice of any such meeting in the CYNIC or on any bulletin board, so they of course could hardly be expected to send a representative.

Accordingly, Mr. Mahoney and Mr. Patch, president of S A E, met to discuss the controversy. As a result, S A E showed, of all fraternities, it was most willing and even enthusiastic about organizing school spirit among the students of Vermont that belong to no fraternity.

Mr. Mahoney also stated that he received no response from any other organized group other than S A E; and that if these other organizations would extend an invitation to him he would gladly visit them and discuss the points he brought out in his letter. He also stated that in his letter he left enough loopholes for anyone to pick him up on and that the reason he did this was to create a stir among those concerned; for, according to Mr. Mahoney, if these organizations are willing to show some pep and life when insinuations are made against them or their principles, there is still a chance of school spirit in Vermont retaining a faint glimmer or spark of life.

Mahoney claimed that his organization is looked down upon by other fraternities; and they claim that his group should do something outstanding in order to bring themselves to the attention of other groups. In answer to this, he pointed out that it was through the efforts of the Independents that there is now a large skating rink on the back campus. His group also won the first hockey cup offered up for intramural hockey competitions. They also came through and won the baseball trophy from Sigma Nu last year.

All in all, he claims his thirty members have shown exceptional school spirit and all that he is trying to do is secure cooperation from other organizations in trying to revive it at Vermont, especially among the hoard of independent Independents.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

I for one fail to see the necessity for such tripe as appeared in the sports editor's column of the VERMONT CYNIC. We are not mere infants to be led around by the nose and have stuffed down our throats such childish material. The majority of students on this campus realize the football set and no amount of cheering and singing of songs will change it. The trustees of this institution feel that there is no need for a more highly subsidized team, in spite of the fact that the small southern colleges find the publicity of a winning team to be beneficial. Instead, men are sent out on the field to face possible permanent injury and certain defeat due more to exhaustion than to inability. Criticism of Coach Sabo is heard everywhere on the campus. It is more to his credit than discredit, for with the scanty material he is given no man could succeed. If this same situation continues to exist I favor the complete abolition of varsity football at the University of Vermont.

J. BUCKMINSTER RANNEY.

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

Hour exams a necessity! Foolishness. In the more progressive institutions of higher learning they have been abolished. The psychology department of Vermont if consulted would be only too glad to receive suggestions showing ways in which these things might once and for all be eliminated.

However, that is not the point of this comment. If they, hour exams, are to be with us, why could they not be grouped so as to fall once during the month and not spread so far apart that the students have an average of one a week from the first in September to the end of the semester? I suggest that once a month one week-end, Friday and Saturday, Thursday if necessary, be set aside and that time used for the giving of hour exams. This would not mean that the instructors need give one for in some departments three are felt sufficient and in others five. No classes should be held on these days—they should be solely for the purpose of giving the exams. The faculty and deans are aware of this situation and it should not be necessary to force the issue by means of petition. Let us hope that by another semester this obvious examination fault will have been cleared up.

J. BUCKMINSTER RANNEY.

Vermont Hard Pressed for Reserves, Kodys Out For Season, Reid May Play Fullback

Leaving Burlington this morning with a football squad that easily might be mistaken for a basketball squad, Coach Johnny Sabo will lead his eighteen gridsters into battle with the New Hampshire Wildcats tomorrow at Durham. What earlier seemed to be a "breather" on the Vermont schedule has turned out to be a direct opposite, the outcome now depending entirely upon physical condition.

The New Hampshire record on paper is not very impressive. The Sauermen have won only one game all season, that over Northeastern University of Boston, 15-6. The Wildcats have dropped decisions to Colby 6-20, whom Vermont tied 0-0, Maine and Springfield College. However, New Hampshire has improved with each tussle and Maine, who is this year considered to have one of the best, if not the best, small eastern college football teams, barely nosed out a 6-0 triumph. The gymnasts only defeated the cohorts of Sauer by one point, 3-2.

According to advance reports the New Hampshire club is in perfect physical condition. Their line is composed of all veterans, but their backfield is quite light and inexperienced. However, the team is very spirited, eager to break once again into the win column, and serves notice to all that it will be hard to beat.

Cats Riddled With Injuries

The Vermont lineup is very uncertain at the moment. Ed Kodys, sophomore fullback, is definitely out of the lineup with a shoulder injury. It is very doubtful if Ed will again see service at all this campaign. Jim Corbett's leg injury might even prevent him from making the trip to New Hampshire, let alone start at end. Although Norm Strassburg and Boots Lawrence are still on the shelf, Saturday may see their return to action. Earl Reid, varsity center, may be shifted to the fullback position if Misty Rice is well enough to return to the center spot.

The Durham Wildcats will probably field Lampson and Leary at ends, Flaherty and Piretti at tackles, Buchanan and Haynes at guards, Gould at center, Hanlon at quarter, Hall and Clark at the halves, and Ace Gordon at fullback.

This Saturday's game has been designated in honor of the visiting fathers of the New Hampshire undergraduates, and a large crowd is expected to witness the game.

Taylor Elected Hoop Captain

Varsity basketball practice has begun, though in a somewhat curtailed fashion. Coach Sabo, having his hands full on the gridiron, is not able to devote his full attention to the hoopsters. Even if he were, as he said, "Much time is needed for the boys to get in condition; after that you can try them out in various combinations until you get a workable unit."

At a meeting held last Friday, the members of the previous season's team elected Frankie Taylor captain. But he, as well as Pye, both of whom are regulars, will not be able to report for practice until football is over. Henry Beauchemin, formerly the captain, but who has left school, may return at the end of this semester; however, he will not be able to play.

During this week practice has been held on alternate days, the squad dividing up into two quintets. Belardinelli, Maley, Corley, Healy, Allen, and Hawkins are holdovers. Three men who saw a good deal of action last year, Johnstone, Trigilio and Nicholson, have graduated.

Manager Wysolmerski has a full schedule of fifteen games, beginning December 2 against McGill, and closing February 24 with the Trinity game, which will feature Kake Walk week-end.

Former President Herbert Hoover is chairman of a special committee to select a successor to Ray Lyman Wilbur, retiring president of Stanford University.

Phi Delts Nip Tau Epsilon Phi

The Tau Epsilon Phi touch football team went down to defeat before a Phi Delta Theta team that capitalized on every break. The T. E. P.'s took the lead near the opening of the game on a touchdown by Shuman. They made the extra point good and were leading 7-0. The Phi Delt's quickly reciprocated for this action and pushed over a touchdown, missing the conversion for the extra point. The first quarter ended with the T. E. P.'s leading 7-6. In the second quarter an intercepted pass led to another touchdown for the T. E. P.'s by Newt Hyne and an extra point was added. Once again the Phi Delt's retaliated and the period ended with the score 14-12 in favor of Tau Epsilon Phi.

The third quarter brought about a reversal in the procedure and the Phi Delt's capitalized on poor kicking by the T. E. P.'s to get a safety when the T. E. P. fullback was tagged behind the goal line. This gave the Phi Delt's an additional two points.

The T. E. P.'s were not stopped by this though, and in short order slipped over another touchdown with the aid of Jack Bloom, who intercepted a pass. This time the conversion was missed. The third quarter ended with T. E. P. leading 20-14.

The Phi Delta Theta team scored a touchdown in the final quarter and tied up the game at 20 all.

For the first time this year, a game went into the overtime period. In this period each team is given five alternate downs and the team advancing farthest into the opponent's territory without the aid of kicking is declared the winner.

The T. E. P.'s won the toss and elected to take the final crack at the ball. The Phi Delt's got their choice of goal as a result of this, and, aided by a favorable wind and a down grade, penetrated quite deeply into T. E. P. territory. The T. E. P.'s in a desperate attempt to once again take the lead that they had held throughout most of the game threw a long pass. This proved to be the fatal blow as a Phi Delt safety man intercepted the pass and raced practically the full length of the field unmolested for a touchdown and the decisive play of the game.

This hard-won victory puts the Phi Delt's into the semi-finals with the Phi Sigma Delta team. This contest is scheduled for Friday, October 27, and should be an excellent game.

On Thursday, October 26, the Sigma Phi's and the Delta Psi's engage in a gridiron combat for the opportunity of playing the winner of the Phi Sigma Delta versus Phi Delta Theta game. This contest is scheduled for Tuesday, October 31, and will decide the interfraternity touch football championship.

Frosh Gridsters Oppose Green Mt.

Both Teams Undefeated; Kitten's Lineup Revised

Centennial Field will be the scene of a grid battle of undefeated elevens tomorrow, when the Kittens play host to the pigskin chasers of Green Mountain Junior College. Tomorrow's game will be the twelfth of a long rivalry between the two schools. In eleven games both sides have garnered four wins; three ties round out the count. Last year's game resulted in a scoreless draw, a condition which both teams are out to remedy this year.

Frosh squads, under Coach Fuzzy Evans, have not lost a game since the initial contest of the 1937 grid season. This year's squad boasts a 20-6 win over Vermont Junior College and a 13-0 victory over a strong Dartmouth frosh club.

The Greenies have been victorious three times in as many starts. They whipped the Norwich Jayvees 13-0; New York Aggies 14-7; and the Nichols Junior College 3-0. The Kittens would rate as favorites were it not for the fact that two injuries and an open date last week-end have not raised their stock any.

Urson Otto, first-string tackle, is still on the sidelines due to a knee injury suffered in the Dartmouth tilt. Johnny Chernansky, guard, will also be missing as he has quit school. The loss of Otto, who supplemented his line duties by booting at the kick-off whistle, gives Francis McArdle a chance at a starting assignment at one of the half positions as he is the best kick-off man available. Norm Beaulieu, star ball toter and passer, will be at the other half slot. Tom Sanders and Harry Parker will take up the quarterback and fullback positions as they have in previous games.

In the line Harry Parris replaces Otto, Will Lankton shifts from end to guard, while Frank Swift fills in for Chernansky.

The Kittens' attack should be spiced by a variety of plays as they have been running off New Hampshire plays against the varsity all this week. Green Mountain will have a job on its hands stopping Sanders and Beaulieu, both dangerous runners in the open. Beaulieu is especially adept at broken-field running and is a sure winner in the open. With a balanced backfield adept in all departments of the game, versatility is the keynote of the Kittens.

Bud Webster, hard-tackling, 220-pound lineman, and Broadhead and Taft will spark the Greenies. Charles Fairbanks of Springfield at halfback will bear watching. It was his pinch field goal which defeated Nichols Junior College last week. The Greenies will be at full strength against the Kittens and will be a hard team to stop.

With a perfect season at stake for both teams and a long rivalry behind tomorrow's game, anything can and probably will happen.

Eighteen Men and a Prayer

At the beginning of the present football campaign we commented upon Coach Sabo's twenty-two men and a prayer. While the dimensions of the prayer are now increasing, the twenty-two men have dwindled to eighteen, which, we'd like to point out, is not even enough for a scrimmage session. If the frosh were not available, Sabo would be forced to line up his team in touch football formation in order to scrimmage. That's no joke. Old Man Injury has brought out his machine gun and played havoc with four varsity members. Ed Kodys suffered a shoulder separation in last Saturday's fray which will keep him out of action for the remainder of the season. Earl Reed has been shifted to the vacant fullback slot and Misty Rice, recovered from early-season injuries, is back at his center position. Norm Strassburg, who hurt his ankle in the St. Lawrence fracas, will most likely not be ready for the Wildcats tomorrow. Whether or not Boots Lawrence and Jim Corbett will be in shape for tomorrow's battle is very doubtful. With four out of eleven regular starters nursing injuries, Vermont will be in for one tough afternoon against a team which has improved with every game to date.

To quote from a letter we received two days ago from the sports editor of The New Hampshire, "Your situation is deplorable, and I certainly sympathize with you. But your coach will probably be able to scrape up eleven men to start the game."

Basketball Babblings

In full realization of the fact that cold late fall winds are already playing havoc with hats and skirts, and so forth, and that December cannot be far away, Johnny Sabo has been holding nightly hoop sessions in the gymnasium these past two weeks in preparation for a tough mid-winter campaign. This year the Cats face practically all of the usual teams—plus Fordham. And Fordham is big time; which means, in brief, that slowly, but surely, with Dartmouth and Fordham on our schedule, Vermont is breaking into big-college hoop circles. When we heard last year that Fordham was to be on the 1939-40 schedule we were deeply pleased, for the 1939-40 team looked like one sweet combination. It still looks good, but we're inclined to think not so good as it would have been were Hank Beauchemin and Pike Trigilio of last year's varsity and Bernie Levinson of last year's frosh aggregation still in our midst. None of these highly touted gentlemen returned to their studies this year for various reasons, and so that which was to be the classiest team in small-college hoop circles, perhaps, may not be quite the classiest team. Whether the consistency of Pike Trigilio or the spectacular brilliance of Beauchemin or Levinson will be missed or not remains to be seen. Don Maley, Bill Pye and Anse Belardinelli were all regular starters last year and they will be this year. Frankie Taylor started a number of games, and Paul Corley, Dick Healey and Bud Allen all saw considerable reserve service. Harry Noyes and Dick Lynch, two newcomers to the varsity, Hawkins and Hart, two men who have seen varsity service, and Brown, Wood, Spasyk and Roeder of the 1938-39 frosh contingent round out a very strong squad. Coach Sabo certainly should not be troubled by the substitute problem, which is the nemesis of the present football team.—A. D. W.

GRID SQUAD FEELS TOLL OF UNION GAME

A battered University of Vermont team will go against the University of New Hampshire this week. For the first time this year serious gaps have been opened in the ranks of Vermont's eleven maple hearts. Union's crushing attack that broke Vermont resistance in the second half left several casualties in its wake.

The most serious loss to the team from the point of view of replacement is Kodys at fullback. Coach Sabo has been short all the year on backfield men, with Kodys, Taylor, Pye, Broutsas and Spasyk carrying the load. Now that Kodys is shelved indefinitely with a shoulder injury someone else will have to be found. Reed, who has been playing an aggressive game at center, may be shifted back as Rice has recovered sufficiently to take over the center duties.

All along the line bumps and bruises are showing up. Corbett at end may have to be kept out for a week or two. Lawrence at tackle is also ailing.

In spite of the fact that Vermont was subdued by a stronger team with more reserve power in last Saturday's contest, it was able in the early part of the game, before wearing down, to put over a touchdown of its own. In only one game, against Colby, when neither side could get off on the wet field, has the Vermont team failed to tally.

Exhibition of Glass Displayed at Museum

Sandwich, Stiegel, Etched And Engraved Pieces Shown

Old glass and new glass, cut glass and pressed glass, American glass and European glass, but especially glass from the early days of America, all these kinds of glass are represented in a new exhibition in the Early Vermont Room of the Fleming Museum at the University of Vermont. An enameled Stiegel flip glass would be one of the most tempting items to a collector's eye. Stiegel started his glass works in 1765 in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and his artistry in glass brought him world-wide acclaim. Stiegel now is considered probably the most important among American glass makers.

There are in the display a number of examples of Sandwich glass from the well-known works in Sandwich, Mass. The works were started in 1825. While most Sandwich glass is the pressed type, cut and moulded glass was also made there.

To show the differences between pressed glass and cut glass, examples of the two methods of glass making are shown together. Flint glass is used for cut glassware, because of its brilliance, which is obtained from lead oxide used in its manufacture. Glass used in pressed ware is usually less brilliant.

Sandwich Glass on Display

Also on display are a silver lustre vase, a pressed Sandwich glass plate and a number of other pieces of Sandwich glass, acid etched glassware and engraved glassware. Hydrofluoric acid, the only kind of acid that will cut glass, is used to make etched glass. The article is covered with wax, the design cut in the wax, and the whole then is immersed in hydrofluoric acid. This cuts the glass in the desired pattern. This method of decorating glassware produces a lacy pattern not obtainable by any other method.

Flint glass may be decorated by cutting, using a sandstone wheel, or by engraving, with copper discs in a lathe.

An example of European glass is a cut and enameled glass decanter. History of glass making in this country, the high points of which are given with the glass exhibit, shows that early American glass works almost always imported workmen from Europe.

A bottle in the shape of a soldier is an example of moulded glass. This type was made by blowing the liquid glass into the mould. Explanatory material included with the exhibit states that the early method of hand blowing glass was mostly abandoned after the invention of the mould in making glass. To make pressed glass, liquid glass is poured into a red-hot iron or bronze mould and the plunger of the press descends and completes the formation.

Old and New Methods

The old and the new is shown in two pieces of pressed glass, displayed side by side. The old is pressed Sandwich glass; the new is similar in design, but lacks the mellowness age has given the older glass.

A hand-blown vase shows the imperfect centering of the body to the stem which is typical of hand work. Another of the articles on display, a piece of Venetian glass, also has this distinguishing mark of hand-made glass. There is also to be seen a hand-blown decanter.

One of the famous dolphin pattern candlesticks, which are now very rare, is a product of the Sandwich works.

There are several pieces of ruby or "Bohemian" glass. This glass is made by blowing two layers of liquid glass together, so that a white layer is covered with a ruby layer. The designs are then engraved through the red layer, exposing the under layer of white.

One example of what modern glass makers are producing is a piece of engraved Scandinavian glass.

How glass making started in the New World is told in connection with the exhibit. The first glass factory was located at Jamestown, Va., in 1607, and made glass bottles. In 1621 the London Company sent over Italian workmen to Virginia to make glass beads for trade with the Indians. Other early American glass included Wistarberg glass, made in New Jersey; Stiegel glass, and Sandwich glass. The Wistarberg blass works was the first successful glass industry in America.

For this exhibition the museum's collection of glass was supplemented by contributions from the Bero Jewelry Company of Burlington, Mrs. G. W. Benedict of Underhill and Mrs. Mary Wardwell of Burlington.

New Political Science Instructor Discusses Hobbies and Pastimes

The latest addition to the political science department of the University is George L. Milliken, a very pleasant young man who has kindly given an exclusive interview to the CYNIC, in which he has revealed a few of the more important facts of his life, his likes, dislikes, etc.

To begin with, Mr. Milliken is a native of Los Angeles, Calif., where the mellow climate is a far cry from Vermont's changeable variety of weather; however, he thinks that he can become accustomed to whatever may come, even though it be 20 below zero.

A graduate of the University of Southern California, he has spent most of the last three years at Yale, and taught political science there last year. Connecticut is a long way from California, but Mr. Milliken makes the trip across the continent and back every summer, a distance of some seven thousand miles per trip. He considers this commuting the most interesting thing that he has done in the last five years, and believes that more people should travel in America instead of going to Europe. In other words, our new instructor is a "See America First" enthusiast, especially concerning the national parks. One thing in particular he has noticed in traveling through the many states: you never find an American who doesn't want to discuss politics, whether he knows anything about them or not.

At this point the subject of politics was dropped and Mr. Milliken was quizzed as to his more personal interests. He expressed a great fondness for music, especially the classics, and says that he enjoys singing in the choir here very much. As for dancing (jitterbugs taking political science, please note), Mr. Milliken stated definitely that he prefers slow, smooth music.

Enthusiastic Sailor

One of his favorite pastimes is sailboating, and he feels that there is nothing comparable to the blue sea and a white sail flapping in the wind. Last summer while at home he and four companions attempted to sail a twenty-five-foot sloop to Catalina Island. A storm came up and they discovered, rather tardily, that the sloop was badly rigged, a fact which eventually resulted in their being rescued by the Coast Guard after drifting all night. However, this little adventure did not in the least dampen his ardor for sailboating.

Mr. Milliken also enjoys flying, and is much interested in the new plan for teaching young men to fly at the government's expense. Reading is another of his favorite diversions, particularly the reading of history of the Middle Ages, and he has made a rather extensive study of the music, painting, architecture, and social life of that period.

Asked the inevitable question on the subject of his feelings in regard to Vermont, Mr. Milliken stated positively: "You can say that I certainly do like Vermont, and I get a thrill every day when I see Mount Mansfield over there behind Converse Hall. Furthermore, I am looking forward with pleasure to the Vermont winter because, although I do not ski or skate very well, I enjoy being where there is snow." (Having lived in Illinois for eleven years when he was young, Mr. Milliken knows something about winter weather.) Furthermore, he says that he considers himself fortunate in having acquired a teaching position in such a pleasant locality, and is becoming very much attached to Burlington.

After inquiring about everything else, there was just one more question to be asked. The answer was "No." Mr. Milliken is not married—yet.

We Are Not Alone

By "POOH"

We steamed into Zo lab this afternoon amidst the sound of clashing cymbals. Triumph literally dripped from the air which warily circled us. A marvelous thing had happened. Oh, such a wonderful thing! The last bits of dissected tissues of the frogs we had been pulling apart for the preceding month had made their final exit. Everything was over but the shouting. We nearly burst our lungs.

The next problem lost no time in confronting us, though. Problems have a habit of confronting. It seems to be their pet hobby. We sat down, relaxed, and panted, and were immediately asked to get up again. We had to carry a beautiful shining thing back to our seats. Someone said it was a microscope. I leaned over and investigated. It was very complicated.

Pretty soon we found ourselves surreptitiously weeping up our sleeves, as we pulled a piece of onion apart. The tiny bit of membrane went onto a slide, and then a drop of water was put on it, and the job was to straighten it out. Then another little square of glass went on over it. And then—and THEN the slide went on the microscope and the complications began. . . . I put my eye against the eyepiece and looked down. There was only a gray blankness. Someone said something about a mirror. I fixed that. Then I started turning knobs. And suddenly it broke like a sunrise. Not the slide.

A strange gray and black mass came tearing up, and then, quick as a flash, it resolved itself into a beautiful silver wall, composed of oblong bricks, with fine black threads separating them. It was miraculous. It was like a dream. Hudson called it Fairyland, and oh, it was fairyland. There were the nuclei. The very same nuclei that we used to study about in high school, and sleep over. But now they were alive. The whole tissue was alive! It swarmed with those tiny cells, and each cell was complete in itself. So much in such a small scrap of onion skin. And so beautiful.

The next thing on the program was a piece of stratum corneum. These Latin names! To the uninitiated, that means a little bit of the skin of a frog, the dried part that fell off. It certainly didn't look very attractive, but under the microscope it shed its frown and emerged a thing of beauty, like the butterfly crawling from its cocoon. Only it didn't crawl. It flashed. It looked like a shimmering piece of metallic silver cloth. When you looked closer, you discovered suddenly that it was composed of tiny silver sections, each a different shape. And there, twisting and turning, racing hither and yon, was the first microbe. It was such a small thing, so full of vitality, so silverly transparent. How in heaven's name can a tiny, tiny thing like that make a man sick, let alone kill him?

What a lot of things there are in the world to be found out!

In this Kaywoodie pipe, called the Carburetor Kaywoodie, a wonderfully sweet-smoking pipe has been improved by the application of a neat little principle of physics. When you take a puff at one of these Carburetor Kaywoodies, you automatically draw air in through a tiny inlet in the bottom of the bowl. That incoming air keeps the smoke cool, sweet and serene, no matter how belligerently you puff. In fact, the harder you puff, the more air comes in. That's why it's called a Carburetor Kaywoodie. Shakespearean Group To Appear Here Soon

Hendrikson and Bruce To Play November 13

Two of the leading exponents of the classic drama on the American stage, James Hendrikson and Claire Bruce, with their company are to appear in Burlington on November 13. On their twelfth annual tour they will present handsomely staged productions of the Shakespearean plays. The company of ten actors have been chosen with the utmost care for their suitability, training, and experience in Shakespearean interpretation, all members of the company having first served their apprenticeship in the theater before being eligible to the company.

Mr. Hendrikson and Miss Bruce themselves have had a sound apprenticeship, both having appeared on the Broadway stage in modern plays and also in Shakespearean repertory companies of Robert B. Mantell and Fritz Leiber.

While emphasis is placed first on high quality of acting, clear enunciation, distinguished style and strict observance of the text, the productions abound in pictorial beauty, each successive scene being a picturesque representation of the particular period. Splendid lighting treatment creates the desired mood, presenting a brilliant pageant of colorful costumes and settings.

Over a period of twelve years the company has played not only to the general theater-going public, but also to the most critical and discriminating audiences.

It is through the influence of Professor Tupper that this celebrated couple and company are appearing at the University for the enjoyment of all Shakespearean lovers. Remember the date—November 13!

Outing Club Holds Hike To Mt. Mansfield Sun.

All you lads and lassies who didn't take advantage of the last opportunity to climb Mount Mansfield Sunday, October 29, missed the thrill of a lifetime. After some delay in waiting for the Middlebury group to arrive, the group got under way and arrived at the top three-quarters of an hour after leaving the Halfway House. This time is quite remarkable in that the trail was especially treacherous because of snow and ice sheets. One cliff, which rises twenty feet straight up beside the trail, was hung with huge icicles, making it appear as a pipe organ. At the summit the fifty members of the Middlebury delegation left for the chin, the twenty-three Vermont students descending past the hotel to the stone ski hut. The snow-laden trees seemed like gleaming white images against the deep blue sky and darker valley below. After lunch and a well-earned rest, part of the group climbed the nose, the other part descending by way of the chin and the Sunset Ridge Trail. The tired, wet hikers returned to Burlington in the University station wagon and private cars.

Alpha Chi Informal Held at Chapter House

Saturday night, October 28, the annual fall informal was held at the Alpha Chi Omega house. Chaperones were Professor and Mrs. Daggs, Miss Marjorie Perrin, and Mr. Green. The Kittens furnished the swing. The house was decorated with jack-o'-lanterns and orange crepe paper streamers. The dance was well attended by college members, alumnæ, and representatives from other sororities.

SUCCESSFUL RAZZ RAZZ HELD SATURDAY NITE

The razz dazz held Saturday night at Southwick under the joint sponsorship of the two junior honorary societies, Staff and Sandal and Key and Serpent, was a successful one, although the crowd was smaller than usual due to the holding of sorority informals the same night. The chaperones were Professor and Mrs. Carpenter and Professor and Mrs. Youngert.

Delta Delta Delta Holds Fashion Show

A large audience attended the Tri-Delt fashion show and tea held at Southwick last Saturday, October 28, from 4.00 to 5.30. Fashions from Mary White's Town and Country dress shop were featured, and included sport's wear, afternoon dresses, and evening gowns. The climax of the style parade was a white velvet wedding gown modeled by Barbara Butler '41, Carol Westall '40 as her attendant was gowned in black velvet. Miss Butler carried a white prayer book.

Other models were.: Jean Butler '40, Jean Brehmer '40, Betty Terrill '41, Betty Ingalls '42, Marjorie Albro '42, Lucille Clark '42, and Patricia Nadeau '42. The hats worn were by Mabel O'Neil; shoes were from Boynton's.

Joane Agard '42, who was in charge of the event, presented Miss Mary White with a bonquet of yellow chrysanthemums at the close of the show. Tea was then served by two representatives from each sorority, and two Independents.

The proceeds from this fashion show will go to the Pan-Hellenic scholarship fund, the result of a newly-instituted plan whereby a scholarship of $150 will be awarded to a worthy Greek-letter sorority member next year.

Moody Lauds DaVinci Before College Group

"Leonardo DaVinci was one of the world's most versatile men" Paul A. Moody of the zoology department of the University told the Methodist Church College Group Sunday evening. By the use of slides Professor Moody showed some of the sketches Leonardo made of various ideas he had for improvements in architecture, machines of warfare and also the results of his study of anatomy which were some of the first because as far as the internal structure of the human body was concerned the people, who lived at the time Columbus discovered America, knew nothing for by law men were able to dissect only monkeys for study. As to his painting he said in a letter of application he once wrote that he was as good as any other and later he did the famous "Mona Lisa" and "The Last Supper" paintings.

Heininger Speaks To Enthusiastic I. R. C.

Sigma Gammas Spend Night on Mansfield

Thirteen girls—Sigma Gamma, their guests, and Grace Baldwin '38, the chaperon—spent Saturday night at Mabel Taylor Butler lodge on Mt. Mansfield. The group climbed aboard Kenwood's cheese truck at 2.30 and rode to Stevensville, where they donned their packs and started the ascent. About dark they reached the cabin, built a fire, ate a huge supper and soon went to bed.

Sleep came soon, but soon went. About midnight the place became frigid due to the death of the fire. A couple of girls clattered out of bed and built another fire. At last all became peaceful; then a cry broke the stillness. One of the girls had spied a small white weasel scurrying across the floor.

Dawn came, and with it another session of fire making. Then breakfast, a far different breakfast than Wednesday morning's orange juice. A few domestic souls did the dishes and cleaned the cabin, while the rest climbed the mountain.

The girls ascended the forehead in a fog, and then wandered around on top for a while. At last the sun broke through, it became clear, and the view was wonderful. The snow clung to the trees and made ghosts of them, there were mountains to look at all around, and even the U. V. M. Outing Club could be seen way down at the half-way house.

Another meal at about noon; then the homeward trail, down the mountain and into the cheese truck and back to Burlington.

A. S. M. E. TAKES TRIP TO CITY WATERWORKS

On Friday, October 27, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers were on the receiving end of a busman's holiday. They were allowed to wander from the confines of their rooms only to be confined by the limitations of their wanderings. The future builders of our municipalities went the amazing distance to the city water works where they came in contact with the means by which our thirsty citizens satisfy their dry palate with pure H_2O.

The set up was intricate and amazing to their bewildered eyes and with a flurry of scratch paper they crammed all "info" they could on blank pieces of paper for future use on some hour test.

It was indeed a busman's holiday for even though their class was not at dear old U. V. M., they still had to use their mentality in comprehending what they saw and store it up for future use.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB MEETING THURSDAY

The Home Economics Club meeting this month is scheduled for Thursday, November 2 at 7.30 in the Brick Barn. Miss Marjorie E. Luce will speak on the London Conference which was held this last summer.

All Home Economics students are invited to come.

Red Cross Calls Roll In American Colleges

America in recent years has looked increasingly to its colleges and universities for leaders in all walks of life. Not the least of the organizations which rely heavily on the nation's educational institutions for that quality of leadership essential to success is the American Red Cross.

Today there are more than 3,700 Red Cross chapters throughout the country. They cover virtually every square inch of continental United States and its territorial possessions. These chapters are engaged in many branches of activity. They aid the suffering in disaster; they assist service men, civilians, veterans and their families who find themselves in sudden distress and need; they help the blind, the maimed, the ill to overcome, in some measure, their handicaps.

And when grim-visaged war casts its shadow on the world, the Red Cross and all its members unite to lighten the burden of the afflicted. The wounded and sick are tended. Women and children, innocent victims of a fury that knows no bounds, are fed, clothed and sheltered. The Red Cross light is kept burning without fail.

Needs Leaders

All this work requires leadership. In fact, the measure of the Red Cross and every one of its chapters is dependent on the quality of its leaders. For that reason the organization has always sought to interest the student on the campus.

Much of its humanitarian program, though designed to a particular purpose, is peculiarly adapted to stimulating this interest. Classes in life saving and water safety, in first aid, in home hygiene and care of the sick, and in nutrition are provided every year in many colleges. Large numbers of students participate in these to the mutual advantage of themselves and the Red Cross.

Many a football hero, carried injured from the field, has been tended by a Red Cross first aider. Summer camps, swimming and other recreational resorts all over the country each year are staffed by men and women trained in one or more of these subjects by the Red Cross. They guard the safety of bathers, care for the injured and know what to do when tending the ill.

Variety of Services

Cooperation between the nation's colleges and the Red Cross extends beyond the limits of the campus. When the Ohio and Mississippi boiled over levees and banks guarding the very existence of hundreds of thousands living in the fertile lands along those rivers, great numbers of men and women from colleges in the flooded areas volunteered for rescue and relief work. Manning boats they evacuated stranded refugees from upper stories of partially inundated houses, from roofs and higher ground which the rampaging waters had turned into islands overnight. They distributed relief supplies, helped care for refugees and performed a great variety of services for which they earned not only the undying esteem of the Red Cross, but the gratitude of many a refugee.

The annual Roll Call, when the Red Cross, as servant of the people, goes before the country with an accounting of its services and a request for renewed faith

Debating Team Meets Keen State Teachers'

Vermont's debating season formally opened on Friday night, October 27. The women's debating team engaged that of Keene State Teachers' College of New Hampshire. The meeting took place in Southwick and the topic upon which the two teams debated was "Resolved, that the Federal Government should own and operate the railroads." The positive side was upheld by the University of Vermont team, which consisted of the following people: Harriet Nelson '42, Evelyn Fuller '41, and Kathdeen LeBaron '41. The opposing team consisted of two men and two women. Each team was permitted two regular speeches and two rebuttals. In accordance with the custom of this school, no decision was made as to the winning team. Also in accordance with custom, an open forum, an informal discussion in which questions were asked and answered, was held after the debate.

The next meeting of the women's varsity team will take place at St. Lawrence University during November.

The first meeting of the men's team will take place when that team takes on the McGill team. The topic will be "Resolved, that the United States and Britain both get out of the Far East.

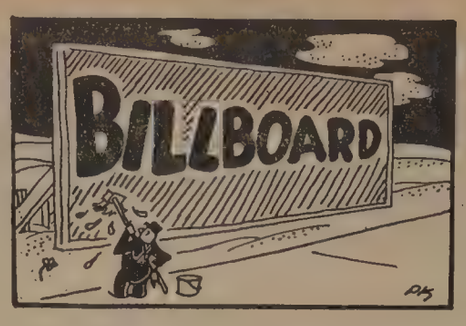
Today's issue of the CYNIC contains a story describing the program planned by the American Red Cross between November 11 and November 30. The story presents the problems which have faced the Red Cross in the past and which are still confronting it today. It also directs an appeal to the college students of today by requesting that they participate in this campaign and assist in making it successful. Furthermore, it points out that the organization is badly in need of leaders who have had the benefits of a college education.

How true this is and what a rich field lies open to any student who decides to assist in the noble work carried on by the Red Cross. He who makes this decision does so with the knowledge that so far as remuneration is concerned, he must be content with a mere pittance of what his services are really worth. But could anyone find an occupation from which he could reap such a harvest of satisfaction for a job well done?

We believe that this would overshadow by far any monetary loss necessitated by a decision to follow this work. It is true that money may make possible those luxuries the majority of us desire, but it is a known fact that in many cases riches bring more disappointment and heartache than the wretchedness of poverty, and that those who are content with little often lead a life so filled with contentment that it is the envy of kings.

Silly idealism, you say? Then we recommend that you reconsider the facts. Red Cross offers a challenge that few will dare accept; but we say, in all sincerity, that he who does accept will be repaid in such coin as is immeasurable in terms of mere dollars and cents.



But for those who find it impossible to consider the Red Cross as a life work, may we point out that each of us can contribute some small thing, either in money or service, to this worthy cause? So let's get behind this movement and help to make it a tremendous success.

At a recent meeting of the Interfraternity Council, a body which has noticeably improved its function on campus during the period in which this writer has been familiar with it, one of its junior members suggested that the Council might initiate some action in an effort to curb fraternity politics and their consequences. Although the Council was forced to postpone any action in this direction to a later meeting when more information on how to formulate suitable plans could be obtained, it was obvious from the attitude of Council members that they were all aware of the present situation and were equally anxious to correct the evils of fraternity politics. The Council felt that they should possess more adequate information on how other schools solved this problem before any action was taken.

We present this editorial to the student body for two reasons. First, that the students may all become acquainted with the situation and, secondly, that any student who has information on how other schools meet this problem may present these facts to the president of the Interfraternity Council, Peter Patch.

Under the present system several fraternities may form a combine which easily decides the outcome of the elections for class officers. In many cases the men who are elected to office do not merit that honor. More capable candidates are either defeated in the elections or never even nominated. The only possible manner to combat such a combine is to form an opposing combine, which does not correct the evil but rather only shifts the control of elections to other hands. The same result is obtained—frequent election of incompetent, undeserving class officers.

Obviously regulations should be passed prohibiting the existence of combines in name or in fact. Other regulations should be passed instituting a mode of elections which would make politics impossible. It's a hard problem to solve but one which every thinking student should confront and honestly attempt to assist in solving.

This Amazing Freshman Class

They sound like old-time football signals. In reality they are more or less vital statistics of the freshman class at the University of Vermont.

The youngest member of the class, for example, is sixteen years old. He is Leigh G. Abbott of Weston, Mass. On the other end of the teeterboard is Russell Marshall of Bennington, twenty-three years plus five more months of maturity.

Paul M. Gold, Ridgewood, N. J., according to the statistics, which are released by the physical education office, skims the ground at 5 feet 2½ inches; while Thomas L. Moran, native of Bristol, Conn., brushes the skyline at 6 feet 3½ inches.

Fluttering about the campus is Ralph Kilburn, 95 pounder of Collinsville, Conn. In case of bad weather, however, he can tie up to the 235 pounds of Lawrence H. Wein of Newton, Mass., and experience little disturbance.

Many bewildering experiences, it is reported, occur during freshman examination. It is said that Harold F. French, prominent alumnus of 1908, thought, in a moment of abstraction, that he would like to be a freshman again. So when a clerical error brought him to the physical education office, he donned an ancient set of riding breeches, blocked out a few teeth, charcoaled an eye, put on a freshman cap and dutifully reported for inspection.

"By the eternal," exclaimed the examining officer, regarding the new recruit in astonishment, while he mentally calculated that the average age of the entering class would be about 40, "what have we here?"

A group of brother freshmen were crowding about, viewing in wonderment what Father Time had brought them.

"I want to be examined," quavered the ancient, showing his summons. A spasm of pain wrenched his mid-riff, causing fearsome facial contortions. "I—I want to join the ping-pong team."

The examiner hurriedly cleared the room of other encumbrances, sent post-haste for the medical director, and threw up a window. When he turned around again the old-timer was gone.

The Band Wagon

By BOB JOHNSON

Carmody?

Here you have as much knowledge as I have but we do know the "Fo'castle" where ordinarily Schmaltz outfits have reigned with the Marblehead fog. But . . . even Meyer Davis outfits have their go men. On the other hand it may be a strictly hep combine—your guess being as good or better than mine.

Waxings

Don't miss Stacey's piano solo of Ec-stacy and the Spud Murphy, full band, cutting of the same piece.

We got a real kick out of the Ellington release "Serenade to Sweden" and "The Sergeant Was Shy." These are more modernistic and impressionistic than real swing. Both tunes were conceived on their European tour early last summer. The latter tune is—as we see it—a musical satire on Europe's militarism. There's some exciting Rex Stewart jungle iron.

Airwave Raves

Bunny Berigan definitely has not yet rejoined the ranks of the studio men. At present he's kicking out with a brand new band in Boston's "Southland." Several of the men in his last band are now with the new Teddy Powell band, they include Gus Bivona clarry and sax, and Don (Jonesie) Lodice on Hawkins-like tenor. . . Back to Bunny—his horn is even better than before . . . and that's saying plenty!

Orchids to the studios of Waterbury and St. Albans for giving the North Country really good records—not all swing, either. They have a good selection for purely commercial-minded people.

Town Talk

We go for Merrill "Father" Jarvis, 88 man who plays beautifully . . . what a shame to see him with a honky tonk outfit, "somewhere north of town."

Cab Calloway's arranger, Ralph Yaw, has been in town for several days giving local boys a real treat. He is also doing some 4-star arranging for Jack "Big Gate" Teagarden.

Paul Lane, formerly of Fenton Bros. ork, was heard on campus with Red Dower at the Kap Sig House last week—an 88 black and white, player of xceptional all-round ability—truly tremendous. Also with Red and his trumpet was Milt Webber—tenor saxist of note; Rollo Beaupre—Burlington's flashiest drummer; Mel Weaver—alto and clarinet man, with a polish. A truly go outfit—would that it can stay together!

Philbert goes on record as saying "Why—Why?—doesn't somebody write a song for the Green and Gold that will sound more like a fight song with spirit, than a dirge? . . . A student body, for the first time removed from a morgue by more than three days, deserves a song, or two, or three to go with its newly-found spirit. This is not aimed at "Champlain"—a song so bound with emotion and sentiment cannot be criticized on this score. But . . . we need a song—a steal—something—but with life! La Sheridan says "Oomph."

"Raw Raw Ree!
Kick me in the knee!
But don't take
Philbert away from me"

Blow-out

Interesting to note—the "Artie Shaw vs. Everybody" feud. Everybody hates him—poor guy! To this corner it looks like he got what he wanted only to find out he doesn't want it—so it's not his fault and it's somebody's—"Don't it awful, Georgie? He don't want to play no more!"

Ripping things apart . . . our mood for today but probably next week will find us on the blue carpet visualizing zanier things than Dali.

Philbert stands in front of me holding a milk bottle and looking strangely at me—getting hit once in a week is often enough so signing—Whap!—"off," Philbert speaking.

Cynic Chatter

Time has passed, mes enfants, and we're still here; the Military Ball is coming and we're still going. . . . Incidentally, that should be some baile. . . . Dramatic try-outs are revealing considerable talent among some of the frosh. . . . Heard two of them talking the other day; one, slightly boastful because he had worked in a summer theatre, bragged, "Why, I earned my bread and butter all summer acting!" Then a voice cut in from just behind him, "And eggs, frosh, and eggs." . . . . Now we know who put the ham in Hamlet. . . . It's peculiar how many people never heard of you before when they know that you're broke. . . . . Note to the Coffee Corner quarterbacks: That thing that they throw in football games is spelled b-a-l-l, not b-u-l-l. . . . Who was the frosh that wandered into the CYNIC office last week and bitterly said, "I'd like to write for the CYNIC, but nobody asked me"? . . . . Yes, dear readers, they're still doing it. . . . . Note: There will be a series of amateur hours over the CYNIC Radio League shortly. See CYNIC for further details. . . . Noticed one very small frosh walking down Church Street smoking a huge black cigar. They should have given him some corned beef with that cabbage. . . . We retract our crack about the co-eds in the last column. . . . But to paraphrase Galileo, it's still the truth. . . . Well, Hasta Luega till next time. . . . Westy. . . .

Catamounts Bow to Strong Wildcat Team

New Hampshire Capitalizes on Breaks in Third Quarter; Catamounts Score on Taylor's Pass to Broutsas

Gamely bucking a powerful New Hampshire squad that outnumbered it almost three times, the Catamount football team suffered its second setback of the season. The game, held at Durham, N. H., before a Dad's Day crowd of 5,500, resulted in the score of New Hampshire 22-Vermont 7. New Hampshire tallied three times, converted once and split the uprights with a 25-yard field goal while Vermont ended a 32-yard aerial attack by a ten-yard pass on a play from Spasyk to Taylor to Broutsas into the end zone.

The Wildcats slipped into scoring position in the second quarter when a kick by Spasyk from the Vermont 24-yard line was caught by a fierce gust of wind and blown out at the 32-yard line. Hall of New Hampshire then advanced the ball 12 yards in an offtackle plunge. Three more rushes found the ball on the Vermont 11-yard line. Then on the fourth down with six yards to go the ball was snapped back to the 25-yard line from where Martin place kicked it for three points.

Vermont then countered with a fierce running attack but was stopped at the New Hampshire 34-yard line. Then followed an exchange of punts. Hall sent up a powerful kick which carried by a strong air current sailed for 45 yards and Spasyk blocked to allow the ball to roll into Vermont's end zone. Failing in a running attack from the 20 Vermont sent Spasyk back to kick a 33-yard punt which put the ball in play close to the center stripe for the remaining 2½ minutes of the first half. On this last exchange of punts Vermont, who was kicking into the wind, lost about 20 yards.

On the last play of the quarter, New Hampshire used unnecessary roughness in tackling and Vermont was allowed an extra down after the horn blew for the ball. They tied a long pass from Taylor to Pye but it was incomplete.

The third quarter proved to be the U. V. M. nemesis when the Wildcats rolled up three touchdowns and a conversion. New Hampshire received its first break early in the period when Spasyk's kick from his own 33 was stopped by the wind at the New Hampshire 40. After two running plays taken by Mitchell and Parker, Hall quick-kicked to Vermont's 17 where Spasyk fumbled the ball and it was recovered by Wildcat Lampson. Hall was then pushed back for a 1-yard loss. On the second down the ball was snapped back to Hall who ran toward his right end drawing in the tackles and ends, here he snapped the ball to Mitchell who reversing over left end was protected by Lampson's excellent blocking and went over standing up. The kick for the extra point went wide.

From there on the New Hampshire steamroller picked up speed and there was no stopping it. Another kick by Spasyk after Vermont failed to gain following the kickoff was blown out at the Catamount 34. Hall and Mitchell crashed through for six plays and advanced the ball to the 1-yard line. Here the Vermont line held beautifully for three downs and pushed the opposition back 3 yards but on the fourth try, Gordon hit the center of the line and squirmed through for the second touchdown. Feche successfully converted and the score temporarily stood at New Hampshire 16-Vermont 0.

Three minutes later Gordon recovered Taylor's fumble on the Vermont 34 from where a reverse from Hall to Clark brought the ball down to the 10-yard line. Then came the snappiest play of the game. New Hampshire executed a triple reverse from Hanlon to Clark to Hall that pulled the Vermonters over to the right and Hall dashed around his left end to pierce the end zone untouched. Hall's attempt for the extra point went under the bar and the score was New Hampshire 22-Vermont 0.

The ball was put in play and Vermont advanced to its 33-yard line before the quarter ended. The Catamounts opened the last period with a deadly passing attack. After advancing the ball to their 49-yard line Vermont completed a 19-yard pass from Taylor to Broutsas. Taylor picked up 16 more yards on a classy end run and Al Shaw made one of his many line plunges for a gain of 6 yards. On the next play Spasyk received the ball in close, lateralled to Taylor who shot the ball to Broutsas just over the goal line. Taylor converted easily to make the score New Hampshire 22-Vermont 7.

About a minute after the next kickoff Vermont received the ball on its own 32 and started another aerial attack. Four first downs were gained by as many successful passes and the ball was brought down to New Hampshire's 24 where Hall intercepted a Taylor pass intended for Broutsas. Hall kicked to the Vermont 27 and New Hampshire stopping the last attempt of the Catamounts advanced to the 24-yard line as the whistle blew when Vermont was penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness.

About the Game

Catamounts vs. Wildcats—and how those felines went at it claw and tooth! The Catamounts were outnumbered and outweighed, but that didn't stop them. Every man was out there fighting and fighting hard. It looked to us as though they outplayed New Hampshire the whole game outside of that awful third period. New Hampshire had the wind in back of them in the second and third quarters—the only time they threatened the Vermont goal. Spasyk punted hard, but you can't beat the elements. Al Shaw stole the show—scrapping 60 minutes and piling up 103 yards in 16 tries. We guess that's a grade playing for any team. Taylor was a marked man on the offensive and a man to be marked on the defensive. Here was a case of a Wildcat being stopped by Reed. Earl made over half of the tackles. Misty Rice got banged up again—pulled muscle we hear. We could truthfully go on and on, but let it suffice to say that there were no shirkers out there Saturday. Even with the powerful wind light J. J. White stood his ground like a heavyweight.

60-Minute-Man

Sideline Scenes

From the top of the stadium we could spot five football fields (2 rigged for night playing), 2 baseball diamonds, 2 quarter-mile track, a hockey field and riding arena. All were excellently taken care of and it was with jealous pangs that we eyed them. It was Dads' Day at Durham Saturday, and the fathers of the team marched around with the cheerleaders and band, received their letters, and were given seats on the edge of the field.

A ten-gun salute to our R. O. T. C. band. They played the dual rôle of cheering section and musicians and sounded well in both. One of New Hampshire's cheers caught our fancy. A trumpet player stands up and plays a hot lick with appropriate contortions and at the last note the students yell Fight Team Fight—colorful.

En Route

We were stupefied by a discussion between those men of science Herb Long and George Broutsas on whether the calibration of a lactometer was 45 at the top and 15 on the bottom or vice versa. Whew—fancy folderol from future farmers. Somebody asked if vericose was like bellicose. Is it? Frankie Taylor came aboard flashing a sharky suit. By way of compliments, it was suggested that the sartorial elegance was purchased at the Brattleboro Public Market. Well—it looked all right to us—maybe they were just fooling.

Austin, Texas—(A.C.P.)—Forty-four to one odds were posted here today on the engineering college-trained man against the non-college man in the Better Job Sweepstakes.

W. R. Woolrich, University of Texas engineering dean, said the college-trained man is eighteen times as likely to be president of an industrial company as the non-collegian, and has twelve to eighteen times better chance at other offices.

The engineering college product possesses almost as great an advantage over non-technical graduates, Dean Woolrich declared, citing statistics from industrial employment surveys.

Industrial presidencies go twelve times to one to the technically trained graduate, 174 times to one for engineering positions. For all industrial offices lumped together, Dean Woolrich gave the engineering college graduate a thirty to one chance over the academic graduate.

Frosh Lose to Green Mountain by 7-0

First Frosh Defeat Since 1937 Season; Greenies Spring Surprise With Razzle-Dazzle Tactics

Green Mountain Junior College, rated near the top in its class in New England, augmented a powerful running attack with some sensational passing by its triple-threat ace, Chuck Fairbanks to knock the U. V. M. Frosh from the ranks of the undefeated Saturday at Centennial Field.

Although the triumph was a slim 7 to 0 margin, there was no contradicting the fact that the Greenies from Poultney fully deserved their victory. They held a commanding edge over "Fuzzy" Evans' crew in aggressive play, garnering ten first downs to three and out-rushing the frosh 136 yards to a scant 46. Their heavier forward wall consistently thwarted the running attempts of the Kittens' secondary as the only threat by the Frosh came through the air lanes.

To the astonishment of U. V. M. adherents, it was Green Mountain that successfully employed the razzle-dazzle type of football instead of the Frosh, who used it to great advantage in previous games. The Mountaineers tossed passes on the end of deceptive spinners, reverses. The final outcome was surprising to many but more so was the manner in which G. M. achieved its victory.

The Lone Touchdown

The touchdown that gained the "Neighborhood Gang" from downstate its fourth successive victory of the season came in the second quarter, the result of a perfectly executed pass from Charley Fairbanks to Mickey Rich on the Vermont 23-yard stripe.

The Greenies touchdown tour, conducted by its most illustrious performer, Chuck Fairbanks, began on its own 44-yard line after a nine-yard runback of a punt. Gordy Broadhead started the advance with a four-yard gain around end and Fairbanks flipped an aerial to Pagones for a first down on the yearlings' 40. Chuck Fairbanks hurdled the line to pick up nine more yards and made it another first down with a three-yard scoot. Broadhead momentarily relieved the former Spaulding High School ace by crashing center for five yards to the 23.

On the following play, Fairbanks faked giving the ball away, faded back, and hit his mark in the person of Mickey Rich with a long toss on the far side of the field for the score. Chuck added the seventh point by booting an accurate placement.

Give and Take

In the opening moments of the second half the Frosh picked up a first down with Norm Beaulieu and Francis McArdle carrying but were quickly halted. Late in the same quarter McArdle was forced to boot from his own 15 and got away a long kick that carried to the visitors' 30. But all this was practically lost when Broadhead gathered in the punt and raced 26 yards to the Frosh 44 before he was hauled down. A running play failed, so the Greenies took to the air once more. Chuck Fairbanks essayed a long heave to Pagones for 23 yards down to the 12-yard stripe for a first down and another whack at the Frosh goal. Two end-around plays garnered four yards, a fake pass loss three, and a triple reverse was stopped for a loss, giving up the ball.

Frosh Threaten But Once

The one offensive drive of the yearlings came mid-way in the first period, starting on its own 45-yard line. Beaulieu passed for seven yards to McArdle and Harry Parker and McArdle got a first down on a pair of line bucks that carried to Green Mountain's 40. Harry Parker handed the ball to Tom Sanders, who heaved a 20-yard pass to Beaulieu on the G. M. J. C. 20, but after a pair of running plays the Frosh gave up the ball as its aerial attack bogged.

Although the work of the entire Green Mountain team was highly commendable, the outstanding feature was the work of Chuck Fairbanks and Gordy Broadhead, dangerous duo of the backfield.

State Organizations Hear Vermont Faculty

At the banquet of the Vermont Dairy Plant Operators and Managers Association held at the Van Ness, Professor Dean was the toastmaster.

Among those speakers whom he introduced was Governor Aiken. In his address he mentioned the harmony among Vermont dairy producers, which he attributed to those who have spent much of their time in promoting Vermont's dairy industry.

Much to the surprise of those present at the banquet, President Bailey extended his greetings to the Association by telephone. This is the first meeting of the Association which he has missed in eighteen years.

Dean Hills pointed out that even though Americans are free and independent, they should not misuse the land, but should save it for future generations.

Professor Ellenberger, to whom special tribute for his work in behalf of the Vermont dairy business was paid by President Bailey, introduced the members of the University of Vermont dairy products' judging team, John Whitworth, George Pitman, Gordon Page and John Rogers, alternate. He also introduced the members of the dairy cattle judging team, Howard Nelson, Richard Dana, Merlin Wells and Harry Ketcham. The Craft Phoenix Cheese cup and Borden medals won by the above teams were exhibited.

Dr. E. S. Guthrie of Cornell, the president of the Association, also gave a brief speech.

The alumni quartet sang several selections and Seth Johnson gave "Little Baptiste."

A record crowd of 230 was present at the banquet.

and affiliation for the future, is another period when educational institutions demonstrate their cooperation with the organization. Faculties and student bodies are virtually as one in their pledge of affiliation with the Red Cross, in their renewal of faith in the things it stands for: the mitigation of human suffering wherever there is a need.

During this year's Roll Call, which begins November 11 and continues through November 30, the Red Cross is planning to enlist at least 1,000,000 new members, many of them from America's colleges and universities. It needs this increased membership for two primary reasons: The normal peace-time program must continue without let-up; humanitarian needs that arise as a result of war in Europe must be met to the best ability of the Red Cross.

During the coming months chapters from coast to coast will afford occasion for volunteer service. Great numbers of surgical dressings and hospital garments will be needed. Clothing for women and children evacuated from the war zones will be required. The Red Cross motor corps will want recruits to aid in collecting and transporting supplies. Many other opportunities for service to humanity will arise, all of them having a definite appeal to the college student. Participation in this work will be more than welcome.

Four U. V. M. Men Go to Iowa Convention

Prominent Newsmen Speak to Press Group

Four delegates from the University of Vermont attended the eighteenth annual national convention of the Associated Collegiate Press in Des Moines, Iowa, on October 27, 28 and 29. Carl Schofield '40, editor-in-chief of the CYNIC, Richard Story '40, business manager of the CYNIC, and Ransom Slack '41 and Donald Thayer '41, respective editor and business manager of the Ariel, were the four who attended the conference, the purpose of which is to talk over problems of editing college newspapers and yearbooks. Approximately 550 delegates from thirty-six states were present as guests of Drake University.

Under an extensive program of conferences, banquets and entertainment, speeches were made by such well-known personalities as J. N. "Ding" Darling, nationally syndicated cartoonist and conservation leader who spoke on "Newspaper Marijuana"; W. W. Waymack, editor of the editorial pages of the Des Moines Register and Tribune; and Gardner Cowles, Jr., executive editor of the Register and Tribune and also president of Look magazine.

Yearbooks and Newspapers Discussed

Two complete programs were carried out, one for those connected with newspaper work, and one for those working on yearbooks. On Thursday, October 26, the delegates visited the Drake University campus, and in the evening attended an "I-Opener" dance sponsored by the Drake University chapters of Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalistic sorority, and Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity. Friday included, besides the many round-table meetings, luncheon at the Meredith Publishing Company, and a convention banquet and dance. Saturday featured a "Bull Session," a Columbia Broadcasting System full network broadcast from the main ballroom of Hotel Fort Des Moines, with convention delegates participating. In the afternoon the delegates attended the football game between Iowa State College and the University of Missouri. At the final convocation on Saturday morning W. W. Waymack gave an address, "The European Situation."

The Associate Collegiate press was formed in 1932 because of the importance of the activities of the college journalism students, and is the only one of its kind in the United States.

REV. S. P. HYDE SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

The Rev. Stanley B. Hyde of Ludlow was the speaker in chapel Wednesday morning. Music was furnished by the combined choir and orchestra.

The Scripture lesson was from the Gospel of St. Mark 9:17. This is the story of the rich young ruler who was not happy although he obeyed the Ten Commandments and in many other ways lived a good Christian life. He realized his happiness by giving away his riches to those who needed them. The Reverend Hyde pointed out that to live a complete life we should share with those who are in need any talent, riches, personality or such things as we may have instead of keeping them for our own enjoyment.

The Rev. Skillman Myers of the Unitarian Church in Burlington will speak in chapel next week, November 8.

BLUESTOCKINGS TO MEET

There will be a meeting of Bluestockings Tuesday evening, November 7, at Southwick. Margaret Drum '41 and Jean Young '42 are in charge and will read some original literary selection. A part of the meeting will be spent in a discussion of the plays of James M. Barrie.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS DELTA DELTA DELTA SUPPER

A large crowd flocked to the Tri-Delt house for their Hallowe'en supper of which Jean Butler '40 was in charge. Elvira Palermo '40 and Carol Stetson '40 presided at the tomato juice booth and the Tri-Delts were the waitresses and cooks. Baked ham, mashed potatoes, cabbage and pineapple salad, rolls, coffee, and for dessert, chocolate Hallowe'en cake and orange sherbert was the menu.

The house, decorated in the traditional black and orange, was illuminated with soft candlelight and the occasion was deemed a success.

Winnowings to Sponsor New Literary Contest

There issues a call to all who would aspire to literary fame and those with enough originality and courage to submit a literary selection in the contest sponsored by the Winnowings staff. All one has to do is write something original and comply with the following rules:

1. All entries must be in the day before Christmas vacation—December 20.
2. Entries should be short stories, poems, or essays either formal or informal.
3. For the best submission in each group a prize of $5 will be given. For the next best submission in each group there will be a prize of $3.
4. All submissions must be original.
5. The judges will be Professors Carleton and Dean of the English department and the heads of each department of Winnowings.
6. Judges reserve the right to withhold judgment on submissions which they consider unworthy.

Does it not sound attractive? There surely must be loads of hidden talent among the members of the freshman and sophomore classes. If you have had some interesting or unusual experience, try writing it. Surely all of us would enjoy seeing at least one of our masterpieces in one of the issues of Winnowings From the Mill. Now is your opportunity and you have until December 20 to write and perfect your submission to the contest.

Alliance Francaise To Sponsor Lecture

The Alliance Française is presenting Major Max Viner, eminent French speaker, in a free lecture in French at the Fleming Museum on Monday, November 6, from 4.00 to 5.00 o'clock. "Un Faiseur de Cités" is the subject of the lecture and it will deal with the famous French architect, Lenfant, who drafted the plans for the city of Washington, D. C.

The time of the lecture was changed from eight to four o'clock in order that University students would be able to attend. All students who are interested in joining the Alliance Français are invited to attend the lecture.

U. V. M. DEBATERS MEET SALEM TEAM

A joint men-women debate was held at Southwick Wednesday evening on the question, "Resolved, That the federal government should own and operate the railroad." The Vermont team, composed of Harriet Nelson '42, F. Bardossi '42 and J. G. Cohen '42, with Kathleen LeBaron '41 acting as chairman, took the affirmative side against the visiting team from Salem Teachers' College. The debate was of the non-decision type.

The Classical Club met Thursday night for a program on Hesiod, an ancient Greek, under the direction of Mrs. Clark and Professor Kidder. The meeting adjourned for refreshments which were served by Elvira Palermo.

Dean Hills' List Numbers Sixty-two

Sixty-two students in the College of Agriculture at the University of Vermont were listed on the Dean's List for high scholastic excellence for the last semester of the last college year. This is more than 25 percent of the Agricultural College enrollment of 207 for the year. All of those whose names appeared in the two highest classes, the all-A classification and the A record, requiring an average in all subjects of at least 91.6 percent, are Vermonters.

Two students had all A grades. They are: Evelyn M. Fuller, Chester, a junior in home economics, and Hester D. Rice, Derby Line, a sophomore in home economics. Eleven had an A record, with grades averaging between 91.6 percent and 94.9 percent. Five had half A, half B, from 90 to 91.5 percent. Fifteen were classified in the high B averages, with grades ranging from 87.6 to 89.9 percent. Twenty-nine came in the B record group, having grades from 85 to 87.5 percent.

In the A record class were Robert E. Dana, North Pomfret; Lucien D. Paquette, Craftsbury; Jean M. Morse, Essex Center; George H. Bailey, Rochester; Douglas P. Dana, North Pomfret; John M. Thomas, Rutland; Joyce Kenyon, Richmond; Pearl R. Marvin, Fairfax; Hilda L. Paquette, Craftsbury; Virgina E. Taplin, Fair Haven; Beatrice C. Wright, Windsor.

Making half A, half B records were Lois W. Jackson, Brattleboro; Hope E. Wheeler, Marshfield; Helen P. Towne, Milton; Madeline R. Greaves, Morrisville; and Gail F. Klinger, Glen Ridge, N. J.

Fifty More Students At U. V. M. This Year

A record number of students, 1,479, are enrolled at the University of Vermont this year according to the University Directory, which has just been issued. Last year there were 1,431 students, making this year's enrollment nearly fifty higher. Of the 1,479 students, 867 are men and 612 women.

In the undergraduate colleges there are 1,306 students. Of these, 711 are men and 595 women. The College of Arts and Sciences, largest of the undergraduate group, has 786 of the total 1,306, 468 being men and 318 women. The College of Engineering has 133 men and one woman, for a total of 134. In the College of Agriculture are 92 men and 134 women, totalling 226. The department of education has 18 men, 142 women, total 160.

The graduate school of the College of Medicine has 131 students, divided into 126 men and five women. Forty-two other graduate students are distributed through the various other departments of the University, thirty of them being men and twelve women.

A total of eighteen states, Canada, India and Panama are represented. SOPHOMORE AIDES PLAN PERSONALITY TALKS

The Sophomore Aides met recently and discussed plans for the informal charm talks, which were given once a week last year at Southwick, and proved very successful. These lectures are very interesting as well as helpful. Usually outside speakers introduce the question and a discussion follows.

Coffee hour is held every other Sunday at Southwick from two to four o'clock. Come and have a cup of coffee and meet new friends. Interesting little programs have been planned.

PHOTOGRAPHY CLUB TO MAKE XMAS CARDS

The Photography Club, headed by Alice Howe, has decided to spend the time between now and Christmas in making Christmas cards. These cards promise to be unique in that they will be done entirely by photography; not only will the illustrating picture be photographed, but also the wish that goes with it. The whole project promises to be no end of fun and, in addition, both interesting and informing.

Carmody Orchestra To Play at Ball

Attention Centers On Co-ed Major Choice

Friday night is the night of nights on the Vermont campus as the colorful Military Ball will be held in the gymnasium with the thirteen-piece band of Jim Carmody providing the music. Military uniforms are accepted as full dress at this formal dance and since the freshmen will get their uniforms just before the ball, a large turnout is expected. The importation of a large, non-local band is a new feature in the history of the ball. Co-chairmen Carl Schofield '40 and Hank Middleworth '40 feel that a well-known band will assure the success of the affair.

Besides being a large band, Jim Carmody's group is an up-and-coming swing band in the musical world. The Carmody men have played on all the large Boston stations and have recently completed a long engagement at Marblehead's elite night club, the "Fo'castle."

The big moment of the evening will come when Capt. R. Robinson of Champlain Sabers will present the saber to the co-ed major. The candidates for the co-ed major title are as follows:

1943—Peggy Baker, Mary McKee.
1942—Frances Lynch, Sally Rome.
1941—Jane Allen, Eleanor Shandoff.
1940—Jean Harshbarger, Marjorie Bell.

From this group the final selection will be made.

The ball will be under the direction of L. Blanchard '40. Chaperones for the event will be Col. and Mrs. Gilfillan, Col. and Mrs. Dreibelbies and Maj. and Mrs. Coffin. The committees in charge are: Johnny Davis, tickets; Al Williams, publicity; Ev Bailey, lights; and Dave Stowell, incidentals.

Although details of decoration and other features are not yet completed, the chairmen hint they have something special up their sleeves. Jim Carmody is among those items up said sleeves.

Those planning to attend should obtain their tickets at the Book Store or from the juniors in the advanced military course. The juniors who sell ten bids get one free bid themselves.

Mt. Mansfield Hike Planned for Week-end

There will be the last overnight hike Saturday and Sunday, November 4 and 5, to Butler Lodge. Because of the size of the shelter the group will be limited to thirteen in number. The lodge is situated just below the nose of Mt. Mansfield and is fully equipped for every convenience. A group of University students enjoyed to the utmost its facilities last week-end.

The University station wagon will leave the men's Gym at 5.30, Saturday, instead of the usual 2.00 o'clock. This is to enable everyone who desires to take in the football game and hike, too. Food will be furnished by the U. V. M. Outing Club at the expense of one dollar per person. Everyone bring his own blankets and plenty of warm clothes for there is already an inch of snow on Mansfield. This is your last chance, so sign up early. The first thirteen go! Who's going to be thirteenth? D. V. Collins '41 is in charge.

TRI DELTS PLAN NOVEL BARN DANCE SATURDAY

The fall dance at the Tri-Delt house which will be held Saturday, November 4, will be an informal informal—a barn dance. Joené Agard '42 is chairman of it. Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Stultz and Mr. A. M. K. Blume will chaperone. The Kittens will play in the corny atmosphere in a room well decorated with farm implements.

"CASH AND CARRY" GAMBLE

With the House of Representatives' decision to send the neutrality bill to conference to eliminate differences of opinion, the much-discussed "cash and carry" policy approaches nearer and nearer to reality. Let us hope that it does not mean that this action will bring us nearer and nearer to the conflict across the sea and finally embroil us in the holocaust.

It would be superfluous for us to present the arguments pro and con for the "cash and carry" legislation. Both sides have been presented to the public time and again. But it can safely be said that no one can succesfully prophesy what entanglements may develop from the adoption of this legislation. We do know, however, that under our existing neutrality laws the United States has succeeded in remaining aloof from the conflict which rages in Europe. Does it not seem logical then to assume that we could do no better than to let well enough alone and content ourselves with our present stand on neutrality?

Let us consider what will happen if the proposed legislation is adopted. Undoubtedly industry would experience an immediate boom. This would be particularly true in the industries devoted to the manufacture of war supplies but it would also affect the other industries for war is not fought with guns alone. Armies must be fed and clothed and furnished with other necessities too numerous to mention.

As long as the belligerents were able to pay cash for these badly-needed supplies we could expect a period of comparative prosperity in this country. But after the cash runs out, what then? Immediately industry would began to clamor for new legislation permitting the sale of war materials on a credit basis. Refusal to pass this legislation would mean but one thing: we would revert to a state of unemployment which would make our present predicament pale by comparison. Those who had failed to learn from the bitter experiences of the World War and had foolishly expanded their businesses to a dangerous point would probably follow their predecessors along the road to economic ruin.

Or suppose that after considerable pressure Congress agrees to permit the sale of war materials on a credit basis. Then we may expect a repetition of the circumstances surrounding the World War. The debts which foreign nations owed to the United States would once more rise to incredible heights. Could we expect payment of these debts? Think back to a few years ago when one after another the majority of our European debtors repudiated their debts of the World War. You need go no further for your answer.

This would not be the sole consequence of the adoption of such legislation. It is possible but not probable that under these circumstances we could maintain our position of neutrality. Again we might watch the youth of our nation go marching off to the battle fronts. Again we might fearfully scan the list of casualties each day to see if a brother, a father, an uncle, or a neighbor had joined the host that perished in the World War. Again we might shudder at the thought of the misery and hardships that those who are dear to us would be forced to undergo. It is not a pleasant picture, but it is one which might not remain a fancy. It might become grim reality.

The "cash and carry" policy may prove to be a good thing. It may, on the other hand, be the first step toward our entrance into the European war. Common sense says that such a gamble is foolhardy. We are told that acceptance of this legislation is practically assured in Washington. But if the experts are wrong, if the bill has still not gone to a vote in the house by the time this issue goes to press, would it not be a good idea to write or wire your representative to vote against the the bill? Let us not gamble with our very lives.

Prof Tupper Tells of Shakespearean Plays

With the Shakespearean players starring James Hendrickson and Claire Bruce coming here on November 13, an ideal opportunity was presented for asking the opinion of Professor Tupper as to the acting of Shakespeare and other related subjects.

Professor Tupper is the logical man to interrogate because he is considered one of the two outstanding authorities on Shakespeare in the world. Professor Tupper believes that there can be no generalization on the acting of Shakespeare because there are too many different interpretations given by different actors.

Professor Tupper says that all the great Hamlets are gone. Edwin Booth was the greatest Hamlet he has ever seen. As to the current interpretations of Hamlet, John Gielgud has the approbation of Professor Tupper, who was disappointed in the failure of the popular Leslie Howard in the same part. Professor Tupper would like to see Maurice Evans' version of the same character and is quite sure it would prove interesting.

The primary purpose in having this Shakespearean group here is to further the interest of young people in the drama and in seeing worthwhile plays—especially the masterpieces of Shakespeare. Even from an inadequate performance one can garner better knowledge of the subject than from puzzling over the intricate passages in class. The members of the Shakespeare classes are reading the "Merchant of Venice" now and they will be especially interested in seeing it performed here by this company. After all, plays are primarily to be acted, not read.

Modern Scenery Is Distracting

In Shakespeare's time his plays were given without scenery and against a background of bare boards. The modern tendency is, of course, to have realistic and rather lavish scenery. Professor Tupper believes that the audience loses much of the beauty of the poetry if the scenery is distracting. We are accustomed to scenery nowadays and feel rather at a loss usually if there is none. Scenery that is adequate lends charm to a production, but not scenery that is overdone. Naturally there will be but little scenery in our coming presentation.

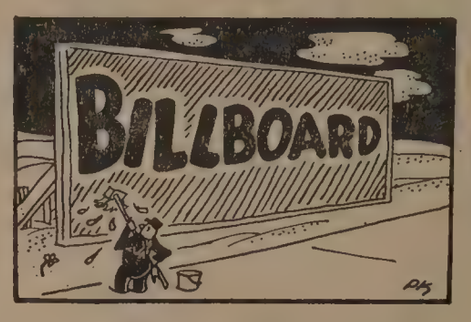
Until the first decade of this century there was an almost annual presentation of a Shakespearean classic by the women students on this campus. For a period of about ten years the lawn of Grassmount was graced nearly annually by the all-woman cast which presented "The Tempest" and "As You Like It" among other Shakespearean plays. These performances without benefit of stage or settings were not very realistic but they were charming in their very simplicity. Since women took all the rôles, including the masculine, plays were not presented in which masculinity dominated. For instance, Hamlet would never be presented, for what woman could well portray the part of a man who has sworn to avenge a murder?

In Shakespeare's time men took all the parts, including those of the women, while here at Vermont we had reversed the procedure. Professor Tupper believes that women do much better taking men's parts than men do when trying to act in feminine rôles.

The men at Vermont were not neglected in the field of dramatics at the turn of the century. They gave dramatic performances at the old Howard Opera House which was formerly situated on Church Street.

Students Are Needed to Help Players

Mr. Hendrickson and Miss Bruce are going to need a few students to assist them in their productions. Five boys are needed as stage hands and five more of both boys and girls are needed to play Venetian ladies and gentlemen in the "Merchant of Venice" and people of the court in "Hamlet." These students will probably be chosen from the University's dramatic organizations.



There will be a display of photographs of the ten acting members of the company displayed for several days before the performances. Schools from neighboring districts will be invited to attend either the matinee performance of the "Merchant of Venice" or the evening performance of "Hamlet." Attendance by the student body should prove very large and the presentations most enjoyable.

Now don't forget the date—November 13.

And thank you, Professor Tupper!

Museum Displays Antique Home-Made Toys

A hand-made rag doll, dating from the 1830's, when the United States had no toy stores or factories, and parents had to make toys at home for their children, is being shown in one of the twin special display cases in the entrance hallway of the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont. This particular doll belonged to Madison Webster, born in 1828 in North Fairfax, Vt. With the doll in the special display case is a daguerreotype of Madison Webster and an ambertype of the brick house where he was born. The doll is dressed in some of Madison's own baby clothes. It was presented to the museum by Madison Webster's granddaughter, Mrs. Almiretta Webster Giffin of Pelham Manor, N. Y. A small bonnet and tiny quilt are also part of the display.

One hundred and ten years ago, when this doll was made, European china-headed dolls, which were about the only ones for sale in America, were hard to get and very expensive, so mothers made dolls out of stray scraps of cloth and fathers whittled toys out of wood.

INDIAN WATER COLORS TO BE SHOWN AT MUSEUM

A collection of East Indian water colors loaned by Henry E. Schnakenberg of New York City to the Fleming Museum at the University of Vermont will be on display in the art gallery of the Museum, opening this Thursday, November 2. The paintings are a series of brush drawings by hereditary painters of the Patua caste of Bengal, and they date from the nineteenth century. The exhibition is to continue in the art gallery until November 22, giving the public about three weeks to visit the show.

A Catholic Labor College has been established in Buffalo, N. Y., to teach the "rightful position" of the working man.

In the Miami University chemistry laboratory there is a special shower for use when students' clothes catch fire during experiments.

Frosh vs. Randolph

The two U. V. M. cross-country teams are in for a hard meet tomorrow when Williams faces the varsity and the Randolph Aggies race the freshmen. Both the visiting teams are undefeated this season and promise a closely matched meet.

Williams has met and defeated R. P. I. 27-28 on October 14 and Middlebury 21-34 on October 28. The ease with which Williams defeated Middlebury (although they just have a fair team) leads us to believe that they have a good deal of speed reserved that didn't show up in that meet. A report from Williams tells us that Ted Wills is their chief runner. Second to him comes Brew Chapman. In the last two meets Chapman has led right up to the last hundred yards where Wills overtook him. These two men plus Had Griffin and Tom Lena make up the nucleus of the squad. Griffin and Lena are steady runners. However, Lena was forced out of the Middlebury meet with a sprained ankle, and although he'll be running tomorrow, he won't be in very good condition. The team coming up in its entirety is as follows: Ted Wills, Brew Chapman, Had Griffin, Tom Lena, Johnny Gilman, Bill Van Loon and Howie Conway.

The freshman cross-country team takes on another formidable opponent tomorrow, the Randolph Aggies. The Aggies have beaten Vergennes, Waterbury and Burlington High and make tomorrow's freshman race a tough one. Our "white hope" is Hoyt, who so far has been leading the rest of the squad.

In preparation for tomorrow's competition Coach Post staged a practice meet between the varsity and freshmen in the form of a handicap run, last Saturday.

The runners were spread out along the course, handicapped according to their this year's running times. Charlie Webster, the only man running the entire course, finished first and broke his freshman record for the run. The results of the run are as follows:

COACH SABO

Sabomen to Buck Rensselaer Polytech

The football team of the University of Vermont, with five games to the rear, stands even with the world as of current date, the books showing two won, two lost, and one tie. The game with Rensselaer Saturday, which will be played in Burlington, will tip the balance one way or the other unless another tie crops up.

Retriever

CAPTAIN PYE

The Vermonters will go into the game without the services of Kodys at fullback, who is out for the season, and without Corbett, who may or may not be back for the state games. Lawrence, Strassburg and Rice are also ailing, but may play Saturday. Reed and Carlson, who were shaken up some in the disastrous New Hampshire game, will be ready to go.

In an effort to prop his weakened line Coach Sabo may send Captain Pye back to his old stand at end, using Broutsas at half. One bit of encouragement is the discovery of Shaw, who took over at fullback for Kodys in the New Hampshire game and turned in over a hundred yards to his credit.

The Rensselaer game is slated as a natural, with both teams having lost to Union by nearly the same score, the Vermont count being a touchdown or so the better. The game will be the last before the Catamounts enter the state series, and Coach Sabo is becoming wary of his men, but Vermont will try to come back into the winning column. The team, unlike Vermont teams of a few years back, has been able to score against all opposition except Colby, and is likely to repeat Saturday. The question will be whether the Engineers can score more.

TEXAS UNIVERSITY HAS NOVEL HOME EC COURSE

Austin, Tex. (IP)—Gone are the days when home economics merely taught a young girl how to cook and to sew. Opening of the new institutional laboratory at the University of Texas, early in May, will add another unit to the facilities for teaching co-eds professional home economics.

Today, university home economics students fit themselves not only to make their own clothes but to design costumes professionally; not only to cook for a small family but to plan and prepare meals for hundreds of persons daily; not only to teach cooking and sewing but to carry on home management training courses either in schools or in governmental service.

So great has become the interest in the field of institutional management—operation of cafeterias, school lunch rooms, dormitories, tea rooms, hospital food services, and other large-scale agencies—that the university has expanded its curriculum in this subject.

Students will learn about handling accounts, making budgets, meeting financial obligations—including the retirement of the loan for construction of the laboratory. It will augment other university facilities for training in large-scale group living, which now include the university commons or cafeteria and university residence halls.

Phi Delts Edge Out Phi Sigma Delta

The Phi Delta Theta touch football team again nipped a tough opponent, when they beat Phi Sigma Delta 7-0.

An interesting feature of the game was the manner in which the lone score was made. The Phi Delts threw a long pass which was intercepted by the Phi Sig safety man. He in turn started to run down the field and attempted a lateral pass which was intercepted by a Phi Delta Theta man, who ran for a score. The point after touchdown was added, making the final score 7-0. This win places the Phi Delta Theta team in the championship game. Their opponent in this contest will be the winner of the Delta Psi versus Sigma Phi game, which was originally scheduled for Thursday, October 26, but was postponed due to inclement weather. The date for the playoff of this game has not been set as yet.

FROSH ELEVEN PREPARES FOR PANTHERS

Suffering its first setback since the record game of the 1937 season (the Dartmouth J. V. team had the week before beaten them), the yearling eleven shows little sign of letting it get them down. There is no question about the Green Mountain game; the visitors were superior. There is hardly any satisfaction in saying if Chernanski hadn't left school, if Otto hadn't been injured, if any one of a dozen things hadn't happened the outcome would have been different.

Tom Sanders, who suffered a hard wallop in the face, is O.K. and will start as usual in the Middlebury game. The latter is to be played November 11 away. Left end Flemming with a fractured ankle cannot, of course, see any action in the remaining games. Some recognition should be given him for he is a game fellow. It is doubtful if Otto, whose trick knee is almost in shape, will get in. As Fuzzy Evans remarked, "There is no use taking chances."

The weather being what it was, drill was held in the cage. Per usual the freshmen ran through R. P. I. formations against the varsity. Blocking was far better in the Green Mountain game than ever before, and much time does not have to be devoted to it. The backfield has been developing some new plays and together with the desire to win the "big one," a Middlebury win may grace the season's ledger.

This Collegiate World

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

William Allen White, the venerable sage of Emporia down in Kansas, a few issues ago abandoned his political saging and turned to advising university presidents, with some particularly pointed words for the newly-elected head of the University of Kansas. When the new chancellor finds his gridiron representatives hatching goose eggs, Mr. White says he should:

"Jump out of the chancellor's box, boy, throw off your coat, put on a sweater, hop in and bust your way through. If nothing else will save the university from the ignominy of defeat, get in the game, young feller! Show 'em you've got what it takes! Up and at 'em, and let academic tradition and chancellorial dignity go hang. Hit the line! Baby; hit the line!"

Boy, we'd like to see that game—wouldn't you?

Marion Sawyer Allen is having a tough time of it at Syracuse University. In case you didn't know, he's a boy—and that name is just what caused him all the trouble.

Pre-registration officials at Syracuse didn't interpret it the right way, and had "her" all assigned early in the summer to a room in the women's dormitory, with feminine roommate and all.

He says now the Big Chum assigned to acquaint "her" with university life sounded interesting. Yes, he's going to look into the chumming part of it, even though he had to turn down his assigned roommate!

Oh, Misery!

For seven whole days have we suffered! For seven whole days have we attended classes (more or less) (mostly less) with our face (more or less) (mostly more) hidden behind a four-day beard, a pipe, and a mask of soulful remorse. We have been in hiding. We have assumed disguise No. 2.5 to avoid the scornful gaze of our fellow citizens. We have been suffering the pangs of miserable anguish for we have discovered that there is one person on campus who thinks our column is "tripe." Oh, misery! Heretofore we had been under the illusion that everyone thought it was tripe. But reading a criticism which appeared in last week's issue of the CYNIC we were amazed to learn that "Buck" Ranney (and yes, we knew him back in the days when he was just plain "Buck," and not J. Buckminster) "for one" (to quote the letter) objects to everything in general. And this tripe in particular. Horrors. However, there is one moot point that we would like to clarify. We are well aware that rhetorically and grammatically this is tripe. We have neither the time nor the indulgence nor the ability to make this column a literary masterpiece. Nevertheless, we have the courage of our convictions, be they erroneous prognostications of forthcoming clashes on the field of battle or be they our ideas of school spirit or guts on the football field. If we are inclined to think someone has performed a task well we still believe that he is deserving of praise even if, in so doing, we do not meet with the full approval of the collegiate intellect which obviously prescribes a rather blasé and cynical attitude in regard to various phases of our social life. Frankly we did not intend to devote so much space to our public ignoring of the above-mentioned letter, but tripe is so distasteful. Incidentally, if someone at any time has any constructive criticism to offer we will receive it gratefully, but destructive criticism is really just so much tripe.

The Good Shall Survive

A weak team and a weakened team will engage in a battle tomorrow afternoon when Rensselaer Polytech takes the field against Vermont. R. P. I. has not had a good year to date, being severely trounced by Union, but, on the other hand, Vermont's eighteen men have had two very, very dismal second halves the past two week-ends against Union and New Hampshire. The Cats are really a powerhouse in the first half, but comes the third quarter comes eleven tired gridmen and no substitutes. Nevertheless, the fracas tomorrow should be a tight game and a Vermont victory would definitely not be an upset. Above all, tomorrow is the day when we all will see whether or not the students of U. V. M. have enough pride in their school and in their team to yell their lungs out for it. It was a pleasant task to cheer in the Union game when we had a previously unbeaten team. Now we have a team that has taken a couple stiff lefts to the jaw but is still deserving of all the vocal support you can possibly give it. Every now and then look down at the Vermont bench. (If it were not for Roy Wietz it would look absolutely vacant.) Then look out at those eleven men in green shirts and give them the spirit and strength they'll be needing to win that ball game. (Of course, if you're one of these people who just doesn't believe in that thing called school spirit and believe that football should be abolished, there's a good picture some place down town—and it's only two bits in the afternoon.)

Ithaca, N. Y.—(A.C.P.)—Col. W. C. Potter of Cornell University's R. O. T. C. department, has a lot to say about students and faculty members who call work in his department "drill," and he says it in no uncertain terms, too.

In a recent interview he gave the following lecture on proper terminology as regards his department:

"The term 'drill' was correctly only applied during the period before the World War when students were only taught to march, stand at ease, etc. Today only one-third of the program is devoted to the actual marching, the remainder being devoted to classroom studies in the field of military science and tactics. Even the marching has developed into a study of leadership, the juniors studying how to lead the freshmen and the freshmen studying how the juniors lead them."

Therefore, he says, you should call it "military science and tactics."

Sailor, Student Tells Reporter of His Travels and Experiences

Bernard Barney of Bennington—and the seven seas—saw a boy, sick with appendicitis, operated on the sea. A young doctor, with no hospital facilities, and with no assistance, except cadets from a merchant marine academy, of whom Barney was one, performed the operation. Communication with the Coast Guard brought directions when complications developed and it was found that the appendix could not be taken out.

"I knew right then, when I saw the look on that young doctor's face, that I wanted to be a doctor too," said Barney.

That is why Bernard Barney now is a junior in the pre-medical course at the University of Vermont. He started out to be a sailor, going to the Merchant Marine Academy in the Brooklyn Navy Yard as soon as he graduated from high school. Except for his two years of college work, he's been on ships ever since. He is almost twenty-six years old now. For the eight years since his graduation from high school he has made his own living by following the sea. Savings and earnings during summer vacations have covered all his college bills to date. Last summer he shipped on an intercoastal lumber freighter traveling between the East Coast and Seattle.

He's been on all kinds of ships, he says. Last summer it was a lumber freighter; the summer before that, he worked on the Manhattan. He was there when Corrigan returned from his transatlantic flight to Ireland. In fact, he showed Corrigan around the ship and talked with him during the crossing.

Wealthy Men Gave Him Scholarship

Barney wasn't born to the sea. He received a scholarship offered by a group of wealthy men interested in the activities of the merchant marine, enabling him to attend the merchant marine school. "These men," he said, "picked two boys from the 'sticks' as an experiment."

At that time Barney was living in Schenectady, N. Y. After two years in the school, he was eligible to go before the U. S. Steamboat Inspection Service, and qualified for a Second Engineer's License, which he now holds. He also has a commission as an ensign in the United States Naval Reserve. He's a little worried about the present war, because if the United States should become involved he would be among the first called to duty with the navy. He wants no interruptions to his pre-medical work, and he hopes to enter the medical school of the University of Vermont next year. After completing his medical training, he thinks he would like to return to the navy as a physician.

His scholastic record at the University is uniformly high. He has been on the Dean's List for high standing throughout his two years' college study. He is also interested in outside activities, belonging to the John Dewey Club, honorary philosophy and psychology organization, and to the International Relations Club,

Not only war, but also the actions of Congress, says Barney, may affect the life of an officer in the U. S. merchant marine. Congress is now considering legislation which would prohibit the merchant marine from doing business in belligerent zones. And it is on ships of the merchant marine that Barney finds jobs.

It is difficult, he says, to locate a job on a ship which fits the length of a summer vacation. It has to last long enough to pay him, yet not so long that he can't get back to college in time. This summer's job on the lumber freighter was just right. He missed only a week at the opening of college in September.

He likes going to sea because "it's an adventure. There's something new every day. It's exciting." Barney is a veteran of exciting experiences. He casually mentions riding through hurricanes, picking up survivors from vessels in distress.

"I certainly wish I was on board a ship now," he says. "There would be plenty of excitement, now the war is on."

In eight years of sailing, Barney has seen the world.

"Ive been just about everywhere you can think of," he says. "The Philippine Islands, Hawaii, Central America, South America, Egypt, that's only the beginning."

U. V. M. Man is Officer In Caribbean Post

(Reprinted from the Vermont Alumnus)

A fighting Irishman from Vermont is today Uncle Sam's chief spy-hunter in the Caribbean.

Maj. Charles S. Ferrin, a compactly-built man with hard, blue eyes is intelligence officer of the newly created department of Puerto Rico, with headquarters at the ancient Santo Domingo barracks in San Juan, capital city of Puerto Rico.

The forty-seven-year-old soldier, who says that Burlington and Montpelier are equally his home, told his story while seated at his desk in an office overlooking the beautiful sapphire waters of the Atlantic. His office fronts a splendid patio, and was once part of the famed Dominican convent, built centuries ago on Uncle Sam's tropical island which is becoming known as "The Gibraltar of the Atlantic."

"Yes, counter-espionage is one of my chief duties here in Puerto Rico," said Major Ferrin, interviewed at the barracks.

Major Ferrin, who has served in France and China, takes over a job that is particularly significant, inasmuch as no organized intelligence service has hitherto existed in the Caribbean area. Persistent, if unconfirmed, reports of fascist penetration into some of the West Indian islands make his job one of transcendent importance in the defense scheme of Uncle Sam in Puerto Rico.

"This is my first year in intelligence work, and also my first visit to your beautiful tropical isle here. At present, under orders from General Daley, my commanding officer here, I am just reconnoitering, trying to find my way around the island and to make firiends with its people—which is not hard, as they are extremely hospitable," said Major Ferrin.

The new contingent of officers took over the recently created department of Puerto Rico July 1. The department embraces the Virgin Islands and all intervening U. S. keys, as well as "the tropical isle with the temperate clime," as Puerto Rico is called. They were ordered to spend the first few weeks of their hitch in traveling around the island, and sending any reports they might chance to hear on subversive activities direct to Major Ferrin.

MAJ. CHARLES S. FERRIN, '15
Counter-espionage Chief

Major Ferrin's work will take on real importance with the actual construction of the giant army and navy air bases which are to be built in the near future. The army is building a $10,000,000 air base on the western end of the island, overlooking strategically important Mona Passage, and the navy is about to start on its $9,300,000 base at Isla Grande, just outside of San Juan. Military building of this sort will attract spies like upstream attracts salmon, in the view of expert observers.

The popular major is accompanied in Puerto Rico by Mrs. Ferrin, of Burlington, and a daughter, Alice Joy. His only son, Albert T., is working in Burlington. Major Ferrin was graduated from the University of Vermont, class of '15.

The University of Chicago Round Table was the first program series on any network produced without use of scripts.

MEDIC SOCIETY TO HEAR PROMINENT DOCTOR

"Internes and Interneships" is to be the subject of a lecture by Dr. Louis P. Hastings of the St. Francis Hospital, Hartford, Conn., speaking before members of the Osler Clinical Society, student medical organization of the University of Vermont. The lecture is one of the regular series annually sponsored by the student medical society, and is scheduled for Thursday, November 2, in the auditorium of the Fleming Museum at the University, starting at 8.15 p.m. Members of the medical profession in the State who wish to attend are invited.

The Osler Society has also made arrangements to present a leture by Dr. Frank H. Lahey of the Lahey Clinic, Boston, Mass., January 11, 1940.

TEA DANCE HELD BY SIGS SATURDAY NIGHT

On Saturday, October 28, the Sigs held a tea dance in the form of a Hallowe'en party. The dance was chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. Evans, Prof. Laatsch and Miss Woodward. In charge of the occasion were N. D. Tucker '42 and M. J. Reynolds '42.

Since this was a Hallowe'en party, the traditional trappings were not lacking: cider, very sweet, pumpkins with candles, doughnuts, orange and gold doodads. Then, too, because Hallowe'en is a time of thanksgiving, typical elements of Vermont farm life in harvest time decorated the chapter house.

Student Union Holds National Convention

Thirty-Second Conference Held At Hood College

Dorothy Emerson '41 and Margaret Crowley '41 attended the convention of the Women's Intercollegiate Association of Student Government last week, held at Hood College in Frederick, Md. This thirty-second annual conference was held from October 26 to 29, with thirty-six representatives from various eastern and mid-western colleges attending.

Registration took place Thursday afternoon, followed by a tea and a formal dinner party. Very interesting movies of Hood College—the campus and activities—were shown during the evening.

Group Discusses World Crisis

Friday morning and afternoon, forums and discussion groups, concerning student government problems, were conducted either by students or faculty members. The theme of the convention was "The Student Facing the World Crisis." David Copper of the Foreign Policy Association and Dr. Olive I. Reddick spoke at these general sessions. Friday evening the Hood girls planned a lively picnic for the representatives.

Saturday morning the girls went on a sightseeing tour around Frederick, which they greatly enjoyed. After lunch the Right Honorable Lord Marley of the British House of Lords spoke on "What Next in Europe." A tennis demonstration was given by the Hood girls, followed by a dance in the evening.

The girls enjoyed immensely their trip to Maryland. It was not only interesting but very profitable and they brought back new solutions to the ever-present student government problems.

Outing Club Holds Meeting November 2

The Outing Club Council held its weekly meeting Thursday, November 2, at Southwick. The Council is made up of those members who are most interested. They are: C. T. Nussbaum '40, president; Jean O. Butler '40, vice-president; S. K. Gilbert '40, treasurer; Frances Abel '42, recording secretary; Lucille Clark '42, corresponding secretary; E. C. Bailey '40, chairman of hiking; J. H. Couture '41, chairman of skiing; Nancy Jones '41, R. P. Davis '41, R. B. Linsley '40, Dorothea Smith '41, chairmen of membership; and Laura Hawley '41. The functions of this Council are to sponsor daily and overnight hikes to points in the mountains, to sponsor and manage the ski team and give free instruction to its members.

At the last meeting Jean O. Butler was elected to fill the office of vice-president left vacant by the resignation of Eleanor Fletcher '40. Frances Abel '42 was elected recording secretary and Lucille Clark '42, corresponding secretary.

Plans for the big meeting to be held November 16 were discussed. Nancy Jones '41 reported on plans for the open meeting to be held December 16. The Middlebury Council will be guests. Three colored ski movies and a lecture by Sepp Ruschpp, the instructor at Stowe, will be on the program.

H. A. Prentice, the Council's faculty advisor, was present to help with the plans.

FINAL NOTICE

Prof. Daniel B. Carroll will be in his office, 33 North College, Wednesday afternoon, November 8, from 2.00 to 4.00 to refund the rushing tax to those freshman men and new students who did not attend any rushing banquet nor pledge to any fraternity. This is positively the last date upon which refunds will be available.

PRESS CLUB TO WRITE PERSONALITY FEATURES

The members of the Press Club, who have been busily checking statistics and sending out cards about the accomplishments of various students to their respective home towns, will now have a chance to really shine. This club has been chosen to write a series of feature stories about interesting people on our campus to be used for publicity purposes.

The first cut in members will also be made soon.

Faculty-Student Council Holds First Meeting

The Faculty-Student Council held its first meeting under this year's chairman, Dean Mary Jean Simpson, on November 3. At this time it was agreed to try and improve the efficiency and increase the service of the Council. For this purpose the Council will hold four regular meetings, calling additional meetings if circumstances require.

The purpose of the Council is to permit an exchange of opinion between faculty and student body on campus problems. There is always a great deal of discussion carried on among the students about questions of procedure and policy at Vermont. Unfortunately, however, student criticisms and suggestions rarely get beyond these bull sessions to the authorities concerned. The Faculty-Student Council offers an opportunity to correct this condition. The student members of the Council were elected to represent campus opinion to the faculty, and the student body should take advantage of them. This year's student members are: Jean Butler '40, Phyllis McGovern '40, R. E. White '40, H. V. Middleworth '40, Dorothy Emerson '41, Shirley Gray '41, E. A. Guilbert '41, R. P. Davis '41, J. H. Couture '41, S. S. Morgan '42 and J. J. Spasyk '42.

Students May Discuss Problems

Inform any of these students of topics or problems that you believe deserve the Council's attention. For those who prefer to retain their anonymity, a box for questions will be placed in the Old Mill corridor.

The large group of students unaffiliated with neither organization nor fraternity would do well to consider the Council as a means of voicing their requests and opinions.

All questions of general campus interest from matters of academic and athletic policy to problems of social standards and the like will be considered.

After the problems have been defined and the situation clarified the Council will recommend a course of action to the organization or department involved. Student opinion can carry weight if the student body chooses to make use of the Faculty-Student Council.

NEW TEACHING COURSE IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION

A new course designed to help women students at the University of Vermont who are planning to teach in high schools and who may be asked to teach physical education is being started by the department of physical education for women.

According to an announcement from the department, this course of necessity would touch only the high spots in methods of teaching physical education, but it would offer prospective teachers a chance to find sources of material, and would supply a sufficient number of folk dances, recreational games, and sports fundamentals to enable the new teacher to carry on instruction until further training could be secured. To those who might not receive any instruction in methods of teaching physical education otherwise, this new course would fill a definite need.

SPECIAL NOTICE

The Central Vermont Railway has consented to give University of Vermont students a special rate of $1.25 on round-trip tickets to Northfield this Saturday. Students must obtain tickets in advance in order to take advantage of this special price. Tickets are now on sale at the Book Store. Busses will leave the Medical Building at 12.15 p.m. Saturday and arrive at Essex Junction in time to make connections with the Ambassador, crack train of the Central Vermont Railways. The train will arrive in Northfield at 1.37 p.m., which will enable students to reach Sabine Field in time for the game which is scheduled for 2.00 o'clock.

On the return trip the train will leave Northfield at 5.19 p.m. and arrive at Essex Junction at 6.15, where busses will will meet the train and then return to Burlington, arriving at 6.40.

Shakespearean Group To Produce Plays Here

The "Merchant of Venice" and "Hamlet" Coming Monday

Considerable interest has been created among students and townspeople over the appearance of James Hendrickson and Claire Bruce and their cast of players from New York City. They have experienced twelve years of touring in Shakespearean plays.

Their supporting cast includes such players, familiar to Broadway, as Wyman Pendleton, Ettor Borodin, Harry Nelson, William Pond, Jane Weldon, Robert Egan, Paul Theodore, Mary Adams and Martin Wells.

Local dramatics students will be selected as supernumeraries in the productions.

Hendrickson and Bruce will present "The Merchant of Venice" in the afternoon performance and "Hamlet" for the evening's entertainment. Their selections are certainly two of Shakespeare's best known contributions, over which rivalry of theories has persisted for many years.

Wide Experiences

At the age of seventeen, Miss Bruce made her début at the Globe Theater, New York City. Since then she has had unusual experience in vaudeville, theater guilds and on Broadway. She assumed various parts in the repertoire of the Shakespearean company of Robert Mantell and Genevieve Hamper. Miss Bruce considers herself especially fortunate in her experience under Mr. Mantell's direction. She has studied voice and has had considerable training as a dancer, having worked in the Russian school of Alexis Kasloff, former member of the famous Diaghiley Ballet.

Mr. Hendrickson spent his early years in Kansas City, where through mutual interest in the theater brought him into close friendship with William Powell. They left Kansas City to attend the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. At the completion of his training at the American Academy he obtained an engagement with Fritz Leiber. After a season with Mr. Leiber, Powell's and Hendrickson's paths again crossed when they played together in the Broadway production, "Spanish Love."

Mr. Hendrickson then enjoyed an engagement with Mantell's company. At the termination of this well-known company due to the critical illness of Mr. Mantell, Miss Bruce and Mr. Hendrickson, both with the company at the time, started their partnership which is in its twelfth year.

Because of their versatile connections with Shakespearean dramas, the interpretation and presentation of the two plays should prove very interesting.

Don't forget the group plays at 8.00 p.m. Wednesday night at Southwick.

WINNOWINGS SPONSORS NEW WRITING CONTEST

Winnowings From the Mill, University of Vermont literary yearbook, has put itself in the market for student writing, sponsoring a contest with prizes offered in three classes of work: the short story, poetry, and the essay, formal or informal. First prizes of five dollars are being offered the winner in each of these three classes, and second place winners will receive three-dollar prizes. The judges are to be Prof. Leon W. Dean and Prof. Phillips D. Carleton of the English department and the heads of departments on the editorial staff of Winnowings.

Rules require that all entries be original and be in the hands of the judges the day before the beginning of Christmas vacation, which is Thursday, December 21. Accordingly, entries must be turned in by December 20.

Staff and Sandal Makes Plans For Lilac Day

Dean Wasson, who for three years, from 1919 to 1922, was dean of women at the University, wanted to make possible for the girls of Vermont an opportunity to create a beautiful tradition which would be part of their heritage of memories, some lovely experience built around a ceremony symbolizing beauty which could be preserved and passed on and continually recreated by the girls who were yet to come. And so Dean Wasson founded a spring festival in lilac time, expressed through the poetry of word movement, color and music. Now we keep Lilac Day in memory of her.

It began with the entrance of the queen and her court, then the pageant itself written by a member of the student body. A lilac shrub is planted by a member of each class. The queen of the lilacs is the girl who is voted most beautiful by the whole college.

Dean Simpson Revives Custom

The ceremony had been allowed to die down until 1937, when Miss Mary Jean Simpson became our dean and gave her especial attention to reviving it. She has entrusted the care of Lilac Day to Staff and Sandal. Last year they asked everyone who wished to, to submit plans for the pageant. Charlotte Hall was awarded the prize—five dollars—for her very fine pageant and was put in charge of producing it. The beautiful ceremony justified our faith in the significance of Lilac Day with its tribute to the memory of one who did so much to dignify and strengthen the place which women hold on this campus.

Mrs. Dallas Pollard of Burlington will direct the pageant this year. It is a privilege to work under Mrs. Pollard, who is known beyond the limits of the State for her ability in directing pageants and dramatic productions. Burlington as a community has benefited from Mrs. Pollard's active support of various efforts to develop the dramatic talents of others. She was one of the founders of the Burlington Theater Club. Out of her love for pageantry and her love of young people she has given freely of her gifts to produce many beautiful Lilac Day pageants in the past.

Miss Hazard will have charge of the dancing and Mr. Kirby of the music.

The plans for the pageant must be submitted on or before December 1. There will be a box in the dean's office where they may be placed. Anyone may enter plans. It's a high honor to have written the Lilac Day pageant. We hope you may realize this.

There will be a place on the Y room bulletin board where people may sign up for the costume and property committees.

The pageant will be presented some time during the latter part of May, between Junior Week and finals.

We want to make Lilac Day this year just as inspiring as it was in the years when Dean Wasson introduced it to the Vermont campus, and with your wholehearted participation it will be.

Elaborate Military Ball Planned For Nov. 10

Committee Keeps Plans Secret

Featuring his sensational "Boston's Best" rhythm section, a good share of "ride men," and a hot trumpet choir, Jim Carmody and his famous thirteen-piece orchestra will really rock the old University gym when they beat it out next Friday night at the Champlain Sabers' Military Ball. Introducing a new policy, that of importing a band rather than employing local talent, the Sabers plan on the greatest success ever this year. Jim promises to show off several members of his band in sensational novelties that made a big hit at "Fo'c'sle" in Marblehead, Ballard's Inn in Rhode Island, Tufts' Sword and Shield Ball, M. I. T. Catholic Club Ball, B. U. Military Ball, Smith College Charity Ball, and Wellesley Tower Court, where he has played on various occasions.

Leonard Blanchard, Dick Story and Ev Bailey, in charge of decorations, tell us that the gym will be decked out as it has never been decked out before. They won't let us in on the details, but it's to be new and different—a bit on the elaborate side.

Student Body to Vote for Queen

Carl Schofield and Hank Middleworth are co-chairmen, aided and abetted, besides the aforementioned committee, by John Davis in charge of tickets, Al Williams and Dick Robinson, publicity, Dave Stowel taking care of gym details, and Bud Allen in charge of co-ed major election, which is being conducted in a new manner this year, the selection being in the hands of the student body itself. Voting will take place all day Thursday and Friday morning in the Old Mill, and the winner will be presented with the saber by Captain Robinson some time during the evening—the climax of the ball.

So get your tickets at the Book Store or from some junior or senior student, and don your finest regalia (uniforms for the men) and let's make this the greatest Military Ball U. V. M. has ever had.

Due to unavoidable circumstances, two of the girls announced as final candidates will not be voted on. Mary Skinner '42 will replace Frances Lynch '42 and Jane Thresher '43 will replace Mary McKee '43.

Prof. Burrows to Lecture On Near East Archeology

On Tuesday, November 7, Prof. Murray Burrows, professor at Yale University and head of the American Schools of Oriental Research, will deliver the first of the University's public lectures which will be held at Fleming Museum.

Professor Burrows will speak on the "Pageant of the Past." His talk will be about the prehistoric archaeology of Palestine and Mesopotamia and will deal especially with recent archaeological work in Palestine and at Tepe Gawra in Iraq. Some new and interesting facts about King Solomon, the Wise, were discovered by Gleuck's excavations near Ezion Geber at the north end of the Red Sea. Among these were found the remains of a great factory complex which shows that the ruler was a great copper king, shipping magnate, and merchant prince as well as a great king.

The lecture will be open to the public and will begin at 8.00 p.m. Slides will furnish illustrations for the speech. It is hoped that a large audience will attend.

The meeting of the Cercle Français scheduled for November 7 will be postponed until November 14. Everyone is invited to attend the lecture by Major Max Vivier at 4.00 Tuesday.

"Razz-Dazzes" For All

We commend the members of the faculty for the attitude which they have taken in regard to the Saturday evening entertainments, recently known better by the name of "razz-dazzes." It is all too true that these entertainments have failed to fulfill their original purpose.

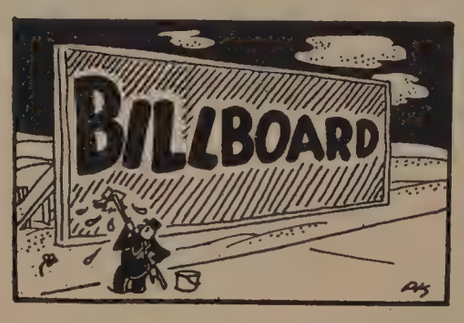
Feeling that although a sufficient number of dances were scheduled throughout the year, there was a real need for some other type of entertainment, the razz-dazzes were introduced to supplement social life at the University. It was felt that in spite of the fact that most of the students were interested in dancing, there were some students who preferred entertainment of a different sort such as card games and other types of amusements. The need for these entertainments was still further felt by those students who did not belong to any of the various campus organizations.

We believe that this condition still exists—that there are students aplenty who desire some other form of entertainment but who have had little encouragement in getting things started. It is our belief also that many of the students think that dancing is the only entertainment permitted at the "razz-dazzes." This is due to the fact that no other type of entertainment has been offered at recent "razz-dazzes."

Much could be done to increase the variety of entertainment offered at the "razz-dazzes." We suggest that a number of card tables be set up and that other games be started for the benefit of those who are not interested in dancing. It might be a good idea if some one tried to revive interest in some of our other dances, such as the square dance. There are several fine folk dances which would undoubtedly prove popular if someone would provide the instruction necessary to acquaint the students with them.

Professor Kidder has requested students to voice their opinions in the columns of the CYNIC. We, too, are anxious that this be done in order that the faculty may determine the consensus of opinion on this question.

Pax Vobiscum



Twenty-one years ago this Saturday, after a bloody struggle which lasted four years, the Allies and Germany signed the armistice which terminated hostilities between the warring powers. Now, as the celebrated anniversary of that memorable day approaches, we find several of the great world powers once again engaged in the grim tactics of war. Many say that this conflict threatens the every existence of modern civilization. As for that, we find it difficult to say, but we do know that we have much for which to be thankful. We have been able to remain neutral in the European war and our leaders have pledged themselves to the task of keeping us out of it.

Hundreds of colleges throughout the United States are making plans to celebrate the signing of the armistice by holding Armistice Day Demonstrations on Friday, November 10. The United Student Peace Committee has issued a call to all students to "organize study groups, campus peace councils, and demonstrations for peace and democracy to commemorate Armistice Day on several important issues so that by keeping the United States out of the war, we shall be assured that our country remain a powerful force for peace." The main objectives are to keep America at peace, to allow no moratorium on American democracy, and to oppose war preparations. The first two aims seem worthwhile enough but we disagree with the third. We do not want war but we should be prepared for any emergency.

The International Relations Club may have already made plans to mobilize Vermont students for a demonstration but if it has not done so we urge it to undertake that task immediately in order that we may add our voices to the thousands of others who cry out for peace.

Notice to All Outing Club Members !

There will be a meeting Thursday, November 16, for all students who joined the Outing Club. This meeting is for the purpose of gaining suggestions. Each of you will have the opportunity to express your ideas to the Council for discussion and consideration. The Council wants to know exactly what other fields besides skiing and hiking the members would like to participate in. With enough interest a skating and perhaps snowshoe club could be formed. At this time Dr. H. E. Upton will discuss the first aid training course for ski patrols which will be open to all students in the near future. There will be short reports by the chairmen of the various committees. Refreshments will be served.

Tryouts for freshmen or upperclass women for Bluestockings, women's literary club. Contributions of the following: poetry, short story, essay, book review, or play. All manuscripts must be in at close of Thanksgiving vacation and left at the desk in the library.

Listen to your Cynic Radio League, Thursday at 5.35 p.m., over Radio Station WCAX.
J. G. C., Radio Editor.

There will be a meeting of Bluestockings Tuesday night at 7.30, November 7, in the north lounge at Southwick.

Because of the University lecture November 7, Le Cercle Français will postpone its meeting until November 14.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the Cynic:

This letter is written at the request of the Committee on Social Life, to present to the student body certain points concerning the so-called razz-dazzes. In considering a request for permission to increase the admission charge to twenty-five cents a person, that an orchestra may be hired, the Committee discussed the whole matter at length, and reached some conclusions.

The Committee feels that dances for which twenty-five cents admission is charged would interfere with the dances now sponsored by various organizations, with an admission charge of one dollar a couple, for, if it should prove that successful dances can be given for half that amount, objection would surely be raised to the higher charge. Furthermore, convinced that college dances are already numerous enough, we do not wish the razz-dazzes merely to add to the number.

Finally, these affairs are already getting rather far away from the original purpose. At first called "entertainments," they were intended to offer amusement and relaxation, primarily to those who do not regularly attend the dances. The entertainment was to consist not merely of dancing, but of such games and other activities as were practicable. It was hoped that students would go as individuals rather than as couples, for the most part, and enjoy an informal social evening. That no one might be kept away, the admission charge was set as low as possible, and the administration cooperated by furnishing facilities, without any charge for janitor service, lighting, and other expenses.

It is the wish of the Committee to return to entertainments of this type, if there is sufficient student interest to justify them, otherwise to eliminate them from the program. Requests and specific suggestions have already been made for the conduct of such affairs, and an opportunity will soon be given to try them out. Dancing to the victrola will be part of the entertainment, and there may be a chance to learn or to revive other dances than those now used exclusively. In addition there will be games and other group activities. The purpose will be very definitely to meet the wishes of many of the student body who are interested in other forms of social activity than dancing. For this, Southwick offers excellent facilities. We are anxious for information and suggestions from the students as to what they would like. These may be sent to Dean Swift or to me. I assume also that the CYNIC would cooperate in permitting discussion in its columns of ideas and opinion of general interest.

Very truly yours,
G. V. KIDDER,
For the Committee on Social Life.

The Band Wagon

By BOB JOHNSON

Back to Barnet

When the "New King of the Saxophone" and krew were burned out recently two men rushed sections of their library to him—the sophisticate Ellington and the Kansas City Count, Basie—proving that sepians can be whiter than whites. Charlie xpresses his gratitude by waxing two sides, "Duke's Idea" and "Count's Idea"; we like them. "King Charles I," playing in the true Negro M-otion, can, being a white, do much to further the cause of our sepian artists.

Bunny Boots?

This time we caught Bunny Berigan via the airlanes—with very disappointing results . . . . strictly an off nite . . . . to be expected with such a new aggregation.

Billie Holiday—Best (?)

The handsome and charming Billie gets three-quarters of our vote for the best femme chirper. (Ella gets another three-quarters.) Billie has had tough breaks—especially with name bands who have relegated her to the background. Because she is with no name band her public seldom hears her. However, she is cutting her own discs now . . . . for which we're truly thankful.

James Jam

With the xception of a slightly irregular sax section, Harry has the second band of '39. (We still consider Glenn Miller as being '38.) Harry's horn is astounding. Dave Matthews and Claude Lakey are xcellent on saxes. Hawkins hits hide xceptionally well. Gardner covers the keys delightfully. Thurman Teague is, in our opinion, the coming bass-man.

Here—and There

With pleasure we note the general public has directed the spotlight on that great outfit of Glenn Miller. Glenn's present headache is finding a femme ditty-deliverer. Miller's men seem slated for the number one spot among favorite bands.

Speaking of spotlights—Jimmy Dorsey has one of his own—at last—and he really deserves it. Necessary shifts in personnel have refreshed the brand of music. We like the way he's backing the proposed Byrne, and new Bradley-McKinley bands—both of us his alumni.

Charlie Spivak, the best lead brass man in most musicians' minds, has left (or is leaving) Teagarden. Immediately many of the better bands started bidding for his service.

Notes From Napkins

Sonny "Memories of You" Dunham leaves Casa Loma for the second time to form his own ork. The first ended in a flop; we hope for the best—but does history repeat itself?

For some whacky stuff listen to the Leo Watson vocals on his discs of "Utt Za Day" and reverse side.

Boot of the Month

Playing at a four-hour jam session with Paul Lane caressing the ivory, and Milt Webber on clarinet and tenor. Both of them play beautifully, xhilaratingly, xcitingly—fine technical execution and plenty of feeling to back it up. Pardon us while we rave on—and on.

We're glad to see more local men with a yen (1929 word) for jam sessions.

We're for America with bands—not Europe with bands. We're for America where impressionable kids are jitterbugs and not gun fodder with a finger twisted around a trigger. We're for America where kids are cutting capers on dance floors to the music of the world's finest bands—not cutting tattoos with machine guns to the accompanying scream of shock and shell.

INTRODUCING

BETTY MYERS '40

There was a terrific clatter on the front porch, the front door of the Alpha Chi house burst open, and in rushed a tall, graceful blonde girl. "Look," she cried with a triumphant gleam in her blue eyes, "I'm on time—it's exactly five o'clock!" You've guessed it—the girl was Elizabeth (Betty) Myers, and the occasion, an exclusive interview (by appointment) for the CYNIC, in which Betty obligingly answered several questions.

To put it in her own words, Betty is a "Burlington product." She has always lived here, graduated from Burlington High School and is at present a senior here at U. V. M., doing undergraduate research work in psychology. This psychology, she explained, is the next best thing to being a doctor, which she would like to be but can't for various reasons. She is extremely interested in medicine (apparently for more reasons than one).

Tells of Her Accident

Asked about her childhood, Betty declared that there was nothing outstanding about it except that she grew too fast. Then she added helpfully, "Would you like to hear about my accident?" This sounded interesting, so she proceeded. "My mother and I were going to Montreal recently. It was wet and slippery, and the first thing we knew something went 'bzunk' and we knocked out four guard rails, fell twelve feet into a culvert and landed bottom side up. We crawled out through the window and took a bus home. I went back up in the afternoon and brought back the car, which was mashed like a hat. I've always wanted to be in an accident; I was, nobody was hurt, and now I'm satisfied."

At the time of the interview Betty was packing in preparation for a trip by plane to New York, where she was planning to enjoy a big time. Among other things, she was going to attend the "Ballet Russe" at the Metropolitan Opera, the Notre Dame-Army game, and Katherine Hepburn in "Philadelphia Story"—quite a program.

Betty is a very resourceful person, and even designed most of the furniture in her bedroom. Her desk is a particularly handy affair, being the right height so that she can either stand up or sit down to study.

Other miscellaneous facts gleaned were that ice cream and apples are her favorite foods; she is very fond of fine music, but jazz drives her to distraction. One of her most interesting experiences, she said, occurred last summer when she steered a ferry-boat half way across Lake Champlain. Asked how she happened to accomplish such a feat, her somewhat vague reply was, "Oh, I knew someone. . . ."

Active in Athletics

Betty is athletically inclined, and declares that she would rather play tennis than eat (except possibly the ice cream and apples aforementioned). She also enjoys riding horseback and plays badminton, which she is going to teach this year. In fact, numerous college activities claim her time, including Mortar Board, Bluestockings, John Dewey Club, Dramatic Club, W. A. A., Staff and Sandal, and Freshman Camp, of which she was director this year. And, of course, her name is consistently on the dean's list.

Betty is not the only one in her family to whom interesting things happen. She has a brother in Scotland who came over here for a visit a short while ago and landed back in England the day before war was declared. He is now working for his doctor's degree in chemistry at St. Andrew's. (Asked if he looked like her, Betty looked horrified and exclaimed, "Oh, no—he's good looking!")

Betty thinks that it is infinitely more advantageous to do undergraduate work at a small college, because much more personal instruction can be given the student. And she's doing all right for herself, too, because this year's college "Who's Who" will include her name. Said Betty modestly, "The only reason they put me in, I guess, is to sell me a book. They've already sent me some advertising!" But we know better—she deserves the honor because of her own achievements, and if charm, personality and intelligence mean anything, then Miss Elizabeth Myers of Burlington, Vt., will go far. Good luck to you, Betty.

MARKSMEN PREPARE FOR FINAL SHOOTING TRYOUTS

For the past two weeks the freshmen have been firing to qualify for the final marksmanship tryouts. At the end of the record shooting the forty-eight men will shoot the qualifying rounds for a marksmanship badge. (This shooting will all be done on the personal time of the marksman.)

While only the prone position has so far been used in the firing, there are yet the sitting, kneeling and standing positions to be used.

There are several high scores already. The highest is O. R. Swift's 100 out of a possible 100. S. M. Grossman is second with 99 out of 100. Nevertheless it is still too early to prophesy what the final outcome will be.

Varsity Team Holds Series of Debates

The varsity debating team met with the Salem Teachers' College from Salem, Mass., last Thursday, November 2, at Southwick and discussed the question, "Resolved: That the federal government should own and operate railroads."

An innovation in the forensic field at Vermont took place when each side presented a mixed team. One man and two women represented the Salem Teachers' College, while Vermont was represented by F. Bardossi '42, J. G. Cohen '42 and Harriet Nelson '42.

On November 16 the University of Vermont will debate the men's varsity team of the University of Maine on the question, "Resolved: That the United States should follow a policy of strict military and economic isolation towards all nations engaged in armed international and civil conflict. It will be held on the American style of debate and Vermont will uphold the affirmative question.

Harvard then comes to Vermont the next day, November 17, to debate the question, "Resolved: That President Roosevelt should be elected to serve a third term as President of the United States." This debate will be on the Oregon style, and Vermont will uphold the negative side of the question.

Friday, November 24, a team from Bates College will participate in discussion with a Vermont team on the question, "Resolved: That the federal government should own and operate railroads."

This debate is to be held before the Men's Club of the Congregational Church in Charlotte. It will be on the American style.

Saturday, November 25, the M. I. T. team debates Vermont on a question yet to be decided. This debate will be featured over the radio station WCAX from 8.30 to 9.30 p.m.

The men who shall represent Vermont in these debates will be chosen from the varsity squad. Members of the squad are Haritos, Becker, Wolk, Durfee, Caldwell, Haines, Bardossi, Huntley, J. B. Cohen, Wolfe, Musicant, Levin and Katzew.

New York City (ACP).—Study in bed and get good grades!

That's the conclusion of Columbia University's instructor in Irish culture, Collins Healy, after a long and detailed study of Irish methods of study, which revealed that the students of the Emerald Isle did their studying while in a lying, reclining or horizontal posture.

"The vision of schools equipped with reclining and sleeping accommodations may seem fantastic and far removed from what we currently consider good educational practice, but psychological investigations accredit the horizontal posture during study as sound," Mr. Healy says.

According to Edmund Campion who wrote his history of Ireland in 1571, Mr. Healy continues, it was a common sight to see students "groveling upon couches of straw, their books at their noses, themselves lying flatte prostrate, ans so to chaunte out their lessons by peece-meale, being the most part lustie fellowes of twenty-five yeares and upward."

Much More Enthusiasm Needed At Pep Rally

It would be nice, more than nice—stupendous!—if we could say that "a record crowd of enthusiastic rooters" turned out for the pep rally last Friday night. Oh, yes—there was quite a crowd; but it could have easily been doubled or quadrupled without noticeable tightness of space in the cage. There are 1,479 students here at the University; just about a quarter of that number, if not less, actually turned out to show that they cared whether we won the game. What if we aren't on top—at least for the time being? That is the time to pitch in and give 'em all you've got. The team needs you all, and not just a half-hearted few. Make the team feel that we're behind them, that we care, and that we're shoulder to shoulder with them rather than just innocent bystanders.

The numbers didn't really matter so much. That many pairs of lungs ought to have been able to make the rafters reel. But did they? Spasmodically, yes. I didn't notice any spontaneous overflowing of patriotic spirit. After all, that's what makes the team prick up its ears and take heart. It's easy enough to cheer when the cheerleaders are leading.

There were several speeches. D. J. Graziano spoke, and Everett Bailey, and Bill Pye and Coach Sabo. Coach Sabo's talk faced the facts; it radiated determination. In fact, all of the speeches were pretty well seasoned with it. That was the kind we needed.

Afterwards the crowd pushed its way out of the cage to a huge bonfire, and there was much singing and cheering. After that it slowly disintegrated. The rooters went home.

Two weeks from last Friday there will be another rally, the last, on the eve of our tryst with Middlebury. Let's fill that cage up to the gills! Let's bring down the roof in one huge crash with our cheering. Let's burst our lungs! Only save a little for the game, too.

PRIZES TO BE GIVEN FOR POEMS SUBMITTED

University of Vermont poets are wanted.

The University of Vermont is sponsoring a poetry program conducted over WCAX, the Burlington Daily News station, every Friday evening at 7.15. The program, which has now been on the air for several months, was originated and developed by Miss Mailla R. Putnam, a graduate of the University in the class of 1932.

The program consists of original verse selected and read by Miss Putnam from the various contributions submitted by amateur and professional writers about the State. To encourage creative work on the part of these writers the University is offering a prize of three dollars and another of two dollars for the best poems submitted each month. University students are urged by Miss Putnam to join the other competitors.

The judges in the monthly contests are Prof. L. W. Dean and Prof. P. D. Carleton of the English department and Mrs. Dorothy Kennedy Slayton of the University news office.

Classical Club Plans Schedule For Year

The Goodrich Classical Club, the honorary classical society, was organized in 1936, formerly being the Greek society, Eta Sigma Phi. The club was named in honor of Prof. J. Ellsworth Goodrich, who taught at U. V. M. several years ago. The object of this club is "to foster the appreciation and study of the classics and to promote acquaintance among the members." Any classical student enrolled in Latin II and acquiring an A for one semester in Greek or Latin or a B for two consecutive semesters in either is eligible for membership in this club.

The officers for this year are: Ruth Williams '40, president; Doris Kinsley '40, vice-president; Martha Baker '41, secretary; and Jessie Swann '41, treasurer. Jean Brehmer '40 is chairman of the program committee. The program for this year promises to be both varied and interesting; for example, at one meeting a few introductory remarks will be given about some Greek author. This will be followed by the reading in English of selections of the author by different members of the club.

For the past two years the club has had a Roman banquet in the spring and it is hoped that one will again be held this year. Two years ago the club gave a Latin play in English and another may appear this year.

In October thirteen new members were initiated, making the total number of members now about thirty.

KAPPA SIGMA INITIATES

Alpha Lambda chapter of Kappa Sigma amounces the initiation of the following: J. E. Horwath, Jr., '43, Glastonbury, Conn.; M. K. O'Toole, '43, Leominster, Mass.; H. E. Rice, '42, New Haven, Conn.; and R. B. Winslow, '43, Whitman, Mass.

The chapter further announces the pledging of: R. W. Harvey, '42, Island Pond; R. E. Hennessey, '43, Bridgeport, Conn.; J. A. Smith, '42, Burlington; G. C. Strong, Jr., '43, Jamaica Plains, Mass.; R. L. Swift, '43, Portland, Me.; and D. W. Maley, '41, Great Barrington, Mass.

Museum Notes

A recent gift to the museum is a small, portable exhibition case given by Bero's, a prominent Burlington jewelry firm. This case will be used in showing small objects or any temporary display in any part of the museum. Such a case has many times been needed in connection with special exhibits.

The historical motion picture films and lantern slides made by the Yale University Press are in constant demand for use in the public and rural schools. The films are called "The Chronicles of America" and the lantern slides the "Pageant of America" collection. This material was transferred to the museum this fall by the State Department of Education, the arrangements being completed through the efforts of the museum staff and Commissioner Francis L. Bailey.

A very interesting extension project under the direction of John Hart is producing some very beautiful units on native trees. A sample of the branch of the tree is mounted on a wooden panel and a colored plaster mold of the leaf is made. Detailed sketches in oils are produced on the reverse side of the panel.

These units are very much in demand. There is a long waiting list for several different units on various subjects, all of which are for use in the schoolroom. Teachers from all parts of the State are applying for the opportunity to show these exhibits. Each exhibit can be retained for a school term.

A fact of unusual interest and very gratifying to the museum staff is the visitation of various schools to the Fleming Museum. Among the schools which during the past week have had groups coming are Ripton and Shoreham Academy, the latter including thirty-five students.

University of New Hampshire students may now rent reproductions of fine pictures to decorate their rooms.

Twenty colleges are this year cooperating on a wide experiment to improve teacher education in the United States.

Tricky R. P. I. Offense Foils Vermont, 13-6

Catamounts Suffer Third Setback in Succession; Pye Grabs Fumble for Score

Unable to overcome the thirteen-point lead which the engineers had compiled in the opening half, a fighting Catamount eleven succumbed 13-6 before a good-sized crowd at Centennial Field Saturday. R. P. I. was definitely the superior team during the first half of the game. They outplayed Vermont both offensively and defensively, and mapped a total of eight first downs to their opponent's one. The second half of the game saw a rejuvenated Green and Gold machine rip through their rivals for five first downs and one score, then lose a race with Father Time who ended the brawl on the R. P. I. one-yard line.

After losing the ball to Vermont by fumbling the kickoff, the R. P. I. lads dug in, smothered the Catamount offensive for a 15-yard loss, and soon regained the ball on downs. The Red and White machine then loosed a cagey offense which featured several variations of the same reverse, and some excellent ball handling in the backfield which usually succeeded in baffling the Vermont defense. Twice Sam Schwartz, R. P. I. right halfback, broke loose for a total of 41 yards. Aricson, his running mate, reeled off another 27. George Shako, 190-pound back, then carried the ball five times in succession to conclude a 70-yard march with a six-point score.

Engineers Waste No Time

The second quarter opened with the engineers in possession of the ball on their own 46-yard line. Schwartz took the ball from Shako on a reverse, shook off four Vermont tacklers and traveled 34 yards before he was slammed down by Frank Taylor. Two more plays put the ball on the Vermont six from where Shako smashed over for the score. Schnatz kicked the point to put the engineers on top 13-0.

In the third period the Catamount offense began to function. Two plays netted a first down and 12 yards. Another three accounted for nine more yards. It was fourth down and one yard to go for a first down. The ball lay on the enemy 44-yard line. Johnny Spasyk elected to kick. The pigskin spiraled high into the air. The ends raced under it. It struck deep in enemy territory and rolled out of bounds on the R. P. I. four-yard line. The engineers lined up for another reverse. The ball was snapped. It landed in the end zone, and was covered by a player clad in green and gold whose 33 identified him as Capt. Bill Pye.

Shaw Injured, Corsones Enters Game

After a great game in which he tackled consistently, Al Shaw was removed due to a leg injury, and was replaced by diminutive George Corsones. A heart entered a body. The Green and Gold began to click. Taylor, aided by Corsones and Broutsas was around the end for ten yards. A pass and a plunge overcame a penalty of five yards to put the ball one yard from a first down. But it was fourth down. The Cats lined up in a kick formation. The ball was snapped. It went to Corsones, playing close to the line, who sneaked through a gaping hole at center for four yards and a first down.

The Vermont offense was bottled on the next three plays, but a penalty on the last down gave them ten yards and four more chances to score. However, a fumble recovered by Madden wrote finis to this attempt.

Carlson Recovers Blocked Kick

The Cats were undaunted. They played like demons. R. P. I. was forced to kick. Vermont had the ball again. It went to Broutsas who picked up 15 yards behind the expert blocking of Taylor and Corsones. Frank, himself, then reeled off another nine. The next play saw Cunningham of R. P. I. break through and grab the ball as it was being handed to Broutsas on an intended reverse.

With the engineers in punt formation the U. V. M. line charged hard and fast. The kick was blocked and Swede Carlson recovered for Vermont on the eight-yard line. A line plunge picked up two yards.

An end run was smeared for a loss of seven yards. On the next play Broutsas carried the ball a short distance, then lateralled to Taylor who fought his way to the two-yard line before he was forced out of bounds. It was last down with but a slim two yards to go. Taylor was back. The ball went to him and he was off around the end. A red-shirted player reached up from the ground, for he had already been blocked, and grabbed Taylor. Two other opponents closed in and Frank was brought down less than one yard from pay dirt. The game ended with the ball still in this position.

College Editorial Fight For Neutrality

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

A new note has been entered the opening-of-the-year editorials in the college press—a note that is ominous and fearful in contrast to the usual happy welcomings of other years. Almost without exception, first issues of the college newspapers for this school year carry warnings to their readers to keep a weather eye on the war and diplomatic movements of the world, and to study with renewed interest the causes of war and the ways and means by which the United States can keep out of armed conflict.

Many college editors are making good use of the analogy between our battles of the gridiron and Europe's battles on land, sea and air to point out the advantages of United States collegians over the youth of other lands. Here's how the University of Tulsa Collegian puts it:

"Today, students find bloodshed and heroes enough on the football field. Today, boys working their way through college as a result of the last war knows that a war boom is a fickle, unstable thing. Today co-eds realize that glamourous uniformed troops lead to very unglamourous breadlines. Today, T. U. students say flatly that they will refuse to fight."

But, says the Gettysburg College Gettysburgian, "it is hopeless to expect that we can ignore the dangers of a widespread conflict even 3,000 miles away. . . . But it is not necessary that we digest the specially prepared propaganda directed at neutrals needed to help in the conflict. Let us keep our minds open, our hands clean, and our country free and neutral for the development of our own civilization."

The futility that most collegians feel about war is aptly phrased by the Hobart College Herald: "The most discouraging aspect of the whole situation is that there are no indications that things will be better after this Second World War is ended. We are witnessing a vicious circle in which wars engender hate which causes new wars and more hate. It seems to be impossible for a people to fight a war without building up so much hatred of the enemy that a reasonable peace is impossible."

There is a general feeling among collegians that we must stay out of this war, come what may. The anti-war oaths popular some two or three years ago seem to be cropping up anew. Listen to the University of Richmond Collegian: "To the man who says we can't stay out of war, say: 'We owe nothing to Britain, and we have nothing to fear of Germany. We can stay out of war; we must stay out of war; we will stay out of war!"

A second to this motion is made by the New Mexico State Teachers College Mustang: "We say, it's Europe's war, not ours." And that seems to be the general collegiate opinion today.

Websters Score Over Williams

Charlie Breaks Record, Fred Second As Cats Win, 18-37

Charlie Webster, Vermont's half-pint harrier, cracked a course record to extend his unbroken string of cross-country triumphs Saturday as the Cats trounced Williams 18 to 37 in Burlington.

Webster beat his brother Fred by 300 yards, lowering the four and one-half-mile course standard from 24.24 minutes to 24.04 minutes. The old mark was set by Williams Gregory in 1935.

Vermont placed the Websters, Jack Burgess, and Frank Livak in 1, 2, 3, 4 order, with Capt. Harry Ketcham completing the scoring with an eighth place.

The order of finish:

1. C. Webster, Vermont.....24.04
2. F. Webster, Vermont.....24.51
3. Burgess, Vermont.....25.22
4. Livak, Vermont.....25.29
5. Wills, Williams.....25.34
6. Chapman, Williams.....25.36
7. Griffin, Williams.....25.37
8. Ketcham, Vermont.....25.44
9. Clark, Vermont.....26.01

Freshman Harriers Beat Randolph Aggies

In a meet that saw the first two finishers cracking Charlie Webster's year-old record, Vermont's frosh hill-and-dalers edged out the Randolph Aggies Saturday 27 to 29.

Webster's mark of 16:21 was beaten by both Bellows of the Aggies, who did 16:07, and Hoyt of the frosh 16:09.

The Kittens placed second, fourth, sixth, seventh, and eighth to nose out the visitors.

Archie Post, coach, was "very pleased with the results." He likes the squad's teamwork and is pointing for the meet with the Middlebury frosh.

The order of finish:

1. Bellows, Randolph.....16.07
2. Hoyt, Vermont.....16.09
3. L. Lawson, Randolph.....17.00
4. Buttles, Vermont.....17.11
5. D. Lawson, Vermont.....18.01
6. Ladd, Vermont.....18.04
7. West and Crown, Vermont.....18.08
8. Austin, Randolph.....18.17
9. Wright, Vermont.....19.08

QUOTABLE QUOTES

(Associated Collegiate News)

"An appreciation, acknowledgment and encouragement on the part of men everywhere of the irresistible, irrepressible urge to know is needed in these days of 1939. If collectivism and dictatorship kill the urge to know, it would be an unspeakable calamity. There would be no superiority, no advancement, only mediocrity." Union College's Dr. Edward Ellery believes that colleges and universities should foster and encourage more than ever thought and knowledge.

The Intercollegiate Peace Association was organized at Earlham College in 1906.

Sports Casts

Statistics

Although Johnnie Sabo's eighteen iron-men lately have had a streak of bad luck and dropped a few tussels on the gridiron, the 1939 Vermont football team, according to statistics, still may be rated not only as one of the leading teams in the east, but of the entire country. Any team that can be shown by figures (and figures never lie) to be 48 points better than Yale, 53 points better than the Army, 25 points better than Harvard, and able to beat Notre Dame by six touchdowns, certainly is tops on the gridiron.

It all started when the Green and Gold downed Amherst, 7-6, in its season opener. Since then Amherst has vanquished Tufts 26-7. The latter topped Williams by two points leaving Vermont 22 points superior to Williams. Williams lost to a strong Princeton eleven by a 26-6 score. This still leaves Vermont with a 2-point advantage over Princeton. Vermont could beat Brown by 16 points because Princeton topped Brown 26-12. The Big Bear lost, 20-0, to Holy Cross who also was superior to Colgate by 20 points. Hence if U. V. M. were to play the Red Raiders, the latter would lose by a 16-point margin. N. Y. U. upset Colgate 7-6; it also topped Lafayette College 14-0. This leads us to the conclusion that Vermont is 29 points better than Lafayette. As the Big Green of Dartmouth only could score twice in their 14-0 victory over Lafayette, Vermont could trim the former with at least 15 points to the good. Now Dartmouth has taken over Yale to the tune of 33-0. Hence Vermont is 48 points better than Yale. Since Yale was victorious over the Army by 5 points, the Green and Gold is 53 points (about 8 touchdowns) better than the West Point cadets. But Elmer Layden's crew at Notre Dame nipped the Army 14-0, thus our final conclusion, the unbeaten Irish from South Bend would lose to Vermont by at least 39 points.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Just think how long this column would have been if old man injury hadn't stepped in and knocked Vermont for a loop.

Webster Again

Eventually the Eastern Intercollegiate cross-country meet will roll around. This year we bet Archie Post is just waiting for the meet to roll around. The reason—Charlie Webster. Last Saturday the diminutive (and we mean diminutive in the true sense of the word) Aggie from Orleans not only placed first in the Vermont-Williams meet, not only upheld his unbeaten varsity record (he also was never beaten last year in freshman competition, if we remember correctly) but broke the course record by forty seconds. Down at the Dartmouth meet a few weeks ago Webster showed his heels to Chief Wonson, the Big Green star harrier and also number one pitcher on the varsity nine. At the tape Webster was about a quarter of a mile in front of Wonson. Yet Wonson went down to Harvard, competed in an Ivy league triangular meet and walked away with it.

Rugby

When the Physical Education department introduced again last spring, after a lapse of a few years, the English sport, rugby, as a physical education elective, it had no idea as to what great response the sport would receive from the student body. The experiment proved to be highly successful as was seen by the exhibition given by the rugby squad last Saturday in between the halves of the football game. What started out to be just an intramural recreational sport may soon develop into an intercollegiate competitive sport. Tentative games with the Harvard Rugby Club and other leading New England college rugby teams are being scheduled for the spring, and it is hoped that the sport will soon become recognized by the Vermont Athletic Association.

Washington University Advances In Aviation

Seattle, Wash.—(I.P.)—Although completed only this biennium (1937-39) the University of Washington wind tunnel, the largest and most modern operated by an educational institution in the country, already is booked to capacity with work for commercial airplane builders and research projects.

The Boeing Airplane Company rents the tunnel extensively for testing of new models and equipment. Equipment and parts of the new Boeing Clipper, largest plane in the world, and the new Boeing Stratoliner, were both given model tests in the tunnel before and during construction.

While work in the wind tunnel, where wind velocities of more than 250 miles an hour can be generated, is probably the more spectacular, the department of aeronautical engineering of the University has given the aviation industry many inventions and improvements which have been of utmost importance through increasing efficiency and safety in air travel.

Professor F. K. Kirsten's new system of airport lighting and new landing beam have been adopted as standard for commercial airports throughout the nation by the United States Bureau of Aeronautics. This system provides a more diffused light for landing and take-off purposes, thus eliminating distortion of ground objects and shadows, with a lower electric consumption than the old type of high power floodlights.

Professor Kirsten also invented the cycloidal propeller, which has reached a high state of development abroad, being used on ships of upward of 5,000 tons displacement. This propeller provides greater control and moveability in the handling of large or small ships in the water. Numerous tests also have been made looking toward its use for control of lighter-than-air ships of the dirigible type and possible adaptation to heavier-than-air ships.

U. V. M. TENNIS AND GOLF TOURNAMENTS COMPLETED

Freshman F. W. Potter of St. Albans came out on top in the annual fall tennis tournament on the University of Vermont campus, defeating G. C. Stanley, Jr., of Burlington, also a freshman, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4 in the finals yesterday.

E. A. Keenan, Jr., Burlington, a sophomore, won the fall golf tournament. The golf matches were played at the Waubanakee golf course, with matched play rules being used. Each contest was eighteen holes in length.

New York, N. Y.—(I. P.)—Twelve students are candidates for the degree of Doctor of the Science of Law in the Columbia University School of Law, and three for the degree of Master of Laws, according to Professor Edwin W. Patterson, head of the Committee on Graduate Instruction. Among the candidates for the doctorate are: Professors Harry Willmer Jones of Washington University Law School, St. Louis; Samuel M. Hesson of the Albany Law School of Union University; Bert Earl Hopkins of the University of Idaho Law School, and Alfred F. Conard, visiting assistant professor of law at the University of Missouri last year; Lyman H. Cloe, instructor in the Indiana Law School; William Warner Bishop, Jr., formerly instructor in international law at the University of Michigan and at Princeton.

The work of the Law School is increasingly influential in other universities, declared Prof. Patterson, the graduate division continuing to contribute its quota to the ranks of the law faculties in the better grades of law schools.

Life Insurance Helps Students in College

More than 15,000 young men and women are attending college this fall on the proceeds of life insurance policies.

This is shown by a survey among life insurance agents made by Seneca M. Gamble, publicity chairman of the Annual Message of Life Insurance Committee, and made public recently.

The tuition and other college expenses of these 15,000 students are being met directly from the proceeds of life insurance policies which their parents purchased to provide them with a college education. On the basis of $1,000 average cost per student for a year in college, this would mean $15,000,000 as the annual sum life insurance provides to guarantee college education.

In addition, there are many other students who are securing some part of their necessary college expenses from life insurance proceeds and many are able to borrow needed college funds by using life insurance policies to guarantee the loans.

Insurance for Specific Purposes

"The impressive extent of life insurance aid to college education is largely the result of the present-day method of planning life insurance for specific purposes," Mr. Gamble stated. "Insurance has been used, to some extent, for college education since the beginning of the business, but the real growth in its use for this purpose has been in the past twenty years. Today, thousands of parents are planning their insurance to include specific educational funds for their children.

"Most of these plans are straight life insurance to guarantee the college funds if the father does not live, although many are endowment plans, which guarantee the funds for an education regardless of whether the father is alive or dead. Many of them are arranged to the smallest detail, providing monthly payment during the school year, with special funds for tuition and books. Under these plans it is often necessary for the insurance companies to hold the funds for many years until the children reach college age, in which case the earnings on the fund are paid to the mother until the plan starts paying out for the college expenses.

"The need for such plans is readily seen when it is realized that one in every eight young men and women of college age are fatherless, many of them having been so for a number of years.

Foresight in Plans for Future

"Life insurance men get more pleasure out of this part of their work than almost any other. It is gratifying to see their clients' children come of college age and able to carry out their plans for their college education because of these life insurance plans which they have arranged.

"One agent, in business fourteen years, reports eighteen young men and women in college this fall directly through life insurance he arranged; another, in business sixteen years, accounts for nine college students, children of his clients. One agent, in business nearly thirty years and long having made a specialty in this work, has already seen 100 young men and women sent to college by his clients' policies and has many more who are approaching college age, about to benefit in the same way.

"In all, it is estimated that more than 250,000 men and women, now engaged in business and the professions, have had the benefits of a college education provided by life insurance which their parents had purchased for this purpose. Many of these credit their successful careers to this start which life insurance gave them."

South Burlington Farmer Helps Other Farmers Out of Trouble

Reprinted from Vermont Alumnus

Lowell Thomas once said to me over after-dinner coffee, "We do not use all the ability at our command. We all could do twice as much, and be no more tired at the day's end." He exemplifies it himself.

So does Fortis Abbott of South Burlington.

Fortis Abbott was born on a Vermont farm, lived on a farm, worked on a farm, going through Brookfield and Randolph High Schools, took farming at U. V. M., and is now—farming. He knocked on U. V. M.'s doors with twenty-five in his pocket, then started earning the rest of his way through college milking some of the fifty-odd cows for fifteen cents an hour on the college experimental farm.

He knows farming from deep inside the good earth, upwards. There is probably no one in New England anywhere whose intimate knowledge on farming from planting the first seed to marketing the final melon is accorded so much deserved respect. When you consider that well over 75 per cent of Vermont's income comes off the farm, that means a lot to Vermont.

Everybody Kind to Him

So far as working through school goes, he says he was "lucky." Everybody was "kind" to him. The fact that everything he's ever done has been constructive, hard work toward becoming a farm expert had, of course, nothing whatever to do with it.

When the Eastern States Exposition started in Springfield, Mass., he got the job of feeding all the cattle; a little matter of some $10,000 worth of fodder. He was Washington County's first agricultural agent, back in the days when farmers were suspicious of outside help from any source.

Twenty years ago the Vermont farmer had to pay sellers' prices for feedstuffs. Feed factories were more or less together on fairly generous prices. If the farmer couldn't pay them, his cattle went on a severe diet. Fortis Abbott was the first retail man for the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange, which started with sufficient buying power to flatten prices down where they belonged, and pass the savings along to the farmer.

He engineered the first cargo of feed through this outfit, even helped unload the first carload at Enosburg Falls. They dealt then in feed only. Now they serve over 100,000 farmers with several hundred items; have their own feed mill in Buffalo.

To list all the organizations, government and otherwise, who depend upon his thorough agricultural knowledge would use up too many capital letters. But when Farmer Jones feels a pinch and needs some money, Fortis Abbott can produce more real help from different angles than Farmer Jones ever dreamed about.

One organization must have a good profitable farm before they unleash money on it. Another could make a loan if the farm were operated a little differently. Another group can take his layout and who worked his own way and is now showing hundreds of others on Vermont farms how to do it.

suggest efficient methods for himself, his hired man and show Mrs. Jones how to save steps between the kitchen and the woodshed. Still another could loan some money on the strength of Farmer Jones' character. And another on his personal property.

Operates Many Outfits

When Fortis Abbott speaks of how "we operate in this or that manner" he may be talking about any one of half a dozen impressive outfits, from some local bank or governmental agency to the Champlain National Farm Loan Association, of which he's secretary and treasurer.

But he goes even deeper than this. There's the occasional poor devil who's trying to feed and subsist his family with a farm, and having a thin time of it. He gets mentally low; he tries to borrow money, on the promise it'll buy him contentment. His income is less than his outgo. He gets thoroughly fed up, disheartened and resentful over the miserable deal life handed him.

Fortis Abbott, and the organization behind him, can rehabilitate this fellow, give him something to live for, introduce him all over again to his own farm, buck up his courage and generally do a job that would turn Father Divine from black to green.

Abbott doesn't say too much about it—but that's going on all the time just the same, and a pretty fine recommendation for him, too.

When a farmer wants to borrow a bale of money, Fortis Abbott does not just wander in to look over the best garden and the bull pen with a glassy eye and a long form full of dotted lines. He looks into why the money is wanted; how the farm is run; how it might be run better for less money, and what he looks at, he sees.

He is not a gold-plated Santa Claus with a truckload of folding money to pass out. He's a shrewd, husky, hard-working, smiling-eyed fellow whose life has been spent in reading character correctly—whether he's looking into the eyes of a potato or the man who raised it.

Interested in Humanity

For many of those who run governmental agencies, these things would be merely names on pieces of paper. For Fortis Abbott (better known to hundreds of farmers in New England as "Abb") it's a human story of struggle with advancing times. The moment a man realizes he can't support his family, the whole backbone of the country feels it. Abbott is genuinely interested in giving the fellow a hand whether it includes putting through a mortgage or not. Night before last he worked around in a nearby town until after ten o'clock helping get a cow sold.

If he wanted to, he could wear a forked collar and spats and sit importantly behind a dozen desks in various places. He'd look the part, too. But he doesn't want to. He prefers the personal human contact with the Vermonter who's trying to make the farm pay off. With some four million dollars worth of farms involved, this can get into a very sizable slab of sod.

Whether you suspected it or not, the Vermont farmer is one who takes advice only from someone who he knows has had the same experience, and not talking out of a book. Anybody could gaze at an acre of apples or a pen of pigs and pass out advice, even when he wouldn't know a heifer from a haymow. But Fortis Abbott, with all his other activities, manages to operate two farms of his own, one in South Burlington and one in Starksboro.

His oldest boy is fast climbing to heights too. In his final year, last spring, at U. V. M., he climbed to the state record in pole vaulting.

There may not necessarily be anything connected with agriculture in successfully raising a family of five children and having the whole family all living contentedly with you now, as "Abb" has done, but it does show mighty good husbandry.

GRADUATE CLUB ELECTS RATLEDGE AS PRESIDENT

W. R. Ratledge, Wilmington, Del., a graduate student in the department of botany at the University of Vermont, has been elected president of the Graduate Club for this year. B. P. Brown, Jr., Denver, Colo., graduate student in engineering, was chosen vice-president of the club; and Elizabeth DeForest, Burlington, studying in the department of zoology, secretary-treasurer. The Graduate Club is open to all graduate students working at the University, and its program is both educational and social. A series of discussion meetings are being planned for this year.

Students Offer Plea For Lighter Textbooks

(Associated Collegiate Press)

Definitely valuable is the following suggestion from the Midland of Midland College, for long have students talked about the textbooks that add to their scholastic miseries. So we pass on to you the editorial "Carrying a Heavy Load."

"Ancient and honored is the tradition among textbook writers that a book must have weight to have value. Therefore, those fat volumes you see under the arms of students aren't encyclopedias or congressional records. Rather they are four or five pounds of assorted literature, history, philosophy and what-have-you.

"We don't mean necessarily that the larger the book the more stuffy it is. In fact, most texts are attractively written and very readable despite the fact that it would take years of study for most mortals to assimilate them.

"Because the amount to be covered in a semester demands large daily assignments, most of us skim over 30 or 40 pages and are left with a rather vague impression, much like a passenger on a Streamliner after a 100-mile-an-hour trip across country.

"The day is not far distant, we hope, when textbook authors will boil their subjects down to the meat, flavor them spicily, throw in a little sauce and serve in succulent, tasty dishes to culture-hungry students."

Appearance Lectures Coming At Southwick

This year the sophomore women's honorary society, Sophomore Aides, is sponsoring a series of three lectures which are intended to aid in the improvement of girls' appearance and attractiveness. These lectures, to be held at Southwick November 9, 16 and 21, are to be given by persons working in those various fields.

Larry, hair stylist, and a skin specialist, are to be the speakers at the first lecture to be held November 9 at 7.30 at Southwick in the south lounge.

The Sophomore Aides urge all women on campus to attend these meetings for they are being sponsored for their benefit. Also, these talks will be given with the average college girl in mind. So, again, the Sophomore Aides appeal to the University women to take advantage of this series of lectures, for only through them can this undertaking be a success.

Let's see a big crowd at Southwick November 9 at 7.30.

Don't forget the group plays at 8.00 p.m. Wednesday night at Southwick.

Outing Club Hikes To Butler Lodge

Through snow, sleet and rain, over slippery trails, and in darkness, six U. V. M. Outing Club members climbed to Butler Lodge, Saturday, November 4. Arriving at eight o'clock they cooked supper and attempted to sleep. Soon after the rising of the sun, about nine o'clock, some of them got up and cooked breakfast. Church seemed out of the question so the party divided, some taking side trips and others climbing the Nose. The group descended in the afternoon through pouring rain. They returned to Burlington thoroughly drenched but willing to try it again. D. V. Collins '41 was in charge of arrangements.

Carmody to Play at Military Ball Tonight

PRESENTING! MILITARY BALL!

Featuring Jim Carmody and his band, presented to the University of Vermont for the first time Friday evening, November 10, at 9.00 p.m.

This up and coming band has been selected primarily because of its vast number of appearances at various colleges during the past year. Carmody has been featured at the Boston University Military Ball several seasons and has played at such colleges as Harvard, M. I. T., Smith, and many others throughout New England.

This year Champlain Sabres has taken a definite step to the fore in making the Military Ball the most important and biggest affair of the fall. It is hoped that with this step it shall soon have the significance of the Masquerade and the Junior Prom. In most colleges there is a large formal dance in the fall. We have had a Military Ball in the past but never one on the scale as this one presents. You all want to be in on the start of a big thing! Well, here's your chance! Let's go and make this dance a tremendous success!

Three male vocalists will be presented along with this smart band. Don't forget, Glenn Miller, Charlie Barnet and a host of others got their lucky break at U. V. M. Remember? Why not CARMODY?

School spirit at the "U" is on the upswing. Let's keep it up and get together on this affair. Show the townspeople that the College isn't out on its feet! Everything is on the Ball for the Ball! It will be the best affair of the year. Novel decorations, novel programs, and a novel time for all.

Come on fellows, take those girls out. Don't let OUR girls have to leave for their Smoothies and good times. We have it all over Coast Guard and Norwich. We've got Uniforms, Guns, Dances, Decorations, Bands, Smoothies, Glamour and a BIG BAND!

Howard Sneller and his hot trumpet is up in Harry James' class. He blends beautifully with the "Trumpet Choir." Mel Duke has taken a "Krupa" powder. Joe Malone on the Bass is right in the groove with Bobby Hackett.

We could go on for hours with these descriptions, we've lot more to say but come and see the Band and save us from writing more.

If dates bother you Stags, come anyhow and see and hear the Swing and Jive from the balcony for only forty cents. You'll never forget this dance and we'll start tradition at U. V. M. Everybody dance, everybody swing, everybody come, and everybody have a good time. It's the last time to "let yourself go" before Thanksgiving!

Come on fellows! Get a date! Girls, forget the "one week rule" and get in on this no matter when he calls. Hurry! Hurry! Tickets now on sale!!! Let's Go!!!!

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP TO HOLD MEETING SUNDAY

On the 12th of November at 7.30, the Pilgrim Fellowship will return again to its own Parish House for a meeting on one of our three main topics of the year. A doctor will speak on the subject, "Is it Not Dangerous to Suppress Emotion?" This is of interest to everyone. Let us have all our old group back again and everyone bring your friends.

All are welcome.

There will be an I. R. C. meeting on Thursday, November 16. Professor Maclay will discuss cooperative movements in the modern world, 7.30 p.m. at Southwick. Everybody is welcome.

Mortar Board Regional Director to Visit Campus

Miss Ellen Fernon, Mortar Board director for Section 1, which takes in the greater part of New England, is expected to arrive in Burlington Thursday for a constructive meeting with the local chapter of Mortar Board.

During the years in which national conventions of Mortar Board are not held, the regional director visits each chapter. Miss Fernon will be at Middlebury just previous to coming here.

Her meetings include one with the Advisory Board, Dean Simpson, Professor Dykhuizen and Mrs. Bickford, and one with the active members to inspect their plans for the coming year and to offer suggestions.

Thursday evening she will be entertained for dinner at Robinson and Friday noon she will lunch at the Practice House.

Thirty Undergraduates Receive Air Training

Thirty University of Vermont undergraduates have been picked from a group of 68 candidates and have begun their theoretical instruction in flying under the program mapped out by the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

The Vermont students are attending classes three times a week after college hours. Dean G. F. Eckhard of the engineering college, in whose department the work is being done, is insisting on a thorough preliminary course before the students take to the air. A minimum requirement of two weeks of study is necessary before students may fly. The Vermont students already have had over two weeks and will not fly before the end of the month. They must take a total of 72 hours of theoretical instruction before June.

Flying will be done at the Burlington Airport under three qualified flight instructors. It will begin as soon as the University authorities give the word. The students will have to take at least 1,050 hours in the air within the next six months.

Each student will receive from 35 to 50 hours of flight instruction. Harold M. Pugh, manager of the Burlington Airport, is flight instructor for the unit. Prof. J. A. Bullard of the University is teaching the present work in theory. After that will come a short course in ground instruction to familiarize the students with the planes and how they function. This will be followed by actual flight.

WOMEN'S DEBATING TEAM MEETS PLYMOUTH NORMAL

"Resolved: That Federal Government Should Own and Operate the Railroads" will be the topic for debate at the Plymouth Teachers College in Plymouth, N. H. tonight. Eleanor Brody '40, Trudy Johnston '40 and Gwendolyn Blanchard '40, representatives of the University of Vermont women's team will uphold the negative against Plymouth's mixed team.

Shakespearean Company To Appear November 13

On Monday, November 13, James Hendrickson and Claire Bruce and their Shakespearean company now on their twelfth annual tour will give two performances at Southwick. In the afternoon the "Merchant of Venice" will be presented and "Hamlet" will be presented in the evening.

The company consists of ten actors, chosen for their suitability and training in Shakespearean interpretation. All of the members have served an apprenticeship in the regular theatre before joining the company. Mr. Hendrickson and Miss Bruce have appeared on the Broadway stage in modern plays and also in Shakespearean repertory companies of Robert B. Mantell and Fritz Leiber. The plays are said to be handsomely staged.

Several University students chosen from the dramatic organizations will serve as supernumeraries in the two presentations. Students from Burlington and neighboring schools are being invited to attend the performances.

DR. MOODY AND MR. LEVINE WRITE SCIENCE ARTICLE

Dr. P. A. Moody and Mr. H. P. Levine of the University of Vermont zoology department are authors of an article appearing in Physiological Zoology for October, 1939. The arictle is entitled "Serological Investigation of Rodent Relationships." It is an account of experimentation studying the precipitin reaction of rodents with anti-rodent rabbit sera, determining the serological relationships of a series of rodents, and testing the applicability of the reciprocal reaction when the antibody-producing agent, in this study a rabbit, belongs to an order of mammals (Lagomorpha) presumably closely related to the order (Rodentia) which supplies the antigen.

Levine is an instructor in the zoology department, and Moody associate professor.

Lloyd C. Douglass to Speak at Vespers

The Rev. Lloyd C. Douglas of Los Angeles, Calif., clergyman who is famous for several best-selling novels, including "Magnificent Obsession," will be the speaker at the University of Vermont Vesper service to be held in the Ira Allen Chapel this Sunday, November 12, at 4 p.m. The Rev. Mr. Douglas has spoken before at the University.

He is the author, beside "Magnificent Obsession" of "Wanted—A Congregation"; "The Minister's Everyday Life"; "These Sayings of Mine"; "Those Disturbing Miracles"; "Forgive Us Our Trespasses"; "Precious Jeopardy"; "Green Light"; "White Banners"; and "Home for Christmas." Several of his stories have been made into moving pictures. One of these is now being shown.

The Rev. Mr. Douglas is a graduate of Wittenberg College in Springfield, Ohio. He received his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Hamma Divinity School of Springfield. He has received honorary degrees from Fargo College in North Dakota; the University of Southern California, the University of Vermont, Gettysburg College, and Northeastern University.

Ordained into the Lutheran ministry in 1903, the Rev. Mr. Douglas was pastor of Zion Church, North Manchester, Ind., the First Church, Lancaster, Ohio, Lutheran Memorial Church, Washington, D. C., the First Congregational Church, Ann Arbor, Mich., the First Church, Akron, Ohio, the First Church, Los Angeles, Calif., and the St. James United Church, Montreal, Que., Can., his most recent pastorate, which he left in 1933. He spent the years from 1911 to 1915 as director of religious work at the University of Illinois. He is now engaged in writing and lecturing.

Miss Luce Lectures On London Conference

At the Home Economics Club meeting last Thursday evening Miss Marjorie E. Luce gave a very interesting talk on the conference of "The Associate Women of the World" held in London last summer. As an outgrowth of the "Women's International Council," the new organization now includes rural women. The delegation of women from Vermont was one of the largest, per capita for the state, from this county—which was well represented at the conference. Miss Luce related many of the outstanding events of the trip, including formal presentations in London, a welcome from U. S. Ambassador Bullitt, and being entertained by Lord and Lady Astor at their home.

After the conference Miss Luce travelled in Finland, Sweeden, and Norway and collected some beautiful examples of Scandinavian art. These included Swedish Orrefors glassware, Finnish flaxen goods, woven cloths and baskets and knitted gloves and mittens.

The new constitution for The Bertha Terrill Home Economics Club was read at the meeting and will be posted.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA HOLDS FORMAL INITIATION

On Sunday, November 5, Alpha Tau Omega held formal initiation for J. P. Diforio '41, W. I. Dorion '43, F. E. Ford '41, and H. H. McGinty '41. After initiation the new initiates were taken to dinner at the Star Restaurant.

Co-ed Major To Be Chosen At Festivel

Hot off the wires! U. V. M. will really rock tonight at Military Ball to the jive of Jim Carmody and his thirteen-piece orchestra.

This promises to be a super event. H. V. Middleworth and C. H. Schofield are co-chairmen. W. L. Blanchard, R. M. Story and E. C. Bailey are in charge of decorations. L. W. Davis is in charge of tickets and A. R. Williams and R. W. Robinson are handling the publicity. D. E. Stowell is taking care of gym details and H. A. Allen is in charge of the co-ed major election.

Voting for co-ed major was held Thursday and this morning in the Old Mill. The winner will be presentetd with a saber by Capt. R. W. Robinson.

The final candidates are:

1940—Jean Harshbarger and Marjorie Bell.

1941—Jane Allen and Eleanor Shandoff.

1942—Mary Skinner and Sally Rome.

1943—Peggy Baker and Jane Thresher.

The decorations committee have kept their plans a deep, dark secret. The only way to find out is to go tonight

Besides, here's a chance for Vermont men to show up the Norwich and Coast Guard men. Don't forget that uniforms do have that certain psychological effect. You know—there's something about a soldier!

The chaperones will be Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. E. Gilfillan, Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. C. Dreibelbies and Maj. and Mrs. E. P. Coffin. Also in line will be H. V. Middleworth, C. H. Schofield and R. W. Robinson.

Here's your opportunity, students, to hear a band that is on the up-swing. Vermont has a reputation, you know, for picking coming orchestras. Remember Glenn Miller and Les Brown? Carmody, it seems, has promised a lot of novelties. He was a hit at the Fo'c'sle in Marblehead, Ballard's Inn in Rhode Island, Tufts' Sword and Shield Ball, M. I. T. Catholic Club Ball, B. U. Military Ball, Smith College Charity Ball and Wellesley Tower Court.

Tickets are on sale at $2.20 a couple and 40 cents to come and listen to the music.

Local Churches to Have Sunday Programs

The local churches are planning very interesting programs for this coming Sunday. Outstanding are the programs planned by Collegium, the young people's group of the College Street Church, the Pilgrim Fellowship, and the young people's group of the Methodist Church.

At Collegium, Mr. Ladd has announced that Mr. Burrows will be the speaker. Mr. Burrows will talk on thrift. His speech promises to be very interesting. As usual, there will be hymn singing before the program and refreshments afterwards.

The talk at the Pilgrim Fellowship will be, "Is It Not Dangerous to Suppress Emotions?" This talk is one of a series dealing with three subjects: Vocation, faithful youth, and boy-girl relationships. The speaker has not yet been chosen. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

At the Methodist Church the speaker, Dr. Van Patar, will discuss the philosophy of China. The meeting will begin at 7.30.

Attention all Juniors and Seniors! Fraternity and non-fraternity! Please get your Student Activity Sheets for the Ariel at the Book Store, immediately and return them as soon as possible!

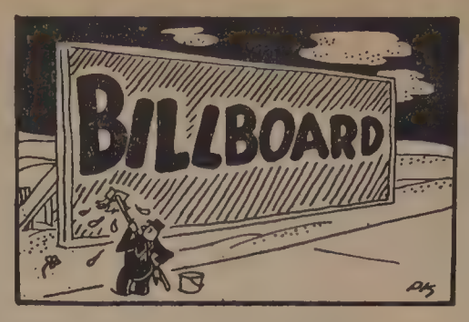
Experts Ponder Sanity of Wurtemburg Student

Thus might read the headline if we were to assume that the experiences of Hamlet had occurred in our times and we were attempting to report the same in modern newspaper style. For it is true that the popularity of the play is indeed perennial and the plot of "Hamlet," the story of a young student who, newly returned from the University of Wurtemburg, is faced with the perplexing problem of solving the mystery of his father's death, attracts the same interest today as it did when the play was first produced. It would be a simple matter for any Vermont student to understand Hamlet's problems if the student were to project himself into the rôle of this Shakespearean character. Because of this the play should attract the attention of the entire student body and no one should miss the opportunity to attend the presentation of the play offered at Southwick next Monday evening.

Hamlet's sanity is not the only issue which has come up for debate since the play was first enacted. More controversy has been raised over this play of Shakespeare's than over any one of his others and all of them have undergone their share of discussion.

Evidence of the amount of controversy over the play is offered by the Variorum, that encyclopedic collection of volumes which contains some of the opinions advanced in regard to the meaning of certain passages. The author devoted two volumes to discussion on "Hamlet"; other plays merited but one volume.

"Hamlet" has been interpreted in many ways. Frank Jones, definitely not too trustworthy as an authority, declared that the melancholy character, Hamlet, depicts Shakespeare himself while Ernest Jones gives the whole play a Freudian interpretation. Gilbert Murray, the classical scholar, states in his "Classical Tradition" thaa he believes the play to be a Scandinavian version of the Agamemnon Cycle.



Ninteenth century scholars were wont to argue over the sanity of Hamlet, some holding that he feigned madness to deceive the King. During the twentieth century most of the research done has been in regard to the accuracy of the manuscript itself.

In the September issue of The Publication of the Modern Language Association of America, William Wilherle Lawrence has written an interesting article entitled "Hamlet and the Mouse Trap" which sheds much light on the dumb show scene. Lawrence's paper presents the theories of Dr. W. W. Greg and Prof. Dover Wilson in regard to the reasons why the King sat through the dumb show, a means by which Hamlet hoped to ascertain the guilt or innocence of his uncle.

Doctor Greg claims that the King sat through the dumb show and called for the lights at its conclusion not because he was afraid Hamlet was aware of his guilt but because he believed Hamlet to be insane and believed that Hamlet had designs on his life. According to this theory the object of the dumb show was to prove to a critical audience that the court broke up because of Hamlet's behavior and not the King's, at the same time leaving Hamlet to believe in the success of his plot.

Professor Wilson claims that the King and Queen were talking while the dumb show was enacted, thus the King failed to see its significance. Then when the play came on he felt Hamlet was aware of his guilt became frightened and left.

In direct contrast to these diverse interpretations is the belief of Professor Stoll who feels that Shakespeare intended none of these subtle effects. Professor Stoll believes that Shakespeare merely wished to present a swashbuckling melodrama such as his audiences delighted in. We believe that one can do no better than to attend the performance Monday and interpret the play for himself.

Cats Set For State Tilt Tight Duel Expected

Horsemen Gunning For First Win Over Vermont Eleven in Seven Years

The Green and Gold squad which has been incessantly plagued by an injury jinx all season, will pit their entire squad strength of sixteen men against the equally injury-ridden ranks of the Norwich Horsemen, who number twenty—horses and all—on Saturday at Sabine Field. In this annual battle staged on the day set aside to commemorate peace, the Catamounts will be seeking their eighth consecutive triumph over their oldest rivals, the Maroons from Northfield.

What the Record Book Tells Us

To date the Horsemen can boast of victories over Hyannis Teachers, Hobart, American International, and the Coast Guard Academy. Their last victory was achieved at the expense of a good many injuries. It was so costly, in fact, that they haven't won a game since, having been trounced by Worcester Tech and Middlebury. However, last week while the Cats were dropping a close one to R. P. I. the Norwich regulars were resting. For seven consecutive years they have had to bow to the superiority of Vermont elevens. This year they will be pointing for this Vermont classic more than ever, and although neither team will field its full strength, the game will undoubtedly be a hard-fought duel well worth attending.

The Catamounts who have been working hard all week will enter the fray with an improved running attack, and a competency through the air not enjoyed before. Their record of two wins, three losses and one tie isn't at all impressive on paper, but then scores don't indicate a team's spirit, nor do they indicate the part Dame Fortune may have played. In the R. P. I. game last week the Green and Gold showed a great deal of fighting spirit in their last quarter drive.

Game to Afford Colorful Spectacle

In addition to excitement this contest is expected to offer a great deal of color. Saturday has been designated as the annual homecoming day for the Norwich alumni, and the Cadets will be out to show the old grads what they can do. The thousand reserved seats have already been sold out, and there promises to be a record-breaking attendance.

Shortly before game time the entire Cadet Corps will parade—horses and all. During the half-time period the bands of both schools will put on drills (the Norwich band does not ride horses). The Vermont rooters will also add color as they wage a battle of their own by matching lung power with the entire Cadet Corps.

The probable line-up:

Durham, N. H. (I.P.)—Unlike Sir Walter Raleigh who played hookey from school to learn sailing, undergraduates at the University of New Hampshire now take tiller and sheet in hand as part of their college curriculum.

For this semester sailing is being taught as a course in physical education for both men and women. The course will carry the student from elementary theory through actual skippering and racing.

But it will not be all straight sailing for these students. Examinations and outside reading have their place here as in any other course at the university. The examinations will be on the work of shore school; the reading will be about boats of other classes and the history of sailing.

RAZZLE-DAZZLE HITS A NEW HIGH AT LOYOLA

Los Angeles, Calif.—(ACP)—Pulling off the drapes of his newly developed "phantom ball offense," Headman Mike Pecarovich of Loyola University has revealed something really new in big-time collegiate football.

Here's a brief outline of the new style of play developed by the master strategist:

It consists of a series of some 50 plays—both line and pass formations—that are run off with the backfield hiding or masking the ball after it arrives from the center and is in the hands of the fullback or the halfback.

The ball carrier executes a half-pivot and with his back to the defense begins to work his magic. At that stage of the play, the defense loses sight of the pigskin entirely. Then with the three backs converging on the known ball handler, the latter makes a guarded pass or fake—in most cases to two or three of the backs.

The execution must be done with lightning-like precision so that all four backs break out of the contact point at about the same time. All four are running stooped over apparently carrying the pigskin. Naturally, only one man has the ball.

Pecarovich says that the only defense against this new attack is to tackle every man in the backfield.

Kittens Face Panthers In Final Grid Battle

Journeying over to Middlebury tomorrow, the yearling eleven will play its fourth and final game against a team which is out for blood. In their three games the Panthers have beaten Union Frosh 26-6 and tied Kimball U. 010; whereas the Evans men have won over Vermont Junior College 20-6 and Dartmouth J. V. 13-0; losing only to Green Mountain 7-0.

Save for Otto and Fleming, the Kittens are in fine shape. The subs are hoping that their teammates will pile up a big score in the first half, because it is necessary to have played one quarter in either the Dartmouth or Middlebury games to receive numerals.

The lineup will be the same as usual with Thurber getting first call as tackle reserve and Lankton likewise as guard. Because of Carey's punting ability he may start at halfback in place of McArdle. Beaulieu, the most consistent yard-gainer, will be in the other halfback berth; Sanders will call signals as well as doing most of the blocking. Parker will crash the line from his tail-back position. Buck and Lincoln may get in.

Last Monday the team had one of its rare scrimmages between the regulars and scrubs. At the other drill session they ran Norwich plays against the varsity, and tried to halt varsity attacks.

After tomorrow's game many of the freshman will come out and practice with the varsity for the big Middlebury game next week.

Vermont freshman football teams have been whipped only twice in three seasons and only once on the home field. This year's team will be the defending champion Saturday.

O'Connell to Organize Frosh Swimming Team

Eddie O'Connell '43 is organizing a swimming team for those boys who do not play football or basketball but who do swim. He would like to have as many boys as possible turn out for it and from these a fairly good team could be picked which would practice at the Y on special nights, convenient for the participants. When it is well organized, the team will swim against other groups or Y. M. C. A. teams of other cities, thus working up a team which, if good enough, would later be backed by the University. With the U. V. M. backing and with a coach, the team could book other schools that have swimming teams. Any boys who are interested and who have even half as much enthusiasm as Eddie, can see him at the Y Monday, Wednesday, Friday or Saturday nights or Saturday afternoon. Although the swimmers on the team would have to eventually become members, some arrangement can be made for the present for those who are really interested enough in swimming to go out for the team.

CIVILS VISIT ZOO

Last Friday afternoon the civils visited the zoo at Jericho to inspect the water system. R. W. Robinson and Powell Whalen were admitted without question, but Pres. Bob Dudley was held up for a few minutes.

Instead of being "confined by the limitations of their wanderings," as they were last week, most of them were nearly confined in one of the spare cages. However, some good was derived from the visit as many similarities were seen, that compared favorably with last week's trip.

Next week, a trip to Waterbury, which is anticipated by everyone! This trip will bring to a close the fall schedule of inspection trips.

1,400 Vermonters vs. Norwich

Tomorrow is Armistice Day. Twenty-one years since the temporary cessation of hostilities of the First World War. The powers of Europe will celebrate the day by having somewhat of a fracas along the Maginot line or by sinking a few ships more or less. The University of Vermont and Norwich will commemorate the day by engaging in somewhat of a fracas also. In some respects the fracases will be similar. Strategy and knowledge of fundamentals will play a most important part. There is another factor which we are afraid will be instrumental in both battles—strength of numbers. Living in a fool's paradise we are inclined to be at the moment more perturbed with the latter factor in connection with the contest on the Norwich gridiron than with the more lasting effects of the battle on the European terrain. The last three football games and their final scores have proven quite conclusively that, despite the relative merit and ability of a team individually and as a unit, a squad of 20 (is it that many?) men cannot have the lasting power necessary to win ball games—at least they haven't the power to win those games themselves. Which brings us to a most important point, a point that we have been harping on for quite a few weeks now. The point? Inspiration, which Webster defined, in addition to "the act of drawing air into the lungs," as "creative influence." And it is this creative influence solely which will result in a Vermont victory tomorrow afternoon if such a triumph is forthcoming. This creative influence comes from just one source, too, for it doesn't come from any pre-conceived do-or-die for dear Old Vermont spirit that the players may have nor from the words of Coach Johnny Sabo in the locker room. Instead it is a mysterious force that passes from the hearts and mouths of the loyal followers in the stands to the men on the field and it is this feeling of having effort appreciated that engenders the spark that puts teams in the winning column. Last Saturday afternoon when a weary Vermont eleven was being maltreated by R.P.I., the Vermont rooters (?) were as solemn and staid and quiescent as if they were listening to Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" instead of replying with the enthusiasm of "Big Noise from Winnetka." The fellows who cheered once must have felt horribly conspicuous, which, incidentally, is one horrible situation. You may rest assured, our blasé little sophisticates, that Vermont will not win a game until the student body gets behind the team and pushes. If you want Vermont to win tomorrow borrow train fare or a bicycle or a thumb, hop over the fence at Norwich, and yell your lungs out. And when you get back to Burlington tomorrow night and go down and get your Saturday night beer you can give a toast to yourself as well as to the Vermont team.

A. D. W.

Nota Bene: But if you think that pride in one's self and one's school is just so much tripe, forget about Norwich and maybe you'll have enough for an extra beer.

Ten Years Ago In Sports . . .

Catamounts Face R. P. I. on Home Lot

With all their cripples returning to action, with the exception of "Tim" Halligan, who is out for the balance of the season, the U. V. M. eleven is out to crush the burly gridsters from Rensselaer. An even battle is anticipated, with Vermont ruling slight favorites by virtue of its victory over Union, the latter having vanquished R. P. I.

Middlebury Frosh Favored to Cop Last Title Game

The strong frosh of Middlebury are heavy favorites to cop the Green Mountain conference championship when it faces the Vermont yearlings. The powerful down-staters having tied Norwich, conquerors of U. V. M. freshies, will be crowned champs if they emerge victorious. The Vermonters are strong potentially but lack cooperation.

Cross-country Men Set for St. Stevens

Coach Archie T. Post leads a well-balanced varsity cross-country squad to Annandale-on-the-Hudson to face the harriers from St. Stevens. Little is known about the strength of the New Yorkers. Preparations are being made for the state championship clash with Middlebury, Norwich having no varsity team.

Emerson Memorial Prize In History Announced

A history prize of $100, to be known as the Prof. S. F. Emerson history prize, has been announced at the University of Vermont to be effective this year, and the succeeding four years, with the possibility of renewal. Recipients of the prize, which is open only to students of the University, will be declared at commencement.

The prize will be granted for the best original essay of inspirational value based upon the scholarly examination of some happening in the history of man. The prize, which is anonymous, is to perpetuate the scholastic memory of the late Prof. Samuel F. Emerson, former head of the history department at the University, and to establish a memorial in his name for the University, which he served for over forty years.

Professor Emerson, one of those well-remembered figures about whom the scholarly tradition of the University of Vermont has been built, came to it in 1881 as a teacher of Greek and modern languages, assumed the chair of history and sociology in 1889, and retired as professor emeritus of history in 1923. He died April 5, 1939, age eighty-nine.

Fall Group Plays Presented Wed. Night

First Dramatic Production Sponsored by U. V. M. Players

Drama on the Vermont campus stirred, stretched, got up, and began to prance around last Wednesday night, when the annual Fall Group Plays were presented at Southwick, at 8.00 p.m., before an audience of surprising proportions. Prof. Leon Dean acted as master of ceremonies, with a very appealing "Compleynt to the Purse."

The plays given were three in number, cast, directed and presented entirely by the University Players. The first on the program was a tragedy, "Afraid of the Dark," directed by Jean Woolley and Roger Hunting. The cast of characters was as follows:

Willy Sullick.....Paul Poulin '41
Juan Castieganos .....Robert Wolfe '42
Chaplain .....H. M. Pulling '43
Captain .....S. M. Grossman '43
Prison Guard .....R. J. Lavigne '41

It was a very convincingly and dramatically done story of three prisoners condemned to death, their various reactions, their thoughts, and the way they met the supreme sacrifice. Altogether it was a dramatic situation, dramatically and surely handled. The characters lived. It reminded one just a little, perhaps, of another play of somewhat the same type, "The Valiant." It was only one short act long, but volumes could be told of what went on in that one act.

The second of the group was a comedy, "Spring Scene," directed by Shirley Treat '40 and C. Marks '42, and made up of the following cast:

Sheila .....Barbara Tucker '43
Jack .....Wendall Harvey '43
Nurse .....Marcia Spound '43
Vendor .....Robert Steinman '42

The story was cleverly put together, fast moving, utterly impossible, and joyously laughable. The scene was laid in a park, in which the ravenous hero roamed, wished ardently for a hotdog. From first to last it was one grand deception, ending finally in the complete unveiling of the various and sundry games being played by the characters. As usually happens in comedies, the hero and heroine, all misunderstandings swept way, flopped into each other's arms, and everyone was happy. Bouquets to the "baby," who played a major rôle!

The third play, another comedy—one might almost call it a "Comedy of Errors," as far as the plot is concerned—was entitled "Something About Figures," and directed by H. V. Middleworth '40 and Jane Lyons '41. The cast:

Frances .....Patricia Page '43
Edith .....Patricia Pike '43
Marion .....Janet Hackwell '43
Carol .....Betty Preston '43
Dorothy .....Elizabeth Doton '41
Joan .....Beth Lund '43

Non-mathematicians will be pleased and thrilled to note the agonies which the cast went through, in trying to add up an account! The story dealt with a slight quarrel between three girls who lived together, their decision to split up, and the ultimate financial results—disastrous—of this decision. They were certainly not devoid of good advice, at any rate. Eventually, after a good long wrestle with figures, they gave it up as a bad job, and decided not to split up after all—too much trouble. The characters were distinctly human. If you saw the play, compare them to your friends and others you see around you They were real.

There's no doubt about it—drama on our campus is off to a running start.

A. S. M. E. Notes

At the weekly meeting of the Vermont Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held November 3, in the engineering building, Elliot Hawkins '40 gave a talk describing the new Hydraulic Drive, particularly of the new Oldsmobile and Chrysler. His talk was very enlightening and brought forth many questions and good discussion.

This week's meeting will be featured by a talk by Lousi Zambon '40 concerning his experiences while working in the oil fields of Illinois.

Elizabeth Watts Chosen As Cynic Picture Editor

Jean Butler '40, because of her numerous other activities, including the presidency of Mortar Board, has found it necessary to resign from the position of picture editor of the CYNIC.

This position will be filled by Betty Watts '40, chosen for her commendable service to the CYNIC during her three years here. Scrub and reporter her freshman year, reporter, her sophomore, and news editor, her junior, now she is being rewarded for her fine efforts.

Campus Chatter

This world is becoming more troubled every time we look around. . . . Must say that the present bloodless war is a vast improvement over the last one. . . . The boys have been over there quite some time without any shooting. . . . Some general must have a headache. . . . Some of these freshmen still think that the Latin quarter is a rare coin. . . . Have been very busy doping out a new philosophy of life. . . . Hope to avert wars, domestic strife, riots, and New Dealers with it. . . . Sums up very short and sweet, too, "Never hit a man when he's down, he might get up." . . . Our office cat says, "A man with a hole in his sock, a rip in his nightshirt and a button off his coat, ought to get married; or divorced." . . . While we're on the subject of marriage, we were thinking of running an "Advice to the Lovelorn" department in this column. This is inspired by some bright individual who sent in the following letter:

Dear Miss Lovelorn:

I have known the sweetest boy for quite some time now and though I have gone out with him steady for nearly three weeks, he hasn't proposed to me. This may be because he's bashful but he has given me a simply terrible amount of mental anguish. Every night when I think of him I get a queer burning sensation around my heart that simply kills me. What shall I do?

Bewildered.

Dear Bewildered:

I can deal with this case out of personal experience, since I have experienced that same sensation myself on many occasions. Take three teaspoonfuls of bicarbonate of soda before retiring and I am sure that everything will be all right.

Miss Lovelorn.

This just shows in a modest way how efficiently we can help in your weaker moments, so if your girl talks Freud at the wrong moment or won't eat anything cheaper than filet mignon just send your letters to Miss Lovelorn, c/o Westy, Vermont CYNIC. . . . We're even more anxious to go to the Military Ball now that we have been informed that Jim Carmody, popular Boston baton swinger, will officiate in the music department. Mr. Carmody has been packing them in down the Foc'stle, popular Boston rendezvous and is really good. . . . Story of the week is about the frosh who entered 1 North College when Mr. Laatsch happened to be standing in the room. He inquired as to the class and was told that it was English, and then left. Mr. Laatsch shortcutted through the building to 23. The frosh who walked around arrived in the corridor and inquired as to the class as before and was told that it was Poly Sci. He looked in and there was Mr. Laatsch conducting his class. "My Lord," gasped the frosh, "Who is that guy, Musica?" . . . Well I'll be seeing all you kiddies Friday night. . . . Auf Wiedersehen.

Dr. Burrows Delivers Lecture On Archeology

Screen Pictures Stress Biblical Excavations

The first of the University's lectures was held in the Fleming Museum, November 7, Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. The lecture entitled, "Pageant of the Past" was rendered by Dr. Burrows, President of the American School of Oriental Research. He was introduced to the audience by Professor Gifford, who spoke briefly on the great need for archeology today.

The talk by Dr. Burrows was made more realistic by means of screen pictures which mainly stressed Biblical excavations conducted in Palestine and Mesopotamia. Such proofs of actual civilization and truth in Biblical reference were discovered, as the following: a stone bearing a seal, the figures of which can be imagined as resembling Adam and Eve in the garden; the actual flood line; remains of men, depicted as members of the Old Stone Age; and a clay mask. In 1927 at Tepe Garora, a large mound was found, resulting in an expedition of research workers. Accordingly, after years of excavation, twenty-six levels have been distinguished, representing various civilizations from 5000 B. C. to 1500 B. C. On the seventeenth layer, a round foundation was found; on the thirteenth, buildings, with carefully made ridges and pottery upon which were various scenes and figures; on the eleventh, a round house, a fortress and temple, and also some bone implements seeming to be musical instruments which, accordingly, are among the earliest discovered; on the eighth, ninth, and tenth, an elaborate temple building.

Excavations in the Holy Land

In Palestine, too, excavations giving forth valuable treasures are undertaken. Remains of many hard-surfaced houses, skeletons found in large stone chests depicting the average style of home in that age, small models, dice and gold-worked objects have been found. Also, pottery on which words have been inscribed in our own alphabetical writing appeared to justify facts, unknown before. Dealing with Old Testament History, an archeologist, Professor Grant, excavated a city in Arabia, representing in various layers, the bronze age, late bronze age, iron age, middle iron age, and Byzantium remains. Expeditions have been conducted in the vicinity of the Red Sea, dealing with the Hebrew History problem as to the actual location of Solomon's seaport. It has been proven that this is a site of the iron age. Among other discoveries mentioned by Dr. Burrows were: a smelting town, in which many small articles, such as fish hooks, beads, and pottery were found; a city gate which was found last spring by a group of research workers among whom Dr. Burrows, himself was a member.

Archeology proves to be a valuable agent for the world.

West Virginia University professors have developed a new spray that will make apples red.

OUTING CLUB TO HIKE TO BOLTON LODGE

Another overnight hike will be held for all courageous souls who dare to brave the elements between Burlington and Bolton Lodge. It will be an exceptionally long week-end because the group plans to start at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and come back Sunday afternoon. The hike is not very long or hard and Bolton Lodge is a marvelous place to catch up on lost sleep or read a good detective story. Sign up on the bulletin board early and bring lots of blankets and a dollar for food. See you at ten on Saturday!!

Miss Leighton Leaving; Honored at Reception

Many 4-H members at the University of Vermont attended a reception for Miss Martha Leighton at the Brick Barn Tuesday night. Miss Leighton, who for many years has been Assistant State 4-H Club Leader, is leaving soon to accept a similar position in Pennsylvania.

The 4-H members gave Miss Leighton a calfskin desk set as a farewell gift. This was presented by Ada Selleck '43 of Brandon, who has been very active in club work. The group played games and sang 4-H songs and rounds, led by Madeline Greaves '41. Ice cream and cookies were served.

In the receiving line were E. L. Ingalls, State 4-H Leader, and Mrs. Ingalls; F. C. Essick, Assistant State 4-H Leader, and Mrs. Essick; and Miss Leighton.

Arrangements were made by a committee which consisted of Ruth Jewett, U. V. M. '35, Chittenden County Club Agent; Ellen Isham '42; Barbara Brewster '42; J. H. Nelson '41; and K. J. Estey '41.

W. A. A. Plans New Fun Program at Southwick

Class Representatives to Improve Point System

The Northeastern Hockey Tournament is to be held at Albany, N. Y., on November 17, 18 and 19. In view of the fact that this is the only time the tournament has been held so near and may not be held in this section for several years, Miss Barbara Crowe of the Physical Education Department is making arrangements so that girls who would like to go will be able to. The tournament is held to determine the first and second teams to participate in the all-American games. The all-American games will be played in Ohio this year. A bulletin has been placed on the Physical Education bulletin board in Southwick for those who are interested.

The Women's Athletic Association has appointed the class representatives for W. A. A. to form a more satisfactory system of awarding points and credits for sports.

Jeannette Whipple '41, Elizabeth Taylor '40, and Joanna Metcalf '42 are a committee of three to discuss the possibility of carrying on a co-recreational program at Southwick. This means that on certain nights Southwick's facilities for fun will be at the disposal of both the men and women of the University. It is a rather new feature being introduced in several colleges in different parts of the country, and ought to be a success on our campus. Student opinion is a vital point in this issue, so if you think it is a good idea, and if you believe it can be carried out effectively, W. A. A. will be glad to hear about it. Any negative opinions and reasons will be accepted with just as much regard as the favorable ones.

"Bowlaway" on Main Street is having special prices now for girls who take bowling as an indoor gym activity or extra-activity. Elizabeth Taylor '40 is in charge of the bowling this year.

Famous Negro Contralto To Honor Burlington

Marion Anderson Sings Here Sunday Night

On Sunday, November 19, at 8.15 p.m., Memorial Auditorium will welcome an internationally known and beloved contralto Negro singer—Marion Anderson. This is her fourth transcontinental concert tour.

Marien Anderson was born in Philadelphia, in a small house on South Martin Street, the same house which she still refers to as "home." She got her start in singing in the junior choir of the Union Baptist Church, soon graduating to the regular choir. There she often substituted for an absent soprano, tenor, or bass; it is to this that she attributes the almost incalculable range and timbre of her voice. When her father died, she, a girl of sixteen, began to seek singing engagements. Those first early engagements used to net her a small ten or twenty dollars, in comparison to her now fabulous salary. Her success, even on such a comparatively small scale, was tremendous. Since she had soon exhausted all musical facilities in the near neighborhood, the people of her church generously collected a fund for Marion Anderson's future, composed of nickels, dimes, and other small bits of change. This enabled her to be trained by Signor Boghetti in New York City, under whose tutelage she won a singing contest, the prize of which was the privilege to sing at the Lewisohn Stadium with the New York Philharmonic Society. This marked the beginning of her success.

Has Had Many Tours Abroad

Since that first lone solo Marion Anderson has crossed and recrossed the Atlantic on concert tours. During her various tours in South America her popularity has ranked only with that of La Argentinita.

Her total mileage comes well above the 100,000 mark. During last year's tour of the United States, from January 2 to May 28, she traveled 26,000 miles (which is more than the distance around the equator) and sang seventy concerts. This was the longest and most intensive tour booked in concert history for any singer.

She is the first Negro singer of the beminine sex in the history of the concert world to have achieved such international success. Her earning power and popularity ranks with that of Kirsten Flagstad. The size of her audiences averages 4,000 each concert.

Miss Anderson is continually being asked to sing in opera, but her answer is always the same: "no," because she believes that she can reach the greatest number of people via the concert stage.

"My farewell performance? Yes, eventually I shall give mine—on the 32nd of July." This is the way she says that an artist never stops being an artist. Her artistic creed is rooted in her religion. "Religion is an anchor. It gives one a grip on life. It also is a pattern on which one fashions life. When one sings one seeks the emotion which impelled the composer. In the moment of exalted interpretation one seeks to communicate that feeling to the audience's exalted appreciation. So, when a song pleases me, touches me, I try to project the feeling to exalt the listener's emotion."

SOPHOMORES CHANGE COFFEE HOUR DATE

The coffee hour which was originally scheduled for November 12 has been changed to November 19 because of the Vesper services held in the former day. Entertainment will be provided and everyone is cordially invited to attend this coffee hour from 2-4 on Sunday.

Plans are being made for a Sophomore Aid dance.

Military Ball Proves Colorful Success

Jean Harshbarger '40 Elected Co-ed Major

The big Military Ball held last Friday night, on Armistice eve was a tremendous success. A large throng of the student body came out and really had a super evening dancing to the music of Jim Carmody, who hails from some of the best-known dance halls in Massachusetts. The reports from New England colleges on the popularity and success of this new band, which is certainly on its way up, were indeed no lie! The Champlain Sabres made a choice which will without a doubt usher in another year of extra-special dance bands.

Smooth Decorations

The gym, with all its highly anticipated decorations, was made over in unusual military dress. Banners of the classes swayed from above, while along the edge of the dance floor small tables and chairs were placed for the convenience of weary dancers. Imposing gun racks were scattered here and there, and two small cannon guarded the band at the end of the hall. Huge sketches of soldiers from the primitive warrior to the military soldier of the future, in the time of fantastic aircraft and artillery, looked down upon us from the side walls. There were warriors of the heroic Achilles type, of our Civil War Blue and Gray boys, and of the Doughboys of the last war. These sketches, drawn by Bill Koch, showed a great deal of skill and originality.

The band showed unusual talent, their novelties attracted a great deal of attention, especially their last jam session which finished the evening's program with a bang!

Sophomore Aides Group Sponsors Beauty Talk

At the first of the appearance lectures which are being sponsored by the Sophomore Aides, the speakers were Mrs. Berger, a cosmetician, and Larry, hair stylist.

The main topic of Mrs. Berger's talk was make-up. In her discussion of make-up she showed the girls how to buy the type of color cosmetics to suit individual needs. She advocated the use of the new cream powder now on the market. In closing she gave some facials to illustrate the proper method of giving home facials.

Larry, hair stylist, spoke on the case of the hair. He emphasized the importance of brushing the hair often in establishing and maintaining its full luster. He set one girl's hair and thinned another's in order to demonstrate the change in appearance and in the case of caring for the hair. He stated that the charm of make-up was to have the utmost naturalness.

Honor Societies Formulate Novel Plans For Middlebury Week-End

Boulder to Hold First "Penny-a-Pound Dance"

Society to Levy Special Complexion Tax on Co-eds

The Boulder dance has come upon us. The Boulder society is giving its annual party, but in an unusual guise. As part of the terrific "Beat Middlebury" week-end, Boulder is presenting Vermont's first "Penny-a-Pound Dance." At the entrance to the gym the first nine o'clock arrivers should not be surprised to find one of those homely contraptions called scales. Each girl will be asked to step onto the tell-tale balances. If she agrees, her escort will be relieved of a cent for each pound his friend registers. If, for some obvious reason or otherwise, the young lady refuses to submit her poundage for public approval, the gentleman will automatically surrender $1.50. In addition a novel tax will be levied to cover the federal requirements. A nickel will enter the till for each brunette to pass through the gym doors, a dime for every blonde, and the mammoth total of fifteen cents for the redheads. It is hoped that there will be no scraps by blondes who for this special occasion claim the dubious distinction of being dark.

Though the idea behind this dance may be new to Vermont, Chairman Robinson is relying on old favorites for the music. The Campus Catamounts are playing again. The chaperones to whom Boulder will be indebted are Prof. and Mrs. Post, Coach and Mrs. Gardner and Prof. and Mrs. Evans.

As this is to be a major event in the "Beat Middlebury" week-end, a great crowd is expected at the dance. In fact, it is confidently awaited as the victory dance in honor of U. V. M.'s hoped-for triumphs over the cross-country course and on the football field. Everybody will be in the mood to be at the gym on the night of the 18th for "The Penny-a-Pound Dance."

P. S. It is believed plenty of notice has been given so that girls may diet this week in order not to embarass members in our midst.

A prize will be given to the lightest girl on campus, also one to the heaviest if she wishes to claim it.

Alliance Francaise Sponsors Vivier Talk

Although Alliance Française has been primarily for town people students especially are urged to join. On the third Friday of every month a lecture will be given at the Fleming Museum and there will be a tea on some afternoon once a month at the different private houses of the members.

The first lecture by Maj. Max Vivier was "En Faiseur de cités," and the second lecture will be "En Marge d'une Crise: Psychologie Companée des Français et des Allemands," by Mr. Frederic Urmatt. This lecture, which promises to be very interesting, will be given November 22, at 8.00 o'clock at the Fleming Museum. Mr. Urmatt, a minister, and a famous lecturer, has lectured here before and because he was liked so well he has been asked to return. This lecture is free to the public but the students especially are urged to attend on account of the prizes of $10 and $15 which will be given at the end of the year for the best essay on the lectures.

The officers of Alliance Française are: Mrs. R. F. Doane, president; Mrs. William Coulman, vice-presidest; Mrs. Ralph Thayer, treasurer; Miss Annette Dubrule, first secretary; and Mr. E. C. Slack, second sescretary.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

Not in ten years has the enthusiasm and spirit for athletics at U. V. M. been more manifest. Attendance and noise at pep rallies and football games points the way to a new Vermont—a Vermont with more spirit, more pep, more enthusiasm, and therefore better teams than ever before.

At the Middlebury game Saturday we will doubtless see the greatest show of spirit, the loudest cheering, and probably the best football game ever to be seen at Centennial Field.

To lend color to this important of all important week-ends we declare this whole week-end "Beat Middlebury Week-end" and have assigned Friday of this week as "Hobo Day."

On "Hobo Day" everyone will come to classes and the super pep rally Friday night made up to look the way he or she thinks a well dressed hobo should look.

Already a part of the student body has been approached and has responded with enthusiastic support, so let's make Friday "Hobo Day," Friday night "Pep Rally Night," Saturday "Beat Middlebury Day," and wind up Saturday night with "Victory Night" at the gym.

THE BOULDER SOCIETY.

Preparations Made to Elect Princess of Pep

All day Wednesday the students of this University of Vermont will be crowding to the polls to elect a new campus queen, a Princess of Pep to rule in her turn with the Co-ed Major and the Kake Walk Queen. This new star in the Vermont firmament will be freely elected by the student body, each of whom will vote for the girl he or she thinks peppiest, most vivacious, and in other ways qualified to lead the Vermont students in their battle of pep behind the football team in its battle of brawn.

The Princess when elected will become the "spiritual" head of the pep meeting before the Middlebury game, will ride in her car at the head of the parade and in general promote the festivities.

Let's all get behind this movement and make it an annual one. Let's elect a Princess of Pep each year before the first home game to rule throughout the year at all pep meetings. Let's go to the polls this Wednesday and elect a real Princess to start the tradition off right. Will you help us Bury Middlebury?

PAN-HELLENIC REMAKES WOMEN'S RUSHING RULES

On Tuesday, November 7, a Pan-Hellenic meeting was held at which a new ruling was made to abolish all rushing of the freshman girls except for the formal and informal parties which have already been scheduled. It has been found that more time should be spent for studying in order to bring up the standard of the freshman class and thus the sororities will choose their members not only for their personal qualities but also for their scholastic standing. There is no set average to be maintained by new members for pledging, which will take place on November 27, but in order to be initiated after the first semester each person is required to have an average of seventy-five or more.

Official "Hobo Day" Announced by Boulder

Gargantuan Pep Rally Scheduled For Friday

From the fertile brains of our seniors have come the germs which are going to cause an epidemic of school spirit and fun. The week-end will start off on Friday with what Boulder has declared "Hobo Day." Everybody will come dressed a little sloppier than usual, in fact, they are expected to use their ingenuity and come to classes in the image of the worst bum among their acquaintances. The boys will have to start early if they want to have a he-man beard by Friday. Boulder suggests Wednesday morning as a suitable time to stop shaving, unless you are one of those who appear to have quit last month.

Friday night there will be the gargantuan "Beat Middlebury" pep rally. It promises to be the best ever, which will be going some, since the ever-growing school spirit has best shown itself at the games and the rallies. Professor Butterfield and other notables will speak. As a special feature there will be a pep queen. Key and Serpent will take charge of an election during the week to select a pep queen, Vermont's addition to the ever-increasing array of queens. Be thinking about who you would choose to further pep Vermont's peppier and peppier student body. Incidentally she will officiate at the rally and between the halves.

Boulder has followed the political custom of declaring special days by designating Saturday as "Beat Middlebury Day." At 12.45 U. V. M. hopes to "Beat Middlebury" in cross-country. Then at 1.45 we will attempt to "Beat Middlebury" at football. Then that night we hope that the now "Beaten" forces from Middlebury will bury the hatchet and come to our Victory "Penny-a-Pound" Dance in the gym.

Chemical Society to Hear Professor Davis

Through the efforts of the Vermont Section of the American Chemical Society the student body and local residents are to have the opportunity of hearing on November 16 a lecture which should prove of interest to a large number.

Prof. Tenney L. Davis of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will speak at Southwick Memorial at 8 o'clock Thursday evening on the subject, "The Primitive Background of Chemistry." Recognized as a skillful lecturer and an authority on the history of the sciences, it is expected that this program will contain much of interest to students of both the arts and the sciences.

Doctor Davis is coming to the city on Thursday to attend a meeting of the Western Vermont Section of the American Chemical Society to be held at the Hotel Van Ness on that day. At that meeting will be representatives of Middlebury, Norwich, St. Michael's and the University of Vermont as well as representatives of the industries of the state. In view of Doctor Davis' reputation as a popular lecturer, however, it was decided to hold the evening meeting at Southwick Memorial in order to make it free and open to the public.

Local arrangements for the meeting are in charge of Drs. C. E. Braun and G. C. Crooks, Chairman and Secretary, respectively of the Vermont Section.

Dollars, Cents and Fellows

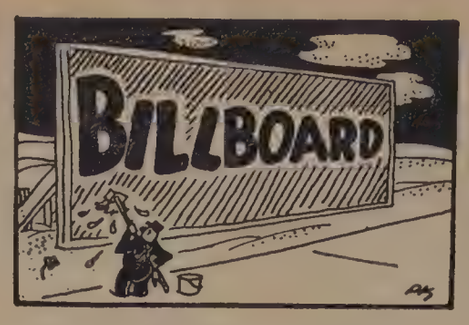
An ominous muttering has been heard recently upon campus. Mutterings of dissatisfaction, of a petition to the faculty, and other things. What's it all about?

Well, it's this way. When students enroll at the University they pay a semester's tuition to the tune of $150.00. In return they expect a certain amount of instruction, not good, but excellent instruction. The average student carries fifteen semester hours and a little arithmetic shows us that he attends approximately 225 lectures of an hour's duration and consequently pays for his instruction at the rate of sixty-five cents an hour. If the average class contains thirty students the students in a class are paying $19.50 for the lecture. And $19.50 is a goodly sum, yea, verily, a goodly sum.

What about all this? It seems that the students are complaining that they are not getting their money's worth. They are saying that in some cases their instructor has turned over a good share, if not all, of their work to a graduate student, a fellow, who is supposed to be assisting the department in its work. They say further that the fellows are not capable of giving the quality of instruction which they expect after paying good hard-earned money for a college education. They say that the fellows are unable to answer many of the questions which come up in class.

The net result of all this is dissatisfaction on the part of the students and talk of a petition to the faculty requesting that this condition be corrected.

Now, we do not believe that there is no place at Vermont for those fellows who are assisting the various departments. We have known some of them in the past and they were a fairly capable lot. They were conscientious and were hard workers and by aiding the department were securing some very valuable experience.



Furthermore, we are aware of the fact that fellows play a part in the instruction offered at many other institutions. However, we believe that the heads of the various departments should use considerable discretion when assigning work to the fellows assisting them in their work. They should be assigned enough work to give them experience but they should not be expected to perform the bulk of the work, thus giving students inadequate instruction. And if these lines do not accomplish their purpose we agree that a petition should be made for the purpose of securing a remedy for the situation.

"Ham and Eggs"

Californians are probably breathing a good deal more freely now that the fantastic "Ham and Eggs" plan has been handed a decisive defeat. For had the plan been adopted the only result possible would have been eventual bankruptcy. To the senile this dream of Utopia might seem plausible but sober reflection proves that the scheme could never have operated successfully.

The danger of having the plan accepted was very real in California for only last year 45 percent of the voters gave it their endorsement. This year a petition carrying a million signatures required the state to stand the expense of a special election. Thus the fact that this was an "off" year will probably cost taxpayers in the neighborhood of a million dollars, the cost of holding such an election.

The pitiful part of the whole picture are the thousands of old people who have believed Utopia to be within their grasp. In order to realize their dreams they have paid, at the rate of a penny a day, nearly a million dollars to their leaders. Now their dreams are blasted, their hard-earned pennies are undoubtedly supporting the so-called promoters of the plan in lives of idleness and ease, and they have been forced to again return to the uninviting prospect of earning a living by hard labor.

ATTENTION, PRE-LAW STUDENTS!

Paul Shipman Andrews, dean of the College of Law of Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y., will speak to all pre-law students who are interested in securing advice concerning what such students should know about preparatory work for the profession of law. Dean Andrews will be in Burlington on Wednesday, November 15, and although final arrangements as to time and place of the meeting were not completed at press time, notices containing this information will now be found on the bulletin boards in the Old Mill. The meeting will probably be held at Southwick at 7.30 p.m.

All pre-medical students are requested to meet in Room 27, Science Hall, at 4.00 p.m., Wednesday, November 15.

There will be a meeting of the Scribes at Miss Storms house, 61 N. Prospect Street, on Thursday at 7.30 p.m. Anyone interested in literary discussion is invited to come.

The meeting of Le Cercle Français scheduled for Tuesday, November 14, is postponed because of conflicts due to plays Monday night.

Attention all Juniors and Seniors! Fraternity and non-fraternity! Please get your Student Activity Sheets for the Ariel at the Book Store, immediately and return them as soon as possible!

Tryouts for freshmen or upperclass women for Bluestockings, women's literary club. Contributions of the following: poetry, short story, essay, book review, or play. All manuscripts must be in at close of Thanksgiving vacation and left at the desk in the library.

ATTENTION!!

Intramural Notice

Interclass basketball will start soon. Class presidents appoint team managers at once.

Team managers see Mr. Post in Physical Education office to arrange for practice hours.

Women's rushing will now extend to November 27 and will be limited to parties as originally scheduled. This is in the hope that both freshman and sorority women will have more time for academic work.

CYNIC MEETING

There will be an important meeting of the news editors and senior staff in the North Lounge at Southwick, Wednesday evening at 7.30 p.m. This meeting is compulsory.

Carl Schofield, Editor.

Listen to your Cynic Radio League, Thursday at 5.35 p.m., over Radio Station WCAX.

J. G. C., Radio Editor.

I. R. C. TO MEET THURSDAY EVENING

The International Relations Club will hold a meeting this Thursday at Southwick at 7.30 p.m. Professor McClay of the Economics Department will give a talk on the "Cooperative Movement."

Amherst, Mass.—(ACP)—Plenty of evidence has been brought out to prove that the size of women's feet has increased a full size in two generations. Now comes an indication that men's feet are on the up and up.

When the R. O. T. C. supply department at Massachusetts State College came to uniforming the freshmen, they found that all the larger sizes of shoes were quickly exhausted and 50 freshmen couldn't be shod.

This doesn't mean, the supply department points out, that the freshmen have unusually large feet, merely that more of them were the larger sizes than is usual. Shoes are furnished the military department in a range of sizes presumed to outfit an average group of men. But these men aren't average.

VERMONT WOODS DISPLAY TO BE PREPARED SOON

An extension project showing units of Vermont native woods is being prepared by the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont as a part of its traveling program. The work is being done under the direction of John Hart, Director of the Museum Extension Project.

A sample of the branch of a tree is mounted on a wooden panel and a colored plaster mould of the leaf is made. Detailed sketches in oils are produced on the reverse side of the panel.

These units of Vermont native trees are reported to be in much demand by teachers from all parts of the State, who are applying for the opportunity to show them in their class rooms. Each exhibit may be retained for a school term.

Tau Kappa Alpha to Honor Debating Team

Wednesday night at 6.30 Tau Kappa Alpha will sponsor a banquet at Oak Ledge Coffee Shop for members of the varsity debating squad. There will also be present faculty and graduate members of Tau Kappa Alpha. After the banquet there will be an informal debate between the faculty and medical students taking the form of impromptu entertainment.

Those who were elected last June to Tau Kappa Alpha will receive their keys and certificates of membership to the national forensic honorary society. They are: A. Becker, T. Huntley, H. Durfee, Mary Nelson, Bertha Berkowitz '39, and Lucia Thorington '38. Both of the latter will return for the banquet.

There will be two debates this week, both in Vermont. On Thursday night at 7.45 the University of Maine team will take the negative against Vermont on "Resolved: The U. S. should follow a policy of strict isolation with all countries outside the Western Hemisphere engaged in armed international or civil conflict." A. Becker and A. Wolk will speak for Vermont. Friday night at 7.45 the Harvard team will oppose T. Huntley and H. Durfee. Vermont will have the affirmative on "Resolved: Roosevelt should be elected to a third term."

The place for Thursday night's debate has not yet been decided, but Fleming Museum will be the scene of action Friday.

The Band Wagon

By BOB JOHNSON

Eyeing the Networks

Sure-fire bits to suit hepper collegians are:

1. Helen Ward singing with Bob Crosby at CBS on Tuesdays at 9.30.
2. Ella Fitzgerald at the eerie hour of midnight via NBC Blue.
3. Harry James, Fridays at 12.00 over NBC Red.
4. Benny Goodman and sextet, both on commercial and night spots.
5. Red Nichols, subtle and dixieland, prodigious tenor and great male vocaling on Thursdays at half past the zero hour.

Here and There

In our hands we have a bulletin of CBS, lauding John Hammond and his work for swing. Hammond in turn lauds college students who kept swing alive in the dark ages of 1929-35. Hammond is a Yale grad who repeatedly criticized swing musicians until someone put him wise—that's why it all seems so funny—and that wasn't long ago. Oh, well, here's to Hammond.

Dinah Shore, studios songbird, gives us a real kick—and no kicks coming—xcept we can't hear her often enough.

Local Limelight

Surprise for us: finding "Rosey" Abbott of Glens Falls playing trumpet with Harry Harris. Rosey plays some spectacular trumpet but is swallowed up by the Eddie Duchin Boston type of band.

Romeo Parry, a sidekick of Rosey's, is giving with clarry and tenor with Clyde Sterns. You've heard us rave about Romie before and his work on the lick-stick. Drop around!

We heard these two fellows at various times this summer, especially the latter.

This goes to press before the Carmody crew so—but the committee chairmen vouch for their find—so we hope you went. Local musicians are playing a variety of dates at the same time—preventing more than a few minutes listening.

We appreciate the fact that we've been raked over the time-worn coals by certain people for our lack of support on this issue. Our supply of information was simply nil—and we don't claim to know everything—calling things as they're seen from this angle appears to be our job. However, we welcome the criticisms and are thankful, because it shows there is new life on the campus, and . . . .

In regard to several questions, it is Bob Haggart who plays bass—not Bobbie Hackett (who is the leading cornetist of the day—in the Bixian manner). The former also wrote the currently popular "What's New?"

Back to the Airlanes

Nan Wynn, lovely chanteuse with Hal Kemp, is even better than in her Hudson-DeLange days—and strangely enough—lovelier . . . . it's a tough racket.

Johnnie "Scat" Davis has an up-and-coming band already in the big money class—with some fresh ideas, too, which are badly needed.

Charlie "Vermont's break" Barnet—and how we go for that band. When he was here he had just been xperimenting with the use of a mixed black and white band. So you see Goodman was not the first—nor was Charlie—but he did attempt it before Benny. All of which we have long considered a move in the right direction.

Philbert's tongue seems tired and if he won't give he won't. What with everything on his mind he double-Xed us this week.

Vermont Battles Norwich To Achieve Scoreless Tie

Cadets Roll Up Five Times As Much Yardage As Vermont But Fail to Score

Injury-riddled Vermont and froshless Norwich battled to a scoreless standstill on the Northfield school's gridiron Saturday, with 4,000 evenly divided partisans looking on.

The numbing cold hampered the ground-gaining efforts of both elevens, but Norwich functioned far more smoothly. The heavier Cadets rolled up more than five times as much yardage as the Cats, and controlled the ball most of the time. Don McCallister's men worked into scoring territory several times, but lacked the vital goal-line punch.

Vermont assumed the defensive for the major part of the game, seriously threatening but once. The Cats suffered a bad break when Capt. Bill Pye was forced out of the contest with an injury early in the second quarter.

Cats Take to the Air

The Cats passed more than usual. The few opportunities the Vermont ground attack had were profitless, the Cadet line holding Frankie Taylor pretty much in hand.

The Green and Gold uncorked an aerial barrage early in the initial period and advanced to Norwich's 35 before losing the ball. Taking over from this point, the Horsemen drove up the field on a series of running plays, with Capt. Henry Ostheus, a great back all afternoon, doing most of the carrying. A fumble on the Catamount 15 ended this excursion.

For the rest of the half, Norwich moved the ball around midfield, sending Ostheus through on slants and Carl Hughes on bucks and delayed bucks, but no appreciable gains were made until the last play of the half, when Ostheus broke away for thirty yards to the Cat 30.

Vermont's only second quarter opportunity went for naught when a penalty nullified a completed pass.

The Second Half

Opening the new half, the Cats appeared rejuvenated. Johnny Spasyk, who turned in another grand punting performance, got off one of his extra specials at the outset, the seventy yarder pushing Norwich back to its three-yard line. The return kick traveled only to the twenty in the stiff wind, and Vermont was presented with its best scoring chance.

The threat failed to materialize, however. In the wind-up of a flea-flicker play, George Broutsas barely muffed a toss from Taylor in the end zone, and then Frankie's field goal try fell just short.

A penalty set Norwich back on its one-yard line, and Spasyk ran the punt back to the Cadet 22, but the Cat passes didn't click, and Norwich took over on the 14.

The Horsemen started a march which carried them to midfield but Taylor pounced on a fumble and that was that.

The final period was all Norwich, the Cadets marching deep into Vermont soil three times, to be stopped each time.

Recovering a fumble on the Cat 38, the Cadets connected for a first down on the 22 via a McCallister-Carl Hughes pass. Hughes then reversed to the eight for another first down, but Vermont held and blocked a fourth down field goal attempt.

Spasyk punted out short, however, and Norwich was hammering at the door again. From the 27, Ostheus made a first down on the 15 on two runs. Carl Hughes smashed to the 11, but the Cat line held again and blocked another field goal, recovering on the 15.

McCluskey Intercepts Vermont Pass

Norwich was back again when Giant Joe McCluskey hauled in one of Spasyk's pitches on the Vermont 35. The officials charged interference on a pass thrown by McCallister, and the Cadets had a first down on the 22. McCallister was throwing on every play now, and he just missed a score, a long one evading Jack Hughes' clutches in the end zone. Fisk caught a pass on the 13 and Vermont went deeper into the hole, but time was running out, and the game ended with Taylor making an interception on the six-yard line.

Tom Churchill, Cadet end, made several jolting tackles. Fullback Al Shaw and tackle Boots Lawrence stood out for Vermont defensively, and chunky Georgie Corsonnes was effective in backing up the line while he was in there, too.

Vermont Freshmen Gain 6-0 Win at Middlebury

Third Successive State Title Won Under Evans

By virtue of a 6 to 0 victory over the Middlebury freshmen at Porter Field in Middlebury Saturday, the University of Vermont Frosh gained their third successive freshman football championship crown.

Vermont's lone score was made in the third quarter after a 76-yard punt by Carey. The Middlebury Frosh then lost 12 yards in two plays and punted to their 20. A pass from Beaulieu to McArdle netted 14 yards. This was followed by two line bucks by Beaulieu. His second attempt carried him up to the line of scrimmage where the ball was fumbled, rolling into the end zone to be recovered by Swift. An attempt by Sanders to convert failed.

A lively wind hampered and helped each team as the quarters passed and they exchanged goals.

This is the third year that the Kittens have emerged triumphant from their battles with Middlebury and this is the third year that Coach Fuzzy Evans has directed their efforts.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

(Associated Collegiate Press)

"Education within the state is so intricately interwoven with human welfare and the success of man in business, on the farm and in industry that one cannot view education in a state university without recognizing that it likewise must take its place within this orbit and contribute within its scope and function unselfishly to the welfare of all." Dr. Fred Engelhardt, president of the University of New Hampshire, effectively restates the place of the state-supported institution of higher learning in modern democratic society.

Interview by Proxy

By CHICO

Meet Mr. Skel Eton who, incidentally, is the least known and only unpaid member of the University faculty.

Born about 1492 'er something, Skel has been at U. V. M. longer than any of the faculty. That just about makes him an old fossil, doesn't it?

Skel was in his office smoking as I entered. Said he, "I always smoke Camels—you know, for a cool smoke. You see, it was awful hot to the place I went and I've been trying to cool off ever since."

But interviewing Skel was a cinch. He did all the talking.

Said he, "I think that some of these guys that want to be doctors are screwy. They take a pre-med course and end up as undertakers. Some fun, huh? Business must be getting better.

But life isn't a bowl of cherries for Skel.

"Next to Hitler," he said, I hate dogs the best. The darn fools keep mistaking my left leg for a soup bone. And that isn't all. The other day some wise guy jabbed my posterior zygopophysis out of place and I haven't been able to sit down straight since. Oh well.

Skel has been getting fan mail from Hitler and had just finished writing a letter to him. It read:

Dear Führere:

Please cut out bothering me about the lack of enthusiasm your present program has found in the U. V. M. Coffee Corner. I cannot incite pro-Nazi crap among the kids of the school. Maybe a campaign of gifts should be started, say an old submarine or two. It may help ballast the budget.

For the small sum of $5,000—in cash not ersatz—I will not sell the story, "I Too Was a Dictator" by Comrade Nicolovitch Alexandrovitchky Gesundheit, to the College Humor Maagazine.

Yours truly,

Skel Eton.

All in all Skel is just a jitterbug at heart and has a way of shagging all his own—just like a pair of castanets. (Can he help it with a physique like that?)

Will Skel be purged? Will truth triumph? Will I ever stop writing this column? Be sure and tune in next week.

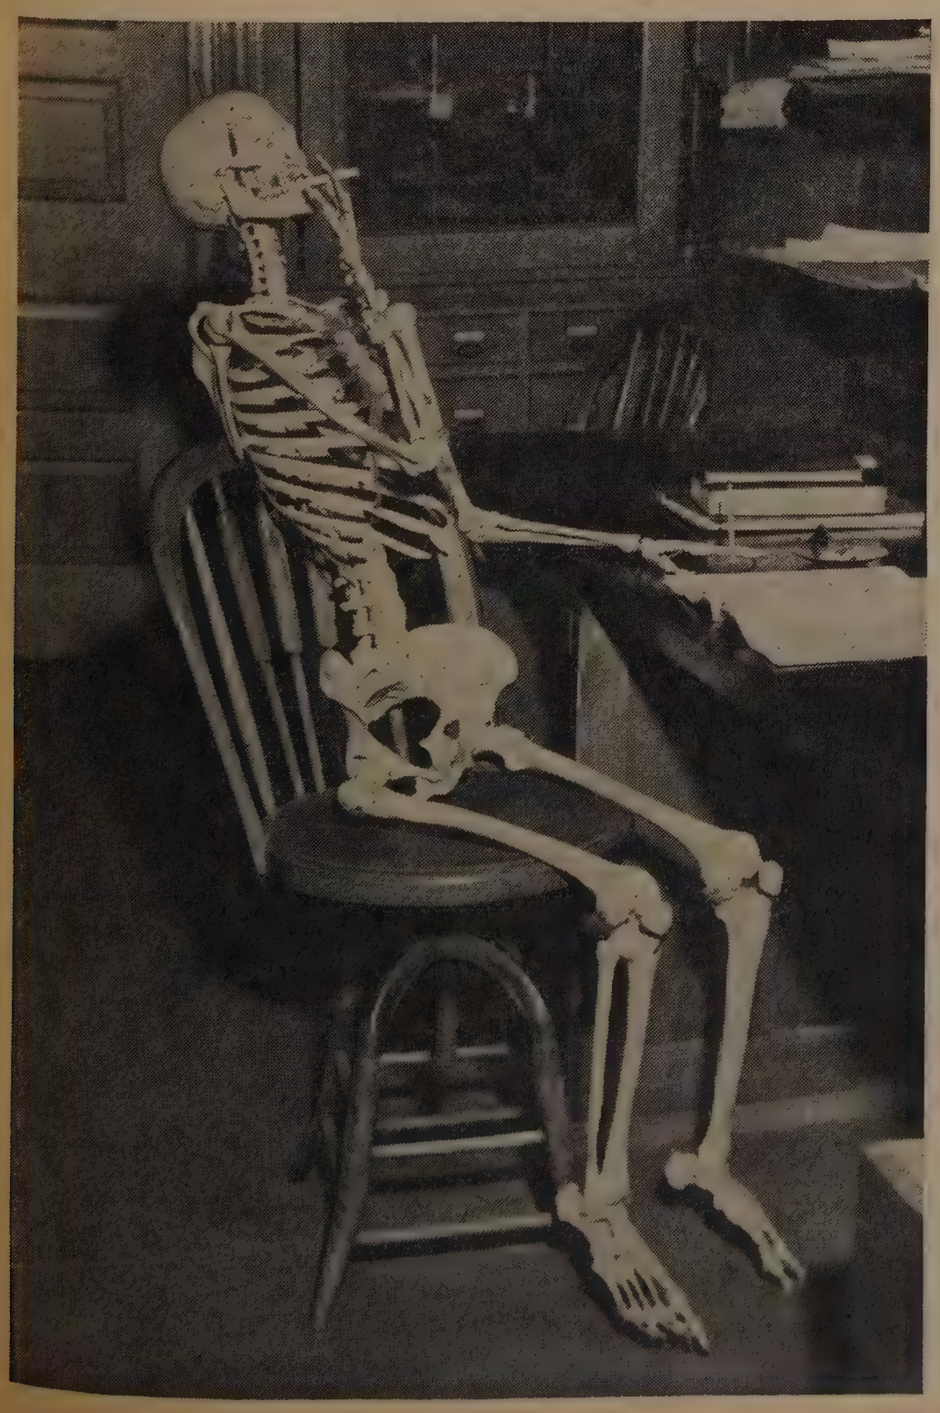
Sports Casts

By BILL ROEDER

A STRANGE situation it is indeed, when Norwich, with a male enrollment perhaps half that of Vermont's, can command a larger football turnout than the Green and Gold. Even sans their twenty-odd freshman players, the Cadets fielded a bigger squad than did the Cats. 'Tis true that injuries and ineligibilities have blackened the Vermont outlook all season, but Norwich too must have some who are physically unfit or mentally unfitted.

IMAGINE a two-year veteran being submerged in obscurity all season! That's the case of one Henry Ostheus, Norwich '40. Mr. Ostheus cavorted in the Cadet backfield for two seasons prior to this one, and displayed sufficient talent and generalship to play regularly and earn his N. With the advent of Walter Domina and his plebe cronies, however, Mr. Ostheus was apparently relegated to the shadows. He stepped back into daylight Saturday and took the leading rôle in the Norwich offensive movements. Every time he carried the ball, Mr. Ostheus tore off sizeable chunks of yardage. It was he who made the game's longest run, a twisting thirty-yard gain just before the close of the first half. Another time, in the last quarter, he entered the action with Norwich at first down on Vermont's twenty-seven. Mr. Ostheus sliced off tackle twice, and it was first down on the fifteen.

NORWICH outgained the Cats by a wide margin, and although Cadet Ostheus had several fingers in the pie, it was by no means a one-man show. The Maroon and Gold had a remarkably versatile backfield. There was Ostheus; there was McCallister, the coach's brother, who did the passing and did it quite competently; and there were those Hughes boys, Carl and Jack, who seemed to know what a football was for, too. Carl and Jack are Norwich right through—their home is Norwich, N. Y.



IT WAS an odd sort of game. Norwich was in possession of the ball most of the time and gained considerably more ground than the Cats, yet came no closer to scoring than Vermont. The Green and Gold struck for home only once, but came closer to an actual score than Norwich did on any of its several trips into Vermont soil.

VERMONT spirit certainly was plentiful at this game. The U. V. M. stands, crowded and enthusiastic even in the uncomfortable cold, were gratifying to behold. The band was there in full force, as were the cheerleaders.

VERMONT'S showing against Union grows more and more respectable as the Saturdays roll by. The Garnet appears to be among the nation's top-ranking small college elevens. Sam Hammerstrom has won praise from myriad sources—the New York papers have been playing him up quite heavily in recent weeks. The other day Slammin' Sammy had a field day against Rochester, running up twenty-five points.

CATAMOUNT guns are now trained on Middlebury, which subdued the Coast Guard Friday night after being held to a scoreless deadlock by little Hardwick. Odds point to the Panthers as probable winners, but Johnny Sabo is asking no quarter. He remembers all too well that odds favored Vermont last year, and it would be mighty satisfying to make Ben Beck and his lads eat crow.

MUSEUM ACQUIRES MOVIES OF HISTORICAL EVENTS

Several new historical motion picture films and lantern slides, made by the Yale University press, have been acquired by the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont and made available for use in the public and rural schools of the state.

The films are called "The Chronicles of America" and the lantern slides are known as the "Pageant of America" collection. This material was transferred to the Museum this fall by the State Department of Education, the arrangements being completed through the efforts of the Museum staff and Commissioner Francis L. Bailey.

The service on these new additions to the Museum's traveling equipment is part of the extension program.

U. S. ARMY RECRUITS FLIERS FROM COLLEGES

Washington, D. C.—(ACP)—In another effort to build the nation's air force to new strength and power, the U. S. Army has begun from here a giant drive to enlist hundreds of college youth in the regular army's air training program.

Army representatives are making tours of colleges in the several corps areas, and applications are being taken for those who wish to enter regular army air service.

However, students are not being urged to abandon their present college courses to takes up training at the army's air schools.

This program is in addition to the giant in-college training course being given to undergraduates by the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

The first football broadcast was made from Stagg field at the University of Chicago on October 28, 1922.

Military Ball Proves Colorful Success

The varied uniforms, the dark tuxes, the bright formal gowns, and the multi-hued banners, dimmed by the soft lights overhead, made a picture which seemed far distant from the war and troubles of Europe.

Each couple was presented with a small, attractive dance program, covered with stars and flags.

The high spot of the evening was when, at the rolling of drums and blowing of bugles, the Champlain Sabres formed a lane among the spectators and Henry V. Middleworth escorted the new co-ed major to the head of the line—Miss Jean Harshbager! R. W. Robinson presented a sword to her, with which she will preside over all the military functions of the coming year.

Jean, who comes from Detroit, Mich., is a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority, and was one of the winners of the beauty contest last spring. To be the co-ed major, is one of the most popular honors a Vermont girl can receive

H. V. Middleworth and C. H. Schofield were co-chairmen, and the chaperons were Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. E. Gilfillan, Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. C. Dreibelbies and Maj. and Mrs. E. P. Coffin.

The Military Ball was such a huge success, the Champlain Sabres hope that this means their fall formal, which ushers in all formals of the year, will be raised to a new level, and will soon become one of the most important balls of the year. If complimentary remarks and unrestrained enthusiasm over the smooth band, the colorful decorations, and the good time had by all, are proofs, it certainly looks as though their wish was being granted.

INTRODUCING

HENRY VAN MIDDLEWORTH '40

He's intense, this Hank Middleworth. That is perhaps the one adjective to describe him most fully, although at times he is serious, cynical, funny, or happy-go-lucky. But he seems to take such an interest in everything he does or plans.

Henry Van Middleworth (at which name he made a very effective grimace) is twenty and comes from Rockville Centre, N. Y., although he leads a roving life, and spends vacations wherever "there is the most fun."

It must be admitted that this interview started not too successfully, as I was unable to think of questions to ask Hank, when he presented himself for interrogation. So I started off with his life as a child, and asked him his aspiration as a little boy.

Aspires to be an Actor

"I haven't any," he replied, and that seemed to end that. He insists that he will never grow up, and he loves to play. He likes "to play anything at all," and his pet hobby is acting (and he may adopt it as a career when he leaves college, if one of his various schemes to gyp the public falls through and banking is as boring as he seems to expect it to be). Hank has really become a devotee of the movies and the stage, and his interests there, as well as in his life, seems to go from one extreme to the other. He prefers either very light comedies or very heavy drama, and was impressed greatly by Maurice Evans' "Hamlet." The most risqué play, which, he stated, was very cleverly done, was "Fly Away Home," and the best costume play he has seen was "Pride and Prejudice." His favorite actresses are Madeleine Carroll and Joan Bennett; actors, Clark Gable and Paul Muni.

The likes and dislikes of Mr. Middleworth, aside from those of the theatre, are not very pronounced, as he claimed at first that he liked everything and everybody. Investigation proved a bit differently, however, but likes greatly outweigh the negative side. Knee-length socks for girls, Italian opera (although he enjoys Wagnerian and French a great deal), and the way U. V. M. has tried to talk up school spirit, are the only things he seemed to disfavor. He believes that the student body will cooperate in school spirit and activity if not encouraged to show it.

Suggests Several Reforms

He came to the University as a result of various friends attending, and likes it a great deal, the most pleasing thing, in his opinion, being the spirit of friendliness which is so apparent. However, there are several reforms he would like to suggest. Hank believes there should be unlimited cuts, and that girls should be allowed to visit fraternity houses, within certain restrictions (he is a Phi Delta Theta).

Hank Middleworth's highest ambition for the year (aside from passing French) is to produce a college musical in the form of a revue. There is a great deal of undiscovered talent in U. V. M. and he is very anxious to put a production of this sort through.

We ended the interview with a discussion of the foreign situation (he believes the United States should enter the war immediately), and his views on the "ideal of man." In the mind and eyes of Hank Middleworth, a girl should be beautiful (glamorous even), gullible or not too intelligent, jealous and devoted, poised, congenial, one who gets along well in any group and is congenial, has a violent temper, and lives for life. Some girl has an awfully big job on her hands.

MISS VERNON DISCUSSES PROBLEMS OF CAMPUS

On Thursday, November 9, Miss Ellen Vernon was entertained at Robinson for dinner. Then after a conference with Dean Simpson, she met the Faculty Advisory Committee, Professor Dykhuizen, Mrs. Bickford, and Dean Simpson, for an informal discussion of various campus problems. One of the most important of these is the growing lack of respect among U. V. M. students for scholarship. Mortar Board, which was represented at the conference, hopes to do something in the future to overcome this problem at Vermont.

On Friday, Miss Vernon was entertained at Practice House for lunch by Phyllis McGovern and Marjorie Bell.

OUTING CLUB NOTES

All of the Outing Club members have now received the circulating letter concerning the program for the coming month and this one. The very first meeting will be November 16 at 8 o'clock at Southwick for all students who joined the Outing Club. Everyone interested in hiking, skiing, skating, and other outdoor activities are requested to be present. The purpose of the meeting is to enable the Council to gain ideas which each and every one of you have concerning the branching out and functions of the club.

A discussion about running a ski bus this winter to Underhill will be brought up.

Dr. H. E. Upton will speak on the "First Aid Course" for ski patrols which will begin soon. Such a patrol of Vermont students would be very much appreciated by all student skiers in assuring them of their safety on the runs.

Free ski instruction will be given this year as usual to all members. The instructor, Stew Phillips, will hold weekly classes in back of Centennial Field.

Plans for the big open meeting to be held December 16 will be discussed, too. Nancy Jones, chairman, has worked up a very interesting program of three ski movies and lecture by Sepp Ruschpp of Stowe.

We will see you at Southwick November 16 at 7.30 p.m. Bring all your ideas and there will be refreshments. We want a good lively meeting.

The World Front

A Bomb and History

The other day in Germany a bomb exploded too late. One wonders what course history would have taken had that bomb exploded a little sooner and sent Hitler and his henchmen out of this world. There are those who say revolt would have followed quickly. We are inclined to doubt that. It must not be forgotten that despite the tyranny of Hitler's regime, a great deal, one might almost say a majority, of the German people are loyal to their fuehrer. He came to them as a Messiah, a guide in the chaos of post-war readjustment. He came to them after the shame of Versaille and pledged himself to blot out that shame. He gave them a strong government in place of the weak government of Weimar, which had come to be associated with post-war failure. Last of all he strengthened the German pride and put people back to work. All those people who were unemployed before Hitler came to power are naturally thankful for getting back to work. Also let us not forget the German love of parade, of militant strength which the Nazis are now glorifying and have glorified since they have come to power.

Sparks for a Bonfire?

Of course, much is made of the fact that the German people hate their government; that a spark of revolt will start a bonfire in the country. Yet people who have studied the German character and the German mind under Hitler warn us to forget this idea, for the present at least. Reports indicate that German morale is high; of course it is a different morale from that of the English and the French, but it is a morale hard to break.

To us in America the tyranny of the Nazi regime seems as evident and brutal as a slap in the face. It is unbelievable to most of us that an entire nation could be converted to a wrong ideal. But let us not forget that in a country where the paper, the radio, and all means of communication are devoted to pounding a definite philosophy into the brain of the nation, where only one side of a story is heard, that eventually people are apt to become convinced that the government must be right. A man who is repeatedly told that the earth is flat will come to believe it eventually.

The German people believe their cause is right. It may be a wrong view but it is a view which the Germans have and it is no use wishfully thinking that their point of view is French, British or American. If any proof is needed of the determination of the German people we need look only so far back as the last war. Throughout four ghastly years their morale was superb. We do not think in face of all these facts, therefore, that revolt would have followed the destruction of Hitler. Rather, it might have spurred the Germans to a greater effort and the fuehrer might have become a martyr—a greater force dead than living.

Of course there is great danger that if the war machine bogs down, the nervous tension to which the Germans have been keyed may snap like a taut fiddle spring. But as yet that tension is still well tuned and in no danger of snapping.

Theorizing

Perhaps readers may put down all the above to idle theorizing. It is always easy to say that if such and such a thing had happened this and that might have resulted, but one is never sure. The explosion of a bomb may have many and far-reaching consequences if it explodes at the right time or even at the wrong. History is full of strange quirks; that's what makes it so fascinating and ever new. However, a little more theorizing backed by a few facts will not cause anyone too much pain, we hope.

BLUESTOCKINGS HOLDS DISCUSSION OF PLAYS

At the last meeting of Bluestockings on Tuesday, November 7, at Southwick, there was a discussion of the plays of Barrie, including "Dear Brutus," "What Every Woman Knows," "The Little Minister," "Admirable Crichton," and" Peter Pan," and a sketch of Barrie's life by President Phyllis Williams '40. Special guests for the evening were Professor Dean and Professor Aiken. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Bluestockings are looking for new members. Anyone interested may write two literary pieces—either poetry or prose—and leave them at the library desk before Thanksgiving vacation.

This Week at Southwick

Tuesday night at 7 o'clock the boys' dancing class will be held in the ballroom.

Wednesday night at 7 o'clock the girls' dancing class will meet, instead of on Thursday.

Thursday night at 7.30 the Sophomore Aids will sponsor the second in their series of talks. This week the subject is one of great interest to all—clothes.

REV. HINES TO SPEAK AT WEDNESDAY CHAPEL

Chapel will be held as usual Wednesday morning, November 15. Rev. H. H. Hines of Woodstock will be the speaker. Everyone is urged to come.

A Vassar College graduate has compiled a record of the living language used by inhabitants of the Hudson Valley region in New York.

Museum Notes

Very great interest was shown in the broadcast of Sir Wilfred Grenfell who was interviewed on the regular museum series by Prof. R. B. Kennan of the Education Department on the evening of November 9 at seven o'clock over Station WCAX. Prior to the broadcast, a small dinner was held in honor of Doctor Grenfell at Hotel Vermont. This was the first time that the Museum staff had attempted a half-hour program.

In connection with the great doctor's visit, there had been assembled enough objects from Labrador to occupy both exhibition cases in the entrance hall of the Museum. These were loaned by Mrs. Ernest Spaulding of Burlington and arranged by Miss Gail Willwood of the Museum staff.

New London, Conn.—(ACP)—If you are a working student at Connecticut State College, you can't earn all the money you want to—in fact, the college's administration has a definite set of working rules for all undergraduates.

The new rules were drawn up to prevent students from over work that might lead to health and scholarship difficulties. All work is done under college supervision.

There are now 556 junior colleges in the United States.

The Vermont Cynic

VOLUME 58 BURLINGTON, VERMONT, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1939 NUMBER 18

Marian Anderson at Memorial Auditorium

Famous Contralto In Charity Series

Marian Anderson, an internationally famous negro contralto, is to sing at the Memorial Auditorium, Sunday night, November 19, at 8.15 p.m.

Miss Anderson, hailed by great conductors as one of the foremost singers of our day, was born in Philadelphia. Her famous career began when she sang in the Baptist Junior Choir. She feels that the experience which she obtained substituting for absent soloists is responsible for her extraordinary long range.

She trained with Signor Boghetti, under whose guidance she was working when she received the prize which was to start her on her long and famous career.

Her international tours have made her dearly loved by people the world over. In South America her fame and popularity ranks only with that of Argentinita. In America her popularity rivals that of Kirsten Flagstad. She has continually refused offers to sing opera so that she can reach a greater number of people.

Key and Serpent Hold Novel Rally Tonight

Tonight at the gym Key and Serpent Society sponsors what promises to be the pep rally of the year. The theme of this gathering is, briefly, "Beat Middlebury." Professor Butterfield and several other prominent campus figures will speak. As a special feature the newly elected Princess of Pep will officiate at the rally.

Joyce Bone '43 is our Princess of Pep, elected by popular vote, in an election managed by the Key and Serpent Society. Here is the chance of a lifetime to yell with "oomph" and back up the team in its traditional battle-of-the-century with Middlebury.

Are we going to let a little college from the South (of Vermont) show us up? NO? Then come out and yell that answer at the gym tonight. Boulder seems to think a lot of our spirit so far this year. Let's show them some of the real pep that we've been saving to "Bury Middlebury"!

Fraternities to Hold Tea Dances Saturday

Saturday after the Middlebury game, various fraternities on the hill are sponsoring tea dances.

Phi Delta Thetas with J. B. Ranney '41 and W. A. Daniels '42 in charge, will swing to the syncopated rhythms of the newest recordings. Prof. and Mrs. Millington will act as chaperones.

Delta Psi, chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. Bickford, will hold their dance at the chapter house. Gilman Rood '42 is in charge of the dance.

Owing to the injury which W. I. Pye '40 received in Norwich game, the Sigma Nu fraternity have postponed their tea dance untll he can join it.

The Phi Sigma Delta fraternity is sponsoring, what they, and we also, hope will be a Victory Tea. The dance is in charge of J. Brill '43 and I. Harris '43. Prof. and Mrs. Carpenter will act as chaperons.

The Kappa Sigma tea dance is in charge of M. O'Toole '43, H. Williams '41, and L. C. Hunt '41. The dance will be chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. Nuiquist.

The Sigma Phi dance will be held at 4.00 p.m., Saturday. Prof. Woodward, Prof. and Mrs. Briggs and Prof. Laatsch have been chosen as chaperons. N. Thompson '41 is in charge.

CHANGES IN PERSONNEL MADE BY PRESS CLUB

The first cuts in the ranks of the Press Club have been made. These were based on the number of unexcused absences from meetings, and lack of interest in the Press Club work. The names of the twenty-two remaining members will be posted on the bulletin board in the near future.

A few new rules will be introduced and explained at the next meeting and the members will be requested to hand in schedules so it can be determined when they can best do the work. Later writing will include personality features on seniors, to be sent to the papers in the high schools from which they graduated.

The club has now been cut to twenty-two members.

Miss Osborne Again To Visit Our Campus

Miss Elizabeth Osborne, Consultant on Charm and Personality, will again visit our campus on November 20, and will remain until November 22. Miss Osborne has been here for several years speaking to various groups and having personal conferences with individuals or small groups of women. She has in the past given excellent and beneficial advice to the girls.

On Monday evening at 7.15 at Southwick there will be a lecture which all freshmen and transfers are expected to attend. This will not count as a night out and attendance will be taken.

On Tuesday evening Miss Osborne will conduct the second of the series of meetings on personality under the auspices of the Sophomore Aides.

Any girl desiring individual appointment or any group of girls desiring a personal interview with Miss Osborne should make arrangements as soon as possible with Miss Simpson, since there is only a limited number of these consultations available.

Miss Osborne will be a luncheon guest at various houses during her stay here.

$500 in Prizes for Economics Students

Of great interest to students in the Commerce and Economics curriculum especially should be a bulletin sent to us by H. A. Mayforth '15, purchasing agent for the Rock of Ages Corporation in Barre. It has to do with the Boffey Memorial Award 1940 Student's Contest sponsored by the National Association of Purchasing Agents, for the purpose of commemorating "the writings, editorial leadership and contributions of L. F. Boffey to business education, purchasing standards and procedure, and to the purchasing profession."

The subject matter of all manuscripts in the competition must deal with Purchasing or a specific phase of purchasing, or some procedure or policy of management that is identified or related directly to purchasing. Manuscripts must be typed, and should not exceed fifty pages, including charts and forms. The competition is open to all regularly enrolled students of any recognized college having some sort of a commerce school. The manuscripts become the property of the sponsors to handle as they see fit. Pep Rally Tonight

Tonight at 7.30 the University gym will be the scene of the last pep rally of the season, in anticipation of the final game which takes place tomorrow.

This rally is sponsored by Key and Serpent, junior men's honorary society. Professor Butterfield, an enthusiastic supporter of Vermont football, is slated to speak, along with some more U. V. M. fans, to make this last pep rally an extra peppy one.

As a grand climax to the evening, this rally will be presided over by a Pep Queen, the peppiest girl on the campus, Joyce Bone.

Keep up the fine school spirit and remember the slogan, "Bury Middlebury."

Her Royal Highness, Vermont's Princess of Pep

Joyce Bone '43, the dynamic, curly-headed blonde who has invaded Vermont's erstwhile quiet campus, was born in Gardner, Mass., and it was there that she acquired her pep and interesting personality.

A courageous trouper in that vast field of medicine, Joyce hopes to specialize in the ear, eye, nose and throat line.

Her chief sport has always been swimming. Six years ago she started violin lessons and since her arrival at the University of Vermont she has delighted many informal gatherings with the product of those lessons. Her favorite pastime, however, is turning cartwheels, which certainly provides plenty of diversion from playing the violin.

Underneath her frivolous outward appearance, Joyce really harbors serious ideas about the future, as well as the present. She is very ambitious for herself and for those of whom she is fond.

Joyce approves of the publicity pep and school spirit is acquiring here. She thinks the campus as a whole could stand a little extra hilarity.

As our first Pep Princess, Joyce Bone typifies all that the regal position commands.

WEEKLY MEETING TIME CHANGED FOR COLLEGIUM

Collegium will hold its weekly meeting at 7.00 p.m. this week instead of 7.30, in order that anyone who is planning to go to Marian Anderson's concert will not have to miss a meeting. The speaker is to be Robert Jenks, M.D., of Burlington, who graduated from Vermont Medical College in 1935. He has just returned to Burlington after several years of study and his talk should be of interest to all. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Alpha Lambda chapter of Kappa Sigma announces the pledging of R. R. Goss '43 of Burlington.

INFORMAL TEA PLANNED BY STAFF AND SANDAL

A meeting of Staff and Sandal, the junior women's honorary society, was held on Wednesday afternoon, November 15. Shirley Mayforth '41 presided as chairman. Plans were made for the members to sell purse kits, which could be used as Christmas presents, as a means of raising money.

Arrangements were also made for an informal tea which will take place on Tuesday, December 5, at Southwick. This tea will follow a concert by the Stradivarius quartet and will enable students to meet and become acquainted with the artists.

Rev. H. H. Hines Speaks at Chapel

Rev. H. H. Hines of Woodstock spoke at chapel Wednesday morning, November 15. He suggested three methods to follow to get along in this world of ours today. The first was to get just as much training and education as possible and do all we can to make our lives secure so that we won't be so near to being put on relief when the depression strikes. The second method was to support democracy, and the third was to join the church and support religion. Religion is the only thing that will pull us out of the condition we are in. Education can't do it alone, organizations don't seem to work, and it isn't understanding either as Hitler is the best understood leader in the world—we understand his aims, goals and even his political life to the extent we know who planted the bomb. With all our new mechanisms today we should drive our stakes deeper. He quoted from Isaiah 54:2: "Lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes."

Classical Club to Give Aristophanes' Play

The Classical Club will present Aristophanes' play, "The Clouds" December 7 at Southwick. All members of the Latin and English departments are cordially invited.

The cast is as follows:

Stepsiades ..... Professor Pooley
Phedippeides ..... Dr. Benedict
Socrates ..... Professor Kidder
Chorus of three clouds { Myrna French, Miriam Fiske, Judith Perry
Right Logic ..... Ruth Williams
Wrong Logic ..... Doris Kinsley
Pasias, Stepsiades' servant ..... C. Abbott
Amynias, Student ..... F. Bardossi

Jane Judd will be in charge of costumes and makeup, and Barbara Campbell will be in charge of properties.

VERMONT INDEPENDENCE REORGANIZE THEIR CLUB

The Vermont Independents meeting goes under full sway next Monday night at 7.30 in the Fleming Museum. One vice-president for each class has been nominated and at this next meeting more nominations may be made by a petition of five members. When the nominations are completed, they shall be voted upon by all the members present. A discussion will be in order on the subject of a temporary president. Cheers and songs are on the program also. A piano player is wanted. Men, if you cannot join a fraternity this year, join the Independents and have many of the same benefits.

SOPHOMORE AIDES TO SPONSOR COFFEE HOUR

The Sophomore Aides Coffee Hour is to be held Sunday, November 19, from three o'clock until four o'clock. Please notice this change in time.

Boulder Sponsors Penny-a-Pound Dance

First 25 Pounds Free; Tax on Red Heads Highest

Life on the Vermont campus tomorrow is expected to turn a series of wild somersaults. Not only will the team play the last game of the season—and the biggest—but there's also the Boulder dance, which will tip the scales in originality. Speaking of scales, this will be the first "Penny-a-Pound Dance" in Vermont history; and speaking of fun, there should be no end to it.

Time? Saturday night, 9.00 o'clock. Place? The gym. Music? The Campus Catamounts. Partner? Choose your own—and pick her small. This time it pays. If you're in urgent need of advice, run to Chairman R. W. Robinson '40. No one ought to know better.

The chaperones will be Prof. and Mrs. Evans, Coach and Mrs. Gardner and Prof. and Mrs. Post.

After the first twenty-five pounds a small fee of one cent for every pound will be rung up on the scales by each fair female, and there will also be a microscopic head tax of five cents per brunette, ten cents per blonde, and fifteen cents per redhead. A prize is generously offered for the lightest girl, and another prize, equally generously offered, will be given to the heaviest girl—that is, if she wants it.

Results of the dance are already being seen in the dining rooms; there seems to be a tremendous surplus of edibles. What can be done with it? If you have any constructive ideas, please don't hesitate to offer them.

Vermont Independents Impeach President

At a meeting of the Vermont Independents two weeks ago, pandemonium broke loose. An attempt was made by the members of the old guard to impeach J. P. Mahoney as president of V. I. It seems that J. P. through his gift of eloquent oratory had set himself up as virtual dictator of the Independents and according to all reports some of the blood members of the organization were a little bit on the sore side. As a result J. P. had his hands full at the meeting he called two weeks in the deep dark past.

Mahoney was called on to explain why he had thrown out all the officers and by what power he did so. In fact some of the brothers wanted to throw Mahoney out. Maybe they wanted to get even.

The meeting wrangled on and finally J. P. pulling a "Huey Long" the fellows went home.

Last Monday night the meeting was very peaceful, and every office was declared open for nomination and reelection. This coming Monday night voting is to take place and probably by the next issue of the Cynic we can probably report on how Mr. J. P. (Mussolini?) Mahoney and his fellows are hitting the old average.

LE CERCLE FRANCAISE STARTS REORGANIZATION

Although there has not yet been much evidence of one, there really is a French Club on this campus. It is under the very able direction of Professor Doane, and usually meets once a month. The purpose of the French Club is to give students an opportunity to use the French language in everyday speech.

In the past various professors have given informal talks at the meetings. This year a new plan is going to be tried in which the members will be able to take a more active part in the meetings. It is not necessary to be a linguist or to have the ability to speak fluent French. Everyone is welcome.

The next meeting will be held Tuesday, November 21, at Southwick.

The Spirit of Scholarship

At this time in the school year, amid all the activities that are now in full swing, and the spirited discussions about the rise of school spirit at Vermont, we wish to pause and call to the attention of the student body something else—not so thrilling perhaps, but very important.

For most of us the hour-exam season has reached its height, and we would especially like to call to the attention of the freshmen here at U. V. M. that scholarship is really what you are here for. We especially urge you to take these exams seriously and give them the best effort possible. If this advice were wholeheartedly followed at the beginning of the year, there would be far less worrying when the mid-year examination period rolls around.

If you freshmen have found the results of this round of tests pretty disheartening, don't get too discouraged, because you must learn where your weak points really are. One main trouble is failure to do the daily assignments every day, and if this is your particular failing, try and remedy it immediately.

It is up to every one of us to remember that we are the ones who uphold the scholastic standing here at the University, and we want U. V. M. to continue to be among the higher ranking colleges. As school spirit is the topic of the day, we can very well say that one of the best ways to show it is to keep a creditable scholastic record.

One idea that freshmen sometimes get is that the Dean's List student doesn't usually enter into as many activities as some others, and is apt to be called a grind. We should like to say that here at U. V. M. scholarship is recognized, and the person who ranks high compels the respect of his college friends.

Before closing we should just like to give one parting word of advice: Your professors are all eager to help you—that is what they are here for—so do not hesitate to ask for their suggestions and aid in helping you keep up your work.

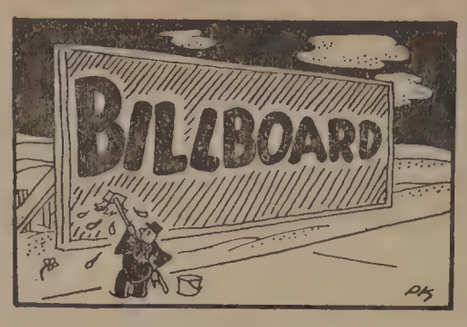
U. S. C. is a Truly Cosmopolitan School

Los Angeles, Calif.—(I.P.)—"See people of the world without traveling" has become the motto of the University of Southern California students. A truly cosmopolitan campus has made possible daily contact with representatives of all parts of the globe. A survey just completed has revealed that there are 225 students registered from a total of 40 different nations and territories.



Here national differences are forgotten as the common aim of education surpasses racial and political prejudices, it was pointed out by President R. B. von Klein-Smid, world affairs authority who has been decorated by the governments of many of the nations represented in the student body.

China, with 42, heads the list, with Canada next in line with 36. The Territory of Hawaii has sent 27 to the mainland and Japan contributes 19 to the Trojan student body. The Republic of Panama has 12 of its citizens on the campus, while the neighboring Canal Zone is represented by 10 and the Philippine Islands by 13.

Many hold student offices, others are active in athletics, dramatics, journalism or other campus activities. All have assimilated Trojan spirit and customs and have become "Americans."

University of Wyoming students last year spent $64,500 in membership dues in student organizations; $23,373.75 was for national dues, pins and initiation fees.

Thirteen University of Texas students were on the British ship Athenia when it was torpedoed at the opening of the European war.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

This letter is to inform you as well as the readers of the CYNIC of the newly formed Pre-Medical Society. Yesterday a group of the pre-meds, consisting of the sophomores, juniors and seniors, met and the purpose of the society was made known to them and approved by them.

The meeting was successful in its first endeavor in that it received the wholehearted approval of all those present. First action to be taken was the election of a committee to draw up a constitution which will present a tentative outline of the same next Tuesday. The members of this committee are J. P. Mahoney '41, S. Foti '42 and L. A. Janoff '40 and Elizabeth Doton.

The purpose of the society will be, in short, to produce the pre-medics' views on subjects medical and non-medical. It will be the endeavor of this society to present speakers of the faculty from the medical school and members of the faculty from the Arts and Sciences. We hope to have a varied program so that not only will the topics be of medicine but also topics that are of interest to the world about us.

Secondly, since the pre-meds are the largest body of men and women in any one curriculum in the Arts and Science College, such a society will serve the purpose of drawing them closer together and give them such lectures as would be of interest to all. Also the society may act as a laison between the arts and sciences and medical schools, which would be beneficial to the pre-meds individually.

There are topics such as "Socialized Medicine," "History of the Rise of Medicine," "The Viewpoint of the Admissions Committee on Marks and Their Exact Value," etc., that would be and are of vital interest to aspirants of medicine. It is with these questions in mind and with the reasons given above that I ask all pre-meds, including classes '40 to '42, to help out the committee and give it your fullest support. Please attend the next meeting.

Sincerely,
JOHN N. HOUPIS,
Acting Chairman.

P.S. The next vitally important meeting will be held next Tuesday, November 21, in 27 Science Hall at 4.00 p.m.

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

There is not one of you in the student body who would tolerate any such thing as Hitler's concentration camps, his ruthlessness and lack of justice here in America—you think. Here's where you stop. You only think; you do not know. You do not know that this college has become a virtual concentration camp and that the co-eds on campus are treated with demoralizing and insulting injustice and suppression.

Are we a college or a kindergarten? A university or a convent? What "Little Hitler" seeks to restrain us by childish rules and tyrannical tactics?

There is not one girl registered in this University who is not capable and deserving of her independence and self-sufficiency. We paid good, hard-earned money to come here for an education—not for lessons in dictatorship. How and when we go about gaining this education is our own business.

If we wish to neglect our studies for other interests, it is ourselves who suffer, not this college. Why should this institution take upon itself the task or so-called duty of regulating to such an unbelievable and unbearable extent? It seems to us that this is the year 1939 and that woman suffrage became effective in 1920. In that year we were declared the equals of men. We have proved that right in many ways in the years that have followed. The boys here on campus are allowed freedom, bound by no petty rules and regulations, that infractions of which result in loss of all social privileges.

You say that the weaker sex needs protection and supervision. We will not dispute this statement here, nor do we wish to deny the desirability of the use of systems of registering and, to a certain extent, the regulation of the time girls' dormitories should be closed. There used to be a few, well-chosen, effective rules that few found to be too impossible. It is the contemptible use of such methods as:

(1) The absolute denial of radios if either roommate has one or more D's and this after an installation fee of $3 was demanded.
(2) The demerit system.
(3) No visiting in other students' rooms.
(4) The removal of social privileges because of low scholarship—this includes loss of nights out desired for any reason, whether pertaining to the University or not.

This list could go on with many more trifling measures that are now in effect and which practically deny us the right to speak, move or act when we are in these dormitories. Dormitories were not built to contain cells and barred windows nor was this campus instituted for a concentration camp. The fine men who so unselfishly dedicated themselves to the purpose of providing for this University certainly would not wish to see their ideals and purposes shattered by such injustice.

As freshmen, we learned that "because we believe in Vermont, we bind ourselves to cherish as a precious heritage democracy and friendliness upon our campus." Democracy means practical and social equality.

The University of Vermont is no longer true to herself as long as she permits the breaking of her pledge. We among others no longer believe in this pledge and cannot while our administrative force cease to cherish her standards. This is the road to the narrowmindedness and bigotry for which this State is noted.

The Alpha Xi house was the scene of a prisoners' party Wednesday evening. Those attending were dressed in costumes suggested by the theme of the evening. The house was decorated accordingly and supper was served in fitting style. Later games and singing were enjoyed by everyone.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

On Tuesday evening, November 14, from 6.00 to 8.30 Tri-Delta held an informal party for freshman women.

Tuesday evening a kiddy party was held at the Tri-Delt house. The chapter members were dressed to represent Mother Goose characters. The freshmen were dressed as little girls and brought toy dogs. Games were played and refreshments of punch and gingerbread men were served. The members acted out a pantomime which was written by Jean Young '42.

In the early days at the University of Arkansas, carrying concealed weapons was such a common practice that the faculty found it necessary to make a special ruling to force the students to leave their shootin' irons at home.

Doctor C. H. Benedict Relates to Cynic Reporter His Experiences

This seems to be a banner year at U. V. M. for new instructors, and the latest of these to be interviewed for the CYNIC is Dr. C. H. Benedict, recent addition to the Latin department.

Many varied and interesting facts came out during this interview. In the first place, Doctor Benedict is a native New Yorker, having lived there most of his life and attended the Riverdale Country School (very deceiving in name but actually between New York City and Yonkers). From there he went to Princeton and graduated in the class of 1934, after which he did three years of graduate work, receiving his M.A. degree at the end of the first year. For the past two years he has been doing part-time teaching at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio, where he finished the requirements for the degree of Ph.D which he took at Princeton. Unfortunately, it rained on the day of the commencement exercises, which were held outdoors, and everybody's chair sank about six inches down into the mud. "It was a magnificent day," stated Doctor Benedict, drfly.

Turning from reminiscing to athletics, the new instructor professed a great fondness for football, and advanced one interesting viewcoint concerning the game as played here in Vermont—he questions the practice of "heckling" the opposing team in such an obvious manner as he has observed at games here. Also, he has noticed that particularly good plays made by the opposing team are seldom applauded (although plenty is said when the play isn't so good)! These two conditions are quite in contrast to that in other colleges where he has been.

Dr. Benedict was extremely emphatic about one thing—he does not like eight-o'clock classes on Wednesday morning, his chief reason being that he has to arise too early. However, he feels that this is more than compensated for by the fine Chapel service. He also is of the opinion that regular services should be held on Sundays, and that the choir and orchestra at the Vesper services are truly wonderful.

Faculty Bachelors Need Club

One thing more which he deplores here at U. V. M. is that there is no adequate provision made for bachelors; that is, no faculty club or even private house where the faculty might get meals without having to go clear home after them. He also feels that rooms in the boys' dorms where instructors might live would promote friendliness between student and instructor and enable them to become better acquainted.

Turning to the things of which he most approves about the College, Dr. Benedict immediately named Southwick Memorial, the Museum and the Chapel as his favorite buildings. He considers the Chapel to be the most beautiful he has ever seen; the Museum a fine building; and Southwick "a gem" as an educational and recreational center. Another thing which he has noted particularly is the democratic spirit of the faculty and their utter lack of "class feeling." In speaking of the vast difference between here and other places where he has been, he said, "Where I came from, if the wife of an instructor were placed next to the wife of a professor at a dinner, it would cause a scandal in town. Here, nobody seems to care."

One of Dr. Benedict's most memorable experiences occurred last April when he took the oral examination for his degree. He came from Cleveland to Princeton to take the exam, arriving only one day in advance. The next day he answered questions fired at him for three solid hours. At times the professors quarreled among themselves over the questions, and the head examiner suffered a mild heart attack during the exam. Dr. Benedict finally got back to Cleveland "tired but happy," but he will never forget this singular experience.

He Likes Swing Music

At this point in the interview, Dr. Benedict confessed one of his greatest secrets—he is a trap-drummer, and say he used to play "in the groove" quite a bit back home. (Unfortunately, he didn't bring his drum with him, a very regrettable fact.) This accomplishment makes him a lover of jazz bands to such an extent that he can't study when he hears one. He hastened to add, however, that he also appreciates the finer music and is not solely addicted to swing.

After this, the confessions followed thick and fast—he detests ice cream and organizations; enjoys swimming and boating; and doesn't often go to the movies but when he does, picks something light, like Westerns or the Marx Brothers (at Princeton he used to go every Saturday to see the serial, and frequently was accompanied by several children. Asked if he never tired of the "sameness" of Westerns and serials, Dr. Benedict replied seriously, "Oh no—the fellow never gets shot in quite the same place every time!").

Reading is an entirely different matter with him, however. He reads only the classics, and his favorite indoor sport is to sit before the fire, smoke his pipe, and read Herodotus. In fact, he stated positively that he intends to become an absentminded professor. Oh, and one more pet aversion—he detests being called "Professor." The reason he gives is this: "It implies that I'm getting more salary than I am." Which is a very good reason, indeed.

Shakespearean Troupe On Vermont Campus

On the afternoon and evening of November 13, James Hendrickson and Claire Bruce and their company in Shakespearean Repertoire, presented "The Merchant of Venice" and "Hamlet" at Southwick. It was a large audience that watched the curtain rise on both these plays. The scenery was simple but effective, the lighting arrangements playing a very important part in transporting the imagination to the proper point.

"The Merchant of Venice" left a satisfactory taste in the month—but "Hamlet!" It has been said that there are Hamlets and Hamlets, and I am inclined to believe there are. There is no doubt as to the ability of the leading man, but somehow, the character he portrayed did not ring true. Hamlet was a bit inclined to get what he had to say, said quickly, thereby leaving the audience three lines behind and hurrying to catch up. It was a race to the end and I still don't know who won. Polonius, played by Paul Egan, was as real as if he had stepped from the play's pages to give the audience a truly vivid portrayal of an enjoyably human character. One never thought of his being anything but an old man with his curling grey beard and tottering walk. The atmosphere of the whole play was unreal with the exception of the burial scene. The actors had not forgotten themselves entirely, in their haste to fill the rôles which they had acquired.

Perhaps one reason why Hamlet did not seem like Hamlet, was his wig. There is no reason why wigs shouldn't be worn, and in many plays they are very necessary. But this wig resembled no one else's in the play and might well have adorned a woman who had just come from the beauty parlor. Hamlet's last lines, hurried as usual, were not effective enough, and the curtain dropped, leaving the feeling that the play had an unfinished climax.

Actors Behind the Scenes

The house lights came on and I decided to go backstage. It was amazing the amount of work that was going on. The scenery was being removed, quickly and systematically. The actors, already in street clothes but still wearing their make-up, were rushing around with the stagehands, stacking artificial walls, collecting properties, and giving orders about packing them all in the truck outside.

It had been my main idea to talk to Mr. Hendrickson, but I soon changed my mind. If he hadn't looked the part on stage, he certainly did off stage. When I saw him walking toward me, I beat a hasty retreat and then and there decided to get my information elsewhere. I saw a young man coiling wire and asked him if he would give me the list of characters. I was amazed to find that I was talking to Polonius himself. Then Laertes arrived on the scene and offered his help. The company itself has seen its thirteenth season, but of course not all the actors have been playing that long. An actor's life is certainly a busy one. Sometimes they have a week's engagement—more often a one night's stand. They think nothing of packing up after a performance and going 200 miles to their next engagement.

The whole business made me stop and think. Here were individuals looking and acting like us, yet while they were acting on the stage I never had thought of them in that respect. Yes—the king certainly never had given a hint that he was the well-dressed young man that jumped off the stage and walked across the auditorium. They were actors in every sense of the word. Perhaps not as finished as some, but actors who believed in themselves and enjoyed the make-believe world that they created for their audiences.

New Rushing Rules at University of Illinois

Urbana, Ill. (IP)—The preferential rushing system, used by campus fraternities of the University of Illinois for the past two years, has been abolished by the interfraternity council.

At the same time, councilmen, acting upon the wishes of the members of their chapters, rejected proposals to permit rushees to reside in fraternity houses during rush week, and to reinstate the 2.00 to 5.00 p.m. rushing date, which was dropped with the advent of the preferential system.

The council tossed out the preferential system in adopting a new set of rushing and pledging rules for 1939-40. Proponents of the move to abolish preferential pledging blamed the system as partly responsible for the decrease in the number of pledges last fall, and maintained that the change will make rushing procedures much more simplified.

It is provided that "a rushee must keep all dates during the rushing and pledging periods until he is pledged unless he obtains a written release from the fraternity in question, said release to be signed by the president of the fraternity. Fraternities may pledge a rushee only during a regularly scheduled pledging date with that rushee."

"Vogue" Announces Fifth Prix de Paris

Vogue's Fifth Prix de Paris contest is being run again this year. Senior women who are interested in fashion and feature writing are eligible to enter the contest.

Each entrant must be a member of the class of 1940 in a U. S. college or university which grants a recognized A.B. or B.S. degree. Entrance blanks must be mailed immediately or with the answers to the first quiz, not later than November 20. The contest will consist of two parts: first, a series of four quizzes to be answered by all entrants; second, a thesis which only those entrants who receive passing marks on the four quizzes are eligible to submit. Each quiz will consist of at least eight questions from which the entrant may select four to answer. Out of these questions, four will be based on fashion features, and four on Vanity Fair features such as art, music, literature, theatre.

Papers will be graded on four main points: clear and vivid writing, dramatic presentation of ideas, fashion knowledge derived from a study of Vogue and general information. Subjects for the thesis will be announced April 1. Theses must not exceed 1,500 words and are due the first of May, 1940. The judges of the contest will be the editors of Vogue.

Since 1936, women from Albion College, Bryn Mawr, Smith, Radcliffe, Varsar, Northwestern and U. of Wisconsin have won first and second awards in this nationally famous contest.

U. OF TEXAS DEVELOPS "MULTIHARMONOGRAPH"

Austin, Tex.—(I.P.)—Developed this year at the University of Texas was a one-ton fifteen-foot machine that performs 61 mathematical operations at once and solves high degree equations which would require an expert computer a month to put on paper. Its inventor, Dr. S. L. Brown, chairman of the University's Physics department, says the machine—a "multiharmonograph"—operates on electric wave impulses.

Portuguese has been added to the long list of foreign languages taught at the University of Texas.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"In America we talk much about democracy, but I am convinced that unless we give our students practice in democratic self-government through the management of their own affairs in college, they cannot be expected to practice democracy when they take their places in the community." Hamilton College's President Cowley urges U. S. higher education to promote the teaching of the nature of leadership.

"Upon us in America is laid the solemn duty of trusteeship for the old ideals of scholarship, freedom of teaching and of learning, freedom of thought and of speech, not that our institutions shall disintegrate before the sandblast of propaganda from the communist and the totalitarian, but that it shall stand strong and firm and shine out more brilliantly than before." Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar College, urges the maintenance of the "pure wells of truth."

"The time has come when we must give thought to men's hearts and not confine our considerations so exclusively to men's minds. We have been altogether too little concerned with our knowledge of men, altogether too complacent with the development of things for men to use and altogether too little concerned with the spirit in which men use them." Brown University's Dr. James Pickwell Adams points to new fields for higher education.

methods of judging. Seventy percent of the judging will emphasize the originality of thought, reasoning powers, and ability to use material outside of textbooks. Fifteen percent is to be based on the organization, or logical development of the paper. Above all, sources of data must be clearly indicated. Another fifteen percent will be counted on ability to use good and clear English.

Those seriously interested in the contest will certainly wish to study the rules further. They will be able to find the bulletin either in the CYNIC office or on the board outside of the Dean's office in the Old Mill.

A special course in the Russian language and literature has been added to the Cornell University curriculum.

Cats Meet Middlebury in Season's Finale

Middlebury Lineup Veteran, Six Seniors; Jacques to Start in Line; Paterson Replaces Pye; Strassburg Back in Linup

With the season's "money" game with Middlebury a day away, Vermont Coach Johnny Sabo is working hard in an effort to have his tiny squad at top form.

Troubled by injuries all year, Sabo was dealt his worst blow at Norwich last week when Bill Pye, captain and end, wrenched his knee and was lost for further service. Sophomore Dick Paterson will start in Pye's place. Paterson, who saw abundant action in the earlier games, is a capable wing, but he and John (Whizzer) White are the only experienced ends who are sound.. Another sophomore, Red White, is available, but he is an untried quantity.

Sabo's five backs, Johnny Spasyk, Frankie Taylor, Al Shaw, George Corsones, and George Broutsas, are ready to go. Spasyk will be in at quarter and do the punting, Taylor and Broutsas will play the halves, and Shaw will start at full. Corsones, rotund little blocker, is likely to see action.

NORM STRASSBURG

Coach Ben Beck's Panthers will present a starting line-up that contains six seniors. Heading this outgoing contingent is Capt. Jack Stabile, vaunted center. Four of the remaining five are also linemen. They are guards, Art Jacques and Pat Vartuli; tackle, Al Profy; and end, Adam Tupka. Johnny Mahoney, passing back who starred in Middlebury's upset of the Cats a year ago, is the sixth departer.

Jacques will be in condition for the first time since Middlebury's opener against Williams, when he was injured. The veteran guard was missed especially for his valuable punting. Jack Johnson and Johnny Zudick, backs, have been handling the kicking chores.

Lining up behind quarterback Mahoney in the backfield are Johnson, Zydick, and the burly sophomore full back, Tony Wishinski, who was converted from center at the outset of the season.

The Middlebury squad arrives in Burlington tomorrow morning. The greater part of the Panther student body is expected to attend the game.

SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE REBUILD AT U. S. C.

Los Angeles, Calif. (IP)—With the breaking of ground on the University of Southern California campus for the new school of architecture and fine arts as well as the Fisher art gallery, campus projects now under construction and planned will value approximately $1,000,000, according to university officials.

The new buildings will be built around a series of three patios, the adjoining Romanesque structures will be two stories in part.

The fine arts building, given by Mrs. John W. Harris, will include an auditorium seating 225 persons, air-conditioned lecture rooms, library and units for departments of ceramics, drafting, sculpture, and decorative arts. The $180,000 structure is expected to be completed for use in the fall semester.

Featured in the $50,000 art gallery, a gift of Mrs. Walter Harrison Fisher, will be exhibition rooms to include her own private collection of rare masterpieces.

Completion of the first wing on the campus of the Hancock Foundation for Scientific Research, now permits work to begin on the unit for laboratories, auditorium, and scientific sections of the $500,000 structure, a gift of Capt. Allan Hancock.

Plans are also underway for the $100,000 college of engineering building together with equipment for the new campus structures.

Cross-Country Teams In Dual Meet

Varsity and Frosh Face Middlebury Teams

Terminating a highly successful season, the varsity and freshman cross-country teams run their last scheduled meet tomorrow when they face the Panther varsity and freshman teams from Middlebury. On comparing the records of the two teams we find that Vermont has a decided edge over their opponents and if the Catamounts are careful Middlebury will continue its season of no victories for either team.

Tomorrow's meet marks the last cross-country competition for four senior sod plodders: Capt. Harry Ketcham, George Noonan, John Brousseau and John Rogers. Capt. Harry Ketcham has been running cross-country for four years; George Noonan was kept out of the running last year because of illness but ran the other three years; John Brousseau has run for two years; and John Rogers has run for four years. Besides these retiring varsity veterans Coach Post will use Frank Livak, Willson, Palmer, the Webster brothers, Jack Burgess, Moran, Dick Otis and Dick Clark.

Like the varsity team, the U. V. M. frosh face a Middlebury team that has not won a meet this year. The Panther cubs have had their ears boxed by Dartmouth freshmen, McGill and Randolph. Their older kin have been taken in tow by Williams, Dartmouth, McGill and Union. It will be remembered that Williams, Randolph and Union came out second when they faced the Vermont teams.

The freshmen to run for Vermont tomorrow are as follows: Hoyt, St. Mary, Buttles, West, Crown, Ladd, White, Zwick, Fisk, Blanchard, Corliss, Howe, Pond, Story and Sutton. St. Mary has just returned to active duty following a foot injury. He, Hoyt and Buttles have turned in the best freshman times so far.

What ordinarily would be a sure victory for the Catamounts and Kittens appears not so positive just now. Hearing that the Middlebury teams have won no meets this year, the Vermont lads have relaxed their faithful training this week and it is feared that over-confidence might slow down the U. V. M. runners. Coach Post says, "I hope that my boys will give their best Saturday, regardless of reports concerning the Middlebury teams." Saturday's meet is the key race of the season.

Anything Can Happen Here

A year ago tomorrow a highly-touted University of Vermont football team trotted out onto the turf at Porter Field in Middlebury and amid the startled dropping aghast of many lower jaws was unbelievably defeated by a supposedly inferior Panther club. Tomorrow the situation will be different. No longer is Vermont the favorite. Not that it matters particularly. John Kieran will probably select Middlebury over Vermont in tomorrow's New York Times. Many other people knowing somewhat more about the football situation up here than the estimable Mr. Kieran will choose Middlebury also. People who saw Middlebury defeat Norwich 12-0 and who witnessed also Vermont's successful holding of Norwich to a scoreless tie last Saturday say that Middlebury will win. Which proves nothing. Recognizing the paper superiority of the Panthers we are still reticent to name them as the probable winners. Football is a very queer game. There are too many factors that must be considered. There is the physical fitness of the teams and also reserve strength. There is the knowledge and execution of fundamentals and also strategy. But perhaps above all these one factor towers—the human angle. And it is this human angle which has always been the keynote of this ancient rivalry. Many times in the past the favorite in this annual battle has been crushed in defeat. It happened last year. It almost happened the year before, when a vastly superior Middlebury team just barely eked out a 7-6 victory. It can happen again tomorrow. True, Vermont has few reserves, although the few it has are very capable. True, Captain Bill Pye will see little action if any. True, the Vermont club is riddled by injuries. True, blocking has been so poor that Frankie Taylor has been shot into the open only a very few times this year. True, Vermont has only five backfield men on the squad. Before any other game, any of these detriments might be sufficient cause for selecting the opposition. But never before a Middlebury game. The majority of the men playing tomorrow participated in that disastrous fall afternoon at Middlebury last year and those men can imagine nothing tastier than tucking a Middlebury scalp under their belts. Much can happen. Georgie Corsones, when finally given a chance against Norwich last Saturday proved himself an exceptional blocker and it is this type of blocking which will shake Frankie Taylor free and once our Mr. Taylor is free he just runs and runs and very rapidly, too. In Johnny Spasyk, we can boast an outstanding field general and punter and many's the game that has been won by virtue of the work of one gentleman's talented toe. The line is somewhat of a question mark. At the beginning of the year, back in the days when Vermont defeated Amherst, the Catamount forward wall was a veritable fortress. Since then, however, injuries have softened up some of the mortar and whether or not the old mortar has regained sufficient strength or the new mortar is experienced enough to withstand the Midd attack is a debatable problem. But it is just one of the problems that will be decided tomorrow.

Will Johnny Sabo's 18 men and a prayer have sufficient lasting power to win? Will Frankie Taylor break loose? Will Vermont get its second Midd scalp since 1929? Will there be a ball game? The last question is the only one we can safely answer. Yes, no matter who wins, it will be a battle. All we can do is hope and pray and remember the Praying Colonels of Centre College who once upon a time defeated a mighty Harvard team. Football is an awful funny game. Anything can happen. Vermont can win.

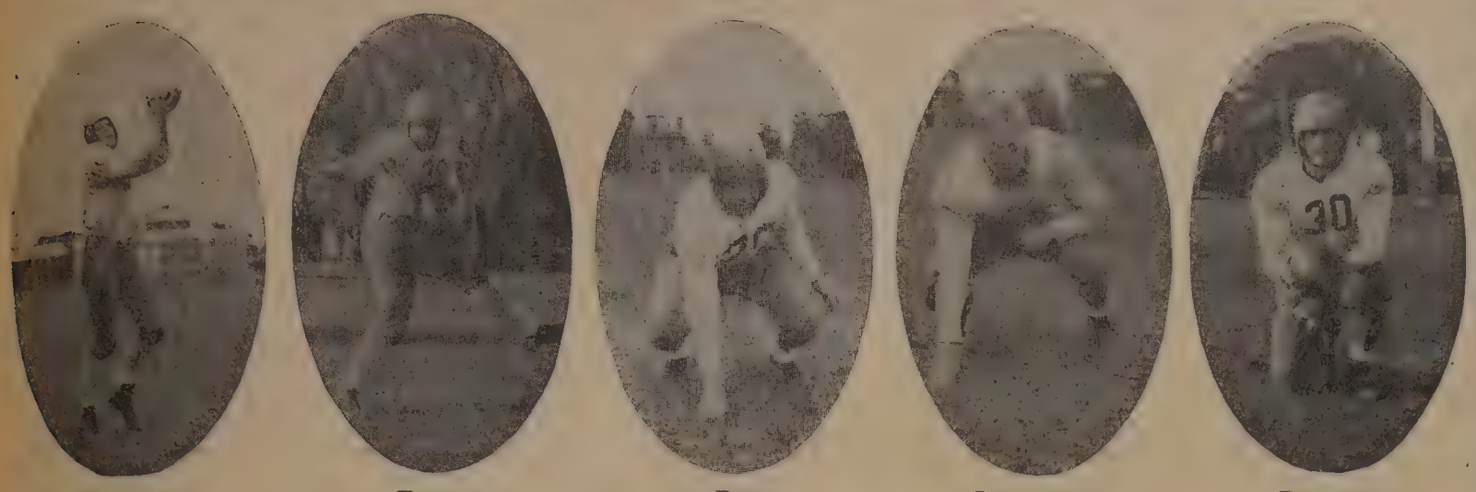
DR. RUTHVEN ATTACKS PRESENT FOOTBALL SYSTEM

Ann Arbor, Mich. (I.P.)—"To a ridiculous extent football has degenerated, in American colleges, from an interesting game for young people into an extravagant spectacle, from a means of inculcating ideas of team play and good sportsmanship into an absurdly competitive sport about which tends to spring up all the evils characteristic of professional competition among those whose sole desire is to win," declared Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan, in his annual report.



"If football cannot be given back to the students and to the instructors who use the game for educational purposes, it had better be abolished before it contaminates other sports which up to the present have not developed the evils now so apparent in football. Our colleges and universities cannot afford to become anything but educational institutions, and they should leave overemphasized competition in sports to the promoters of racing, prize fights, and other professional sports.

"No worthwhile advantages will ever accrue to any school which depends upon the success of a group of boys to win games," Dr. Ruthven stated.

Twelve special students have been selected to take every course offered at Oglethorpe University. It'll take each one six years to complete the task.

Survey Shows Times Have Changed for Co-eds

Times have changed for co-eds on the University of Vermont campus, as elsewhere. The difference between now and thirty years ago shows up plainly when one considers the matter of women students attending the Norwich football game—any football game, for that matter. In 1908 a group of co-eds on the Vermont campus were restrained from going to a Norwich-Vermont football game. College men of the time, writing letters to the CYNIC, were of two minds, one side feeling that an injustice had been done, while others took the stand that girls at a football game would have been incongruous. Their opponents, who didn't have co-education, would have had the chance to make fun of them.

This Saturday, girls went along to Norwich as a matter of course. The most surprised people if they did not would be the men. This appeared earlier in the fall when two hundred University of Vermont girls received invitations to attend a football game and dance at Norwich. They went, even though University of Vermont men also had dances planned, and their going left a vacancy which caused indignant repercussions from the men. They didn't stop the girls, however, who reported a wonderful time.

Co-eds Admitted to Kinds of Schools

The Vermont co-ed of today, like her sisters all over the nation, can enter any of the colleges on the Vermont campus—women students have graduated from agriculture, engineering, and medicine. Girls were first admitted to medicine at Vermont in 1920. The school paper shows that even then there were skeptics who felt that girls didn't have the reasoning faculties needed to become doctors. Nineteen years in which most medical graduating classes have had women members have pretty well settled the question.

Girls work on the newspaper, a woman has edited the junior yearbook, the Ariel, up to 1936 exclusively a man's job, and girls figure on the business staff of the newspaper, where they made their entry as recently as three years ago. Girls outnumber men on the staff of the newspaper.

Women first came to the University of Vermont in 1872, and in 1875, the University was the first institution in the United States to admit women to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity. Since then, women have been included in the membership almost every year.

This fall, the only complaint the men of the University of Vermont had to make was that the co-eds didn't stay on their own campus and go to the dance with them instead of their Norwich contemporaries.

Coeducation, which even its most ardent male champion in 1908 admitted might not last, is apparently here to stay.

Quotable Quotes

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"Our education is tied to our society. It must take account of the student's need for a job, and therewith a place in the community. It must take account, too, of his hunger for meaning and for beauty, of his desire, so to speak, to find a place for himself in the universe. Perhaps education will always proceed from battle to battle, from compromise to compromise. Periodically it needs to be rescued from dullness and dogmatism." A New York Times editorialist aptly states the ends of all education.

WISCONSIN MEMORIAL TO WAR DEAD ENLARGED

Madison, Wis.—(I.P.)—War in Europe reminds Wisconsin graduates once again of the memorial to the State University's own soldier dead, the Memorial Union, meeting, eating, and activities crossroads for 7,000 students a day during the school year.

Long over-crowded, the Memorial Union is extended this season by a new $950,000 wing, paid for by alumni subscriptions and a $266,000 PWA grant. The new addition houses the Wisconsin Union theater, a smaller laboratory theater, workshops for theater and many other activities, meeting rooms for student groups, Camera club and Hoofer units, bowling alleys, game rooms, theater dressing rooms, and many other new conveniences.

Important Report on Education Published

Minneapolis, Minn. (ACP)—Schools in which teachers allow the students to set the pace, "give them what they want" and those in which a highly centralized government teaches only what it wants the students to know, "totalitarianism," were equally condemned in a post-mortem paper by Dr. Lotus D. Coffman, late president of the University of Minnesota, just released.

He had written it before his death as the introduction to his biennial report, during which he was still president of the university.

Education for freedom, he said, can come neither from allowing students to control nor from centralized propaganda.

"Freedom does not exist in general, or in the abstract," he wrote. "It is a matter of growth within the individual and represents a conquest over instincts, inheritances, and maladjustments of all kinds. The ability to exercise freedom comes with maturity, and experience, and learning. Freedom is relative to circumstances and conditions; it does not exist in the absolute, or in a vacuum. Freedom must be earned, and the price is self-discipline.

"In education, as elsewhere, freedom is not a right, but a privilege to be earned. The real meaning of freedom will be lost for youth if they are not taught, or do not learn, the importance of social and personal obligations. Desire for expression must be tempered by a recognition of duty and responsibility. Human lives are enriched and freed only as they share in the larger social values of the world about them. Education will make its largest contribution to a free society only when there is a proper recognition of responsibility."

He said that a liberal education does not result from the study of any one subject, but may flow from any, adding: "The education I am describing—and the type of mind that is its choicest by-product—cannot thrive where there is regimentation or where students in the name of self-expression determine the programs and processes of education. The essence of democracy is an enlightened give and take. This likewise, is the essence of a liberal education."

Of the 1,500 different types of positions for which the U. S. civil service commission offers examinations, only approximately 200 require a college degree or its equivalent.

My Impression of Vermont School Spirit

By HYMAN GINSBURG '43

A typical small eastern university is the University of Vermont. Here one finds what is known as the "ivy-clad" college. This is true here only in matters of tradition and physical features as Vermont is one of the few old schools which has taken the leadership in promoting ideals of liberalism. Besides a competent faculty and a high scholastic rating, Vermont is situated on a beautiful campus in an ideal college city.

In view of these facts and many others of like nature the Vermont student should feel proud to be a member of a great university. Therefore, he should give vent to his feelings by showing what is commonly known as "school spirit." This should be found at all athletic contests and school functions. The spirit should even permeate into the classroom.

Unfortunately, this is sadly lacking at Vermont. It is shown most clearly at the football games where the rooting has not been up to par. In order to have whole-hearted "school spirit" the members of a university must be joined in friendship. Here at the University the bonds of friendship could well be tightened, thus paving the way for everyone to cooperate in the matter of "school spirit."

Therefore, everyone, both student and faculty, should get behind the members of the honorary societies and other leaders on the campus to give more impetus to the campaign for the revival of "school spirit." In this way we can truly take strides towards making Vermont a better and more pleasant university in which to study.

Collegiate Opinion Split Over U. S. Peace Plea

Despite the fact that most all lauded the statesmanship of President Roosevelt in addressing his plea for peace to the dictator-controlled nations, collegiate opinion was divided on the effectiveness of the latest United States move to bring order out of the European chaos.

Chief criticism of the fault-finders was that the message to Hitler and Mussolini throws the United States into a battle of words that is not our concern. This side of the question was ably upheld by the Villanova College Villanovan, which said: "Isn't it natural that the dictators viewed this plea with misgivings? They certainly perceived an inconsistency of views in the attitude taken by Mr. Roosevelt. We hope that in the future the heads of our governments will refrain from making rash statements that will jeopardize the intrinsic value of noteworthy appeals made in good faith. First and last they should remember that if democracy is to be safeguarded, let us protect it here, not in European battlefields."

Majority in Favor of the Appeal

However, in a majority were the comments in favor of the President's appeal. The Rollins College Sandspur summarized the position of the supporters of the President in this fashion: "Roosevelt has taken a momentous step in attempting to force the hands of the dictators. Although it may fail, such an attempt is better than for the most powerful nation on earth to adopt a philosophy of futility toward a world war. Every protest against domination by force will swell the tide of world opinion for peace."

The Grinnell College Scarlet and Black called on collegians to sport the President: "He did not blunder when he called upon the dictators of Europe to make peace for at least ten years while the world's problems could be worked out around conference tables. Youth, college and otherwise, all over the world should thank Roosevelt for that appeal. It is youth who will march off to some battlefield in the next weeks, if some such thing as the Roosevelt proposal is not accepted soon."

The University of Illinois is constructing new campus buildings at a cost of $3,400,000.

More Than Personality Alone Needed for a Job

Amherst, Mass.—(I.P.)—"The day of the 'personality-plus' man is over" Clyde W. Dow, speech instructor at Massachusetts State College, said in outlining requirements for success in job hunting. "Those individuals who high-pressured themselves into almost any job are finding that they must have something more than wind these days," he added.

An equal blend of personality and ability was advocated by Dow as a necessary requirement for 1939's crop of college graduates who want jobs. Dow cited the example of one student who obtained numerous interviews by letter, proclaiming in each that she was "vitally interested" in the work. During the interviews, however, she showed no knowledge of the work or interest in the firms. "Consequently she is still writing letters," he said.

"In contrast to the fast-talking, big-smiling type, there are the thousands of high ability men walking around jobless not only because of economic conditions but partly because they lack the personality requirements demanded by employers," he pointed out. Some personality requirements listed include the ability to get along with other people being a favorable representative of the firm, ability to "fit in," and an earnest desire to learn.

To avoid falling into either category, Dow declared, college students should devote time to both their studies and the development of an interesting personality. "Many colleges offer courses in personality development through effective speaking. Such well-balanced programs tend to develop the type of man who 'gets the job'—a man who can back up his personality with real ability."

The World Front

Last issue we did considerable theorizing on the possible consequences of Hitler's death and came to the conclusion that revolt would have been very unlikely even granting that he had perished in the tardy explosion of a week ago. In connection with this we have been interested in noting the various opinions of authorities in the New York Times and elsewhere on the subject. Somewhere in our reading we came across an article that pointed out the fact that this bombing could have been planned only by a German. This is interesting in that it sheds further light on the question now under discussion.

The writer of the article pointed out that the planner must have had considerable knowledge of Hitler's movements and also had access to the building where the bomb was planted. The question that naturally arises then is: If the German people are so solidly behind Hitler, why such an attempted assassination? The answer is: In a government where all opposition is ruthlessly suppressed and only one side is heard, things are bound to come to a boil. Let us look into the matter a little further.

Since its coming to power the Nazi government has made no bones about stilling all voices of opposition; as in Italy and Russia, opposition parties have lost their say. This, of course, has created an undercurrent of discontent. When people who have something to say are allowed to air their opinions, usually the air is cleared and the opinions, good or bad, have little effect. But the mere fact that the aggrieved person has got what bothered him off his chest tends to clear the atmosphere. On the other hand, if you suppress that person and do not allow him to talk, he goes around acting like a martyr and people begin to think there is something in what he says. Germany finds herself in that condition today. There is a small minority of people who are violently opposed to the government. Among them may be found the would-be bomber. These people form a nucleus of revolt in Germany that may go on growing until it destroys its oppressors like a snowball gathering momentum and power by rolling. Thus we see that while the Hitler regime has been able to paralyze the minds of the people into dumb obedience, it has not been able to extinguish all the sparks. Is it not possible that those sparks will ignite a larger blaze in the future when the people wake up to the real nature of their rulers? We are tempted to quote: Sic semper tyrannis.

Turning to the Bear

Before we close we should like to turn to the Russian Bear and ask: Whither Russia? By his recent speeches Molotov seems to have renounced the idea of aiding Germany in a military way. Any military aid to Germany now would brand the Russians as supreme hypocrites. Again we feel tempted to state positively that Russia will not run this risk. It seems clearer than ever now that Russia in all her recent actions was merely strengthening her position in Europe. It seems almost evident that Russia feared either the rising power of Germany and moved to block it in the East and Baltic or else she feared a capitalist war against her led by Great Britain and France. In either case we must look at the situation realistically and realize that diplomatically Russia has been governed in the main by a desire for security and strength of position. One can hardly blame her for taking her opportunities as they came up. From a standpoint of idealism and morals she may be condemned, but from the standpoint of skillful "realpolitik" we must recognize her ability.

We know that we may be subject to a hearty attack on these grounds, but we stand pat, trusting that our fortifications are strong enough to weather the storm. After all, in theorizing we have one consolation—everybody's doing it. It's every man for himself and your opinion is as good as mine (at least in the United States).

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP TO HOLD VOCATIONAL TALK

"Special Fitness" is to be the topic under our vocation discussion for this month. The meeting will be held in the Parish House of the First Church at 7.30 on November 19. One of the group, Doris Kinsley '40, is to be the speaker. Following the speaker and discussion will come refreshments and a social hour.

Quotable Quotes

(Associated Collegiate Press)

"Scholarly work is by no means confined to studying; it necessarily includes writing. Knowledge isolated in a scholar's mind is useless unless it is disseminated. The only way that dissemination may be accomplished is through the use of language, and the student must therefore know how to use English idiomatically and correctly." Columbia University's Dr. C. J. H. Hayes urges Ph.D.'s to take more English so they can write better reports and theses.

A. S. M. E. Notes

At the November 10 meeting of the A. S. M. E., Louis Zambon '40 gave a talk on "Oil Field Experiences in Illinois and Kentucky." He gained this experience from a summer job he had after his sophomore year. While there he worked on various jobs which he described and gave many interesting sidelights on the country and its people. After the talk a short period of discussion was held during which Zambon answered questions concerning his work and about the girls in the states he worked.

This Friday's meeting will be an inspection trip, the destination to be announced later in the week.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN COLLEGIATE ORGANIZATIONS

(Associated Collegiate Press)

Always important in indicating the trend of college thought is a survey of the latest developments in student organizations. During the past month three new groups have been formed that forcefully demonstrate the results of the various campaigns that have been carried on in the collegiate and the professional press.

At the University of Minnesota, students have formed two clubs for the promotion of Americanism. The Constitution Club and the American Club both will campaign for democracy and the freedoms and rights guaranteed in the United States constitution.

At Villanova College, students have organized laymen and clergy into a Legion of Justice to promote the ideal "living wage." Members will not purchase goods they know to be sweat shop and non-union made articles.

There's

No Great Mystery

about Cigarette Tobaccos

THERE ARE FOUR TYPES of tobaccos found in the more popular cigarettes, namely... Bright, Maryland, Burley and Turkish.

ALL THESE TOBACCOS except Turkish (which is bought direct from the planters in Turkey and Greece) and Maryland (which is bought through sealed bids under government supervision) are bought at public auction, just like any other auction where you might have bought in a table or a chair.

AT THE AUCTION SALE the tobacco is piled in baskets weighing from about 100 to 500 pounds and each purchaser buys all of his tobaccos by competitive bidding for the particular piles he wants.

THE CHESTERFIELD BUYERS buy the best of these mild ripe tobaccos for the Chesterfield blend. And it is Chesterfield's Combination... the right amounts of Burley and Bright... just enough Maryland... and just enough Turkish—that makes the big difference between Chesterfield and other cigarettes.

IT IS BECAUSE of this combination that Chesterfields are COOLER, have a BETTER TASTE and are DEFINITELY MILDER. They are made of the world's best cigarette tobaccos. You can't buy a better cigarette.

Exiled Historian To Speak Thurs.

Noted Lecturer of University of London

"The Causes of the Present European War" will be the subject of the University lecture on Thursday, November 23, at Southwick Memorial at 8:00 p. m. The lecturer is the famous and scholarly German historian, Professor R. M. F. Veit Valentin of the University of London. An Aryan Protestant of a distinguished Huguenot family, Professor Valentin because of his liberal political views was forced to leave Germany in 1933 when Hitler and the Nazis came into power. He then became a naturalized British citizen and has been lecturer at University College, University of London, since 1933.

Prior to his enforced exile he was a member of the faculty of the University of Freiburg, and was on the staff of the German Foreign Office during the first "Great War." Later he became conected with the Berlin School of Economics, and was head of the research department of the Reichsarchiv at Potsdam. He also collaborated actively with various Liberal journals and anti-militaristic societies, and is the author of several works relating to history, politics, and German foreign policy.

The public is invited to attend this lecture.

Final Parties Before Pledging This Week

This week final rushing parties will be held by the sororities with the exception of Sigma Gamma and Delta Phi Epsilon, which held theirs last week.

Delta Phi Epsilon gave a "football" party at the Hotel Van Ness, Wednesday, November 15. Eleanor Brody '40 welcomed the guests, who were seated at a long table decorated with footballs and miniature candy players. Miriam Rubin '41 was in charge of the evening.

On Friday, November 17, Sigma Gamma gave a formal dinner party at the Park Café, where the tables were festooned with evergreen boughs and pumpkins. Helen Reed '40 made a short speech of welcome.

The other sororities on campus are entertaining this week in the following order:

Kappa Alpha Theta, Tuesday night.
Delta Delta Delta, Wednesday night.
Pi Beta Phi, Thursday night.
Alpha Xi Delta, Friday night.
Alpha Chi Omega, Saturday night.

Peppiest Rally Yet Last Friday Night

The "U. V. M. Hobos" turned out in grand style for the "Beat Middlebury" pep rally held at the cage Friday night. Feeling ran high among the tattered and torn Vermont students, each dressed according to his own idea of a hobo.

The band struck up and presently "The Biggest Bum of Them All"—Hitler, made his appearance and was greeted by cries of "Heil Hitler" from the appreciative audience.

In charge was D. W. Maley '41, who greeted the crowd and introduced Coach Sabo and W. I. Pye '41, who spoke a few words about the game Saturday. Prof. D. B. Carroll also talked. A couple of letters were read, one from Professor Butterfield, who regretted not being able to be there, the other from the Middlebury Student Council stating that no damage or marking of property was to be done by either school and that there was to be no show of poor sportsmanship in any way on the part of either. As usual, cigarettes were thrown to the spirited throng.

STUDENT UNION RE-EXAMINATION

A re-examination on the Student Union rules for those who were unable to take the test given earlier in the fall was held in the Williams Science Hall Friday, November 17, at 4:30 p. m. Then, for the benefit of those who were likewise unable to take this exam, a second re-examination was held yesterday, November 20, in the Y-room.

Education Class Visits Police Court

The senior education classes, enrolled in what is otherwise known as Education 9, have taken several field trips since the beginning of college. This course is one in "Tests and Measurements," concerned chiefly with the study of the uses made of quotient and intelligence tests in various districts. These classes headed by Miss Holbrook, assistant professor of education, have made a varied study of intelligence in the child, and the deficiencies resulting from low I.Q.'s.

On one trip the group went to Vergennes to visit the Weeks school, which is a reformatory for boys. Here they learned the importance these tests have in judging a boy's intelligence and aiding in his improvement. It was found that a large percentage had low I.Q.'s, and that home environment had been an important factor in placing those boys in their present surroundings.

Then Miss Holbrook took her classes to the police station to show them how these tests are employed in the courts. Chief Thalacker, head of the Burlington Police department, is very interested in delinquency. He pointed out several case histories, and lectured to the group on that subject.

Bad Environment Big Drawback

The big problem of these juvenile courts are boys. Here again Chief Thalacker was reassuring that a poor home environment was in most cases the answer to many wrongdoings. He went on to stress the importance that school life and activities play in developing the minds of youth. The schools today have a greater responsibility than ever before in keeping morals high and developing character in a beneficial way.

Boys are almost a hobby with Chief Thalacker. He is intensely interested in their well being, and is eager to start a Boys' Club along with the Big Brother system. There is nothing like creating a healthy atmosphere for boys who would otherwise wander the streets and fall into bad habits. As for the Big Brother system, Chief Thalacker is hoping that some of the boys of the University will respond and volunteer their services to help make this plan a success. The same sort of thing is being developed in other cities, and in New Haven Yale students are working under the same system.

We wish Chief Thalacker every success in his present program. Here is a chance for you college fellows to get behind and push. Give these unfortunate boys a straightforward chance with life. Perhaps among them will be some of the great men of tomorrow.

DORIS KINSLEY SPEAKS AT PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP

Doris Kinsley '40 spoke last night at the Young People's meeting. Her topic was "Special Fitness," one talk in a group of vocational talks, and a general discussion followed. Refreshments were served and the usual social hour enjoyed.

The meeting was held in the Parish House of the First Congregational Church at 7.30. Jean Stuart, president, presided. The arrangement of the program has been changed since first announced because of joining another group one week.

Personality Consultant Visits U. V. M. Campus

Miss Osborne Discusses Problems of Charm and Poise

Miss Elizabeth Osborne, consultant on charm and personality, is a guest on our campus for yesterday, today and tomorrow. Miss Osborne has been here for several years speaking to various groups and having personal conferences with individuals or small groups desiring this privilege. For several years it has been her business to travel from campus to campus giving lectures on charm and personality and has acquired much knowledge which she is very willing to pass on to anyone whom it might help.

Last evening there was a lecture at Southwick which all freshmen and transfers were expected to attend. At this time, Miss Osborne gave the girls many tips on improving their charm and personality. Throughout yesterday and today she has been having personal conferences to help girls with their individual problems.

Tonight at Southwick Miss Osborne will hold a second meeting on personality under the auspices of the Sophomore Aides. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Hoboes Overrun Vermont Campus

Boulder gave us an opportunity to show a little spirit by thinking up "Hobo Day" and we certainly came through, if anything can be proved by all the get-ups seen flitting about the campus. An important part of a real hobo is his treasured pack containing all of his worldly possessions; in one pack we found an alarm clock, onions, books and other such important articles necessary for living. Did I include books? Pardon me! Near the Coffee Corner we ran into—take that literally please—a huddle of men, each with a stub of a cigar, perhaps about an inch long, planted in one corner of his mouth. Derbys were popular with both male and female as were feathers on cock-eyed hats. It certainly was a great surprise to see all those smoothies with at least a quarter of an inch, if not the whole inch, of growth of beard on their ruddy visages. As everyone knows, women like slacks and at last they got their chance to wear them; the majority of women were sporting in them, to their uttermost joy.

Winding up "Hobo Day" in the evening with the greatest pep rally yet, we felt that U. V. M. has finally arrived. The "peppiest of the peppy," Joyce Bone '42 was crowned "Pep Queen" by Don Maley '41, chairman of the rally. Miss Bone ruled from her throne throughout the rally, when she wasn't leading cheers. Bright colors galore, slippers and moccasins were only a small part of that colorful pep rally. "The biggest bum of all" (can't you guess?) was Hitler, or an almost too perfect image of that illustrious character. Talks were given by Professor Butterfield, Coach Sabo, Don Maley '41 and Bill Pye '41 concerning the rally and the game, which is the most important. Ending with a snake dance led by the band downtown, the "pep" was brought to an even higher pitch per usual. What a day! Why can't we enjoy "Hobo Day" annually?

Debating Teams Honored at Banquet

On Wednesday evening, November 15, twenty-four members of the men's and women's varsity debating teams and of Tau Kappa Alpha, national forensic honorary society, were present at an banquet sponsored by Tau Kappa Alpha at Oakledge Coffee Shop.

Keys and certificates of membership to Tau Kappa Alpha were presented to A. Becker '41, T. Huntley '41, H. Durfee '41, Mary Nelson, '40, Bertha Berkowitz '39, and Lucia Thorington '38.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of A. Becker '41, manager of the men's team, and Gertrude Johnstone '40, manager of the women's team.

Mr. Powers presided as toastmaster for the evening.

The banquet was followed by an impromptu debate between members of the faculty and medical students. Professors Dean Woodward, and Youngert took the negative against medical students W. Glass '43, R. Likovsky '42, and F. Timmerman '40 on 'Resolved: 'Tis better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all."

Y. W. C. A. Food Sale To Be Held Nov. 25

A food sale will be conducted by the Y. W. C. A. Saturday afternoon, November 25, from 2 to 5 o'clock at Verret's on Church street. The faculty and interested town's people are donating a large assortment of pies, cakes, cookies, doughnuts, rolls, fancy breads, baked beans, jellies and pickles which will be sold at reasonable prices. It is possible to order ahead by contacting Florence Wade '40, or any member of the Y Cabinet if there is anything anyone especially wants to plan on getting. Prices are all planned so that they are in the range of even the college student's buying.

REVISED EMILY POST EDITION AT SOUTHWICK

The members of the 1940 Mortar Board have added the revised edition of Emily Post's "Blue Book of Social Usage" to the library at Southwick.

This library was founded by the Mortar Board of 1937 in memory of Miss Marian Patterson who was formerly dean of women here. Each year the members of Mortar Board select a few books to add to the number there.

Six members of Scribes attended the meeting at Miss Storms' house last Thursday. Four of the members read literary pieces of their own. Georginia Greene '42 read poems, Phyllis Lake '42, essays, Doris Jareckie '42, a short story and a poem written by Flora Fifield '42, and Betty Chaffee '42 read her short story.

Spasyk Scores Touchdown Immediately; Team Shows Accuracy and Spirit

The thirty-ninth game of the series played last Saturday left no doubt in the spectators' minds that a determined seventeen-man squad could rise to the heights in spite of its mediocre record. Winning in the first two minutes, an underdog Vermont eleven routed the surprised Middlebury Panthers by the convincing margin of 21-0.

Almost without question the most brilliant player was Johnny Spasyk, who, previously had not missed a single minute of action. Early in the second quarter the Cats were forced to kick behind their own goal. When Spasyk's boot was blocked the latter's recovery on the goal line prevented what would have been a Panther score. In his safety position he caught each punt, as well as kicking out of danger for the home forces.

Taylor Kicked Point

Frankie Taylor kicked off to Mahoney who ran the ball up to the 35-yard stripe. After L. Johnson tried the center of the line twice for no gain, he got off a long boot to the thirty, the ball falling into Spasyk's arms. The quarterback with little blocking ran the whole seventy yards weaving along the right side line, dodging tacklers from all sides; Tupka, the left end, hitting him, but not being able to bring him down. Taylor kicked the first of his three extra points, and the stands were wild.

Neither side could do much during the remainder of the period. What looked like a Middlebury march down the field was halted when L. Johnson's punt was blocked on the 33-yard marker. The visitors had gained by a blocked kick and a recovered Vermont fumble. Although L. Johnson hit left end for a first down, and Mahoney and J. Johnson each picked up four additional yards through center, the latter had to attempt a last down kick.

In the next quarter the Panthers were

Victory Football Hop For Saturday

Climaxing one of the most successful football seasons at Vermont in many a year, Key and Serpent, junior men's honorary society, announces that this year's Football Hop will be bigger, better and more fun than ever. D. W. Maley '41, Snake president, reported late last night that the society had nearly completed plans for this popular and colorful event.

The novel and decidedly new gym decorations will center around a football theme, and the Catamounts, who are rapidly rising to popularity on many college campuses, will swing out from the bandstand.

The annual presentation of football blankets to every senior in school who has ever earned a "V" playing the pigskin pastime, a practice which is now a tradition at Vermont, will take place during the dance. Maley reports that approximately twelve blankets will be awarded and that all members of the football squad will be guests of Key and Serpent.

Admission has been set at $1.10 per couple, with dancing from 8.30 to midnight in the gym. Coach and Mrs. Sabo will chaperone.

Key and Serpent promises that this event will be one of the highlights of the campus social season. They are confident that it will surpass all previous hops, especially since the team that will be honored is that one that did Middlebury "brown." Accordingly, this year it will be a Victory Football Hop.

EDITORIALS

The staff of the CYNIC would like to make its voice heard among the student body. For some time there have been many students entertaining the fond belief that the VERMONT CYNIC maintains its office in the Old Mill for the purpose of providing the students with a combination telephone booth, recreation room, general meeting place, and lunch room. The staff of the CYNIC has a paper to get out twice a week. The CYNIC office is maintained with this end in view. It is supposed to be the place where the work of the CYNIC is carried on. It is extremely difficult to do this work when the office—small at best—is crowded with people who just happened to wander in to pass the time of day, to do their French for next period, or to write their weekly letter home on the CYNIC typewriter. The regular work of the CYNIC cannot be accomplished with any degree of ease or efficiency under these conditions. There are many halls in the Old Mill. The University has recently put benches in those halls for the comfort and convenience of the student body. We ask that you take advantage of these facilities and not of those of the CYNIC office.

May we also add that the Book Store keeps a large supply of notebook paper of all varieties on hand, so there should be no need to do homework on CYNIC paper.

The matter of the CYNIC telephone seems to be a perennial question. May we add our voices to those of the many others who have said that the CYNIC telephone is for the use of the CYNIC staff and who have asked that others respect this. Of course, if one asks for the use of the phone for a short call when the phone is not being used by the CYNIC staff, that is all right. But too many people dash in, grab the telephone, and then sit down on the desk to discuss the issues of the day, the latest gossip, or to decide what dress is to be worn to the dance Saturday night. All this may be very enlightening and necessary to the persons concerned, but hardly to the CYNIC. We ask that you try to be a little more considerate in the future.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

In view of the fact that school spirit is the talk of the season, we members of Mortar Board have been thinking over the fact that one of the best ways to show this spirit is to have a true respect and appreciation for scholarship. When we consider that the primary purpose of a student coming to college is to study, we have been somewhat appalled by the fact that a lot of effort which might have been spent on study is spent in figuring out how to get the best mark with as little work as possible.

In many of the larger New England colleges this attitude of a rather scornful view of real scholastic effort is disappearing, and "the" thing to do is study, and have a respect for true intellectual ability. This is evident in the dining room conversations, an increasing interest in contemporary problems, and a real earnestness in academic work.

We do not mean to say that there are not many fine students here at college who are genuinely interested in their work, but we are worried about the general attitude here at Vermont, which does not seem to have a real appreciation for scholarship.

Perhaps the difficulties of the freshmen have brought this squarely before us. We upperclassmen are not to blame for their mistakes, of course, but we must admit that if there were a general feeling that excellence in academic work was the primary activity in college, the freshmen would be more serious about their scholarship from the very first. Another thing which we upperclassmen do which really harms the attitude of new students is to say we haven't studied when we have. This is a small thing, but quite disastrous when they really believe it.

Here I should like to digress a bit and reply to the writer of last issue's Campus Comment. If college people do not realize the purpose of college, we believe in teaching it to them. We don't like to deny privileges, but neither do we wish to see a great exodus from U. V. M. this coming February. Another thing we wish to do is to make students realize that the privileges, pleasures and fun of college life come with a scholastic standing that is creditable.

In regard to the hard-earned money spent in coming to college, we're inclined to think that the parents earned most of it and want it used by their sons and daughters to obtain a good college education. Then there is the saying that only with laws do freedom and privileges come. Think this over; then in February there will not be such a chorus of "there, I told you so."

We sincerely believe that a fine spirit of scholarship and respect for learning as such should become more representative of the ideals here at the University.

Mortar Board of 1940 wishes to encourage the best possible efforts of every student to attain a creditable college record, and with it a real appreciation for learning which will remain with him or her long after college days are past, and will make life richer, fuller and more interesting because of this appreciation.

Respectfully,
MARY C. NELSON.

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

Now being in a very observing position as editor of the 1941 Ariel, I have heard many remarks dropped and criticisms given on the work of my predecessor. Most of these have not been at his book but at the time of its release.

I wish to say that there were many factors which were the cause of this. One of these is very obvious to all of us—the entire change in the size of the book and the general all-around improvement of this publication that we all dearly love as our own alma mater yearbook. The other primary factor or cause that I wish to impress upon you is that of cooperation of the student body, especially by the juniors and seniors. Some may say instantly, "Oh, he means his editorial staff." That is not true, however, because if an editor cannot obtain cooperation from his board that is his own fault and only he can be blamed, but he is not to blame for the cooperation from the rest of the student body.

Now to get to the point. When questionnaires are left in the Book Store, dormitories and fraternity houses for the juniors and seniors, all they have to do is to cooperate, fill them out and leave them at the designated places. Also when proofs are asked to be returned at a certain time, why can't one do this and help out the progress of the book instead of hindering it, and then kick because the book is not out on time. The same cooperation could be used with signing up for sittings. Some of this is a little late, but I hope that it will help out next year's editor.

Now let's get these questionnaires in, you juniors. The activity sheets are now in the Book Store and will be in the dormitories, fraternities and sorority houses, so let's get these filled out and passed in.

If we will all cooperate just a little we might have a yearbook to read by the Fourth of July.

R. O. SLACK,
Editor-in-Chief of 1941 Ariel.

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

Would you make room in your paper for a communication to certain members of the student body?

Last year nearly every issue of the CYNIC which appeared contained a scathing denunciation of the cheerleaders; practically every column took a crack at them at some time or other without, however, offering any suggestion other than "they stink." The answer to these remarks was that constructive criticism was welcome at any time—needless to say it never appeared.

This year a few school-spirited students did approach the cheerleaders with some good suggestions, and the policy of the student newspaper has been changed. The big fuss has been over girl cheerleaders. At this point it would seem pertinent to clarify the situation; individually and collectively the cheerleaders are willing to see the girls come out and help them in their work. Contrary to general belief, the boys are not afraid of losing their jobs, for the squad is not up to full strength. There should be one senior, as head cheerleader, two juniors, and four sophomores; the freshman candidates may be of any number, and are supposed to receive training without appearing on the field. All the freshman candidates have regularly appeared on the field because one junior and four sophomores are lacking in the squad. There is still plenty of room for any of you who care to come out regularly.

Today, Friday the seventeenth, a petition has been circulated which demands the dismissal of Ken Beaton as cheerleader; the grounds offered to prospective signers are incompetence and a speech over the radio which supposedly makes his resignation obligatory. This speech was not made in any official capacity; hence, it represents merely his personal ideas as a private individual. Are we to understand that having one's own convictions is prohibited? Certainly the slinging of the personal feelings of a few individuals does not under any circumstances justify removal from office. Even if the speech had been uttered in an official capacity, which was not the case, nationally famous coaches and honorable alumni of this University have said practically the same thing as regards subsidization without loss of respect and, in fact, with some approval.

As for the charge of incompetence, why don't those of you who signed the petition compete for the five vacant positions on the cheerleading squad? There were several sophomores with their names on the petition who would not be prevented by varsity sports from leading cheers on Saturdays, and at present there are no sophomores on the squad. Can you people complain of the quality of the cheerleaders, if you yourselves are unwilling to help them (by constructive criticism for one thing) and if you yourselves will not improve the quality of the squad by belonging to it?

up to the goal line. When Spasyk caugrt J. Johnson's punt on the 24, the Vermonters were given a 15-yard penalty for clipping. It was then that Spasyk, standing behind the goal line, recovered his own block kick. However, in the next play his kick was successful. Middlebury had the ball on the 18, but after three tries in which they lost twelve yards when the Vermont line crashed in to nail the pass, J. Johnson punted to the 5-yard stripe. The forward wall held and Spasyk booted to Bertuzzi, whose knee touched the ground on the 51, and Vermont was now out of immediate danger. Middlebury could not advance the ball—likewise Vermont. Carlson hit Bertuzzi, who caught the Cat's punt on his own 34. Again the Panthers were not able to pick up yardage; Spasyk, receiving the punt, was nailed on Middlebury's 44.

The opportunity had now come. With White out in the clear Taylor threw a long pass which first fell out of his hands. Taylor hurled another one, this time to Spasyk and the ball was on the 23. Spasyk was hurt in the play and Corsones came in. Third down, Taylor took the ball off left tackle, side-stepped three men who seemed certain to tackle him, and romped over for six good points. Broutsas holding the ball, his placement was between the bars, and Vermont now led 14-0.

After the kickoff Taylor intercepted J. Johnson's pass on the 48. He rolled off three yards around right end; hitting the center Shaw picked up five as the half ended.

The third quarter saw the Middlebury team almost score when a pass trickled from Miller's fingers. The Panthers kept picking up ground but were not able to provide the touchdown punch.

Toward the end of the last session Shaw added 12 yards through center. On a reverse Taylor made but Vermont was offside. Shaw was stopped on the next play. With the ball on the 25-yard line, Shaw slipped it to Spasyk who passed to Taylor, the latter being stopped on the six. Using the same set-up, Spasyk to Taylor to Broutsas, who was on the far right, and there was another score. Taylor booted. Vermont 21—Middlebury 0.

The game ended in a few minutes.

PANTHER OBITUARY

Johnny Spasyk certainly had a field day. His runbacks of Middlebury punts were excellent—especially his 70-yard touchdown run. John took the ball on his own 30 and scooted to the sidelines after being hit hard at the 50-yard marker by a Middlebury end (we don't know how he even kept going) and after almost stepping offside, he was never headed. On another occasion Johnny was encircled by at least four Middlebury players. He cleverly evaded the latter and once more hastened to the sidelines. Incidentally, in this same play Norm Strassburg, who played one swell game, pulled one of the best blocks we have seen in a long time. It was undoubtedly one of the best plays of the afternoon. Spasyk's courage and football brains again came to the front midway through the second period. A clipping penalty had pushed the Green and Gold deep back into their own territory. Johnny went back to the goal line to kick. A Panther linesman broke through and blocked the kick. With practically the entire opposition line around the ball, Johnny dived for the pigskin and, somehow or other, came up with it. On the next play, from the furthest point in the end zone, Spasyk kicked out to the Vermont 40.

The perfect week-end! Middlebury whitewashed all around! In cross-country try both Vermont teams, varsity and freshman, had perfect scores. In football—well, it's unnecessary to repeat the score. Perhaps it was Friday's hoboes, perhaps it was the determination and fight of eighteen iron men, but anyway it was something worth while to watch the Cats score its first gridiron victory (and a decisive one at that) over Middlebury since '35.

Varsity and Frosh Harriers Both Blank Middlebury

Overwhelmingly crushing their Middlebury opponents Saturday by a score of 15-50, Coach Post's Catamount varsity dalers clinched the sixth consecutive championship for U. V. M. Saturday's win terminated a highly successful season of one loss and four victories. Losing only to Dartmouth, the team defeated Union, Bowdoin, Williams and Middlebury.

Exemplary of the prevailing team spirit, Capt. Harry Ketcham seeing that eight of the team were distinctly ahead of any of the Panthers, brought them in to the finish line hand in hand to finish for first position in a dead heat. It was a gesture fully typical of a spirited, balanced team that Coach Post claims to be the best he has handled at U. V. M.. This is the seventh team in eleven seasons that he has guided to championship. The meet, definately a walk away for the Vermonters resulted as follows:

Vermont—dead heat for first: Capt. Harry Ketcham, Charles Webster, Fred Webtser, Richard Clark, Frank Livak, Charles Moran, Jack Burgess, Harold Willson; 9—Post, Middlebury; 10—R. Otis, Vermont; 11—J. Rogers and Brosseau, Vermont; 13—Don Palmer, Vermont; 14—Mercure, Middlebury; 15—Flanders, Middlebury.

Making the meet completely victorious for Vermont, the freshman cross-country team whipped the Panther Cubs 15-50. This was the Frosh's fifth victory in as many meets. They have beaten Dartmouth freshmen, Waterbury, Randolph Aggies, Burlington High and Middlebury Frosh. Although they were not pressed at all by the Middleburians the Frosh set a fast clip and Hoyt finished first with a time of 16:9.5. This is 2.3 seconds under Charles Webster's last year's freshman record. The record is as follows:

1—Hoyt (V); 2—Buttles (V); 3—St. Mary (V); 4—Ladd (V); 5—Crown (V); 6—White (V); 7—West (M); 8—Haines (M); 9—Sott (M); 10—Luitz (M); 11—Zwick (V); 12—Egbert (V); 13—Fisk (M); 14—Spear (M); 15—Story (V).

The officials of the meet were: Mr. Prentice, starter; Dr. Gershoy, judge; Dr. Marvin (manager of track in '34), judge; and Mr. Larry Gardner, timer.

Next year's squad promises to produce another championship team. Out of a squad that has won nine out of ten meets only four are leaving. Concerning this, Coach Post says: "If the boys who were running up front this year keep up in their studies and are still interested, we should have another excellent season coming up."

Phi Delts Take Touch Grid Laurels

Phi Delta Theta's clever team replaced S A E as interfraternity touch football titleholder by defeating Sigma Phi 6 to 0 in an Armistice Day battle.

The passing duo of Ed. Godfrey and Bill Pratt accounted for the Phi Delt score. With the ball on the Sig 25-yard line midway in the third quarter, Godfrey faded back and pitched one into the left-hand corner. Pratt gathered it in on the goal line, barely inside playing territory, and toppled over for the touchdown.

Godfrey and Pratt sparked the Phi Delts, coached by Bill Murphy, the whole game. Effective line blocking was also a large factor in the winners' success.

The Sigs, who had steamrollered all previous opposition, showed signs of overconfidence and were taken somewhat by surprise when the Phi Delts began to turn on the heat.

The line-up:

Phi Delta Theta	Sigma Phi
Godfrey	Tucker
Pratt	Utter
Middleworth	Pond
Pache	Oakes
Potter	Moore
Daniels	Hay
Cronin	Allen

Substitutions: Phi Delta Theta—Nutter, Mott, Dennis, Nestler, Logan, Boucher. Sigma Phi—Crane, Hamilton.

Officials: Referee—A. Post. Umpire—H. Prentice. Scorer—W. Wood.

Fordham University this year has a special seminar in play writing.

Ah, Sweet Memories!

Time: Some Saturday in 1959.

Here it is the year 1959 and Vermont has just annihilated Middlebury 21-0 for the twenty-first year in a row. Coach Johnny Sabo, the Grand Old Man of Vermont football, looked mighty spry despite the grayness of his hair as he stood on the Vermont sidelines and watched another Vermont powerhouse roll over Middlebury. A number of the old grads were back today. Frankie Taylor and Johnny Spasyk and Capt. Bill Pye and a host of others were sitting in a special box in the stadium. The score must have reminded them of the time back in 1939 when they were members of the team that started the twenty-year rout of the Panthers. We run our hand through our sparsely-populated hair, plant ourself comfortably in a deep chair so that our sciatica won't bother us and think back to that memorable fall afternoon in 1939 when we sat high up in the stands and gazed in rapture as a Vermont squad of eighteen men didn't realize that the odds were against them and played with such fire and spirit and drive that a Middlebury attack (if one existed) did not even have an opportunity to get started.

That was some ball game. It was one of those cloudy afternoons with the possibility of rain or light snow lurking in the air, except when late in the fourth quarter, after the third seven had been mounted on the Vermont scoreboard, a patch of blue sky appeared over in the west. As the two teams trotted out onto the field for the opening kick-off we remember looking across the field at the Middlebury bench and being somewhat dismayed as we cast our glance over one blanketed figure after another, realizing that there were over two full teams warming the Middlebury bench. But then Frankie Taylor kicked off for Vermont and the ball soared to the goal line where a Middlebury back, whose name is inconsequential in our story, caught the ball and ran back to the 35-yard line where the Vermont team ganged up on him. Middlebury gained nothing on two attempts and then kicked. Johnny Spasyk caught the ball in the vicinity of his 35-yard line and the combination of his beautiful hip-swing and very timely blocking resulted in the first Vermont score before anyone had even settled comfortably on his blanket. Then we suddenly realized that those substitutes on the Middlebury bench didn't mean a thing. This was Vermont versus Middlebury, the old rivals, the big game. Past performances meant nothing. From here on it was the spark to win that counted. And it was sheer beauty watching that indefinable spark mow down Middlebury. It would be pointless to try to select an individual star. Every Vermont man on the field played the game of his life. We wish we had the words at our command to eulogize every man who wore the Green and Gold that Saturday. The fact that some men were substitutes only spurred them on to fill the shoes of such men as Capt. Bill Pye, Jim Corbett and Ed Kodys. Whizzer White and Red Paterson ploughed up the Midd interference with a vengeance to allow Earl Reed or Al Shaw to come crashing through to make the tackle. Boots Lawrence and Swede Carlson, the tackles, and Norm Dubie and Norm Strassburg, the guards, constituted an impenetrable defense and the "stop" sign was always lit as far as the Midd offense was concerned. In the backfield Al Shaw brought back reminiscences of Pike Trigilio as h crashed through the Panther line.

Butch Broutsas had a field day batting down passes. Frankie Taylor was everywhere—dropping runners, throwing passes, place-kicking extra points, and threading his way through the Middlebury line and then through the secondary defense to score. Johnny Spasyk was equally marvelous. His smart choice of plays, his punting, his tight-rope walking along the sidelines as he ran back punts. A few plays stay in our minds. Spasyk stands almost on the goal line. The Midd line streams through and blocks the kick. Never have we seen anything as fast as Spasyk diving after that ball. Norm Strassburg's block was probably the sweetest thing in that line we've seen all year. More reminiscences cloud up our thoughts. Capt. Bill Pye standing on the sidelines, never taking his eyes off the men on the field, always ready with a jacket when one of the Vermont men left the game. His spirit was keenly felt that day. Cheers for the coaching staff that produced the marvelous 5-3-2-1 defense that was adopted beautifully to the Midd aerial and sweeping attacks. Orchids to the student body whose faith was rewarded that memorable day.

Twenty-one to nothing. Migosh! 'Twas wunnerful!

Clean Sweep for Cross-Country

We've all been so excited over this thing called football recently that we've almost forgotten the fact that Coach Archie Post's Varsity and Frosh cross-country teams closed excellent seasons last Saturday by both defeating Middlebury by perfect scores. Eight Vermont men—Captain Ketcham, Charlie and Freddie Webster, Frankie Livak, Jack Burgess, Don Moran, Richie Clark, and Dick Willson—finished hand in hand to make an eight-man tie for first place in the varsity encounter. Middlebury engaged in three athletic contests last Saturday and garnered nary a point in any of them.

SOPHOMORES AIDES HOLD MEETING

The Sophomore Aides held a meeting Thursday evening, November 16, in the north lounge at Southwick. The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Andrews of Philadelphia. Her subject was the "Psychological Viewpoint of Personality." After concluding her talk Mrs. Andrews answered the questions asked by various members.

Cynic Reporter Interviews Vermont's Recent Queen of the Military Ball

There isn't a great deal I can write to tell you about Jean Harshbarger, our co-ed major, because to know her you have to meet her. She has one of those glowing personalities that just can't be described with words.

Jean was born some twenty-one years ago in Illinois, but she travels to U. V. M. now from Detroit, Mich. She could say very little for her early life and ambitions, as they were too numerous to bother about. She went through school, presumably as all other girls go through, with fair amounts of luck and hard work, and ended up in Burlington for her college career, as the result of various recommendations.

After leaving college Miss Harshbarger would like to teach high school English, although right now she is "petrified" at the thought of practice teaching. Every time Jean goes into town she looks fearfully at the high school students she sees, wondering if she'll be teaching them and worrying about how she will ever keep discipline.

But Jean doesn't worry about many things, and has a carefree attitude towards life, as evidenced by the good-natured smile she has for everyone. Her "likes" far overbalance "dislikes," as pseudo-sophistication was the only point she made on the negative side. However, her greatest pleasures in life include creative dancing and drinking "cokes," and Jean admires naturalness a great deal.

When I asked Miss Harshbarger about her "ideal man," she looked rather startled and began to say she didn't have one. However, after careful thought, she decided upon three points or requisites. He should be a good sport, have a sense of humor, and be fairly good-looking.

The interview ended in a desultory fashion, over two "cokes," with a discussion of the merits of several football teams.

"Penny-a-Pound" Dance Draws Big Crowd

The Boulder's "Penny-a-Pound" dance Saturday night was a fitting climax to a perfect "Beat Middlebury" week-end. The defeated Middlebury was present, forgetting all about the shellacking they had received in freshman and varsity football and in freshman and varsity cross-country.

The dance was something new in that the entrance toll was levied in the form of a poundage tax, one cent per pound. Jeanne Dennis, P.G., received the honor of being the lightest, tipping the Fairbanks at exactly ninety-five pounds. Name undisclosed went to the opposite extreme at exactly one hundred fifty-six pounds. Incidentally one forlorn stag was admitted at fifty cents.

Members of the Boulder Society alternated in the receiving line with Prof. and Mrs. Post, Prof. and Mrs. Gardner and Prof. and Mrs. Evans. Roy Wietz was also present, more genial than ever, playing the Middlebury over and over. P.S. He was not allowed on the scales.

"Night Must Fall" to Be U. V. M. Fall Play

Mrs. Taggart Again To Direct Play

Once again the time has rolled around for the annual fall play. This year's play will be the mystery thriller, "Night Must Fall," by Emlyn Williams. The condensed plot is as follows:

Dan is a bellboy in a resort hotel in a certain section of England. Having had an affair with Dora Parkoe, a maid at Mrs. Bromson's, Dan is hastily summoned to the Bromson cottage. Crusty old Mrs. Bromson is so charmed that she is immediately taken with him, and adds him to her household servants.

But all is not well. The murder of a guest at the hotel is traced to Dan by Olivia, an unhappy niece of Mrs. Bromson, who chooses to shield him.

From then on stark tragedy stalks the Bromson cottage. Another murder surrounded by some of the most intensely dramatic and mysterious lines in modern drama.

"Night Must Fall" is a psychological thriller, the study of a cold-blooded murder whose deliberate incredibly arrogant machinations scared the wits and half-wits out of audiences in both England and America.

As yet the final cast has not been chosen. As in the past, the play will be directed by the capable directress, Mrs. Wilnetta Sproul Taggart.

R. O. T. C. Band Ends Fine Football Season

The R. O. T. C. Band finished its football season in a blaze of glory as they deftly executed their letters before an admiring crowd last Saturday at the Vermont-Middlebury game. There have been many comments on the band's appearance, and many say that last Saturday's showing was the best of the season. The student body extends its thanks to the bandsmen and to their instructor, Mr. Lechnyr, for the splendid work they have done to make our games a success. Their spirited music has done much to increase the morale of the students.

The band will make its next appearance at the opening game of the basketball season. Meanwhile the musicians have turned their attention to the more serious and complicated music of "Orpheus in die Untervelt." They have also received the music they are to play at the annual Kake Walk.

The freshmen completed their record shooting last Wednesday. The list of the high scorers will be published as soon as it is made available by the military department.

BECKER AND COHEN DEBATE WITH M. I. T. ON WCAX

A. H. Becker '41 and J. G. Cohen '42, of the men's debating team, will participate in a debate with M. I. T. on Saturday, November 25, over WCAX from 8.30 to 9.30 p.m. The subject will be, "Resolved, The United States should follow a policy of strict economic and military isolation toward all nations outside of the western hemisphere engaged in or concerned with international or civil conflict." Vermont will uphold the affirmative.

During Thanksgiving vacation A. H. Becker '41, H. A. Durfee '41 and J. G. Cohen '42 will go to Union College at Schenectady, where they will take part in a round-table discussion on the isolationist policy of the United States. On November 30 they debate with Fordham in New York and on November 31 with Manhattan College.

WOMEN'S PLEDGING SET FOR NOVEMBER 27

The final rushing parties of all sororities on the hill conclude on Saturday, November 25, and neutral period extends from 10 o'clock Sunday evening until 5 o'clock Monday afternoon. During the neutral period sorority women are not to speak to any freshmen, eligible transfers, or sophomores.

All girls who receive notices from the Dean's office will go to Southwick between 3 and 5 o'clock Monday afternoon to sign their preference.

Pan-Hellenic urges that all girls planning to go sorority study for any hour exams on Tuesday over the week-end. There will be very little time on Monday.

Stradivarius Quartet To Visit at Vermont

The Stradivarius Quartet will visit the Vermont campus the week after Thanksgiving vacation, staying here for two full days. This is a rather unusual procedure, one which will, no doubt, give us limitless advantages. They have been holding these concert series in other colleges, with very successful results, for it gives the students a chance to meet them personally. They have been giving a series of such concerts at Harvard during the fall, visiting the different college houses.

Late Tuesday afternoon there will be a tea at Southwick, sponsored by the Sophomore Aides, and an informal concert, consisting wholly of modern music. Invitations have been issued to University faculty, and all students interested in attending are asked to sign their names on the bulletin board in the Old Mill. The quartet will attend choir and orchestra rehearsals Tuesday evening, and a discussion will follow.

Discussion After Chapel

Wednesday morning, the Chapel service will be an entirely musical program, with selections from the quartet as well as the choir and orchestra. An informal recital and discussion will be given at the music building for the students and all others interested, directly after Chapel. The quartet will lunch at Robinson and will be entertained at Hotel Vermont that evening. They are making their headquarters at Southwick.

Wednesday evening at 8.15 the quartet will present its formal concert, consisting of music by Haydn and Beethoven, and they will be joined by Elsa Kremers Bennett, pianist, in performing Brahms Quintet in F minor.

Tickets for this concert will go on sale at Bailey's Music rooms and the University Store the Monday before Thanksgiving. Student tickets are 25 cents, which entitles one to any seat in the hall, except the dollar seats.

This program has been arranged under the concert project of the Association of American Colleges, and promises to be both interesting and profitable to us all.

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP TO HOLD SOCIAL

There will be a social in the parish house on Sunday night for the members of the Pilgrim Fellowship and friends. This will give an opportunity for getting better acquainted and having a good time together. Kenneth Hoffman is in charge of entertainment, and Merton Pike is to lead the devotional service preceding the social. Everyone is welcome.

METHODIST GROUP MEETS

Prof. J. T. Metcalf of the Psychology Department will speak to the Methodist college group, Sunday, November 26, at 7.30, on some sidelights of education. All newcomers are always welcome.

Gym to be Scene of Victory Ball Saturday

Blankets To Be Awarded to 12 Men

The annual Football Hop, which this year is to be in the form of an informal Victory Ball, will take place in the gymnasium this Saturday evening between the hours of nine and twelve.

Plans for the evening include music by the Catamounts who have certainly been doing all right this year and will be swinging you along to make the Victory Ball another mangnificent social success.

D. W. Maley '41, in charge of the Victory Ball, would give no further information concerning the decorations of the evening than that they would center around the theme—A Victory Ball.

One of the big events of the evening is the awarding of blankets to twelve senior men who have earned a letter in football at some time during their college career.

The chaperons will be Prof. and Mrs. Tupper, Coach and Mrs. Sabo, and Mr. and Mrs. Evans of the coaching staff.

Come on, now, for the very low sum of $1.10 you may climax one of the most successful football seasons at Vermont for many years by attending the magnificent Victory Ball which will exceed any other such affair which has been held on campus. Key and Serpent promises that it will be a novel event and one of the brightest spots of the social season on campus. There will be fun and excitement for all for it will be paying tribute to the team that buried Middlebury. We'll be seeing you there.

Outing Club Plans Winter Program

Thirty members of the Outing Club met Thursday, November 16, to plan the next year's program and hear reports of past activities. C. L. Nussbaum, '40, chairman, welcomed the members on behalf of the council. E. C. Bailey '40, gave a résumé of the hikes this fall and spoke of the I. O. C. A. weekends and hikes. R. Davis '41 reported that free instruction will be given again this year by Sten Phillips on the hill back of Centennial field. There will also be recreational skiing with half rates on the tow at Underhill. A subsidized bus will be run when skiing conditions are good. The Outing Club will pay a third, the members paying the other two-thirds of the rate.

Sepp Ruschpp has also sent down a list of reduced rates for instruction at Stowe. He is one of the foremost skiers of the East and his instruction would be very valuable. Those interested may get in touch with R. Davis.

S. K. Gilbert '40, treasurer, reported that there is a balance of $283 in the treasury, a hundred of which will pay for the free instruction.

Twenty-five candidates reported for skiing practice. The big state meet with Middlebury and Norwich will be March first on Mansfield.

R. Linsley '40 served cider and doughnuts.

BOOK STORE LIBRARY BUYS TWO NEW BOOKS

The Book Store's lending library has reported the addition of two new books. They are "A Woman's Place" by Odlum and "Kitty Foyle" by Morley. Both these books are well worth reading.

Alpha Tau Omega announces the pledging of E. J. Roberts '40, of Jacksonville, on November 16, and of W. S. Keith '43, of Newport, on November 18.

ENGINEERS INSPECT MANUFACTURING PLANT

Last Friday, November 17, the mechanical engineers visited the Edlund Manufacturing Company of Burlington.

The Edlund Company manufactures many small articles, among which are can openers, bottle openers, bottle-capping machines, knife sharpeners, etc. Each member of the group was presented with an "Open-All Cap Remover" as a gift from the company on their departure. The trip was especially interesting to the seniors as it gave them an opportunity to inspect punch presses, a subject which they are studying at the present time.

Aviation Class Finish Ground School Course

The ground school course of the course in aviation that was introduced at U. V. M. has been under way a month now. Professor Butterfield has delivered two lectures on the history of aviation. Professor Bullard has lectured thirteen hours on the aircraft course in the theory of flight. This phase of the course requires only two more hours for completion.

After Thanksgiving, Professor Millikan will present the twelve hours of lecture on civil air regulations.

Other courses to be presented are those dealing with navigation, meteorology, parachutes, aircraft engines, aircraft instruments and radio.

It is hoped that within a week or two the students will begin actual flying instruction at the airport.

For the first month each student receives three thirty-minute lessons per week. Subsequently, each student will receive two one-hour lessons per week. This will be continued until the student has completed thirty to fifty hours of actual flying.

The airport is providing for this instruction three planes and one instructor for each group of ten men.

At the conclusion of the course the student is expected to pass the examination which will secure for him a private pilot's license.

Dr. Upton Urges U. V. M. Ski Patrol

"U. V. M. needs a ski patrol," said Dr. H. E. Upton at the Outing Club meeting Thursday, November 16, at Southwick. Dr. Upton is attempting to form classes for first aid instruction for a ski patrol. This instruction will include twenty hours of preliminary work and ten hours of practical outdoor work on the ski trails. The only requirements to join one such class are that the person be over sixteen years of age, a passable skier, and willing to work at this course throughout the weeks of the winter. If all the requirements are met and the student passes the instruction test, he or she will receive certification from the national patrol. The final group will patrol at U. V. M. ski meets. This is a grand opportunity for those who are not capable enough skiers to be on the team to witness and participate in the meets. H. A. Prentice stressed the importance of knowledge of first aid for those who are employed or wish to be in summer camps as instructors. This plan deserves your attention and tell your friends about it. The first meeting will be Thursday, November 23, at the men's gym. Males and females invited and bring paper for notes. Let's get behind Dr. Upton and protect our ski team.

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP TO MEET AT PARISH HOUSE

The Pilgrim Fellowship will have a short devotional meeting followed by a social on Sunday evening at 7.30. It will be held in the parish house of the First Church. Everyone is welcome. This is the last meeting before Thanksgiving.

EDITORIALS

A movement recently was started on campus to organize a club for those students of the University who are enrolled in the pre-medical curriculum. We commend those who are behind this very worthwhile movement.

To our knowledge there has never been a society of this nature on the Vermont campus despite the obvious need for such an organization. True, we have the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the A. S. C. E., the A. S. E. E., the Aggie Club, the Chemistry Club, the Future Farmers of America and many other similar organizations for students enrolled in various curricula but heretofore there has been no club for prospective members of the medical profession.

We realize just how badly such a society is needed when we are confronted with the fact that there are more students enrolled in the pre-med course than in any other single curriculum. The total number of undergraduate students enrolled at the University of Vermont is 1,306. Of these 173 or approximately 13 percent are taking the pre-medical course.

Those students who belong to an organization on campus must be fully aware of the tribulations facing a newly created society. It is not an easy task to arouse interest in an organization whose worth is, as yet, unproven. Once organized, all is not smooth sailing. Interest must be maintained—a smooth-running program must be mapped out for the members.

Accordingly, we beseech the student body to lend their aid to the work of setting up this organization for the pre-meds. A little support now may mean the difference between success and failure.

The only requirements imposed by the National Youth Administration are that the recipients shall be chosen on the basis of need, that they shall carry at least three-quarters of a normal course of study and that the work provided shall be genuinely useful and shall not displace any of the institution's regular employees.

The Band Wagon

By BOB JOHNSON

The Catamounts

This cooperative band was formed in the fall of '38 after five members returned from a summer at the Westport Yacht Club. The five original members were augmented to nine, making an augmented fifth. The nine grew to a major eleventh. They have been featured at Middlebury, Norwich, Trinity and high school dances throughout the State, as well as at U. V. M. functions. The past summer saw eight men of the band featured at Nicklaw Manor and Auto Inn, two of northern New York's hot spots—you know—"watch out for that glass!" Now it gives some personal interest stuff.

Saxes

Hal Boutilier—tenor sax—featured hot—originator of the "Ubangi shuffle." A cartoonist and artist of no mean ability. A Charlie Barnet idolizer. Also sings—and writes an occasional arrangement. Good and definite ideas on everything.

Hi Bevins—lead and featured clarey—also good violinist. Rabid Glenn Miller fan—whacky sense of humor—nickname, Hymie B. Dubinoff (the eminent long-hair).

Maurice "Little Joe" Viens—third sax—quiet (not just because he's a frosh)—good ideas on the legit side—an enthusiast of muscle building via the bar bells—a really different laugh.

Harold "Hab" Bassette—tenor—plays great guitar and bass—writes good arrangements—only married man in the outfit—also quiet—good critic.

Rhythm

Wayne "Cap'n Zeke" Barrows—piano—co-manager—advocate of the Basie technique—runs band on the stand. Worries about tempos being too commercial or too non-commercial—furnishes 75 percent of the belly laughs for the combine.

Louis "Czerny" Pichierri—guitar—co-manager—loves his long hair—hates wine (imagine), but goes for women and song.

Chet Minkler—bass, trombone—band's most relaxed member—No. 1 gripe man looking for perfection—dashes of some good arrangements—Ellington fan—furnishes many of the boots for the band—to say nothing of neckties.

Wes Beaudry—drums—a Joe Jones (Basie's skin beater) disciple, plenty solid—good ideas on commercial or otherwise—always anxious to jam—marvelous disposition.

Brass

Mahlon "Tempie" Conner—hot trumpet—a la Zulu Austin—A-1 jitterbug—furnishes lots of kicks and laughs for other members—sings sentimentally.

Tommy Keighley—third trumpet—another youngster—also plays piano—a "one eye on the paper, the other on the femmes" man, like the rest of the boys.

Bob Johnson—trumpet—bitten by a "whacky" fly at the age of three months and hasn't been able to decide between being lazy or active, since—arranges—cavorts over the scat vocals—ambition to play trombone—No. 1½ gripe man.

Philbert — mascot — ambition to have twenty-four harems, "south of somewhere."

Band in General

Members are chosen not only on ability but congeniality and interest in the group. Every man has a vote—in case he wants to bother to use it. Favorite sayings of the band in toto—"You ain't lyin'," "O—D—O!" "Don't it awful, Georgie?"

Any band that plays only once or twice a week and can rehearse only one other night cannot be judged on the same standards as a name band. Precision, technique, taste, smoothness have to suffer—but then.

Don't miss the Bradley-McKinley band—really different and titanic.

Marian Anderson is truly "the world's greatest voice"—simplicity, complete sincerity, interpretation as only a truly great could. For her, every note, every word, is heartfelt and so beautifully natural—"a voice found only once in a hundred years"—orchids seem so trivial a tribute.

Y. W. C. A. Notes

Monday evening at 7.30, November 27, the College Y. W. C. A. cordially invites both freshman and upperclass girls to come to Southwick for a candy pull.

Refreshments will be served.

Earning Their Own Way Doesn't Seem to Hurt U. W. Students' Grades

The belief that working your way through college has a detrimental effect on the student's grades is blasted in a report issued by Miss Marion Tormey, acting head of the Student Employment bureau at the University of Wisconsin.

Citing statistics on students working on jobs under the National Youth Administration at Wisconsin, it was found that as far back as 1934, the grade point average of the NYA students was 1.75. From then on it has increased steadily until 1937-38 it reached a high grade point average of 1.9 for the working students. This is very near a "B" or "good" average.

The 793 undergraduate NYA students working last year maintained an average of exactly 1.903. The average for all undergraduates enrolled in the State University was 1.465. Graduate NYA students maintained an even higher standard with an average of 2.427 grade points, nearly half way between a "B" and a perfect "A" average.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

The opportunity has presented itself to me to offer congratulations to the members of Boulder Society. Last Friday the school spirit received from them a 100 percent boost. Hobo Day it was called. The holiday met with tremendous success. There was no mention of Johnnie Sabo's football team but only comments to point out the fact that all of us are enrolled in a darn good institution. The coming game with Middlebury was the incentive; a tradition established in one day, the result.

Not only did it appear that the student body willingly accepted the new annual holiday, but also the faculty displayed a welcomed enthusiasm. Classes were much more the way they should be before a big alumni week-end.

The school found itself more bound together than it ever has before. The expressed opinion that our school is spread too much throughout the city is well founded. However, with a few more novel events that compare with Hobo Day we will find this University closer than the original thirteen states were. For this wonderful fact we have only to thank the 1939-40 members of Boulder Society.

Miss Osborne Speaks On Charm and Personality

If there is a noticeable increase in charm and poise among the members of the fair sex at U. V. M. in the future it may be a result of the talks given last Monday and Tuesday evenings by Miss Elizabeth Osborne, nationally famous consultant on charm and personality.

Miss Osborne has lectured on many campuses all over the country, but says she found herself looking forward to her visit to U. V. M. because she admires Vermont people because they seem to have a zest for living, and because U. V. M. combines the advantages of being a state university with the cultural advantages found in smaller, more exclusive schools.

In Miss Osborne's talks she stressed the fact the persons that we are going to be in five years are the persons we are in the process of making right now. Calling attention to the things people notice when they see you for the first time, she listed five fundamentals: (1) Facial expression, which is even more important than features. "Don't let your face slide into neutral," she cautioned. (2) Good grooming, all the way from scrupulous cleanliness to well-chosen clothes. (3) A pleasing, well-modulated voice. (4) Good manners and a pleasing manner (there's a difference). (5) Good carriage.

Great Possibilities in All of Us

She stressed the fact that one must think of herself as an individual with limitless possibilities, not trying to imitate others and become something she isn't, but accepting her own outstanding qualities and building herself around them.

Two qualities desired by every woman are charm and poise. Real charm is something that only a few people possess, but almost everyone has something charming about him or her. Three requisites for charm are to be natural, pleasing, and individual, but it is a quality which cannot be acquired.

Poise, on the other hand, can be acquired and developed—it is "something you can get your teeth into"—and college is an excellent laboratory in which to work at it. One interesting point Miss Osborne brought out in her discussion of poise is the correct way to enter a room. First, make yourself look as well as possible, and then stop thinking about yourself and concentrate on what you expect to find in the room you are approaching. Stand in the doorway a moment, getting the "lay of the land," and then take a deep breath, draw all your power to your backbone and "let the edges drip off," and walk offensively, not defensively, into the room, directly to someone or something.

Miss Osborne's concluding advice was to give a great deal of thought to yourself in private, but think only of others in public; to have a purpose in life; and to expand and develop your good qualities.

THANKSGIVING

Where Injuns walked across Vermont's hills
And deprived the settlers of their hair
An epicure rose up one day
And said "My friends it isn't fair."
Where nature gave most lavish loons
A man can't go in the fields to play
Without fear that a buck may creep up in stealth
And forcibly steal his best toupe
We should hold a feast just once a year
And keep the Injuns fat and lax
When they've got both hands full of turkey meat
They're much too busy to swing the axe."

The custom has stuck through the nation's years
Closing poolrooms, theatres, banks
All the forces of Empire stop
On this day, to eat and give thanks.

So whether you're happy as a lark in spring
Or whether some wrong within you is ranklin'
Sit down my friend, dismember your turkey
Whether you're thanking God or Franklin.

GROSSMAN.

During the 1938-39 school year, 200 colleges created some 300 scholarships for foreign refugees.

ALPHA ZETA MEETS AT MORRILL HALL

Alpha Zeta, National Honorary Agricultural Fraternity, held its regular meeting at Morrill Hall on Wednesday evening. 5. Please do not spit on the floor.

INTRODUCING

BETSEY MARLOWE

She was clad in the special garb of the day—in patched slacks, ragged sweater, old shoes, and carried her sack which contained an egg sandwich and a doughnut. She was also carrying an old tin can over her shoulder which she had been told was carried by tramps to make coffee in. Who was she? No other than Miss Elizabeth (alias Betsy) Marlow of Ridgewood, N. J., member of Alpha Chi Omega. Chief justice, Pan-Hellenic president, Green captain of W. A. A. last year, and active in other fields of college life.

"Hobo Day" was the chief topic at the opening of the interview. Betsy thinks that, if approved by the college officials, "Hobo Day" is worth starting and making a Vermont tradition.

Visited in England for Three Months

After graduating from high school Betsy spent three months visiting in England, just outside Liverpool. While there she attended classes in a school, drove often through the Shakespearean country and parts of Wales. "My greatest thrill was being in London at the time of the royal wedding of the former Duke of Kent, seeing the wedding procession, the royal family—the late King George V, Queen Mary and the little princesses. The tradition, the intense love of the English people for their King, makes me admire them so much. I have a very particular interest and respect for them. I think Americans have the wrong impression of the English, for they aren't dry, but are very witty if you understand them.

"I wanted to come to a New England college and friends in Boston recommended Vermont very highly—so I came here." (Evidence that Vermont's reputation is very widespread.)

When asked what her ambitions were, she laughed and said, "Secretarial work, I guess. I'm not sure."

Of course, as in every interview, she was asked her likes and dislikes. To this Betsy replied: "I only wish there weren't so many meetings, lectures and things scheduled for the same evening at exactly the same time. They are all fine and I know many students would like to attend more than one. The University lectures are very educational as well as interesting, too." Voluntarily she said, "Since transferring I have found the rules for women here very fair. The women students have cooperated exceedingly well in keeping up the traditional Vermont standard."

Because we both thought open confession of secret heart throbs on the screen and in real life, favorite magazines and bands was both trite and over-used, we omitted that.

At this point Betsy opened her sack and kindly gave her egg sandwich to her quizzing friend—probably thinking that that was an opportune time and excuse for escaping the questions of her snooping and inquisitive would-be Walter Winchell friend.

PROF. MACLAY DISCUSSES COOPERATIVE MOVEMENT

"The Cooperative Movement" was the topic Prof. M. W. Maclay of the department of economics, spoke on as guest speaker at the International Relations Club meeting at Southwick, Thursday evening, November 16. In his lecture Professor Maclay gave a brief survey of the rise, development and progress of this movement in several countries. An open forum, in the manner of a discussion from the floor, followed the talk.

An announcement concerning the arrival of a new shipment of books on international peace from the Carnegie Foundation was made by Prof. M. H. Laatsch. These books have been placed on the international relations shelf in the Billings Library. T. R. Huntley '41, president of the club, presided at the meeting.

THIRTY U. V. M. MEN IN NATIONAL GUARD

There are in U. V. M. this year some thirty men who are members of the National Guard. These men go into camp at Fort Ethan Allen this week. This naturally means a good deal of sacrifice of both studies and time, though they will be allowed to attend a few of their most important classes during the week.

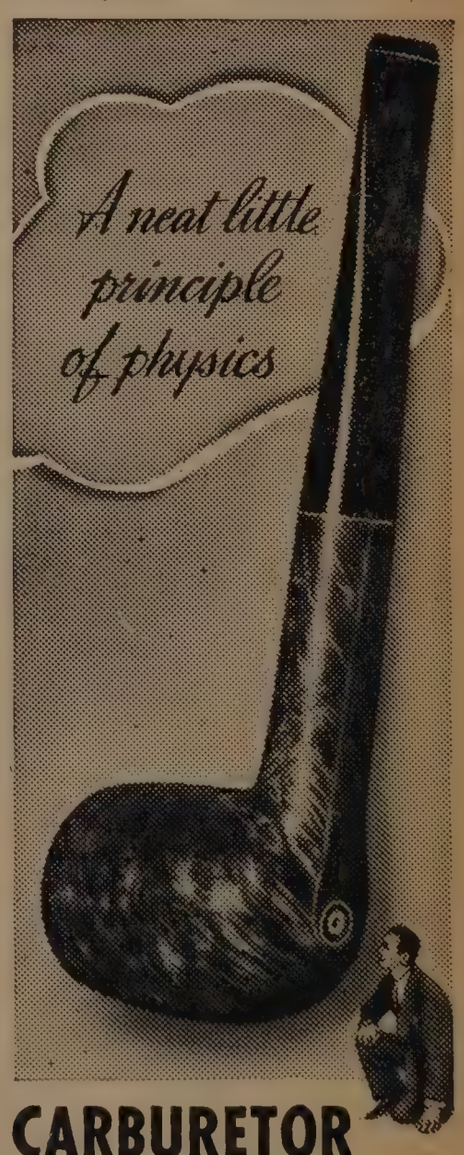
The National Guard has long been famous for its excellent work at all times, and these boys who are doing their bit in making our country a better and stronger nation are certainly worthy of commendation.

Glass Exhibit at Museum Enlarged

The glass exhibit at the museum has been somewhat enlarged with the addition of some commemoration pieces and exhibits of early American bottles.

"In the period from 1825 to 1860 glassware was often made to reflect the historic or political events of the day. This was especially true of the then fashionable cup plates." On exhibit are two, one to honor the English statesman and orator, John Bright and the other telling a tale of a stormy political campaign.

One very historical piece is a boat-shaped salt celler which was made by the Boston Sandwich Glass Co. to commemorate Lafayette's visit to America in 1828.



The bottle exhibit shows many unusual shapes and sizes. Some were made in the shape of soldiers, violins, pistols, animals, or had cartoons, rural scenes, advertising sketches and fraternal emblems pictured on them. "The history of bottle blowing in America began back in 1608 when a glass factory was established in the heart of Jamestown forest. Early bottles were rough and irregular at the mouth. Another characteristic was the pontil mark left on the bottom when the bottle was broken from the pontil bar which supported it while the workman was shaping the neck. A variety of colors were used: transparent white, pale blue, sapphire blue, light green, emerald green, olive and brown."

Both exhibits are of unusual interest and should be seen.

Exactly 260 colleges and universities are participating in the pilot training program of the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

CARBURETOR KAYWOODIE $4
U. S. Pat. No. 2,082,106
In this Kaywoodie pipe, called the Carburetor Kaywoodie, a wonderfully sweet-smoking pipe has been improved by the application of a neat little principle of physics. When you take a puff at one of these Carburetor Kaywoodies, you automatically draw air in through a tiny inlet in the bottom of the bowl. That incoming air keeps the smoke cool, sweet and serene, no matter how belligerently you puff. In fact, the harder you puff, the more air comes in. That's why it's called a Carburetor Kaywoodie. Everybody knows that a Kaywoodie is the most socially-conscious of pipes—gets itself admired everywhere. And the Kaywoodie Flavor is famous. But don't let us urge you—Shown above, No. 22.

Catamount Netmen Look to New Season

Nine Lettermen Available From Last Year's Champion Quintet; Sabo Expected to Capitalize on Exceptional Height of Squad

With nine lettermen returning from the state championship basketball team of last year, Coach Johnny Sabo has a fine nucleus from which to mold a winning combine.

The squad has been greatly strengthened by the addition of Frank Taylor, Johnny Spasyk, Red White, George Corsones and Bill Pye, who have just put their football togs in mothballs for another season. Anse Belardinelli, lost to the squad last winter with a bad knee, is again in good physical shape.

Although Capt. Hank Beauchemin and Pike Trigilio have left school, Coach Johnny Sabo is blessed with an abundance of fine material.

Vermont may open with a different ensemble than the team of 1939 which won ten and lost five games. Sabo will probably capitalize on the height he has available, pairing Anse in the back court with either Don Maley or Frank Taylor; Les Brown, an ace of last year's freshman quintet, is temporarily at center with Paul Corley and Dick Healy teaming up in the forecourt. Bill Pye is for the present lost to the team due to an injury received in a football game. His return will probably involve a switch, sending him into a forward position, although he played guard and center last year. This team will give the appearance of a group of giants as every man is six feet or over.

Opener to be With McGill

Still fighting it out for starting berths are Johnny Spasyk, Red White, Bud Allen, George Corsones and Dick Lynch. Regardless of who gets the starting positions, there will be a wealth of material sitting on the bench ready to spell the starting team.

The current season opens in less than two weeks with the McGill contest on December 2. This game comes during the Thanksgiving recess. The team will meet Dartmouth twice, Fordham, Tufts and St. Michael's before the Christmas holidays. The boys certainly have their work cut out for them, but recently Vermont sportsters seem to have the knack of pulling through in the clinches.

New Football Captains And Managers Elected

Frankie Taylor, the elusive and high-scoring left halfback of the varsity squad, was last Monday elected its captain for coming 1940 football season. Taylor is one of the players on the Associated Press' list of high scorers. He has gained 29 points for Vermont, 9 of which were made in the Vermont-Middlebury game. The new captain hails from Brattleboro, Vt., and besides his skill in football, he is also an excellent basketball and baseball player. He succeeds Bill Pye, captain of this year's team.

Phil Chesarone, center, was elected honorary captain of the Frosh eleven. Chesarone is from Waban, Mass. His fine playing did much to win the championship for the Yearlings.

R. G. Ramsdel, Jr., has been chosen to manage the affairs of the varsity football squad for the 1940 season.

The new Freshman manager is J. R. Royer.

The assistant managers elected are N. J. Boyden, Jr., and R. D. Wakefield.

Low-cost Golf in One Item; Membership 30 Cents a Year

Boston, Mass.—Harold W. Pierce, vice-president of the United States Golf Association, appealed to representatives at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Golf Association for better support for the U. S. G. A.

"Golf is facing a new period in its development in the United States," said Mr. Pierce, who continued:

"The U. S. G. A. deserves the support of every club and every player. For all the services provided by the U. S. G. A., the average annual cost per club member is only 30 cents. It is up to individual golfers to help the U. S. G. A. ensure strict observance of the amateur code; instances of laxness are continually cropping up."

Nineteen Gridsters To Get Letters

Frosh and Varsity Amass 6 Wins

With the close of another grid season it is once again our task to look back over the campaign and view the highlights. First of all comes the announcement that nineteen players are to be rewarded with varsity letters. Also numerals are to be presented to seventeen Frosh gridsters. The list is as follows:

Varsity—G. F. Babits, G. M. Broutsas, H. G. Carlson, G. D. Corsones, J. F. Corbett, N. E. Dubie, E. J. Kodys, M. J. Lawrence, C. G. Long, E. L. Nichols, R. D. Paterson, W. I. Pye, E. G. Reed, H. E. Rice, A. L. Shaw, J. J. Spasyk, N. K. Strassburg, F. M. Taylor, and J. J. White.

Freshmen—N. H. Beauleiu, W. J. Benoit, T. H. Buck, G. H. Carey, P. J. Chesarone, J. J. Fleming, R. E. Hennessy, W. J. Koladza, W. J. Lankton, J. F. McArdle, U. W. Otto, H. C. Parker, H. W. Parris, T. P. Sanders, F. R. Swift, J. G. Thurber, and H. P. Wood.

Sixty-minute Men

Of these lettermen Carlson, Spasyk and Taylor were in the lineup for the full sixty minutes of almost every game. The remainder of the squad also deserves mention for its fine playing in the face of injuries and larger opposing elevens.

A fast start and a glorious finish marked this year's gridiron season. Fielding a squad that was perhaps the smallest in Vermont history Coach Johnny Sabo managed to pull down three victories and two ties in eight tries. Traveling to Amherst as underdogs the Catamounts managed to startle everyone by staging a 7-6 upset. Frankie Taylor lived up to form as he romped 35 yards for a touchdown and followed this feat by a conversion of the extra point.

St. Lawrence, next on the schedule, fell in defeat before a large Homecoming Day crowd on Centenniel Field. Again it was Taylor who scored, once on a beautiful 64-yard run and again on a lateral from Spasyk.

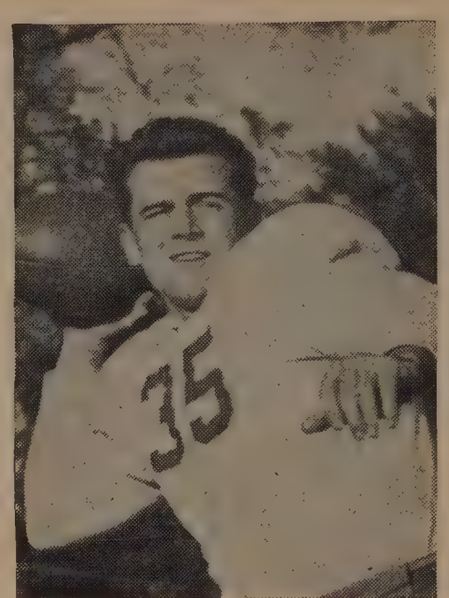
In succeeding games the injury jinx popped up and a riddled but game Catamount line-up met heavy going. After tying Colby games were dropped to Union, New Hampshire and Rensselaer. Despite these losses the Green and Gold showed exceptional fighting powers and against Union especially revealed an ability to fight bigger squads.

Glorious Finish

In their first state tilt against Norwich the Catamounts though outplayed all afternoon managed to gain a tie. With a strong Middelbury team out for scalps things looked black for the Green and Gold. But in a sudden burst of power an inspired Vermont eleven took the state title, 21-0.

With recruits coming up from the Frosh and most of this year's lettermen returning prospects next year look good. Under the capable captaincy of Frankie Taylor a fine season is in the offing, though it seems rather early to predict it.

The ability of the Catamount gridsters is very evident when we consider that Frank Taylor, Johnny Spasyk, Boots Lawrence, Swede Carlson and Norm Strassburg placed on the all-state eleven.



Turning to the Frosh we find Coach Evans' Kittens boasting of wins over the Dartmouth Frosh, Vermont Junior College and Middlebury Frosh. The only spot on their record is a 7-0 defeat at the hands of a strong Green Mountain Junior College eleven.

This year's Frosh were outstanding both in the backfield and on the line. Beaulieu, McArdle, Benoit and other fine players will be ready to bolster up the varsity next spring.

Summary:

	Won	Lost	Tied
Varsity	3	3	2
Frosh	3	1	0

New Grid Captain

FRANKIE TAYLOR

Francis Marshal (Frankie) Taylor of Brattleboro, star halfback, all-around athlete, junior, member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, a football "natural," rated one of outstanding small college backs in the East, in six years of high school and college football he has amassed 340 points, leading state schoolboy scorer in 1935 and 1936, tallied 29 out of 59 Vermont points this year.

Captain-elect of basketball, also expected to take part in track and baseball, succeeds Bill Pye of Pittsford as football captain. Hats off to you, Frankie.

Aspects of U. V. M. Football Discussed

Cynic Radio Program Presents Views of Students

In keeping with its policy of presenting constructive programs concerning current interests of the student body, the CYNIC Radio League program on Thursday, took up the problem of "Why we don't have enough men out for football and what can we do about it?"

The following men discussed the problem: G. B. Rood '42, W. I. Pye '41, R. Wolfe '42, E. Gasperini, Jr., '40, P. E. Patch '40, S. M. Grossman '43, N. D. Tucker '42, K. F. Beaton '40, M. J. Levin '41, R. M. Story, Jr., '40, J. P. Mahoney '41, M. K. O'Toole '43, H. V. Middleworth '40.

It was brought out in an informal chat, that the consensus of opinion was that the present subsidation of players is not effectively providing a sufficient group of football men. It was suggested that the good work now being done by the alumni group is not enough alone, and should be increased by school aid. The situation of a vicious circle arose when it was suggested that the alumni, not being thoroughly enthusiastic because of a mediocre showing by the football team, fail to support a proper subsidation of men and that this in turn, accounts for the lack of material that brings about the mediocre record. It was declared that if the university administration took a hand in the situation it might start the ball rolling to cause this circle of reaction to favor the team. It also seemed evident that the lapse in school morale concerning this activity was due to the mediocrity of the teams because of lack of material.

The program guests did not necessarily advocate gross commercialism in building up a team, but suggested several features to alleviate the problem.

One suggestion was that the school should establish, for a small fee, a training table and possibly living quarters for the players, during the football season. The training table would insure the proper nourishment for the hard-playing athletes, while the living quarters would insure enforcement of training rules. The fact that the many players have to work for their board and room, and still do their studying faithfully has led to the suggestion that the faculty members give special attention to the men during the season and that arrangements be made so that the athletes won't have to do work other than their practice and studying. Several of the speakers felt that since football was as much a character-builder as the glee club, newspaper, orchestra, etc. (for which activities scholarships are given) special athletic scholarships should be established by the school and alumni.

It was stated that many players receive lasting injuries from the game because there are no substitutes to relieve them after a minor injury. One speaker said "Let's compete with our opponents on equal terms."

ALONG THE SPORTS FRONT

By BILL ROEDER

Hoop Strings

With the election of Frankie Taylor as 1940 football captain and with the election of Frank Livak to the leadership of next year's varsity cross-country team, the 1939 fall sports go into the annals and become history. Only the pleasant memory of how a fighting Vermont gridiron squad, underdogs, outnumbered, but not outgamed, defeated a highly-touted superior Middlebury team remains. (We are not going to put salt on sore wounds and repeat particulars. Middlebury gets the CYNIC through its exchange column.)

Now all eyes turn to the Thanksgiving recess (pardon please if you're from a Democratic state) and the arrival of the winter sports. Once again King Basketball comes into prominence.

Year by year, bit by bit, Vermont has been pushing its way into big-time basketball. This season Fordham will be seen in Burlington; in 1941 the Cats will play at the Madison Square Garden. Of course the Big Green of Dartmouth will be opposed this year again.

This year's basketball outlook, even at this early date, can be seen to be very favorable. True Beauchemin and Trigilio (remember the first Dartmouth game last year) are gone. Bernie Levenson, star forward of last year's freshman club who Fuzzy Evans said is one of the best, if not the best, men he has ever coached, is also not in school. Nevertheless, Vermont is going to win many of its games. For not only has Sabo material for a potent first club, but also has a wealth of reserves.

At the pivot spot is Anse Belardinelli, last year's captain. If Belardinelli's old leg injury hinders him in any way, Les Brown, high scorer of last year's star freshman quintet, can capably fill in. In fact, Sabo may find it necessary to do some fancy shifting to make room for Les on the first club anyway.

Both the guards and forwards are having a battle royal in their fight for varsity spots. Not a man is sure of his position, including Capt. Frankie Taylor. Fighting for backcourt spots are four veterans from last year, four lettermen. At this present early date Taylor and Ace Healy seem to have the slight edge. But Don Maley isn't at all out of the picture and the injured Bill Pye is expected to return very shortly. And how about such new men as Pinky White and Dick Lynch? They can't be disregarded either.

Most promising of the forwards is the veteran Paul Corley, former Cathedral High sharp shooter. If Brown wins the center position, Belardinelli will fill in as the other forward. However, Hazen Wood and Harry Noyes, another man who played freshman basketball two years ago, are putting up one sweet battle to break up into the lineup. Yes, even Manager Wysolmerski is having his hands full. He has twice as many scrubs as he can possibly use and he also has to cut his squad.

Bowling

In the last few years the physical education department has extensively increased the intramural athletic curriculum. Among the new sports that have caught on are hockey, ice racing, rifle shooting, rugby and bowling—especially bowling. A beautiful rotating cup has been put into competition and the result—a keen competitive spirit. Even the faculty has entered the competition. And it's quite a sight to see Benny Wainwright throwing his slow hook, or Mr. Rooney let fly his straight, fast one. They're not bad either. And in the student body itself are some real good pinmen. Only a week ago Mickie Holtzman, in fraternity competition, rolled a single high string of 140.

FRENCH CLUB HAS VARIED PROGRAM FOR THIS YEAR

The officers of Le Cercle Français for this year are: J. Evans '41, president; Catherine Shalucha '40, vice-president; Gloria Oling '42, secretary; A. Haritos '40, treasurer; and Barbara Smith '40, social chairman. The meetings of this club are open to any interested students who wish to attend, whether they are taking a French course in college or not. Included in the program for these meetings are lectures, games, and French songs followed by refreshments. Le Cercle Français usually gives at least one French play in the spring, and this year more may be given if there is a large enough number of members, and if the interest is great enough.

FRANK H. LIVAK ELECTED CAPTAIN OF HARRIERS

Frank H. Livak was elected to succeed Harry M. Ketcham as captain of the varsity harriers. J. P. Hoyt, Jr. has been elected honorary captain of Archie Post's frosh runners.

The varsity manager post is filled by J. A. Root.

The freshman manager is G. H. Bailey. A. N. Gosline and F. E. Rivers are the assistant managers for the 1940 season.

Letters will be awarded to the following varsity runners for the 1939 season: J. C. Brsseau, J. S. Burgess, O. R. Clark, F. H. Livak, H. M. Ketcham (capt.), D. L. Moran, C. A. Webster, F. H. Webster, H. S. Wilson.

Frosh runners awarded letters were: J. L. Buttles, M. W. Crown, J. P. Hoyt, Jr., R. F. Ladd, E. F. St. Mary, Jr., R. C. West, R. S. White.

THIRTY FROSH ANSWER TO FIRST HOOP CALL

The first call for freshman basketball was issued by Coach John Evans for Monday evening at 7.00 p.m. at the gym. This call was answered by about thirty aspiring candidates. Some of this material is "green" and some of it fairly well experienced. Coach Evans was not able to tell much from the first workout, but he expects to be able to cut the squad to fifteen men by Saturday. This is necessary as the first game is only two weeks away.

The squad will be increased in size by the addition of the football players who do not report until Friday. This will give Coach "Fuzzy" Evans about forty-five men from which to weed out the less select material.

It is much too early to make any predictions about the success of the team but "Fuzzy" Evans seems to have the knack for putting out winning teams.

Leeds, England.—Leeds golfers are being asked to take gardening implements instead of clubs when they go on the city's four municipal courses. Plans are completed for mass cultivation of all land not used for the game.

The World Front

The "war of nerves" drags on in Europe and the neutrals look on. As they look, the neutrals are also maneuvering; in fact the longer the war lasts the more active the neutrals become and the less we hear about the belligerents. Finland had the spotlight for a while as she negotiated with Russia. Now the Finns have got tired of negotiating and gone home. The big question now is—will Russia be content to leave things as they are at present?

Turning to Belgium and the Netherlands we find them coming out with a peace proposal. Who started that? Was it Hitler's suggestion or France's or neither? Again your guess is as good as mine. One thing only is certain—the offer was rejected.

In the Balkans everything is so confused that it takes all day to even get the salient facts in mind. Yugoslavia is dickering with everybody, Bulgaria is wavering between Russia and Germany. If we turn to the Scandinavian countries we find that they are having a hard time keeping both Great Britain and Germany satisfied. The most ironical news of all is the little item about the French and British missions in Spain talking things over with neutral Franco who ascended to power with the aid of Germany and Italy.

In short we find the old, old law of interdependence working again. In the maintenance of their neutral rights the non-belligerent countries strike difficulty after difficulty. The suspension of normal trade and pursuits of peace has repercussions all over the world. On all sides the greater powers close in on the smaller and make them do their own bidding. It is not enough to keep out of war; that is merely the first phase of neutrality.

All of this sends us off into the airy realms of fantasy again. Up into the cloudless skies of idealism. Is there not some chance of a united action for peace on the part of the neutrals? After all a good campaign for peace which is organized and concentrated should have some effect. It is not enough for the neutrals to insist on neutral rights and try to maintain their own security for in the long run it is only by working for peace that they will avoid war. The longer the war lasts the better chance they have of being involved.

It is the duty of the neutrals to keep the war localized as much as possible. Then when the war ends, as all wars must, it is high time that rampant nationalism were thrown overboard. It is high time that a consciousness of cooperation with others were built up in the international community. The individualism of nationalism has given us nothing but war and anarchy in international evolution.

Nations have opposed the establishment of an international language. Why? Because if people could all understand each other race barriers might be broken down, nationalism would lose its strength. If soldiers could talk things over on the battlefield they might not be so anxious to kill each other. But as nations now must resort to war all progress toward peace is thwarted by an appeal to race, to nation, to flag.

Nothing is so boring in the world today as the chauvinistic flagwaving, the blatant patriotism of political leaders. Nothing is more terrifying than the sight of people dying for a bit of bunting on a pole, a misty ideal they scarcely comprehend, and a mysterious body called a nation. It is well and good to die for one's country but it is also foolish to keep on doing so century after century as mankind is doing.

After all isn't there something bigger than one's country, something more worthy of respect, something more noble to die for. When the world was created no one went around labeling one chunk America, another Germany, another France. No one said to Adam you're an American, or German, or Frenchman, or Englishman, and you owe allegiance to such and such a country. Allegiance everyone owes, yes, but it is allegiance to humanity and God not to creed narrowed by nationalistic bounds.

The term patriotism in its finest sense means the patriotism of Christ—the greatest patriot of all—loyalty to world not to country, to mankind not to race, to all not to one. Patriotism knows no bounds—the true patriot is a German, an American, or what have you—all in one. A true patriot is black or white or yellow or what have you—all in one. Patriotism lies in tolerance, broadmindedness and brotherhood not in pledging allegiance to a flag, marching in a parade or singing a national anthem.

When the world reaches that stage where it can abolish all national names it will be a lot better place to live in. When the world develops a sense of universal patriotism rather than national patriotism maybe we can forget about White War and Red War; neutrality and isolation; the Stars and Stripes and the Tricolor and the Union Jack; the Star Spangled Banner and God Save the King. That day may never come but you can't stop us from dreaming. After all, progress is a dream. A dream come true, reality interwoven with imagination and vision.

Hobo Review at Vermont

U. V. M. Students Have Native Musical Talent

Vermonters possess an unusual amount of native musical ability, in the opinion of Donald Gage, of Burlington, special student in music education at the University of Vermont. He thinks that much of this ability has not as yet been fully utilized. But he is full of hope for the state's musical future.

Gage ought to know about musical ability in the state, for he has been giving music lessons here during the greater part of the depression, and reports that his students never numbered less than sixty, often reaching eighty. He now has about forty pupils, all he has time for in addition to his schedule of study at the University. He is starting a men's chorus in Burlington, too, a new group intended especially for those men who are not in school or college, and not associated with some other musical group. The response to this has been hearty, and Gage hopes when the group is firmly on its feet to organize an oratorio society for both men and women. He is an old hand at these societies, having organized them in several communities. He had one of 250 members in St. Johnsbury.

Gage, who is 31 and a native Vermonter born in Lyndonville, started his career as a pianist at about 12 years. He gave concerts in New York and many smaller cities from the time he was 12 to about 15, Studying music in Cleveland, he joined his school choir and became interested in singing. It started when the choir master asked him to withdraw from the choir because his untrained voice was spoiling the tone of the group. However, soon after his first few lessons in voice, the school awarded him a $250 scholarship to keep on studying, and since that time, when he was about 17, has pursued his study of voice. He has studied in France, as well as at Cleveland, in New York and Boston. He is now working for his degree in music education at the University of Vermont. He still maintains a studio where he teaches voice in Barre, Vt., and drives over there two days a week after his morning classes at the University. His pupils are so numerous that he sometimes has to refuse those who want to study with him for lack of time. As it is, he teaches until 10 every evening that he spends at the Barre studio. He estimates he has had between 1,200 and 1,500 pupils in the years that he has taught—and that is since he started instructing in piano at the age of 13.

Last year he sang in almost all of the University concerts, the opera, and in a local production of Carmen, with the Vermont Symphony Orchestra, and in numerous oratorio societies throughout the state. Last Holy Week, he says, he sang with seven such oratorio societies.

Results of First Press Club Cut

The list of members of the Press Club for 1939-40 has been announced and posted on the bulletin board, and consists of the following names: Pauline Baily '41, Barbara Blodgett '41, Gertrude Burbank '40, Lina Caravatti '40, Margaret Cass '41, Ruth Connor '41, Elizabeth Doton '41, Angeline Ducas '41, Miriam Fiske '42, Doris Kinsley '40, Gwendolyn Marshia '42, Charlotte Martin '43, Ruth Miller '42, Lois Murray '40, Dawn Nichols '41, Elizabeth Pratt '43, Hester Rice '42, Beatrice Wright '42, Helena Anderson '43, Dorothy Nichols '41.

This list is the result of the first cut. Mary Nelson, president of the Press Club, has announced that a meeting will he held in the near future to revise the schedule and discuss new rules.

Library to Display First Books Acquired

University of Vermont students will soon be able to walk into the college library and examine most of the first books which ever came to that library, when a display of 24 of the 31 volumes listed by the first president of the University is set up. These are reference books which were available to students of almost a hundred and forty years ago, when the infant University of Vermont had still to graduate its first class in 1804.

The list of 31 volumes, first accessions to the University library, was found among the corporation records of the University. It is in the handwriting of the Rev Daniel C. Sanders, first president of the University. A search in the Library catalog has uncovered 24 of the original 31 volumes, and these, together with a photostat copy of the original list in President Sanders' writing, are to be displayed. These first 31 volumes antedated the building of the present Billings Library by more than eighty years, being acquired by the University in 1802.

When the University Library started with this original 31 volumes, the president of the University, in addition to doing most of the teaching and conducting most of the business affairs of the institution, was also college librarian. Records show that at a meeting of the board of trustees of the University, November 6, 1802, it was voted "That the President take charge of all books presented or purchased for the college library; to loan them to students under such regulations as he shall prescribe; to enter names of donors of books in the first blank leaves of the same, together with number."

Books found include Miller's Septuagint, dated 1725; Biblia Hebraica, 1705; Erasmus Darwin's Zoonomia, 1800; Ralph Winterton's Poetae; Graeci Minores, 1635; Logick, Isaac Watts, 1745; The History of the Corruptions of Christianity, Joseph Priestley, 1793; Sermons, Joseph Fawcett, 1801; Observations on Man, David Hartley, 1801; Experiments and Observations on Different Kinds of Air, Joseph Priestley; Paine's Geography.

Books not yet found from the list are Facsimile Letters of George Washington; Pythologia; Rhetoric and Principles of Oratory, anonymous; Theolobia, in libris duobus, Cole's Dictionary, and Cicero's Orations.

Among those who gave these books to the University were the Honorable Isaac Tichenor, a former Governor of Vermont, the Rev. Abel Newell, a Mr. Brookes of New York, the Hon. L. Woodbridge, and a Doctor Cobb of Charlotte.

Prof. Julian I. Lindsay of the University English Department who is now engaged in writing a History of the University of Vermont, found the list of these first books to enter the University library, and has pursued the search for the originals. He wishes to obtain source material for the history, and would like to receive old letters, diaries, records of all sorts, and relics and mementoes which concern the University or people associated with it in any way. It is thought that some of those first books which have not yet been found in the library may come to light. Personal letters and writings are especially wanted. The history is being written in connection with the approach of the University's hundred and fiftieth year, which will be celebrated in 1941.

W. A. A. Notes

On Saturday at 1.45 in the Southwick gym, there will be a test for basketball referee ratings of the women's basketball candidates. Olive Krogman, a graduate student of U. V. M., supervisor of physical education in Burlington public schools and an official state basketball judge will be present, and also Louise Willis, a graduate of U. V. M. and a member of the national board of judges. There are fourteen girls now enrolled in this officiative course.

Plans are being made to start a zone basketball tournament. It is hoped that each dorm will have a team, and also that the town girls will join a team made up in their zone. All those interested in playing on a team, please sign up.

Saturday afternoon, Miss Krogman and Miss Crowe will go to Bellows Falls to give an interpretation and demonstration of basketball rules. This, too, is in the hope of furthering the idea of women playing by women's rules.

Teachers of physical education in the nearby community have been invited to Southwick Saturday afternoon to a demonstration of new folk dances given by Miss Cummings and Miss Hazard.

SCHOOL SPIRIT GREATLY ENLIVENED AT U. V. M.

Increased pep in cheering and singing was noticed when Vermont's newly elected Princess of Pep, Joyce Bone '43, went into action. After a good show of cheering and singing the hobos gathered around the bonfire to watch the burning of Middlebury in effigy. This was accompanied by a general uproar and cheers from the lusty voices of the U. V. M. bums. Never have any hobos shown as much pep as was displayed here.

With our Princess of Pep at the head, the spirited crowd tramped downtown, going down Main Street, along Church and up Pearl, causing a general disturbance. Any hobo would have been safe in Burlington Friday night.

Our "Beat Middlebury" pep rally was brought to a close with evidence of increased school spirit.

Gym Teachers Play In N. E. Hockey Tourney

Miss Barbara Crowe and Miss Rosemary Hazard spent last week-end in Delmar, N. Y., playing in the Northeast Hockey Tournament. It began on Friday morning, lasting through Sunday, and was sponsored by the Mohawk Club of Albany.

The United States is divided into five sections, the Northeast, Southeast, Midwest, Great Lakes, and Mid-Atlantic, which has been organized within the last year by Pennsylvania teams. Every year each section has a tournament for the associations and clubs in its section to choose the teams to go to the national tournament, and there to choose girls for the national first and second teams. The national tournament this year is held at Cleveland, Ohio, November 24, 25 and 26.

Both Miss Crowe and Miss Hazard belong to the Mohawk Club, and although the club is an independently active one, because it is new and still rather small, it has shown some fine playing, and both the girls are very enthusiastic over it.

There were other independent clubs at the Northeast Tournament—the Providence and the Worcester teams, as well as the large hockey association teams from Boston, Greenwich, Long Island, and New York. Each association sent three teams, so there were about 175 girls present. They played eight games a day, from 10 in the morning, until 4 in the afternoon, with both hockey fields in use all the time.

Miss Crowe has been playing in these tournaments since 1932, and is just as ardent about them as ever. She has played with the Boston team, until last year, when she played in the Great Lake section. She was chairman of the Selection Committee, which chose the players for the first and second teams, and was automatically sent to the national tournament in Philadelphia, which was quite a thrill. The members of this committee played in all their own team games, and selected the rest of the time. Miss Crowe was chosen for the first team of the United States Field Hockey Association last year, and this year has again made the team to go out to the national tournament, bue due to inconvenience of date, she will be unable to attend. She was also on the rating committee, and received her national rating last year in Cleveland.

Museum Notes

Mr. John Bailey, archaeologist, was speaker on Tuesday, November 14, at a supper meeting of the Men's Club of the Unitarian Church. His talk was on Evacuations in Addison County by the Champlain Valley Archaeological Society. This takes the score for the archaeological lecture up to eight, both Mr. Bailey, Mr. Eldred, and the director having given it repeatedly.

The collection of pictures known as the "Winterbotham Prints" are now at Barre, being exhibited in the local high school. The prints are facsimile reproductions of oils by recent and contemporary French artists. There are twenty-eight framed pictures in the set, which was presented to the museum in 1931 by Mr. Joseph Winterbotham of Burlington. It was planned as a travelling exhibit, and has covered a great deal of mileage both in the state and outside of Vermont.

When the collection leaves Barre, it will be shown at other schools in the section, after which it will be loaned to the school board of Burlington for use in the new Taft school, where it will remain until required for exhibition at some art gallery elsewhere.

For the opening of the Taft school, from November 17th to 20th, the museum has loaned to Mr. Hunt and Miss Coburn a group of oil paintings, in order to make the school rooms more attractive.

THE REV. C. F. HAGAR SPEAKER AT CHAPEL

At the Chapel service on Wednesday, November 22, the Rev. C. F. Hagar of Vergennes spoke to a large group of the students and faculty on "The Great Throng of the Unknown Who Have Been Faithful to Their Trust." He stressed that there are many who are cursing the times today. Today we are living in a world responsible for the rise of such men as Hitler. A world which after the last war did not learn a lesson great enough to keep us from going into another twenty-five years later. Perhaps then it is not yet worthy of peace.

God sent Jesus to us is the most glorious thing we can say about our world. God is somewhere in the world with us, therefore, let us at this Thanksgiving thank God for those who have had faith and kept their ideals.

Rev. Kelley to Discuss 'The Church and College'

"The Church's Contribution to College Life" will be the subject of the sermon at St. Paul's Episcopal Church on Sunday, November 26. The preacher is to be the Rev. Alden D. Kelley, newly appointed head of Episcopal Student Work in America. Doctor Kelley's position is that of advisor to the 400 clergymen who minister to the 65,000 Episcopalians in college communities throughout the United States, and he brings to his work eight years' experience as student chaplain at the University of Wisconsin, and head of the student center.

In addition to preaching at the morning service, Doctor Kelley will be guest of honor at an informal supper at 7.00 p.m. in St. Paul's parish house Sunday evening. All Episcopal students and faculty members are cordially invited to attend. This informal meeting will give the students an opportunity to meet Doctor Kelley personally and learn at first hand of the work being done on other campuses.

St. Paul's Church is very grateful for the privilege of entertaining so distinguished a visitor. Although only thirty-six years old, he was chosen for his important post because of exceptional training and ability. His education includes work at Tufts College, Boston University and the New York School of Social Work. He holds the degree of Master of Arts from the University of Wisconsin, and graduated from the General Theological Seminary in New York, from which he also received the degree of S.T.B. in 1931.

Students planning to attend the supper are asked to call 3036 and make reservations. There is no charge.

INTRODUCING

PHYLLIS MCGOVERN

It seems as if everyone on campus either knows or should know Phyllis McGovern, who has been interviewed for the CYNIC as this week's prominent senior. She is a very charming and gracious girl with a lovely smile. She has a hand in so many college activities that it would be difficult to find anyone more genuinely interested in college affairs.

Phyllis was born in Richmond, right here in Vermont, but has lived most of her life in Cambridge, also Vermont. According to her own viewpoint, she had a very uneventful childhood, and nothing much exciting happened to her. Since coming to U. V. M., however, things have been different. For instance, in her sophomore year she was crowned Snow Queen at the opening of the Jeffersonville Ski Club. (This would never have come to light through Phyllis herself, but the reporter had already heard about it and demanded to know the whole story.) However, Phyllis remembers two things very vividly—the ice throne was extremely beautiful and the weather was so cold she nearly froze to death while in the process of being queen.

Active in Many School Activities

She is now a dignified senior in the home economics course, and is hoping to do some kind of work in merchandising after she graduates next June. Here in college she has taken part in many activities, being president of Mortar Board, vice-president of Student Union, a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, in Outing Club, Press Club, Home Economics Club, and in addition to all these, being on the dean's list. This will give you a slight idea of her ability and accomplishments.

No interview would be complete without a few of the likes and dislikes of the person being interviewed, so Phyllis obligingly stated some of hers. Her favorite food (or one of them) is steak; she likes bowling, skiing and skating and is still taking gym; her favorite actors are Charles Boyer and Herbert Marshall; actresses, May Robson and Helen Hayes. (She also admires Bette Davis greatly, except for her eyes, which, Phyllis says, drive her to distraction because they protrude.)

Asked about her dislikes, Phyllis sighed and said that this was the time of year when you develop three or four dislikes you never had before. Aside from this, she specifically mentioned eight o'clock classes (yes, and even eight-thirty ones), and people who chew gum in exams.

In a more serious mood, she revealed that she is particularly interested in a centralized housing system for both men and women here at U. V. M., and feels that there should be better eating facilities for both the students and the faculty. (Enlargement of the Coffee Corner was one helpful suggestion.)

Phyllis believes that a college education is an almost indispensable part of one's life, and should be taken seriously and with earnest effort, because not everyone is privileged enough to be able to attend college. Her own activities and the honors which have been bestowed upon her attest to the fact that she is sincere in her beliefs.

HARVARD, YALE, PRINCETON TOPS IN U. S. GOV'T

Washington, D. C. (ACP).—The U. S. state department may be the representative to the world of the entire nation, but it's a Harvard-Yale-Princeton delegation so far as the country's colleges are concerned.

A recent study of the approximately 700 members of this particular governmental unit reveals that almost 25 percent are from the big three universities of the East, with Harvard ranking first, Yale second and Princeton third.

Next in rank come Cornell, Dartmouth, Stanford, California, Michigan and Minnesota. All told, there are 150 alma maters represented.

Gym Classes to See Basketball Film

A basketball film will be shown on December 8 at 4.30 at Southwick, and again Saturday morning in the Fleming Museum at 10.30. Since the classes are omitted the 28th and 29th, attendance of students in classes on these days will be required at the movie. These classes include freshman gym, the dance workshop group, sophomore badminton classes, elementary education class, fencing, golf, bowling, and sophomore basketball instruction class. It is hoped that as many students as possible will attend the Friday lecture, as some twenty high school coaches and their girls will attend the Saturday morning lecture.

This is a film, made by New York University students, concerning fouls and violations. Shots are taken in both normal and slow motion photography. It is sponsored by the State Basketball Committee, of which Miss Crowe is chairman, and by the National Section of Women's Association, of which Miss Hazard is our state representative.

The purpose is to further the practice of women's backetball played by women's rules. It promises to be interesting and helpful to all students, especially to the freshmen, who begin basketball after Thanksgiving recess.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

"So long as there is peace colleges should insist on living their normal life, rather than pretend that we can live a double life. We cannot at once be a place of free discussion and a place of war preparation." Union College's Pres. Dixon Ryan Fox asks higher education to ignore war until the United States is actually in the conflict.

This year's college and university enrollment in the U. S. is expected to total approximately 1,400,000.

Do you guess at your camera exposures? That's risky and unnecessary. We carry the Leudi, Weston, General Electric, Argus and several other makes to choose from.

Directors Announce New Kake Walk Regulations

Changes to be Effective Only for 1940 Festival

Kake Walk, that highlight of the Vermont entertainment year, may seem a long way off in these snowless fall days. But the directors have long been at work on plans to make this 1940 Kake Walk better the lofty standards of this traditional festival. C. H. Schofield '40 and R. W. Robinson '40, this year's directors, have announced certain fundamental changes in the rules and procedure of the Kake Walk stunts.

After lengthy discussions among members of the Interfraternity Council, the Athletic Council, last year's directors, and this year's, the new regulations have been agreed upon. The red tape has all been cut away, and the rules have been given to President Bailey for approval. The directors feel, therefore, that it is only fair to let all those interested know of the changes, so that the early birds may plan accordingly. They want to emphasize, however, that these rules will be in effect for one year only, becoming permanent if they turn out successfully this year.

Here follows a copy of the proposed changes:

1. There are ten fraternities and the Independents who are eligible to have competitive stunts at Kake Walk time.

2. The ten fraternities and Independents are required to submit a complete plot in detail together with a complete statement of all proposed properties and lighting with an explanation of their use to a committee composed of three judges on or before February 3 at 12 o'clock noon. No changes in the original stunt as written will be allowed without the approval of the committee, nor will any fraternity be eligible to compete which has not submitted its plot in detail as stated above.

3. Six stunts will be chosen from the detailed plots submitted not later than Monday, February 5.

4. One fraternity will be eliminated from the six selected at a dress rehearsal with all properties and lighting in effect on Thursday, February 15. The five remaining fraternities will be the final entrants for Kake Walk on Saturday evening, February 24.

5. The six fraternities originally selected will be reimbursed up to an amount of $40 for expense of properties and any other expense incident to the perfection of the stunt. Payment will be made only for actual expense as established by receipted vouchers.

6. The fraternity or group having the winning stunt will receive an additional prize of $50.

7. It should be understood that this plan is to be adopted for one year only and that the clauses in regard to reimbursement are dependent on the financial success of Kake Walk.

Carl H. Schofield,
Kake Walk Directors.

Stradivarius Quartet To Appear Next Week

The coming of the Stradivarius Quartet to our campus is looked forward to with great anticipation. They will come on Tuesday afternoon following our vacation recess, and will stay for two full days, during which there will be an informal tea at Southwick, a formal concert, and a few selections given at chapel service, in addition to informal discussions and interviews. The quartet will make their headquarters at Southwick, and will lunch at several of the dormitories.

This quartet is the outgrowth of the Flonzaley Quartet which disbanded in 1929. Two of the members were with that group. Wolfe Wolfinsohn plays first violin, Bernard Robbins, second, Marcel Dick plays the viola, and Iwan d'Archambeau, the cello. They all have famous Stradivarius instruments.

They will furnish a program of entirely modern music, drawn from the works of Ravel, Hindemith, Bartok, Martinu and Stravinsky.

The formal concert on Wednesday evening, consisting of music by Haydn, Beethoven and Brahms, has aroused much interest. Elsa Kremers Bennett, pianist, who is well known for her performance this fall of Franck's "Symphonic Variations" with the Vermont Symphony Orchestra, and former performances of Beethoven's Waldstein and Apassionata sonatas and Grieg concerto, will assist the group performing Brahms' "Quintet in F Minor." Mrs. Bennett received her master's degree in composition at Vassar, studied under Townsend at the University of Wisconsin, and under Steudrmann in Vienna.

Don't miss this opportunity of hearing some very fine music. Student tickets of twenty-five cents went on sale yesterday at Bailey's Music Rooms and the University Store. Buy your tickets early.

All women "Under Rules" who plan to remain in Burlington during the Thanksgiving holiday should leave their names in the office of the dean of women immediately.

PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP HOLDS SOCIAL EVENING

It was fun night at the First Church parish house Sunday night. After a devotional service led by M. S. Pike '42 there was a social upstairs. Games were in charge of K. W. Hoffman '40, assisted by W. M. Colehamer '41. Refreshments and a "get acquainted hour" followed, so that, with the help of name cards, the members of the group had a good time getting to know more of their campus colleagues.

Varsity Debating Team Travels to New York

Sallying forth from the home campus for the first time this year, the men's varsity debating team will leave Wednesday noon for a five-day Thanksgiving trip to New York City, carrying with it the honors and record of the great Vermont men's debating teams which have lost but a single decision in the last two years of competition, though meeting teams from nearly all of the largest schools in the east, south, and midwest.

A. H. Becker '41, manager of debate, announced recently that the team will meet speakers from Union College in Schenectady, and Manhattan College and Fordham University in New York City. The question to be discussed in all three encounters is "Resolved, That the United States should follow a policy of strict (economic and military) isolation toward all nations engaged in armed international or civil conflict."

Three men, H. A. Becker '41, H. A. Durfee '41, and J. G. Cohen '42, will make the trip. Becker, pre-med student, is the only veteran of last year's team, which made a spring trip to Winter Park, Fla., remaining on the squad. He is a member of Key and Serpent, and a Cf&|3 news editor. Durfee, taking the Social Science Curricula, also had varsity experience with last year's team, and is prominent on the campus. Cohen, a pre-med, moves up from last year's freshman team, and shows promise of being a great varsity speaker. He is also the Cynic radio editor.

INDEPENDENTS MEET; ELECT NEW OFFICERS

A very important meeting of the Independents was held Monday at the Fleming Museum. The meeting was brought to order by the president, J. P. Mahoney '41. The following vice-presidents, one from each class, were elected: F. A. Kennedy from the senior class, J. C. Broutsas from the junior class, C. A. Webster from the sophomore class, and J. P. Hoyt from the freshman class. The meeting adjourned after the short discussion that followed.

Basketball practice should start very soon. Those who intend to play basketball or hockey should come to the next two meetings. The next meeting will be held Monday night at 7.30 in the Fleming Museum.

Upon invitation of the Radio Cynic staff the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity spent a few weeks in organizing their glee club and on Thursday evening exhibited a fine array of collegiate musical talent. The glee club is composed entirely of members of the S A E fraternity, winner of the interfraternity sing held last year. The glee club was organized and directed by that talented and promising young maestro Louie Pichierri '41. Mr. Pichierri showed fine musical skill in several of the harmonic arrangements.

Better Kake Walk Skits

In this issue of the CYNIC will be found the regulations which will govern the fraternity skits in the production of the 1940 Kake Walk. A word or two of explanation does not seem amiss at this time.

In order to achieve the utmost benefit from the regulations it is best that all concerned be aware of their origin and the necessity for their existence.

At the conclusion of Kake Walk last year fraternity men were well aware of the fact that although some of the skits were fairly good, many of them were only mediocre and a few of them were distinctly poor. Realizing that the success of Kake Walk depends to a large extent on the quality of the skits presented, fraternity men were anxious to remedy this situation. They felt that in order to maintain the support of the student body and the alumni the level of the skits must be raised. The success of Kake Walk as a homecoming day for the alumni also hung in the balance.

Consequently, the fraternity men, voicing their opinion through their usual medium, the Interfraternity Council, requested that the fraternities be given some remuneration in order to better their stunts in the future. This request was presented to the directors of Kake Walk and the Graduate Manager of Athletics who has acted as advisor to Kake Walk directors for many years.

These worthies agreed that financial aid would undoubtedly raise the level of the skits, but also argued that for the most part the skits were poorly prepared. They pointed out that all too often the fraternities waited until a week or ten days previous to Kake Walk before beginning the actual work on the planning and production of their skits. Fraternity men admitted this was true. These frank admissions by both parties concerned placed the matter upon a basis from which the problem could be attacked.

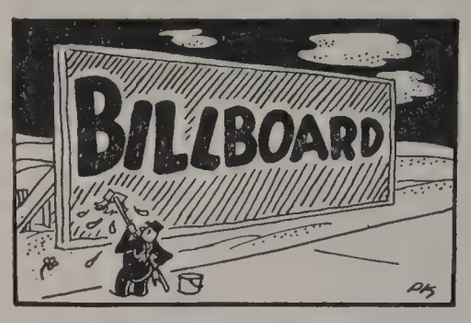
Several meetings were held, from which evolved a plan which promised to solve the problem and satisfy all concerned. This plan was presented to the University Council and was subsequently approved.

The regulations now require the fraternities to submit a detailed plot and a statement of all proposed properties three weeks before the date of Kake Walk and also require the fraternities to put on a complete dress rehearsal ten days before Kake Walk. The six fraternities surviving the primary elimination, on the other hand, will be reimbursed up to $40 for the expenses required by the properties incident to the perfection of the skits.

This common-sense solution of the problem points the way toward a successful Kake Walk in 1940. Let us hope that this will be so and that the coming Kake Walk will be the biggest and best yet.

Rushing and Hour Exams

It is not the policy of this writer to constantly heckle the faculty in the performance of their duties, but neither is it our policy to stand idly by while they pursue a line of action detrimental to the welfare of the student body. Therefore, we feel it our duty to mention any instance of the sort whenever it occurs.



In this case we refer to the matter of women's rushing. We understand that the administrative officials of the University were anxious to change women's rushing from the second semester basis to the first semester plan. They promised that if Pan-Hellenic agreed to adopt the first semester system they would guarantee that no hour exams would be held during that period which culminated women's rushing activities. We find that the promise was not kept; many exams were scheduled for that period. Now the profs complain that cutting has been excessive. The only suitable retort is to remind them of their promise. In the future if we make a bargain, let's stick to it.

SPECIAL VACATION TRAIN

The Thanksgiving special will leave at a different time this year.

In connection with the Thanksgiving vacation period the Rutland Railroad has made arrangements to have the "Green Mountain Flyer" leave Burlington's Union Station on Wednesday, November 29, at 12.30 p.m. instead of 12.15.

The railroad officials want to emphasize the importance of buying tickets in advance in order to eliminate last minute congestion at the ticket office.

Tryouts for freshmen or upperclass women for Bluestockings, women's literary club. Contributions of the following: poetry, short story, essay, book review, or play. All manuscripts must be in at close of Thanksgiving vacation and left at the desk in the library.

Anyone interested in taking part in programs of the Cynic Radio League, and wish to offer either their own performing ability, or suggestions for broadcasts, leave a note addressed to the Radio Editor in the Cynic office.

Outing Club Issues Call for Ski Patrol

Vermont students, come out for the ski patrol course. Our ski team needs a patrol to run races and protect the team. Last Thursday only eight turned out for the course. Dr. H. E. Upton gave the first lecture on the elements and purpose of first aid. Dr. Robert Jenks will assist Doctor Upton in the other lectures. The course consists of twenty hours of preliminary instruction and ten hours of practical ski work out of doors. Anyone who satisfactorily completes the course will be recognized by the National Ski Patrol. A member of such a class must be sixteen, a passable skier and willing to put in the necessary time. The next meeting will be Tuesday, November 28, at the gym. It's not too late to join, so let's see a good crowd.

MEMBERS OF TRI DELTA HONOR FOUNDERS TODAY

This evening at 7.00 o'clock Eta and Eta Alliance Chapter will held a Founder's Day banquet at the chapter house subsequent to the initiation ceremonies which are to be held for Carol Westall, '40, Lucille Clark '42, and Jean Young '42. The chairman of the banquet is Marjorie Albro '42.

The celebration marks the founding of Delta Delta Delta at Boston University on Thanksgiving eve, 1888. The local chapter here at the University is one of the oldest chapters of the fraternity. It was established at Vermont in 1893. With over 27,000 members, Tri Delta stands high among the Pan-Hellenic groups in position of size, age, and financial stability. The eighty-seven collegiate chapters in the United States and Canada and the one hundred and twenty-seven alumnae groups found throughout the country, each year set aside one evening to pay homage to their founders.

Delta Delta Delta is the first women's fraternity to establish a philanthropy for college women. At the semi-centennial anniversary last year a new endowment fund was created to supplement already existing collegiate scholarships. The Anniversary Fellowship Fund is used to aid graduate members in specialized pursuits and thus is established as part of the national educational service as well as for the development of the individual, which are both in keeping with the general policies and high aims of the group.

The Saturday Letter

November 25, 1939.

Dear Mom:

We are always talking about turkey and saying, "Yum! Yum!" but you know as well as we do that the turkey talk is just "fill in" conversation and that the real reason we come home at Thanksgiving is to see you. So, since Thanksgiving is really mother's day, how about a letter to you?

Let's see! How shall we start? We might say, "Now I take my pen in hand" but someone else used that for a beginning some time or other, so suppose we say right in by saying that although we call you "Mon," "Mud," "Suz," "Ma-me," "Hey there," and "Say," you know, as well as we do, that we are telling you that you are the most wonderful mother in all the world and that we appreciate every day, minute, and second so freely given to guarantee our safety, our care and our happiness. We appropriate items of your personal property, keep you busy picking up our belongings, worry you with our escapades, keep you awake with our late-hour jabbering, raid your carefully filled larder and snitch articles of your clothing, but you know, as well as we do, that every act is an act of love and devotion. We drag you about to endless parties, receptions, teas, ball games, movies, vacation tours, shopping trips, and house warmings, and we pretend, and you pretend, that the whole business is a terrible bore; but you know as we know, that no outing can be complete without you.

Mathematically there's an anniversary coming up but what do years mean when eternal values are considered. One year, thirty, or a million! It's all one and the same! Things are as they are—have always been so—and always will be. There's no percentage in the numerical label of the anniversary. The percentage resides in the fact that there is such a perfect combination of factors. It is not a matter of timed celebration to be sure for an hour, or a day, or a year, but a continuous celebration that has no end.

The flowers, the candy, and the bouquets are important, of course, but the big thing is that these are only symbols standing for affection, respect and love. We shall sing "Hail to Thee," and speak our congratulations, but deep down in our hearts we shall be giving silent thanks for your many gifts to us and extending fervent prayers for your happiness and well-being.

So when we shout, "Hi, Mom!" there is a lot more involved than five letters and an exclamation point. But, you know and we know, so all's well with the world.

Very truly,

Sabo Hoopsters Prepare for McGill

Two Veteran Teams Report for Practice

With the opener against McGill only a few days away, the Catamounts are settling down to intensive practice. This year's squad is out to maintain the fine performances of the past three years. Catamount quintets amassed ten wins and five defeats in '36 and '37 and last year came through with ten wins in fourteen starts.

A squad of a dozen men who have been taking nightly work-outs for the last month in preparation for the opening bout with McGill early in December has now been augmented by several men off the football team. Among the new accessions are Taylor, Pye and Corsones, also Spasyk, who captained last year's freshman five.

Despite the loss of Beauchemin, last season's high scorer, who will return to Vermont the second semester but will be ineligible, and Pike Trigilio, Sabo has what promises to be the best squad in many years.

In the forward court Paul Corley, former Cathedral star, is much improved. Frank Taylor, a fast man, good shot and cagy dribbler, returns this year to the position which he played in high school. Last year he was shifted to guard, where he was needed more than in the forward wall. Ace Healy, a substitute last year who was responsible for last-minute victories against Amherst and Middlebury, rounds out the list of forwards.

At center we find Les Brown, a lanky, sharpshooter who led the freshman quintet to victory last year along with Bernie Levison who has left school this year.

Belardinelli is expected to start at one of the guard positions. Playing pivot last year, Anse sustained a knee injury in the Williams game which benched him for the rest of the season. This year he takes a guard position in order to favor that knee injury. Don Maley, the other guard, came up fast last year from a substitute and was soon starting most of the games. This year he should be primed for action.

Among the other reserves are Spasyk, White, Corsones and Lynch. Hawkins, Hart and Noyes, experienced upperclass players, are also on the squad, as are Wood and Roeder of last year's freshman team.

The abundance of good material assures Coach Sabo of a powerful squad. The reserve strength will be needed, however, to get through a hard schedule which includes games with Dartmouth and Fordham.

RIFLE MATCH POSTPONED

The rifle match scheduled for Saturday, November 25, was postponed by the opponents, Clarkson Tech, as Clarkson is in New York State and the Tech rifle team was absent for the Thanksgiving holiday.

FROSH BASKETBALL SQUAD HALVED

After putting his thirty-odd candidates through a week's paces, Coach Fuzzy Evans cut his freshman basketball squad down to a working unit of seventeen men Saturday.

Evans drilled the group in cutting and pivoting through the week and allowed them to scrimmage for the first time Saturday.

The roster: Kaufman, Ben Parker, Krupp, Wansor, Hyne, Elliott, West, Lankton, Doherty, Bloomer, Hamilton, Chesarone, Corbett, Beaulieu, Grosvenor, Potter and Viens.

Kappa chapter of Tau Epsilon Phi is pleased to announce the formal initiation of S. Dreier '41, New York City, C. Itzkowiz '42, New London, Conn., and H. Basch '42, Hartford, Conn., on Sunday, November 19.

Independents Plan Reorganized Chapter

Contrary to all reports that he has been impeached, J. P. Mahoney '41 is still banging away on sixteen cylinders as president of the Vermont Independents. Try as they might the old boys could not unseat him and his hold on the helm of leadership is as strong as ever.

Right now J. P. is sticking out his chin and demands representation on the Interfraternity Council. According to him, the Council brothers have been evading the question of this representation for the Independents and he cannot see why. The constitution of the council reads that any organized group that is duly represented has the right to a voice on this council. Mr. Kennedy, statistician for the Independents, wore out four lead pencils and one and two-thirds typewriters in compiling the figures that prove conclusively the Independents represent 59.2 percent of the male student body at U. V. M.

From these figures, Mahoney points out that all the fraternities on the hill represent only 40.8 percent of the student body. If this combined 40.8 percent have representation, why shouldn't a group that has 59.2 percent of the students back of it be allowed a voice in the Interfraternity Council?

"Surely," said Mahoney, "it can't be that our group has no social activities. We are represented in intramural sports and we put on a public dance once a year, and, by the way, we turn out some pretty good athletic teams, too."

And right now that power has reached the point where he and his followers are demanding recognition on the aforesaid council. And if they don't get it they want to know why not. J. P. dares anyone with the proper backing to write him publicly through means of the columns of the CYNIC. He wants a reasonable explanation of why the Independents are not represented on this council. The sooner this reply is forthcoming the better the Independents will like it because they certainly are on the war path and membership on that council is the scalp they are after. And don't forget J. P. Mahoney is leading this fight and you know the Irish. Well, may the best man win.

1941 Ariel Staff Reports Progress On Year Book

Work on the Ariel is moving along slowly but steadily. Activity write-ups are up to date, and most of the photography is finished with the exception of some more group pictures to be taken in January. These will include the sororities, which must be delayed due to rushing, and various re-sittings. The spring athletics have yet to be done, and also the basketball era, Kake Walk, and intramural sports. All of these things are incidental and routine, however. As pointed out by Ransom Slack '41, editor-in-chief, in his editorial last week, the chief factor that will determine whether the Ariel comes out May 1 or August 1 is, naturally, the cooperation of the student body. One thing is pretty sure—we all want our Ariels before the middle of summer! It's nice to feel that you're a part of a thing; there's nothing like cooperation to make you feel just that way!

PATCH AND GASPERINI TO ATTEND CONVENTION

This year for the thirty-first time delegates will meet to discuss fraternity affairs. The scene this Christmas will be New York's Hotel Biltmore and the time December 1 and 2. Vermont will send Peter Patch, President of the Interfraternity Council, and Eugene Gasperini to the convention.

Emphasis will be placed in discussing the fraternity as it relates to national affairs. Among the speeches will be one, "The Fraternity as the Proving Ground of Democracy."

ALONG THE SPORTS FRONT

Varsity

For most all of us students the Thanksgiving recess begins tomorrow noon. Whether we're leaving by the C. V., the Rutland, bus, or hitch, tonight our bags will be packed and our thoughts will be only on the long-awaited layoff. However, for a certain small squad of men this week-end does not mean vacation, a trip home—but the beginning of the 1939-1940 Vermont basketball season. By some strange coincidence of fate (or perhaps of F. D. R.) the University of Vermont will open its basketball season, will play its first home game, at the Auditorium next Saturday night—at a time when the majority of the student body will not be able to attend the game.

The opening opposition will be the scarlet courtmen from McGill. Last year, also in their season's opener, the Cats sent McGill back home with not only their uniforms scarlet but also their faces. If we remember correctly it was (in rough numbers) to the tune of 50-20. This year should be a repetition of last. The present Green and Gold team should be at least equal, if not much superior, to last year's team. There are capable men ready to fill in at the spots left vacant by Beauchemin and Nicholson, and, moreover, Sabo has plenty of reserves who can efficiently replace his first string. Besides there is a persistent rumor about that the Canadians have more important things to do, other than play basketball, and hence can't be too much improved over last year. Thus the band (we mean those members who aren't going home) will play "Cotton Babes" and other victorious Vermont airs, and another Cat victory should go down in the books.

On the following Thursday night, however, there will begin for Vermont a stretch of five games which in all probability will be its toughest stretch of the season. On that night Dartmouth, Gus Broberg et al., will arrive in town. Following this game will be, in the same order, meetings with St. Michael's, Fordham, Tufts, and a return battle with the Big Green at Hanover. All this within the Thanksgiving and Christmas recesses.

In last year's Vermont-Dartmouth series both clubs split even, each winning its home engagement. Indeed, who can forget the first game at Burlington? Less than a minute to play, the score tied, and a double foul called on Trigilio and Dudis, Big Green captain. Dudis misses and "Pike" makes good. The gun sounds and a one-point victory for Vermont.

Pinky Ryan, over at St. Michael's, has consistently put out teams which, somehow or other, have seemed to always cause Vermont plenty of trouble. Vermont has been victorious in the last two encounters, but the games have always been close and anything but breathers for the Cats. Of course Fordham and the Jumbos from Medford, Mass., are new on the schedule. It is, however, a certainty that there will be plenty of excitement when Vermont meets these two clubs, especially the Rams from New York.

Freshman

It's just about this time of the year that "Fuzzy" Evans starts his job of moiding another successful freshman club. And due credit must be given to "Fuzzy" for the clubs that he has turned out. It's no easy task to sort out the best five men out of a batch of about forty, review fundamentals and form these five men, who have never before played together, into a smooth functioning unit. All within the period of about two weeks! It's remarkable, the clubs he puts out. Last year his team won eight out of eleven games. The freshmen beat every team opposed, except Burlington High School (whom they only played once in their first game) at least one. They took over the Dartmouth Frosh by two baskets, and vanquished Cathedral, the Vermont State High School champions. What makes this record more remarkable is the fact that two regulars were rendered ineligible half-way through the season. Still "Fuzzy" shifted around his remains, patched up his lineup, and came up with a winning club.

MISSIONARY PICTURES COLORFUL IN INDIA

Collegium members were addressed by an eminent missionary, Dr. O. H. Lisson, Sunday night, at the College Street Church. The topic of his talk was "The Far-flung Domain of Christendom." In bold, colorful phrases he pictured life in India and the work of Christian missionaries who go among the ancient Indian tribes and convert them to Christianity. He told of the head-hunting tribes of the northern hills, of their reluctance to even admit white men into their territory, and how, through strange circumstances, oftentimes they became converts. He touched on the great movement which is going on in India now—a surg toward betterment of the untouchables through their own efforts, and the audience, held spellbound by his talk, evidenced their reluctance to conclude the service by the many questions which they plied.

There will be no service Sunday night, December 3, but the following week, December 10, Dr. P. C. Ladd and the program committee are planning a different and interesting program.

FRESHMAN DEBATE SQUAD PRACTICE FOR COMPETITION

Coach Merrill D. Powers recently announced that the freshman men's and women's squad will engage in a practice debate, in preparation for the Bailey and Carleton cup debates, on Wednesday afternoon, December 6. Peggy Corry, Janet Hackwell and Huddee Zwick will oppose D. M. Zwick, S. M. Grossman and B. L. Glass on the topic, "Resolved, That the Federal government should own and operate the railroads," with the women upholding the affirmative.

The Bailey and Carleton cup debates, traditional encounters between the freshman and sophomore men and women respectively, will be held sometime before the Christmas recess.

FRESHMEN ENTERTAINED AT SORORITY DINNERS

The last two sorority final rushing parties were held last week-end.

On Friday, November 24, the Alpha Xi Delta held a formal dinner at the Paragon Restaurant. The guests were entertained throughout the evening with dinner music. Eleanor Shandoff '41 and Idora Cooley '41 were in charge.

On Saturday, November 25, the Alpha Chi Omega held their formal dinner at the chapter house, which was beautifully decorated to represent a house on a southern plantation. The guests received novel corsages made of colored peanuts. Throughout the evening a group of negroes entertained with southern songs.

Betty Myers '40 was in charge.

U. V. M. Celebrates With Victory Football Hop

The gym was the scene of a unique Football Hop Saturday night when a good-sized crowd took the opportunity to celebrate the victory over Middlebury and dance to the strains of the Catamounts Orchestra. The motif of the affair was "A Victory Ball" and the gym was decorated by Key and Serpent, sponsors of the event, in green and gold. The large curtain near the stage was decorated with gold "V's" and the score of the Middlebury-Vermont game. The other walls too were decorated in similar vein.

The big event of the evening came when Coach Sabo awarded blankets to twelve senior men who have earned their letter in football.

Chaperones for the affair were Prof. and Mrs. Tupper, Coach and Mrs. Sabo, and Mr. and Mrs. Evans of the coaching staff. D. W. Maley '41 was in charge of the ball.

This Victory Ball which proved a new departure in football hops was a great success and it is hoped that in the future the success may be repeated.

VOCATIONAL COUNSELLOR COMING TO CAMPUS SOON

William H. Shumway of Boston, a leading expert in the field of vocational counselling, will visit the University December 4, 5 and 6. Mr. Shumway comes as a part of the Freshman Preliminary Program, and the University Council requires attendance of freshmen at the address, "Choosing the Right Vocation." For women of the class of 1943 this address will be given at Southwick, Monday, December 4, at 4.30 p.m.

For men the address will be given Tuesday, December 5, 4.15 p.m., at the Fleming Museum.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, December 5 and 6, Mr. Shumway will be available through the day for personal conferences on vocational questions and problems. Appointments may be secured in advance through Dean Swift's office. The service is open to all colleges.

For several years Mr. Shumway, who is president of his Placement and Vocational Counsel firm with headquarters in Boston, has been visiting the University of Vermont. His fall visits for the benefit of freshmen and his spring visits for the benefit of seniors have always been followed by lively appreciation of the value of his services.

Chesterfield holds the Record for REAL MILDNESS and Better Taste

because of its Right Combination of the world's best cigarette tobaccos

The real reason more and more smokers are asking for Chesterfield is because CHESTERFIELD'S RIGHT COMBINATION of the world's best cigarette tobaccos gives them a better smoke...definitely milder, cooler and better-tasting. For real smoking pleasure . . . you can't buy a better cigarette.

FRANK FULLER, winner of the 1939 Bendix Race, holds the Bendix transcontinental race record. His right combination of efficiency and flying ability has made him a record holder in aviation, just as CHESTERFIELD'S Right Combination of tobaccos has made it a record holder for More Smoking Pleasure with its real mildness and better taste.

Outing Club to Hold Open Meeting Dec. 14

On December 14, at Southwick, the Outing Club will hold an open meeting to get more of the students interested in skiing. The Middlebury Outing Club Council has been invited to attend.

Nancy Jones '41, chairman, announced that there would be two colored movies on the Kandahar and Tascherean races and there may be another on the Swiss Technique of Skiing.

Sepp Ruschp, ski instructor on Mount Mansfield, will speak on skiing. He is well known for his ability and will probably advance much information which would benefit both the beginners and the near professionals.

It is hoped that many of the students will be present and will become interested in furthering skiing as a sport at Vermont. Everyone is cordially invited and there will be only a small charge.

STRADIVARIUS QUARTET TO PLAY AT CHAPEL

Chapel attenders tomorrow morning will be privileged to hear the Stradivarius Quartet, which is spending two days in Burlington. The entire service will consist of musical selections by the Quartet as well as by our own choir and orchestra, and promises to be most inspiring.

Important Engineering Meeting Held Nov. 23

In accordance with the precedent established last year the three engineering societies, A. S. M. E., A. S. C. E., and A. I. E. E., sponsored a meeting in the Museum Auditorium Thursday evening, November 23, for the purpose of promoting public speaking for engineering students.

Justis Wheeler, C.E. '40, opened the meeting with a short talk concerning the purpose and history of the project, and the program for next meeting which includes three student speakers, one from each branch of engineering, a skit produced by the civil engineers '40, entitled "The 20th Century Drafting Room or When the Dean's Away, the Civils Will Play," and some technical criticism by a member of the engineering faculty.

Chairman F. A. Johnson, M.E. '40, then introduced the speakers for the evening, E. J. Roberts, M.E. '40, whose subject was "Bulk Shipment of Carbon Black by Water" and Robert Dudley, C.E. '40, who spoke on "United States Bureau of Public Roads."

Criticism of the speakers by Professor Laatsch followed. His main points of criticism were, avoid formality in speaking and don't attempt to restrain natural gestures.

Varied programs, including extemporaneous speaking, discussions and debates are being prepared for future meetings. These meetings are for all engineers, but students and faculty from the other colleges are cordially invited to attend since the talks will be non-technical and the programs interesting and educational.

LITERARY ORGANIZATIONS START WORK IN EARNEST

Scribes, freshman women's literary society, seems to be fairly settled at last, after what seemed destined to be a perilous venture. Although at first the group thought of disbanding, no such outcome has resulted as yet. The organization meets at the home of its sponsor, Miss Storms. Not much has been done that is new but the group hopes to hold their election of officers sometime in the near future.

Blue Stockings, which will hold its next meeting on December 7, has been busy reading the articles handed in for the annual Blue Stocking contest. This contest ended with Thanksgiving recess and shortly afterward the new members will be admitted. Because membership is limited to twenty girls, competition will be keen. There is room for only seven newcomers.

PHOTOGRAPHY CLUB MAKES CHRISTMAS CARDS

The members of the Photography Club are now working on their Christmas Project—making Christmas cards. To make these cards by the use of the camera, a member photographs a desired greeting, places the negative of this greeting on a plate along with a picture of some object or being and a seal or the name of the sender. Special paper is used, helping to make this Christmas card idea a success. Regular meetings of the Photography Club are usually held every Wednesday night in the "dark rooms" at Slade. Here the members have been developing, printing, and enlarging their own pictures.

Successful on Stage

PRISCILLA NEWTON

Priscilla Newton Wins Acclaim of N. Y. Critics

On Tuesday, November 28, Priscilla Newton, a graduate of the University of Vermont made her début on the professional stage at Cort Theatre, New York in "Farm of Three Echoes."

She received wide acclaim for her performance with Ethel Barrymore in this play. One reviewer describes her as a "charming bride" who personifies a troubled love interest in a very realistic manner.

While at the University Priscilla not only acted in but also coached several college plays. Not satisfied with spending even a summer away from her beloved stage, she found work in the summer theatres in the vicinity of Burlington. She was rewarded for her perseverance of Alexander Woollcott by her performance in "Our Town" last year, which was to lead her eventually to the success on the New York stage.

Men's Debating Club Take Trip to New York

The U. V. M. men's varsity debating team left last Wednesday noon by car for a five-day Thanksgiving trip to New York City and arrived back in Burlington Sunday evening at eight o'clock. The question discussed in all three of these non-decision debates was "Resolved, That the United States should follow a policy of strict (economic and military) isolation toward all nations engaged in armed international or civil conflict." Wednesday the team met Union College in Schenectady in a round-table discussion, neither team taking the affirmative. Meeting Manhattan College and Fordham University in New York City, the U. V. M. debating team took the negative in each debate.

The three men who made the trip were A. H. Becker '41, H. A. Durfee '41 and J. G. Cohen '42. Becker, a pre-medic, is manager of the debating team and a veteran of last year's team, a member of Key and Serpent, and a CYNIC news editor. Durfee, taking the social science course, has also had varsity experience with last year's team and is prominent in campus activities. Cohen, also pre-medic, is the CYNIC radio editor and has moved up to the varsity from last year's freshman debating team. All three of these men participated in the first discussion and two men in each of the other two debates.

STAFF AND SANDAL SELL PURSE KITS

Members of Staff and Sandal are selling purse kits for use as Christmas presents. These small kits which are convenient for carrying everything from make-up to aspirin are being sold for 50c.

Plans for Lilac Day are proceeding. The group for choral speaking will soon start training.

Staff and Sandal is planning a tea for the Stradivarius quartet while they are visiting our campus.

MISS EDITH LERRIZO VISITS U. V. M. CAMPUS

The Y. W. C. A. Cabinet is planning an active week with preparations for the visit of Miss Edith Lerrizo of the Student Christian movement to the Vermont Campus.

Miss Lerrizo will arrive Wednesday afternoon, and will hold meetings with both the faculty advisory committee and the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet. Wednesday evening she will be entertained at dinner at Robinson Hall. In the evening the Vermont Christian Association will hold a meeting with her to discuss plans.

Thursday morning Miss Lerrizo will have personal conferences with some of the members of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, and on Thursday evening she will meet with the cabinet and the advisory committee.

Stradivarius Quartet Visits U. V. M. Campus

The Stradivarius String Quartet will open its two day concert tour of our campus by presenting a program of modern music at an informal tea tomorrow afternoon at Southwick. The tea will begin at 4 o'clock, and faculty members and interested students have been invited. Violin students and Mrs. Elder will be hostesses. The program will include selections by Ravel, Hindemith, Bartok, Martinu, and Stravinsky.

The formal concert will be held at Southwick Wednesday evening at 8.15. Mrs. Elsa Kremers Bennett will assist the group in the performance of Brahms' "Quintet in F Minor."

The program is as follows:

"Quartet in F Major," Opus 3, No. 5 Haydn
- Presto
- Andante cantabile (Serenade)

These will be available in the Carnegie Room before and during the time the Quartet is here, so that those interested may listen to them. There are also scores and piano arrangements for some of the numbers. A list of this music follows:

U. V. M. Represented at Fraternity Assembly

Prof. Carroll, Patch, Gasperini, Attend

Because they feel that hell week and paddling are outmoded, unworthy of present-day fraternity men, the 131 delegates to the National Undergraduate Interfraternity Council passed a resolution expressing strong disfavor of hell week practices and urging interfraternity councils throughout the country to cooperate with college and university administrators in substituting orientation programs and Greek weeks for physical hazing.

Scholarship, chapter officers' training schools, deferred rushing, quota systems, and counteracting "distorted versions of fraternity life as portrayed in picture magazines and movies" were among the subjects discussed by the 400 delegates to the National Interfraternity Conference in their thirty-first annual session at the Biltmore, December 1 and 2. Condemning "recent lapses from good taste on the part of certain fraternity chapters that have lent themselves to pictorial exploitation by cheap and sensational journalism," the conference deplored "exhibitionism" that tends "to bring the institution of the fraternity into disrepute."

Undergrads Hold Bull Session

A feature of the undergraduates' meeting, at which delegates represented the interfraternity councils of sixty-nine colleges and universities and fifty-two national fraternities, was a "bull session" put on the air by the Columbia Broadcasting System in which college men argued the question "Are Fraternities Worth While?"

Earlier Dean of Men Fred A. Turner of the University of Illinois, educational advisor to the National Interfraternity Conference, had reported many college achievements in these fields. Dean Turner also cited the result of a survey which he had made, indicating the virtual elimination of hell week and the use of the paddle.

The report of the secretary showed that there are now 803,158 members of men's Greek-letter social organizations in the United States and Canada. The 2,328 active chapters own a total of 1,698 fraternities on various campuses.

The conference adopted a resolution condemning so-called honor and activity societies in the colleges "whose value and purpose seem to be questionable." It was urged that many of these be eliminated, "being of no social value to the student and of no educational value to the institution."

The undergraduates, besides taking their stand against hell week, requested the legal committee to look into the matter of orchestra bookers blacklisting chapters for using non-union bands and blacklisting local non-union bands.

Committee Reports Expected Savings

A report made by the law committee on the exemption of fraternity house waiters, janitors, treasurers and other officers from the payment of social security taxes announced that an amendment to the Social Security Act last August was expected, by January 1, 1940, to result in the saving of considerable time and money to fraternities and sororities.

There are now eighty-nine resident advisors living in fraternity houses, another report showed. Phi Delta Theta leads with sixteen, followed by Phi Gamma Delta with eight and Sigma Nu with seven. Twenty-five national fraternities are now using the fraternity resident advisor system to help raise scholarship, in which fraternity men lead independents throughout the nation for the tenth successive year.

Fraternity men vanquished their independent rivals in the classroom for the tenth successive year, the scholarship chairman of the National Interfraternity Conference, Alvan E. Duerr, reported

EDITORIALS

Give Out Men

Somehow the men at the University have gathered the idea that their literary ability is either very poor or entirely non-existent. Much evidence of this state of affairs is seen by comparing the amount of copy submitted to the editor of Winnowings from the Mill by men students with the material turned in by women for the same publication.

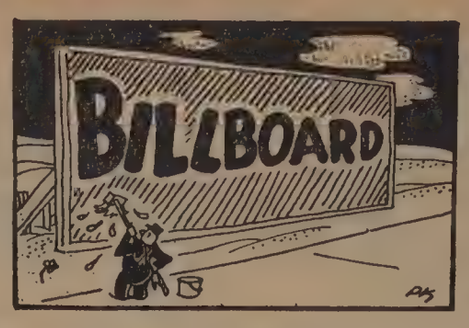
Winnowings from the Mill is the yearly creative literature publication of the students of the University and as such should contain copy written by both men and women. Otherwise it is not truly representative of the student body and the institution.

In the past Winnowings has contained literature which was well deserving of praise but, as stated above, men contributed little; the bulk of the copy was handed in by women writers. This writer believes that the men of the University possess as much literary ability as the women—it is merely a question of applying that ability.

No finer opportunity has ever been offered potential writers than the one extended at present by the staff of Winnowings. The staff is sponsoring a contest in an effort to stimulate students to contribute to the publication. Students may enter short stories, essays, or poems in this competition. The winner of the first prize will receive $5.00—the winner of the second, $3.00.

However, one should not feel that it is necessary to receive some material reward for his efforts. Preparation of copy may seem like drudgery but the thrill of at last seeing your work in print is a sensation difficut to describe. Suffice it to say that this alone is ample reward for the effort expended.

Winnowings does not limit its scope to short stories, poems, and essays; students may submit book reviews, one act plays, satires, or criticisms. A well-written theme might prove acceptable. So how about it, men? Let's get out there and show the women folks that the masculine element has the power to contribute more than a mere display of brawn and muscle!



Congratulations, "Sukie"

Burlingtonians may well take pride in the success of one of their favorite daughters, Priscilla Newton, whose performance in the play, "Farm of Three Echoes," won much well-deserved acclaim recently in New York City.

Always an actor of real ability even in her college days at the University of Vermont, she has quickly climbed the lower rungs in the ladder of success in the theatrical world. In this, her début, Miss Newton, or more correctly, Mrs. Stanley George Wood, won applause second only to Ethel Barrymore.

The New York Herald-Tribune says that the reviewers described her as "an excellent ingenue" while John Mason Brown in The New York Post says of her: "Priscilla Newton is charming as the young bride the last of the male Gerarts threatens to send away." Richard Lockridge, in The New York Sun comments "Dean Jagger and Priscilla Newton personify the troubled love interest very nicely."

Needless to say, all this favorable criticism must be highly gratifying to Mrs. Wood who will always be known to a host of friends at the University as just plain "Sukie." We add our congratulations to those which have already been showered upon her by her many friends and admirers.

Anyone interested in taking part in programs of the Cynic Radio League, and wish to offer either their own performing ability, or suggestions for broadcasts, leave a note addressed to the Radio Editor in the Cynic office.

FRESHMAN ELECTIONS

There will be a meeting of the freshman class to make nominations for the various class offices Friday, December 8, at 4.00 p.m. in Room 27, Williams Science Hall.

Additional nominations may be made by petition signed by at least fifteen qualified voters of the class concerned and presented to the Committee on Student Elections at least three days in advance of the election. Prof. D. B. Carroll is chairman of this committee.

We Are Not Alone

By "POOH"

History seeme to have an amazing habit of repeating itself. Last week I bumped square into a modern "Thoreau." But he didn't march under the banner of a French name—it was pure New England!

The whole adventure was most peculiar. I was in the Fleming Museum, why, only heaven knows. Suddenly, for no good reason, some evil spirit (or perhaps it was just a mischievous one) in my legs decided it didn't want to go where I was heading for, and promptly steered me over to the right into the room where the old Indian things are. A small baby mummy in a basket and I stared astoundedly into each other's eyes. Just as I'd gotten to the point of wondering how it kept warm in winter, there was a quite audible guffaw from somewhere in the rear. Guffaws always interest me, so I turned around. A tall man with a very red face and very bright blue eyes and slightly graying hair immediately started telling me things.

"Your see those?" He pointed to some rattlers tied on a piece of thong. "Well, do you know how they're made? I'll bet you don't!" I only had time to gawk. "They're made from the toenails of bears—you know, the part like our fingernail." I said, "Oh." Then I added: "But what about the stuff inside them?" That started things. We launched off into a discussion of cow's skulls, and how you take the horns off of them. All of which had obviously so much to do with Indian dance ornaments! From horns we skidded off on a tangent, and thoroughly pulled apart the World's Fair, civilization in general, the calls of owls (there were a few illustrations at this point), rabbit tracks, and finally sleeping out at night. He even mentioned the "feeling" you get when you look out around you, from a mountain peak in early morning. That brought us square up against him, and he presented me with an oral autobiography. He started high school at twelve, and had to give up right away because of tuberculosis. That was the last thing he had to do with books. Here was where he started being like Thoreau—though he told me he'd never heard of the man. No, he didn't built a house by a pond and live in it for five years but he did spend no end of years finding things out! He found out all about the woods and their language. For months he watched a gang of beavers build their dam and house. You know, it's a funny thing! When they want to cut down a tree they do a little chewing—but not much. Then they wait for the wind to blow it down! He told me a lot of other funny things, too.

He's been all sorts of places—to the Middle West, New York, the South. He was at Fort Ethan Allen for a while. We talked about conservation and oil and coal, and soft-shelled turtles. He said that a cloud cap on Mansfield or the Camel's Hump, seven out of ten times, rain in a day or two!

He certainly didn't talk about very inspiring things, or very scientific things. But I felt very rich by the time I finally rushed away! That man has a philosophy all his own—and he got it from the earth. One could do worse. A lot worse.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

The article in the CYNIC on Friday November 24, regarding the first books in the University of Vermont Library brought to mind that I had seen several references to books given to the University at its founding.

During the past years, with the aid of NYA students, there has been listed, classified and catalogued between four and five thousand papers relating chiefly to University land records. Among these papers are a few that give information concerning other matters. Two such are documents numbered 2726 and 2740 which have to do with books given as a donation and counted as a subscription toward the fund required for the establishing of the University.

Document No. 2726 gives information about the books to be given, condition under which given and lists the books, while document No. 2740 gives no date or information other than the list of books and the value as credited toward the subscription made. These two documents are here given combined as one.

"Rec'd Colchester 27th February 1796 of Mr. Abell Newell upon his subscription for the benefit of the University of Vermont, the following list of second hand books which are to be estimated as hereafter may be agreed on between the s'd Newell & the honorable board of trustees, viz.:

	Prime cost	Present value
Schrevelius' Greek Lexicon	L 0 12	L 0 10 0
Miles' Septuagint, 2 Vol.	1 4	1 4 0
Greek Testament	0 6	0 4 0
Coles's Latin Dictionary	0 12	0 4 0
Virgil Delphini	0 18	0 13 0
Cicero's Orations	0 7	0 5 0
De Oratore	0 8	0 7 0
Ames's Medulla	0 6	0 2 6
Lilly's Grammar	0 4	0 3 0
Watt's Logick	0 8	0 7 0
Treatise on Rhetoric	0 6	0 4 6
	L 5 11	L 4 4 6

For & in behalf of the board
JOS. STANTON."

A comparison of this list with that given in the issue of the CYNIC referred to shows that they are a part of the thirty-two library books listed in 1802 and that the start of the library was made in 1796. The name of the author of the Greek Lexicon may be in error as the first letters of the word are hard to decipher. The author of the Septuagint is here given as Miles' instead of Miller as noted in the previous article.

It would be of interest to know if the gift of any books preceded these. In the absence of positive information, it is believed these are the first books given.

ARTHUR D. BUTTERFIELD.

U. V. M. MEMBERS ATTEND CONVENTION IN NEW YORK

at the thirty-first annual session in New York, December 1 and 2.

Based on a survey of 176 colleges and universities, all those having fraternities and reporting on scholarship, the report showed that fraternity men's grades were .365 percent above the composite all-men's average for 1938-39. The Tufts chapter of Phi Epsilon Pi made the best individual record, with grades 70 percent above the average of the college. The fifty fraternities of the University of Illinois campus, in raising their average eight points, made the best group gain.

Frank Livak, Captain Of Cross-Country Team

Frank Livak of Rutland, who is carrying on the family tradition as a cross country runner at the University of Vermont, has been elected captain of the cross country team for next year. He succeeds Harry Ketcham of Newfane, who headed this year's pack of state championship roadsters. The Vermont harriers won four of their five starts this year, taking the state title for the sixth consecutive season. Next year the team promises to be even stronger, when it is augmented by an undefeated championship yearling aggregation. Charlie Webster, sophomore star who outlegged the best men of Dartmouth, Union, Williams, Middlebury and Bowdoin this year, will still be with the team, as will his brother Fred, who runs a close second.

Nine varsity harriers have been awarded letters this year. They are J. C. Brousseau, Highgate Falls; J. S. Burgess, Burlington; O. R. Clark, East Montpelier; F. H. Livak, Rutland; Capt. H. M. Ketcham, Newfane; D. L. Moran, Jericho; C. A. Webster, Orleans; F. H. Webster, Orleans; H. S. Willson, Bethel. So outstanding was the performance of these men in the judgmest of the Athletic Council that all were awarded major letters and sweaters.

Seven freshmen, representing the best first-year harrier delegation to wear the University colors in many years, have been awarded class numerals. The freshmen, state champions and undefeated, count among their victims the Dartmouth yearling team. J. P. Hoyt, Jr., of Milton has been named honorary captain of the team as it closes its season's work. Winners of numerals aside from Hoyt are J. L. Buttles, Burlington; M. W. Crown, Groton; R. F. Ladd, Shelburne; E. F. St. Mary, Springfield; R. C. West, Bridgewater; R. S. White, Ryegate.

One of the notable facts about both the varsity and freshman teams this year is that all of the men are from the state of Vermont.

J. A. Root of Middlebury has been selected as varsity manager for 1940, and G. H. Bailey of Rochester as freshman manager. A. N. Gosline, Gardiner, Me., and F. E. Rivers, Burlington, will be assistant managers.

While several American institutions have royal charters, William and Mary College is the only one in the country which has a royal coat of arms.

Cats Eke Out 32-25 Win Over McGill

Continuing from where they left off last year, the Catamounts hung up a 32-25 decision against the McGill men. To the crowd of 1,000 present the victory was not an impressive one as the Green and Gold had to put on a desperate last-quarter rally to pull the game out of the fire. The loss of Beauchemin and early game weaknesses were doubtless major reasons for the Catamounts' ragged showing.

It was Bill Pye, who wasn't counted on to play a prominent part in the evening's activities, that sparked the Vermonters to victory. Pye, put into the game midway through the second half, scored the goal that put Vermont out in front 27-25, with three minutes left to go and then added another two-pointer to clinch things.

Getting away to a slow start, Sabo's cohorts were unable to break away from the Redmen of McGill. Kingston, McGill guard, scored first and his team kept pace with the Cats for the first seven minutes of play. At the end of the quarter the count was 7-all.

In the second quarter, with Anse Belardinelli, Don Maley and Frankie Taylor setting the pace, Vermont drew away. The visitors showed better passwork but were poor in their shooting.

Sabomen Lead at Half

Maley landed two baskets as Vermont piled up an 18-9 advantage and sent its reserves in for the last few minutes of the half which ended 19-9.

The all-around play of Belardinelli was chiefly responsible for U. V. M.'s dominance at this point. Playing his first game at guard, Anse excelled. He continued his fine playing in the second period, although he lost his scoring touch.

Wykes, star forward, was lost to the Redmen in the closing stages of the opening canto as he twisted his angle in a mêlee under the basket.

In the second half while trailing 23-14 the men of McGill suddenly came to life. Cashing in on free throws and field goals they crept up to 24-23, whereupon Sandberg gave them the lead with a score on a rebound.

Enter Bill Pye. After Maley tied things up with a free throw, Pye bolted in a rebound. Taylor converted a foul, then Pye followed with another basket.

Chief weakness of the Green and Gold was their long shots, Maley alone standing out in this department.

Class of '43 Leads in Basketball Tournament

With one-half of the interclass basketball tournament over, the class of '43 is out in front having won all of their games. The tournament, an important feature in interclass competitions, is held in two rounds. Each class plays two games with each of the other three.

The freshmen to date have a perfect record of three wins and no losses. They beat the sophomores 17-16; the juniors 20-19 and made their third talley when the seniors defaulted. The sophomores are in second place with a win over the seniors and a forfeit from the juniors. The class of '41 is third place with one win and the class of '40 is at the bottom, having won no games.

The second round of the tournament is to be held this week. Although the freshmen have beaten the sophomores and juniors they did so by only one point and this week's games will probably show a shift in positions.

It would take one person 141 years to complete all of the courses offered by the University of Texas.

Emory University has recently received $3,000,000 to aid in the development of a great university center in the Atlantic area.

Of Capital University's 1939 education graduates, 72 percent have been placed in teaching positions.

Buzzing With the Vacation Bee or What About What

The very best way to start talking about something which we know absolutely nothing about, is to give a definition. Mr. Webster indicates that a vacation is an intermission from employment. The word intermission in turn means a temporary pause or interruption, interlude, respite, cessation, discontinuance, rest, lull or change from action to rest. This is all very, very clear even if we are traveling in a few circles. Much as we admire Webster's quantity, quality and stuff, he makes it entirely too necessary to have the employment to begin with. Employment probably refers to some kind of work, even the kind students do, considering the fact that laborers are merely students who work only in the day time. (Talk about beating around the bush.)

Anyway, all of U. V. M's snappy little numbers are back to work, wide awake, raring to go, and all trying desperately to not think about the next vacation in only two weeks, and gain just a little knowledge before midyears. We are extremely glad to find that all our little friends who had big things planned for vacation carried them out, such as the brighties who just sat down and studied and studied for the entire period. We also feel genuinely ashamed of those others (99.44% of the student body) who whiled away the time in such idle doings as seeing old friends, going to movies, dancing and eating a few home-cooked meals.

In case you feel entirely at a loss these days, because none of your friends seem to have returned from Thanksgiving vacation, rest assured. It merely means they are some of the many who have had a good time. The disguise is essentially deep, dark bags beneath the eyes and that haggard look. Oh, well, as long as we recover by Christmas.

The portion living in the fair city of Burlington look much relieved and rested since the holiday. From the bottoms of our dear little hearts we feel glad for these youngsters who just couldn't wait for Thanksgiving for a pause and change of atmosphere.

Then there are those brave girls who stuck it out in empty dorms and houses while the rest of the population trooped homeward. And those lucky little devils who could be in the fall play and therefore didn't have to go home. We can just see our friends, the interfraternity representatives, tearing New York City apart. We feel honest pity for those students who live in states which are "still in the Union" who rushed home only to find no friends, no celebration and a very bare layout.

The greatest thing about this vacation is that we left turkey soup, bones, sandwiches, stew, and hash home for our families to finish.

Happy Studying.

Vocational Expert Visits U. V. M.

William H. Shumway, an expert in the field of vocational counselling arrived Monday and will be here through Wednesday, available for personal conferences on your vocational problems.

Yesterday freshman women attended Mr. Shumway's address "Choosing the Right Vocation" and freshman men will hear the talk at 4.15 this afternoon at the Fleming Museum.

Anyone wanting Mr. Shumway's advice may obtain an appointment with him through Dean Swift's office. All colleges are invited to take advantage of this counsel.

Cornell University has launched a project to determine whether critical thinking about social problems can be developed in high school pupils.

NOTICE

Students are advised that the Christmas recess begins on Thursday, December 21, at 7.30 a.m., and closes on Thursday, January 4, at 7.30 a.m.

On Wednesday, December 20, classes in the three academic colleges will meet in accordance with the following schedule:

Military science	7.00- 7.50
First hour	8.00- 8.50
Second hour	9.00- 9.50
Third hour	10.00-10.50
Fourth hour	11.00-11.50
Fifth hour	1.30- 2.20
Sixth hour	2.30- 3.20

Classes in the College of Medicine will meet as usual. Wednesday, December 20, the usual chapel service will be omitted.

The above dates and hours should be carefully noted to avoid unnecessary absences.

The attention of all students is called to the rules concerning absences immediately preceding or following recesses, University Regulations II, 4b. Students desiring excuses for absences must submit applications conforming to the following:

(1) Applications must be made in writing, must indicate mail address, must set forth reasons in full and be filed with the dean of the college in which the student is enrolled (men) or with the dean of women (women) not later than Friday, December 15, at noon. The responsibility for proper and prompt filing lies with the student. It should be clearly understood that belated applications will not normally be considered.

(2) Employment—Each applicant will file with his excuse request a statement in writing from his proposed employer on the employer's letterhead, giving date when, time of day when and place where he is to report, setting forth the nature of the work to be done and the need of reporting prior to Thursday, December 21. This signed statement and his personal request should be filed as indicated above under (1). If the applicant's collegiate record justifies favorable action, excuse will be granted, effective at such time as will enable the applicant to reach his destination at the time indicated.

(3) Excuses will be granted to men by vote of the Council; to women in the discretion of the Dean of Women.

Applicants should note that failure to file their applications by noon, December 15, may result in denial of their petitions. Applicants are advised to hand all papers personally to their respective deans and not to trust them to others, or to the mails, or to lay them on some desk. No excuses will be granted except for imperative reasons. The citing of trivial reasons will simply result in waste of time.

E. Swift,
Secretary, University Council.

Fall Play Promises To Be a Thriller

Veteran Players Included in Cast

"Night Must Fall," is a psychological thriller—the study of a cold-blooded murderer named Dan, whose deliberate and incredibly arrogant killings make the play a real hair-raiser. It ran for a year and seven months in London and was so successful in New York and other American cities that the following reviews appeared in the various newspapers. Said The New York American, 'Night Must Fall,' is a blood-curdler for fair—effective shocker—wholesale in its horrors—with grateful bubbles of laughter between its deep quaffs of blood." According to The New York Telegraph it is a "—superb, detailed, and chilling portrait of a monster— a paced, shaped, and exact melodrama. The play has real horror." A writer in The New York Sun says, "for an evening of thrills in the theatre, I recommend 'Night Must Fall.'" And George M. Cohan declares, "The best thrill play I ever saw—and I've seen 'em all. It takes you by the throat and leaves you gasping."

Play a Real Detective Story

Dan is a bellboy in a resort hotel remotely located in Essex, England. When Mrs. Bramson learns that he has seduced her maid, Dora Parkoe, she summons him to her cottage, and is so taken by his charm that she adds him to her household servants. The murder of a guest at the hotel is traced to Dan by Olivia, Mrs. Bramson's unhappy niece. who decides to shield the boy. Although Dan is grateful to Olivia, he is powerless in the grip of his homicidal instincts, and plots the murder of Mrs. Bramson for her money.

The part of Dan is played by R. B. Hunting '42 of Springfield, Vt., veteran actor here at the University of Vermont and member of the University Players, French Club, on the staff of CYNIC and Ariel, and an S. A. E. brother. Barbara P. Tucker '43 of Fitchburg, Mass., plays the part of Mrs. Bramson. Although a Freshman, Barbara has already taken part in the group plays. Marian C. Stoughton '43 of Keeseville, N. Y., a Pi Beta Phi pledge, plays Olivia, and G. S. Noonan '40 of Vergennes, Vt., member of Delta Psi, I. R. C. Club, Glee Club, Ariel staff, and track team, the part of Hubert, Olivia's pompous, moustached suitor. Dora is played by Shirley R. Treat '40 of Bridgeport, Conn., CYNIC recording editor, member of French Club, Dramatic Club, and University Players, and famous on campus for her many dramatic successes.

Entire Cast Well Known

The part of Inspector Belsize is taken by R. J. Lavigne '41 of Burlington, Vt., who recently took part in the group plays. Jane E. Lyons '41 of New York, member of Pi Beta Phi, Bluestockings, Dramatic Club, University Players, and Ariel and CYNIC staffs, plays the part of Mrs.

ELLIOT MERRICK ADVISES BLUESTOCKINGS MEMBERS

Bluestockings. women's honorary literary society, held its monthly meeting Tuesday, December 5, at 7.30 p.m., in the North Lounge at Southwick. Elliott Merrick of Craftsbury was the speaker. Mr. Merrick, an author himself gave advice to prospective writers, telling them about the various methods of writing and how to sell their manuscript.

The next meeting of Bluestockings will be held January 6. when contributions will be read and new members be taken in.

Membership Drive For Independents

Activity in the camp of omnipotent Mr. Mahoney and Company seems to have resumed a normal course at last. Of course the results of the Independent ultimatum declaring their desire to be represented on the Interfraternity councils still bubbling with life so all hope for excitement is not lost.

Mr. Mahoney stated in an informal interview that a concerted drive was being made to increase the membership of his outfit. As the plan stands now, each member is supposed to bring another prospective member to the next meeting and the boys will try to sign him up. If this works they should multiply in great numbers.

In order to bring his boys to the attention of the campus, J. P. reports that an order is all but signed for some new membership buttons. This is supposed to bring the boys to the attention of the independent Independents and through the medium of these buttons they may get a few new members.

Oh yes! If there are any piano players who are independent J. P. wants to know. Won't you please sign up? They need you very badly. You don't have to be an Eddie Duchin or Duke Ellington but just as long as you can play something all well and good. Well, go to it fellows and don't get hurt in the rush.

MEN PLANNING FOR CHRISTMAS FORMALS

The Phi Sigma Delta fraternity will hold its Christmas formal tonight at the chapter house. Milton Reiser '41 is in charge and has arranged to have Henry Press and his orchestra of St. Albans provide the rhythm. Prof. and Mrs. Bickford will chaperon.

The other fraternities have plans well under way for their formals, most of which will be held December 15. The Sigma Phi formal will be on December 20, while the Lambda Iota formal is to be held the week-end following the Christmas recess.

Stradivarius Quartet Gives Varied Program

The Stradivarius String Quartet, which visited our college under the auspices of the Association of American Colleges, successfully concluded its visit by a formal concert at Southwick on Wednesday evening. A large and appreciative audience honored its presentation of quartets from Brahms, Beethoven and Hadyn. One of the features of the evening was the "Quintet in F Minor" Opus 34, by Brahms in which Mrs. Elsa Kremers Bennett assisted the artists.

During its stay of two days on our campus the Quartet played in several concerts. On Tuesday afternoon a tea was held in its honor by Staff and Sandal. During the afternoon the Quartet played several selections of modern music.

It also presented a number from the "Quartet in D Minor" by Schubert during the Wednesday morning Chapel service.

On Wednesday morning at 10.30 the Quartet presented a recital at the Music Building for students in the music department. This concert included the "Quartet in B Flat" by Mozart.

The Rev. Lindsay to be Chapel Speaker

The Rev. Samuel Macaulay Lindsay, pastor of the Baptist Church of Brookline, Mass., will be the vesper speaker Sunday, December 10, in the Ira Allen Chapel of the University of Vermont. The Rev. Mr. Lindsay made his initial appearance at the University last January, when he officiated at one of the vesper services.

He was born in Scotland, and came to America as a young man. He graduated from Newton Theological Institution. He has had pastorates in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Brooklyn, N. Y., and has been at his present church in Brookline since 1922.

The Rev. Mr. Lindsay is reported to be a popular speaker and in great demand for addresses, both in churches and before groups of laymen. The public is as usual invited to attend this vesper service, which starts at 4 p.m., Sunday.

DAVID COLLINS ELECTED TO OUTING CLUB COUNCIL

David V. Collins has been elected to the Outing Club Council. Newly elected members serve a probationary period of three months prior to becoming a regular member. Mr. Collins was in charge of a most successful overnight hike and has regularly attended many day hikes besides being active in the skiing part of the club.

Outing Club Sponsors Ski Movies Dec. 14

Notice to all those who ski or are interested in knowing now! Here is the best opportunity to learn first hand all about the art. The U. V. M. Outing Club is sponsoring a big open meeting, December 14 at Southwick. Nancy Jones, '41 has secured two colored movies of the Kandahar and Tascheran ski races, which take place annually in Canada. There will be two more showing the top skiers of Switzerland participating in their favorite sport. Sepp Ruschpp, the well-known instructor at Stowe, will lecture on the fundamentals of skiing. His advice should be invaluable not only to beginners but also to the more advanced.

Previous to the meeting the U. V. M. Outing Club council will act as hosts to the council of the Middlebury Mountain Club at a dinner. H. A. Prentice, faculty advisor, and Sepp Ruschp will also be guests.

Everyone in college is cordially invited to these movies and lecture. From these we should realize the wonderful opportunities which we, as Vermonters, have to enjoy this world famous sport. What others have to go to the St. Moritz for, we have in our own backyard. Let's take advantage of this! The program will start at 7.30 at Southwick and a nominal fee of 15c to cover cost of the movies will be charged.

JEAN STEWART TO SPEAK AT PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP

The Pilgrim Fellowship will have its regular meeting on Sunday. December 10 at 7.30. It will be held in the parish house of the First Church. Jean Stewart, '41, the president of the group is to lead the meeting. Her topic will be "Preparations for Life Work." A social hour and refreshments will follow the discussion. Everyone is welcome.

Warren Austin Gets "Man of the Year" Award

Warren R. Austin, United States Senator from Vermont and well-known attorney and jurist, has been named the winner of Kappa Sigma's 1939 "Man of the Year Award." This is a result of a nation-wide ballot among active and alumni chapters and officers of the fraternity, with the final decision of the judges.

Warren R. Austin will be the third Kappa Sigma to win this award. The first award was made by the Chicago Alumni Chapter in 1937, when Cyrus R. Smith (Tau), president of American Airlines, was declared winner of the first award. In 1938 Lowell Thomas (Beta Omicron) was given the award in a colorful ceremony in Chicago for his noteworthy achievements as an author, lecturer, adventurer and news commenator.

This year's award will be given to Warren R. Austin at the Founder's Day banquet to be held at the Astor Hotel in New York City on Friday evening, December 8. William S. Kies, president of the Kappa Sigma Endowment Fund, will be toastmaster of the banquet. Lowell Thomas will make the award presentation. It is expected that a most enthusiastic gathering of over 300 members of the fraternity, gathered from coast to coast, will be present at this event. Hamilton W. Baker, Worthy Grand Master of the Fraternity, will lead a group of national and district officers that will be in attendance.

C. H. Schofield '40, the Grand Master of Alpha Lambda Chapter at the University of Vermont, Austin's initiate chapter, will also be in attendance to accept the Leadership Plaque for their permanent possession. This is an added feature of the award that the active chapter of each year's winner treasures greatly. It has been an outstanding feature of the "Man of the Year Award."

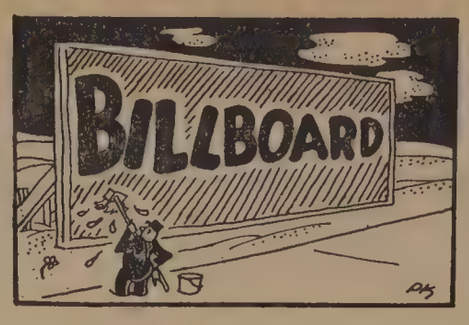
Native Son

The University of Vermont may well take pride in the achievements of Senator Warren R. Austin, that distinguished alumnus who tonight will be presented with the award made annually by his fraternity. His has been a long career of public service and this presentation will bring a glow to the hearts of not only his fraternity brothers but also to the hearts of Vermont alumni, the citizens of Burlington, and of the state of Vermont.

Senator Austin, as a member of the upper house of Congress, has distinguished himself on repeated occasions and is identified as a leader of the Republican party in the Senate. An outstanding thinker, he has left the party ranks to join the present administration on issues which he has believed most meritorious.



"Who's Who in America" and the latest "Congressional Directory" have this to say about Warren Robinson Austin, an initiate of Alpha Lambda of Kappa Sigma (November 8, 1895) at the University of Vermont:

Austin, Warren Robinson—United States Senator from the State of Vermont. Born—Highgate, Vt., November 12, 1877, the son of Chauncey Goodrich and Anne Robinson Austin; graduated from Brigham Academy in 1895; University of Vermont, 1899, Ph. B.; 1932, LL. D. Admitted to Vermont bar in 1902, Circuit Court of the Second Circuit of the United States in 1906, Supreme Court of the United States in 1914, District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of New York in 1919, Circuit Court of Appeals of Second Circuit in 1931, and United States Court for China in 1917; State's Attorney, Franklin County, Vermont, 1904; chairman Republican State Convention, 1908; mayor, St. Albans, Vt., 1909; United States Commissioner, 1907-15; Congress of the Mint, 1912; delegate to Republican National Convention in 1928; trustee University of Vermont since 1914; president Vermont Bar Association, 1923. Elected United States Senator March 1931 and re-elected November 6, 1934, for the six year term beginning January 3, 1935; assigned to the following senatorial committees—District of Columbia, Immigration, Interstate Commerce, Judiciary, Military Affairs, Privileges and Elections, and Taxation of Governmental Securities and Salaries. Married Mildred Mary Lucas, 1901; children—Warren Robinson Austin, Jr., and Edward Lucas Austin; home—43 Williams Street, Burlington, Vt.

On behalf of the University we extend our congratulations to Senator Austin. May he continue to serve his country and his people for many years to come.

Orchids to the Student Body

During the past fall school spirit was frequently the subject of comment in this column. Most of the time the criticism offered was adverse so it may be that readers will receive willingly the comment made to this writer by Coach Johnny Sabo recently. He asserted that he has never before this fall witnessed such a display of school spirit on the University of Vermont campus and requested that we extend his thanks to the student body for their fine cooperation throughout the football season. Well, perhaps all those tongue-lashings were not in vain.

A meeting of the freshman class of the University of Vermont will be held Friday afternoon, December 8, at 4 o'clock, in Room 27, Williams Science Hall. The purpose of the meeting is to nominate class officers.

You'd be surprised how telephone engineers put them to work for you

How to put more and more wires into a telephone cable without increasing its diameter is an ever present problem at Western Electric—manufacturing unit of the Bell System. Existing ducts beneath city streets limit both the number and the diameter of cables—but demand for telephone service continues to grow.

Until recently, the largest cable contained 3636 wires in a diameter of 2⅝ inches. Years of study led to an entirely new insulating process that saved 3/1000 of an inch per wire. Multiply this tiny fraction of an inch by 3636, and you provide enough space to place 606 more wires in the same size cable!—a total of 4242.

With such resourcefulness, Bell System engineers meet countless problems. Result: you can talk to almost anyone, anywhere—quickly, at low cost.

A telephone call home would be appreciated. Rates to most points are lowest any time after 7 P. M. and all day Sunday.

Dartmouth Edges Two Point Victory From Cats

Dartmouth's Broberg A Sensation

Ace Healy slapped in a follow shot as the final gun went off that would have given the University of Vermont a 37-37 tie with Dartmouth and sent a hectic ball game into overtime last night. But, as 2,600 spectators roared with dismay, Umpire Clark called a foul on an Indian somewhere else, disallowed the basket and thus awarded Dartmouth a hair-breadth triumph.

For, with the score tied 33-33 and fifteen seconds to play, Parmer raced in from the sidelines and pushed in the step-shot that actually cinched the verdict. Healy's desperate effort and the resulting decision were an anti-climax to one of the most stirring rallies ever seen on the huge Memorial Auditorium floor.

Broberg the Spark

Gustav "Sweede" Broberg, correctly press-agented as one of the greatest basketball stars in the country, had whipped together a green Indian team for a 20-12 lead at half time. He was waived out on personals early in the second period, however, and the Big Green had a comfortable 25-14 lead at the time. Broberg had personally scored 16 points in a brilliant exhibition.

Cats Launch Drive

Without Broberg Dartmouth is just another country ball club and Vermont proceeded to tear it apart. Trailing 31-18 about twelve minutes to play, the Catamounts launched an amazing drive. Pop Maley scored from mid-floor, Bill Pye followed with a one-hand heave, Belardinelli tallied under the boards and Pye hung a follow into the twine. It was 31-26 at this stage and the crowd was routing the Cats home.

Cats Out in Front

Pye missed two foul attempts here, but Belardinelli pivoted to score and Frankie Taylor made it 31-30 with a one-hand hoist from the far beyond. Again Taylor broke away, stealing the ball and scoring on a lay-up to give Vermont a one-point lead. When Belardinelli converted a foul seconds later the Green and Gold led 33-31, scoring 15 points in a game, all-out drive that had a bewildered Dartmouth quintet absolutely helpless.

Torian, a Green sub, made his appearance at this juncture and arched in a southpaw slant from the foul rim to knot the count. Again Taylor got set, this time from a far corner, and Vermont was ahead 35-33. Vince Else broke free immediately, retaliating on a pop and the score was tied again.

There was a minute left on the clock and the hall was in pandemonium. Ace Healy tried a long shot that was way short and Dartmouth ripped down the floor on a fast break. Parmer was completely in the clear, dribbling in from the right side to score easily.

Frosh Hoopsters to Play 1938 Champions

Coach Evans' frosh make their début this coming Tuesday night when they face a strong Cathedral High team—last year's state champs.

The Cathedral team has been working together longer than the Vermonters and the odds for Tuesday are with the school boys.

Coach Hammond of Cathedral has three veterans returning from last year's championship aggregation. Capt. Marola is in again at center (and if he but equals his last year's performance he is a threat). Also returning are Lynch, forward, and Riley, guard. As yet, the Cathedral boys have not had much scrimmage but it is reported that they are coming right along. Cathedral faces St. Mike's Friday and this should limber them up plenty.

As it stands now the Cathedral starting lineup is as follows:

(Capt.) Marola—Center.
Bolier—Right guard.
Evelti—Right forward.

Ready to go in are five first string subs: Miller, center or forward; Brown, forward; Akey, forward; Carty, forward; and Kain, guard.

The Cathedral game is the first competition for the frosh. The boys have not been working together for long and will open the season not excellently organized. Coach Evans has been kneading the Vermont mass and figures on starting Doherty and Kaufman at forward, Eliot at center, and Krupp and Wanser at guard.

The Strange Ending

Vermont had obviously time for only one shot. Anse Belardinelli, great in defeat last night, made that attempt. It, too, was short, but Healy cut in beautifully, followed under the boards and the ball split the twine just as the gun resounded.

But Clark waved him in denial as players, coaches and timers swarmed about him. Pye, he said, had been hipped elsewhere on the floor and the basket was disallowed. Dartmouth had won 37-35.

Winter Intramurals Under Way

The Fall Intramural Competitions, which included the golf, tennis and touch football tournaments were brought to a successful conclusion with the playing of the final touch football game on Armistice Day.

Keenan Golf Champ

The golf tournament which was held at the Waubanakee golf course attracted five men. This was rather a disappointing number of entries considering the amount of golfing talent available in the Academic and Medical Colleges. But in as much as the entry list for the golf championship has varied considerably from year to year, it is hoped the 1940 competition will draw a greater number of "hook and slice" artists.

E. A. Keenan '42 retained his golf championship by virtue of defeating B. M. Perkins '43, 6 and 5.

Potter Wins in Tennis

Fourteen men competed in the tennis tournament which was a success in every way. F. Potter '43 and G. Stanley '43 were the finalists. Potter entering the finals by defeating W. West '43, 6-1, 8-6. Stanley reached the final bracket by defeating R. Smith '42, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4. In the finals Potter defeated Stanley in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Phi Delts Swarm Gridiron

Saturday, November 11, 1939, at 10.00 a.m., the Phi Delta Theta engaged the Sigma Phi in the championship touch football game at Centennial Field. This game was very well played and went to the Phi Delta Theta team by the score of 6-0. Pratt scored the winning touchdown for the Phi Delts in the third period. The Phi Delts had previously won their semi-final game with the Phi Sigma Delta 7-0, while Sigma Phi entered the finals by defeating Delta Psi, 33-6.

One of the surprises of the tournament was the upset which the S A E (last year's champions) suffered at the hands of the Phi Sigma Delta. In their initial game, S A E was defeated by the Phi Sigs 14-7.

Winter Intramurals

Now that the Fall Intramural schedule has been completed, the winter competitions step into the foreground. These include interclass basketball, interfraternity basketball, intramural hockey, handball championships (singles and doubles), badminton championships (singles and doubles), all-campus free throw championship, interfraternity free throw team championship, bowling, all-campus wrestling championship, all-campus boxing exhibitions, indoor relays, indoor track meet, and the hexathlon championship.

Of these competitions, the free throw team championship is new this year. In the all-campus free throw championship, everyone on the campus is eligible to step up to the foul line to see how many free throws he can make. In the interfraternity team championship each fraternity and the Independents will be represented by a team of at least five but not more than ten men, the aggregate score of the best five to be the team score, and the highest team score to win the championship.

Bowling and interclass basketball have already begun. At the end of the first half of the interclass basketball schedule, the freshman class is out in front, having won three straight games. Two of these games were won by one point, while the third game was forfeited to them by the seniors. The class of '42 is in second place, having won two games. The class of '41 has won one game, while the seniors have as yet to win a game.

In this connection it is of interest to note that the class league was won last year by the class of 1939, or the then seniors, and that in most past years, the upperclass teams have carried away the honors.

In contrast, the halfway mark in this year's race seems to point to the power as residing in the two lower classes, with the lowly (?) freshmen on top of the heap.

Telephone technicians report Brown University has the best college communications system in the country.

ALONG THE SPORTS FRONT

Frustration or Something

As we hit the deadline the Catamounts will be mixing it up with the doughty Indians of Dartmouth. This column, therefore, will have the honor of roosting next to the story of that scrap and yet will know nothing about it. All of which leaves us in a pretty pickle as we can't predict a winner or write any advance of the game as the game will be all over when this appears in print. Grr—then people wonder why columnists go potty. Frustrated in one direction our bloodshot eyes wander to other subjects.

Tennessee or Bust

The Rose Bowl bid is pending and teams all over the nation await the final selection. This department throws caution to the winds and rides along with Tennessee. We know their schedule is not as hard as most big-time elevens, we also know that the Texas Aggies are some pumpkins, etc., etc., ad infinitum. Despite this storm of evidence we submit the record of the Tennessee men—not once has their goal line been crossed in a whole season. A team which numbers such stars as Cajego in its line-up is a hard team to beat. So this little corner is going to be mighty disappointed if the men from the "Deep South" don't trot out on that Rose Bowl turf New Year's Day.

The Crystal-Gazers

While leaping through a football annual the other day we were interested to see how the experts' forecasts coincide with actual results this year and were we surprised. In this particular annual, Fordham was labeled as a "power-horse" and "The Rose Bowl Express." Alas, somewhere along the track the express was derailed. The Cardinal and Gold—colors of the University of Southern California—were picked to wave for the West in the Rose Bowl. That guess is probably right. Notre Dame was figured as sweeping through its schedule until it met Southern California. Yes, the two met—and Notre Dame swept no more. Texas A. and M. is listed by the annual as a possible "unstoppable." You ain't lying, brother. And so, as the predictions go—some wrong, some right but mostly right. Our hats off to the football crystal-gazers who sat them down and wrote this annual. Anybody who can guess the outcome of two out of ten games at the beginning of a football season ought to be psychoanalyzed as he may be a genius (or nuts).

The Kid Brother

Speaking of baseball—which we weren't—we see where Joe DiMaggio's kid brother, Dominic, comes up to the Red Soxs this year and with the recommendation of Joe Cronin, no less. Voted the most valuable player in the Pacific Coast last year, Dominic also batted .360 and threw strikes in from the outfield like big brother Joe. More power to you, Dominic.

Back Home Again

Drifting back again to U. V. M. before a final blockout we wish to call attention to the lowly Frosh. In class basketball they hold the palm thus far with three victory scalps at their belt. It seems that the meek are about to inherit the earth (unquote).

We are also holding out our right hand in salutation to the Outing Club for its fine job in arousing interest in skiing on this campus. Through movies and lectures this club is giving all students a first-hand contact with expert ski technique. After all in a state such as Vermont where there is ample opportunity to enjoy winter sports it seems only right and proper that the students make the most of it. Skiing is a sport that brings one in contact with nature (we mean this figuratively not literally) and is an exercise that brings into play all one's coordination and skill. Whether you're an amateur or a professional you can have fun. So why not help the Outing Club and take part in making this sport an outstanding one on the campus. Blackout.

Interfrat Bowling In Full Swing

The interfraternity bowling league is in full swing now. The schedule for Friday, December 8, includes Kappa Sigma versus Phi Delta Theta, Delta Psi versus Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Tau Epsilon Phi versus Independents. The schedule for Friday, December 15, is Phi Delta Theta versus Sigma Phi, Lambda Iota versus Phi Sigma Delta, Delta Psi versus Sigma Nu, Sigma Alpha Epsilon versus Alpha Tau Omega.

There has been a complaint about the spirit of the fraternities in this competition. The fraternities are not getting into the swing of things as they should, and unless they realize the fact and try to alter their faults there will be a shake up in the league resulting in the dropping of the more lax frats.

The object of this league is to give those boys a chance who are probably less athletically inclined to the other sports. Bowling is a fine sport and the frats should get wise to themselves and take advantage of what they are being offered.

There have been too many defaults since the league opened competition and less of this is very much desired.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

We must gain unity of purpose and solve our pressing problems. All the slogans in the world will not help a useless democracy." Dr. C. A. Independants Seek Frat Representation

Impeach him? My eye, you can't down an Irishman? Try as you may, J. P. Mahoney '41 will still be president of the Vermont Independents.

At this week's meeting, held in the auditorium of the Fleming Museum, Mr. Mahoney again issued his call for representation on the Inter-fraternity Council. He declares that he has read the constitution of the Council himself and that there is nothing in it which bars his followers from representation.

Why shouldn't an organization which represents 52.9 per cent of the men of the University be given the privileges which 40.1 per cent of the men enjoy? Mahoney demands an answer. He demands it from one of the officers of the Inter-fraternity Council. And if he doesn't get one, he's going to know why.

The musical intonations of his deep voice rang through the halls of the museum as the president demanded an invitation to state the Independents' cause at an Inter-fraternity Council meeting—an invitation to argue what he thinks over half of the men of the University believe in.

At the next meeting, which is to be held Monday evening at 7.30, tea will be served following the business meeting. Mr. Mahoney will pour!

Incidentally, J. P. wants a pianist and a cheer leader, and if he doesn't get them before long, he says he'll appoint himself!

The Women's Athletic Association held a meeting on Tuesday evening, December 5. It was decided that voting for the freshman representative for W. A. A. would be held at the next mass meeting.

The Interzone Basketball Tournament, a new feature for women's athletics on our campus, is being drawn up under the management of Elizabeth Gurney '41. All the girls interested in basketball are asked to sign up for the tournament and from this list teams will be chosen and the games played as soon as time permits. If interested will you please sign up in the "Y" room before Monday of next week. The teams will be selected according to the number of girls from each house or dormitory and locations of these houses. A tentative schedule for games has been drawn up by Miss Crowe. As soon as the list of girls and positions is completed the tourney will get under way.

Danforth's Sporting Goods Store has displayed winter sports equipment at Southwick during this week. Miss Rosemary Hazard of the Physical Education Department has been directing the indoor skiing lessons given this week.

Radio Bull Session At Frat Conference

"Are College Fraternities Worth While?" was the topic of the thirty-first annual session of the National Interfraternity Conference held at Biltmore, December 1 and 2. Over 400 delegates attended and argued the pros and cons of the situation. Much dissatisfaction has been expressed concerning "Hell Weeks" and such forms of fraternity conduct. After much discussion it was concluded that such things were not at all necessary and did not represent true fraternity conduct on the whole. Therefore, resolutions were adopted prohibiting these practices and urging as a substitute programs of orientation and Greek weeks for physical hazing.

It was brought out that "exhibitionism" that eternal love of making an effect seemed to be the main objection to fraternities since it tends to mar the reputation of the fraternities.

Many who were not fortunate enough to attend this conference had the opportunity to hear the question "Are Fraternities Worth While" discussed over the radio in an informal bull session by a group of college men. The broadcast was presented over the Columbia Broadcasting System, which sponsors a series of such impromptu discussions over the program "Columbia Bull Session." These bull sessions can be heard every week throughout the country from 10 to 10.30 a.m. over the Coast to Coast facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System. These sessions are for the purpose of letting America hear Young America speak. The University men who appear in these programs choose their own subject. They are not told what to say or how to say it. There are no rehearsals and no set lines.

The result of this bull session and talks by various men was the adoption of a resolution condemning so-called honor and activity societies which have a purpose that seems at all questionable as to repute.

Aside from condemning certain fraternity features there were many more points for fraternitles. Fraternities on the whole were definitely decided to be favorable.

Novel Mass Meeting To Be Held Dec. 13

Wednesday night's Student Union mass meeting will be an evening packed full of surprises. Phyllis McGovern '40, president of Student Union, promises that there won't be a dull moment in the entire meeting. The singing of favorite Christmas carols will be part of the program.

Another part of the program will be the W. A. A. green and gold initiation of freshmen. Upperclass girls must be sure whether they are on the green or gold team, and anyone having points for membership must hand them in by Wednesday noon. There will also be voting for the freshman representative on the W. A. A. Council for which Janet Dike and Thelma Packard are candidates. W. A. A. leaders will make a special announcement of the winter sports program, and a very special exhibit of the awards earned by W. A. A. credits at the conclusion of the voting.

PRESS CLUB TO HOLD MEETING TOMORROW

There will be a meeting of the Press Club, Wednesday, December 13, at 4.15 p.m. in Room 3, South College. If this time or date is unsatisfactory, Mary Nelson '40 should be notified.

At the meeting the subject of dues will be discussed, a new schedule and a future social meeting will be planned.

LAST NOTICE

All juniors and seniors, fraternity and non-fraternity: The activity sheets for the Ariel must be in the Book Store by Saturday, December 16, or your activities will be omitted.

CHRISTMAS PLAY GIVEN AT COLLEGIUM MEETING

The meeting of Collegium last Sunday evening at the College Street Church, was opened with the singing of Christmas carols. Following a short worship service which was led by Paul Jenks '40, a Christmas play entitled, "Peace I Give Unto You," was presented by five members. Those taking part in the play were: Jean Young '42, Robert Stockwell '43, John Goss '43, Edward Corliss '42, and Russell Clark '42.

Refreshments of tea and cookies were served by the freshmen and the meeting was closed with carol singing.

Last year the Christmas meeting was held in the evening, but this year plans have been made for the Christmas service to be held in the morning and it will be conducted by the different members of Collegium.

Mortar Board Society Plans for Carol Sing

The members of Mortar Board, senior women's honor society, are making plans for a carol sing which is to be held on the Redstone campus immediately after the Christmas concert, which takes place Sunday afternoon, December 17.

Mortar Board is planning that the students form in a body outside the chapel and, headed by some members of the choir, sing carols on the way up to Redstone campus and around the lighted Christmas tree in front of Southwick.

The members of 1940 Mortar Board urge all students to take part in the carol sing, and all members of the faculty and townspeople are cordially invited to attend.

This marks the first attempt of any society to organize some Christmas singing. With your support, the beautiful idea of the meaning and spirit of Christmas may become a part of tradition here at U. V. M.

Watch the next issue of the CYNIC for further plans and details of the carol sing.

Fall Play to be Held Dec. 18 at Southwick

"Night Must Fall," the super-thriller mystery drama that chased thrills and chills up and down the spines of sophisticated New York play-goers, and later frightened movie-goers with Hollywood's presentation of it, will be given at the "Little Theatre" at Southwick Memorial, Saturday evening, December 18, by the members of the dramatic society under the direction of Mrs. Wilnetta Sproul Taggart, who has been identified with many of U. V. M.'s most successful dramatic productions in recent years.

The play is a psychological study of a cold-blooded murder, committed in such an incredibly daring and arrogant manner that not until the last moment is the real villain detected. Dan, the bellboy, and leading man is played by Roger Hunting '42, who has scored several artistic triumphs since his entrance into dramatic activities on the hill, and he is supported by an able cast including Barbara Tucker '43 as Mrs. Bronson; Marion Stoughton '43, who plays the rôle of Olivia, Mrs. Bronson's niece; G. S. Noonan '40 as Hubert, Olivia's suitor; Shirley Treat '40 plays Dora, the maid; R. J. Lavigne '41 will enact Inspector Belsize; Jane E. Lyons '41 plays the rôle of Mrs. Terrence, the cook; M. J. Boucher, Jr. '40 as Lord Chief Justice and Louise Mann '41 as Nurse Libby.

CORRECTION

The Cynic wishes to make a correction in certain figures which were published in the issue of December 8. There are 47.1 percent of the college men in fraternities and 52.9 percent are not in fraternities according to J. P. Mahoney '41, president of Vermont Independents.

Rev. S. M. Lindsay Gives Fine Sermon at Vespers

The Grace of God To Be Salvation of the World

The speaker at the Vesper service Sunday afternoon was the Rev. Samuel Macaulay Lindsay, pastor of the Baptist Church, Brookline, Mass. He is a very popular and eminent speaker, and he made his initial appearance at Chapel last January.

The scripture and prayer were given by the minister of the Baptist Church of Burlington, and Professor Jacobs introduced the speaker. The Chapel choir gave excellent renditions of "Rejoice in the Lord Always" by Purcell for the anthem and two other selections "Low How a Rose Ere Blooming," and "Adoramus Te" by Palestrina.

Reverend Lindsay's topic was "The Grace of God." He said "the world can only be saved by the grace of God, grace being that heavenly spirit in man that inspires him to think of what his neighbor needs instead of what he deserves." The law of grace is the law of conduct, and it was exemplified by the life, teachings, and death of Christ. The grace of God works, he explained, in our home life, educational life, economic life, church, and in world affairs—a timely example being to treat the Germans with what they need in the next treaty rather than what they deserve. He concluded his sermon with the thought that people lose courage because they forget God is gracious and the world needs to be saved from its problems and can be saved only by the grace of God. Reverend Lindsay's sermon was most inspirational and one of the finest that has been heard at the Chapel this year.

Vermont Symphony To Present "Messiah"

On Friday, December 15, at 8.30 p.m., in the assembly hall of the new Elihu B. Taft School, a mixed group including the Vermont Symphony Chorus of 100 voices and the Vermont Little Symphony Orchestra consisting of 25 musicians under the direction of Alan Carter will present the Christmas part of Handel's oratorio "The Messiah." Among the soloists will be Barbara Farnsworth, soprano; Gladyce Bachmann, alto; and Donald Gage, tenor, a special student in the Arts and Sciences Department of the University; and John Seagle, bass. Harlie E. Wilson, will be the piano accompanist.

Handel's "Messiah" is a favorite oratorio with music audiences and the Christmas part is one of the most moving selections from the entire work. Most of the performers who will take part have appeared here before. Alan Carter is especially well known in state musical circles for his splendid work in organizing the Vermont Symphony Orchestra.

Y.W.C.A. to Hold Sewing Circle for All Members

On Friday afternoon from three until five o'clock the Y. W. C. A. will hold a meeting at Southwick for all its members. The main object of this meeting is a "doll-dressing bee," that is, making clothes for dolls which are being given to needy children for Christmas. Patterns and materials will be furnished; so Y. W. cordially invites all members who are interested to attend this "bee." Gossip always finds plenty of outlet at ladies' sewing circles, so these occasions are never boring.

Charlotte Perkins of the State Y. W. C. A. will be present to give a short talk, and refreshments will be served.

JEAN STEWART SPEAKS AT PILGRIM FELLOWSHIP

Jean Stewart '41 gave a talk at the meeting of the "Pilgrim Fellowship" last Sunday evening at the First Church. She chose as her subject "Preparations for Life Work." She emphasized the social consideration to be gained from a college education and showed how the various courses which we take help to broaden our viewpoints on life.

A lively discussion on this subject followed the talk and the members offered many opinions. They came to the conclusion that our teachers really do more than social workers to better our chances of succeeding in life.

A worship service was held and refreshments were served.

Freshman Nominations Postponed by Council

The Intrafraternity Council caused the postponement of the election of officers for the freshman class at their meeting last Friday. The reason given by the president of the Council in delaying the election was that additional time was necessary so that the subject of combines among the fraternities can thoroughly be discussed. This matter will be taken up with members of the faculty as well as with leaders of the various fraternities and independent organizations on campus.

The president of the Council explained that the reason the Deans and other members of the faculty were against the combine system was that the members of the combine are very apt to elect the wrong man to the office just because they have the voting power. He also stated that generally the majority of the class officers are members of some fraternity or sorority.

If these conferences result in a widespread disfavor of combines, then steps will be taken to abolish them. If a marked indifference is shown among the fraternities and sororities very little can be accomplished to abolish the combine system which the Interfraternity Council feels is an undemocratic method of electing class officers.

The freshman class will hold its meeting to nominate its officers on Friday, December 15, at 1.30 p.m.

Three Ski Movies to be Shown by Outing Club

Colored ski movies will be shown by the Outing Club at Southwick on Thursday, December 14, at 7.30 p.m. One of the movies shows the Kandahor on tascheran races in Canada. Following, there will be two Swiss movies, namely, "Swiss Ski School" and "Skiing in Switzerland." Sepp Ruschp will lecture on the fundamentals of the sport.

The Vermont Outing Club will be hosts to eight members of the Middlebury Council at dinner prior to the movies. Nancy Jones '41 is in charge of the program.

The price of admission is fifteen cents. The meeting will not count as a night out for girls.

GARDEN CLUB TO HOLD CHRISTMAS MEETING

"How Can We Best Express Christmas?" was the subject of seasonal interest which Mrs. Stella Platt Moulton of Burlington discussed before members of the Burlington Garden Club, meeting in the art gallery of the Fleming Museum, University of Vermont, Monday, December 11. Herbert N. Stapleton, Shelburne Falls, spoke on "Christmas Lighting."

Mrs. Fred H. Towne, house director of Robinson Hall, one of the University dormitories for women, is this year's president of the Garden Club.

Phi Beta Kappa Society Hears Dr. L. C. Wroth

Initiation of Ten New Members Followed by Banquet

Speaking Friday evening following the Phi Beta Kappa initiation and banquet in honor of ten new members from the University, Dr. Lawrence C. Wroth, noted librarian and bibliophile, and a scholar in the field of Colonial printing, discussed the early history of printing in this country in an address at Robinson Hall. Some sixty members of the Society attended the initiation and acceptance into the Alpha of Vermont Chapter of the ten seniors, held immediately preceding the lecture.

Doctor Wroth's subject was particularly appropriate, due to the fact that America is celebrating the tercentenary anniversary of printing this year. The speaker traced the beginnings of the Cambridge Press and showed photostatic copies of the Bay Psalm Book, the first book printed in America, and also exhibited several of the earliest books on record. Doctor Wroth, who is librarian of the John Carter Brown Library in Providence, R. I., and an advisor to the J. Pierpont Morgan Library of New York, one of the world's greatest collection of books, is also the editor of "Notes for Bibliophiles," a popular column in the book section of the New York Herald-Tribune.

The new Phi Beta Kappa initiates are Jean E. Brehmer, Rutland, enrolled in the Literary Scientific curricula; Mrs. Marcelyn H. Clark, South Burlington, the Classical course; Laura C. Dustan, Craftsbury Common, the Home Economics course; Harold Moskovitz, Burlington, Social Science; Mary C. Nelson, Woodstock, Social Science; Lucien D. Paquette, Crartsbury, Agriculture; Alta A. Plumb, Springfield, Secretarial; Ethyle R. Wolfe, Burlington, Classical; Allan Y. Wolinsky, West Rutland, first year medical study; Louis B. Zambon, South Ryegate, Mechanical Engineering.

Down With Fraternity Combines !

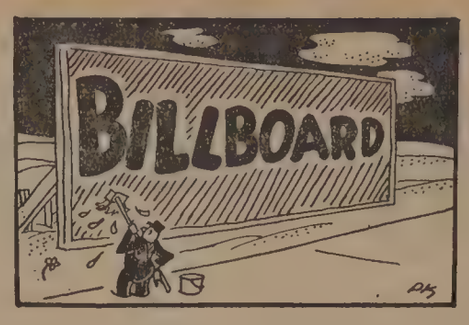
Substantiating the remarks once made by this writer that the Interfraternity Council was becoming more and more an important part of life at the University, that august body has once more launched itself toward a noteworthy and commendable end. For sometime now the Council has been quick to realize the problems facing it and has met and solved those problems with dispatch.

The Council has not only remedied undesirable conditions on campus but it has also introduced such worthwhile things as the Fraternity Handbook and the Interfraternity Sing. The results obtained with both deserve the highest commendation from the student body.

The latest exploit of the Council is an effort to stamp out fraternity policies at Vermont. True, the Council has not as yet been instructed by its constituents to take the action necessary to put an end to this evil but it has done the ground work which must be accomplished before that end can be attained.

It has appointed a committee to investigate the systems of election used at other institutions with the thought of eliminating fraternity politics here at Vermont. Further, it has requested the members of the Council to sound out the various fraternities on the matter—to ask them whether they wish to allow the status quo to exist or whether they are desirous of cooperating in the elimination of politics.

One of the worst evils that characterizes the political system in vogue at the University is the use of fraternity combines. Like most other systems it has certain points in favor of it and certain points against it. However, the points against it far outweigh the points in favor of it.



Under the combine system several fraternities agree to support candidates representing the various fraternities concerned but agree not to compete against the fraternities in the combine for the same office. Obviously the members of a combine will nominate only high type men to represent them. They will prefer not to be connected with a ticket carrying the names of men of mediocre ability. Thus it will be seen that no matter whom they choose to represent them a fairly good type of man will be selected.

However, what about the man running for an office who is not connected with any organization and who does not have the backing of a combine? Despite the fact that he may be more deserving and more capable he stands little chance against the powerful combines. The result is that all too often the poorer man is elected to office.

No one can deny the statement that the more capable man is more deserving of election to office in spite of the fact that he has no political connections. It is a shame to refuse to consider a man for an office merely because he has not allied himself with some one or another of the organizations on the campus.

Just what course should be followed once the power of fraternity combines have been broken is a question which has not yet been decided. We believe that the Fraternity Council will be able to solve this problem when it arises for other institutions are able to clear this hurdle with little or no difficulty.

We are immediately concerned only with the problem of eliminating the combines. Fraternity men should give the matter a good deal of thought. At present the system is unfair and stands in need of correction. We beseech the fraternities to vote against the combines and to take a staunch stand against them. Let it no longer be said that the University of Vermont allows such a condition to exist on its campus.

There will be a meeting of the International Relations Club on Thursday evening. December 14, at which the Rev. Skillman Myers will speak on his recent trip to Europe. Everyone is welcome to attend.

The responsibility for proper and prompt filing lies with the student. It should be clearly understood that belated applications will not normally be considered.

(2) Employment—Each applicant will file with his excuse request a statement in writing from his proposed employer on the employer's letterhead, giving date when, time of day when and place where he is to report, setting forth the nature of the work to be done and the need of reporting prior to Thursday, December 21. This signed statement and his personal request should be filed as indicated above under (1). If the applicant's collegiate record justifies favorable action, excuse will be granted, effective at such time as will enable the applicant to reach his destination at the time indicated.

(3) Excuses will be granted to men by vote of the Council; to women in the discretion of the Dean of Women.

Applicants should note that failure to file their applications by noon, December 15, may result in denial of their petitions. Applicants are advised to hand all papers personally to their respective deans and not to trust them to others, or to the mails, or to lay them on some desk. No excuses will be granted except for imperative reasons. The citing of trivial reasons will simply result in waste of time.

Thank heaven Roosevelt can't chang the date of Christmas! . . . Why can't he you'll ask. Hmmmmmmm. Maybe you' got something there. Well———well— he just can't That's all there is to it!

But what about Hitler? I have a gre respect for Hitler. Why, only this sum mer I knew a journalist who used to mak a regular practice of cabling Hitler, as asking him to let the sun keep shining so he could get a tan. He did. . . But le get back to Christmas. It's much mor interesting than tans. Besides, tans ar out of season.

CHRISTMAS. What a magical word At the moment, though, all I can think o is lying in bed on a cold gray Decembe morning, arguing with myself as to whic of us will get up and close the window I or me. Me almost always wins ou so I have to get up and close the windo It's cold, too. . . . Then follows th gloomy "Eeyore" feeling. (In case yo haven't read "Winnie-the-Pooh," Eeyor is a very gloomy donkey who eats thistle for sustenance.) And with that gloom Eeyore feeling comes the thought: "Aft all, what is Christmas? Here today, an gone tomorrow." (That's what Eeyor says about birthdays; I guess it work for Christmas, too. Only Eeyor forg about how long it takes to get ready fo Christmas.)

Let us hie ourselves downtown. Th best place to observe the Christmas spir is, of course, the five and ten. So le go there. . . First of all we see a doughnu machine, turning out doughnuts withou any dough in the middle. To give the a sensation of Yuletide joyousness, th girl behind the machine immediate smothers them in little red and gree particles. The particles are made o candy. Thus we see an expression o Christmas in food. . . The ribbon depar ment—ah, yes. It seems to be specializin in red and green ribbons. Either the mo around it is trying to match up respectiv Christmas dresses, so that they'll appea in a glory of ribbon streamers down the backs that are just the color of the clothes—or they're planning on giving terrific amount of Christmas presen Someone should tell them that it cos infinitely less to buy cellophane—fireproo droopproof, and cloudproof.

Even the shoelaces are doing the darndest to boost up the proper spir They're plaid—mostly red and gree naturally.

There seems to be a milling crowd wa over in that corner. Shall we investigate . . . Why, of course. How stupid of m Christmas cards! Very fitting, very fit ting. Only for some strange reason they' taken to wine color and aqua—trying to b different I guess. I have yet to discover though, what dachshunds have to do wit Christmas—to say nothing of tramps an debutantes. My gosh!

Let's get out of here!

Professor Butterfield Relates Experiences And Philosophy

I found Professor Butterfield up in the N. Y. A. office reading the 4200th paper of some 5,000 old papers relating to University land matters which are being catalogued. Upon being told that this was to be an interview for the CYNIC, he protested that surely no one would want to read about him, but when the importance of the occasion was impressed upon him he kindly consented to begin way back at the beginning and tell some of the main facts of his life.

He was born in Massachusetts, but claimed that no outstanding events occurred in his childhood except the usual cases of chicken pox, measles, whooping cough, mumps and various other minor catastrophes. He came here to the University forty-one years ago and since then, to put it in his own words, he has been a sort of battledore-and-shuttlecock between here and Worcester Polytechnic Institute from which he graduated more years ago than he wanted to remember, so he said. In college he worked, studied, and played football; he is still interested in sports to such an extent that he is chairman of the Athletic Council. In addition to this, he is chairman of the Finance Committee of the College Street Church, is in charge of the N. Y. A. here at the University, and is Director of Surveys of the University land which covers about fifty thousand acres in all. He attends to all these duties (and probably a few more which he could not think of offhand) besides teaching calculus, astronomy and geodesy, the latter two of which are his particular hobbies. In fact, his visions for the future include an engineering building and an astronomical observatory.

PROF. A. D. BUTTERFIELD

Likes to Fish

Considering all these activities and interests, it isn't to be wondered at that he has very little time for music or reading, but he revealed that fishing was a favorite form of diversion with him.

He has three children, all grown up and married now, two of whom graduated from U. V. M. "They are all good mathematicians, too," stated Professor Butterfield with pride. The youngest son is a lieutenant in the United States Navy, in the aviation branch.

Professor Butterfield was in the World War and spent two years in France. He feels, concerning the present crisis, that it is very regrettable that such a state of conditions exist, but believes that England's attitude of carrying the affair to completion is correct.

Traveling is a much pleasanter subject, so he told how he has travelled all over the United States raising money for both the University of Vermont and Worcester Tech. Louisiana and Nevada are the only states which he has never visited.

In the summertime he works as the N. Y. A. director and teaches in summer school. In fact, his greatest enjoyment comes from work, and his motto is "Don't tell how much wood you've sawed; show your pile of sawdust!"

The best part of the interview came last. Asked if he had anything to say concerning the younger generation, he immediately replied, "Yes—their idiosyncrasies of going without stockings and wearing fur coats, and their utter inability to read." This last referred to the students' habits of ignoring "Keep off the Grass" signs, etc. But there was a twinkle in his eye when he said this.

Whereupon I left him cheerfully reflecting that he had only about 800 more papers to read after that 4200th one.

Famous Journalists in U. V. M.'s Class of 1840

One of the most remarkable journalistic classes ever to graduate from the University of Vermont, antedating by many years any academic course in the profession for which its members became famous, would be celebrating its 100th anniversary next year, in 1940.

The class of 1840 graduated fourteen members. There were eleven non-graduate members. Of the fourteen graduates, four became newspaper editors. One of them, Henry J. Raymond, founded the New York Times. Another, James R. Spalding, founded the New York World and was associate editor of the New York Times. Benjamin J. Tenney, who also had a notable newspaper career, was editor of the Richmond, Va., Dispatch, now the Times-Dispatch. John S. D. Taylor, lawyer, educator, poet, was co-editor and co-publisher of the St. Albans, Vt., Messenger.

A fifth member of the class, Daniel C. Houghton, brother of Henry O. Houghton of the class of 1846, one of the founders of the present Houghton Mifflin Co., book publishers, was editor of the American Presbyterian.

Of the other eight members of the class to graduate four were lawyers, two were clergymen, one was a doctor, and one an educator. One died in 1844.

Most notable of the 1840 group of editors was Raymond, founder and editor of the Times. He wrote for Greeley's New Yorker, was assistant editor of the Tribune, and held the position of office editor on the Courier and Enquirer. He is credited with originating Harper's Magazine, and was literary advisor to Harper and Bros. He served as speaker of the New York Assembly and was lieutentnt-governor of the state.

Physics Lab Finds Old Horseshoe Magnet

A compound horseshoe magnet, which is probably the oldest piece of scientific apparatus owned by the University of Vermont, has recently been found in the physics laboratory of the University and is now being displayed in the Billings Library. The magnet was discovered in the course of investigation being carried on by Prof. Julian L. Lindsay of the English department, who is working on a history of the University. A bill for the magnet, from Thomas Prince, Salem, Mass., instrument maker, shows that in 1806, two years after the first graduating class left the University, the price of this piece of "philosophical apparatus" was $8.50. Natural philosophy was the name then given to physics.

Kept in the first Old Mill building, in the philosophical department, the magnet must have been saved, along with some other pieces of equipment, from the fire which destroyed this building in 1824.

According to Prof. Ralph M. Holmes, head of the physics department, at the time the magnet was constructed scientists had not yet discovered that an electric current will produce a magnetic field, and the only method known then for magnetizing the five bars which comprise the instrument was by contact with natural magnets, commonly known as lodestones, which are samples of an iron ore already magnetized when found.

The strength of the magnetization which could be produced by contact with lodestones would be much less than the bars were found to have upon recent examination, Doctor Holmes said, and it is, therefore, thought very probable that these bars were removed from the brass case, at some date later than 1820, and were remagnetized by the use of electric current.

This is a hand-made magnet, with the steel bars plainly showing the hammer marks. The individual bars differ greatly in dimensions, which is to be expected from hand work. The magnet consists of the five bars, covered with a brass case, and a soft iron armature, part of the instrument, which was intended to show the amount of force needed to separate the armature from the poles of the magnet.

The student body will vote for the freshman representative in W. A. A. on that evening also. The nominees are Janet Dike and Thelma Packard.

Betty Cole '41 has composed two songs and accompanying words for the Green and Gold teams. These songs will be sung at the meeting by the two teams.

Lois Murray '40 has been selected as the new ping pong manager by the W. A. A. Council.

The freshman girls are playing off the badminton tournament.

Museum Notes

How do the seeds of wild plants travel from the parent stalk or limb to the spot where they fall to earth and start a new growth? Some of the various means of transit of seeds and fruits are shown in a series of large water color panels on seed dispersal, recently acquired by the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont. The panels were painted by Carl T. Ramsey of Dorset on the Vermont division of the Federal Art Project, through the courtesy and cooperation of Pierre Zwick, director of the project. On the panels are represented many different trees and plants which produce specialized fruits for dispersal by animals. These seed dispersal panels will shortly be given a special display on the second floor balcony of the museum.

Of the specialized seeds which are prepared by nature for different natural methods of dispersal, burrs hook onto the fur of animals and the seeds of milkweed and maple and elm trees are scattered by the wind. Acorns and nuts travel by way of squirrels. Other methods of planting wild seeds as nature does it will be seen in the seed dispersal panels.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

'Unless people interested in youth are on guard and use wise strategy, youth is going to suffer in the increasing conflict between young people and old-age groups. It will be a tragedy to have this national conflict, but it seems almost certain to come." Dr. Homer P. Rainey, president-elect of the University of Texas, believes the conflict threatens youth with loss of financial assistance for education.

"It is a great pity that through the offense of a few students many others permit themselves to be influenced by the fear of 'apple polishing.' I feel that it is a waste of opportunity when students fail to seek acquaintance with members of the staff on a friendly, social basis." Frank D. McElroy, president of Mankato (Minn.) State Teachers College, comes out for intelligent and valuable student-faculty contacts.

"It is one of the inconsistencies of our social order that we legislate against medicine men who may endanger our physical well-being and at the same time encourage educational charlatans and careerists whose nostrums menace our efforts to improve our minds." University of Michigan's Pres. A. G. Ruthven strikes at educational institutions whose officials win publicity by "discovering new educational plans."

Cats -- St. Mike's Tonight

Don Maley and Capt. Frank Taylor, Who Will Pair at Guards in Tonight's Court Tussle with St. Michael's

Vermont Prepared For Stiff Battle

Underdog Winooski Club By No Means a Weak Sister

Vermont's varsity hoopsters, on the warpath after last week's hairline loss to Dartmouth seek their second victory of the current campaign at Memorial Auditorium tonight, with neighboring St. Michael's supplying the opposition.

Coach Johnny Sabo will employe a starting line-up identical to the one used against the Green. Bill Pye and Paul Corley will pair at forward, Anse Belardinelli will maintain his center slot, and the guards will again be Captain Frank Taylor and Don Maley.

Dick Healy, red-headed firebrand who tapped in the disputed last-second basket against Dartmouth, will shift on and off at forward.

Although the Cats displayed plenty of talent in the Dartmouth encounter, they still have some rough edges which need smoothing. Sabo hopes this finishing off process will be completed tonight, so that his team will be at its peak for Fordham Friday.

Vermont regards St. Michael's none too lightly, however. The Winooski Park quintet, beaten in its only games thus far, on the road against Clarkson Tech and St. Lawrence, nevertheless can prove a stumbling block for any team that isn't on its toes. The Mikemen gave Vermont two close battles last season.

Led by their captain and brilliant playmaker, the rangy all-Stater, Pro Herbert the Mikemen present a competent court array. Steve Guter, of Northern League baseball repute, is at one forward. Jules Pequignot, flashy little sophomore from Connecticut, is a starter, as is Hark Stannard, freshman, who captained Cathedral High's state titlists a year ago.

Probable starting line-ups:

VERMONT	ST. MICHAEL'S
Corley, f.	f., Herbert
Pye, f.	f., Pequignot
Belardinelli, c.	c., Guter
Taylor, g.	g., Moriarty
Maley, g.	g., Stannard

Basketball Dribble

A most pleasant but fatiguing Thanksgiving vacation and a subsequent day and night haunting by acetaldehyde and 2 chlorobutadiene 1, 3 have necessitated the temporary absence of this column of late. But now we are back to normal again and open our eyes to the fact that the '39-'40 basketball campaign is well underway.

We borrowed time from our organic syntheses to witness the Dartmouth-Vermont hoop clash and returned to our books devoid of any speech mechanism whatsoever. The last few minutes of that game was just about as exciting a fracas as we ever hope to see and we're still in somewhat of a fog about how it all ended—except for the score. But the game was not a heart-breaker for Coach Sabo, and every one else has every right to be elated about the gallant rally staged by the wearers of the Green and Gold and it was just one of those undeterminable breaks of the game that kept it from going into extra periods. The first half was rather strange. The score was not a fair index of the playing for, although way behind at the half, Vermont, perhaps Bill Pye, had been controlling the rebounds and the situation was such that while the Cats missed an abundance of easy pops at the basket, a gentleman by the name of Gus Broberg definitely did not. Now we find it very easy to understand why he is classed as one of the best shots in the East. In the second half, however, everything changed. Broberg left via the foul route and with the score 28-17 against Vermont, Ace Healy entered the fracas, with instructions to change to a man-to-man defense. Then things started to happen. Dartmouth might just as well have been playing with a medicine ball for all the benefit and scoring they derived from the ball then in use. Vermont monopolized the play and it was a supreme joy sitting way over on the side of the stage, not being able to see the ball in part of its flight or when it hit the backboard, but then watching it slither through the net cords. Everyone was popping 'em in from all angles. The Vermont spirit which is always so apparent when the team comes up from behind or forges ahead reached new heights. Dartmouth was completely bottled up. Bill Pye was everywhere and Anse Belardinelli as calm and collected as ever was a remarkable steadying influence on the Vermont team which was playing so fast and furiously to overtake the Big Green five that we were afraid that any moment it might go completely berserk.

Suddenly, the score was tied at 33-33. About a minute of playing time remained and Frankie Taylor let loose a one-handed heave from outside the foul circle that was sweet music as it swished through the cords. But Dartmouth was still Dartmouth and immediately following Frankie's duo-counter the Green replied with two more baskets to once again forge ahead. Vermont took the ball out-of-bounds. Seconds remained. Pandemonium reigned. A long pass to Ace Healy under the basket who (we think) twirled and threw just before the final gun. The ball was good and everyone thought that the score was tied But no! Bill Pye was fouled before the shot was made and the one free throw that he was awarded would make no difference in the final outcome. We wish we knew enough basketball to state whether or not the Vermont rally was because of: (1) The absence of Broberg, or (2) the changing to a man-to-man defense, or (3) the sudden finding of the respective shooting eyes of the team. Probably all three factors had quite a bit to do with it.

Tonight—St. Michael's!

If there are any objections to bowling February 23 which is Kake Walk weekend please see Mr. Post. The frats bowled on this date last year, and it was thought that they might not mind this year.

HIGH DOUBLES SCORED BY INTERFRFAT BOWLERS

On Friday, December 8, another section of the bowling schedule was completed. The Kappa Sigs were defeated by the Phi Delts 4-1, the S A E's beat the Delta Psi's 5-0, the Sigma Phi's defeated the Owls 5-0, and the T E P's bowled over the Independents by a score of 5-0.

Some very good high doubles scores have been posted thus far, which is quite exceptional for the short time the league has been in action.

Frankie Taylor leads the pack with the high doubles score of 244. The others are as follows in order: Utley 228, Holtzman 227, Gasperini 222, MacDonald 220, Hyne 218, Sutton 218, Salmon 216 and Story with 215.

Holtzman has the highest score for a single string with 140.

JUNIORS AND SOPHOMORES WIN IN INTERCLASS GAMES

On Saturday, December 9, the basketball playing members of the class of '41 beat out the class of '40 by the score of 30-21. The score at half time was 14-13 in favor of the juniors, but in the second half the juniors put on a spirited finish and put the game on ice.

High scorers for the seniors were Middleworth with ten points and Booth with nine points. The high scorer for the juniors were Pratt with seven points and Williams with six points.

Immediately following this game the freshmen were shellacked by the sophomores to the tune of 29-11. High scorer for the sophomores were Harelitz with eight points and Tooles with seven points.

The Temple University school of medicine had 2,000 applications for 110 vacancies in its freshman class.

Los Angeles City College students drank 1,500 bottles of pop daily during the recent California heat wave.

ATTENTION!

A student section has been set aside for students at the home basketball games throughout the season.

This section can be held without too much difficulty for the student body when there are no preliminary games scheduled. However, when there are preliminary games starting at seven o'clock, it is rather difficult to hold the student section until seven forty-five or eight o'clock for the student body.

Consequently, if you wish to sit in the student section, it would be advisable to arrive at the Auditorium at seven o'clock or shortly thereafter.

NATIONAL YOUTH WORKERS CONSTRUCT TENNIS COURTS

Six new tennis courts are being built for the University of Vermont through the cooperation of the University National Youth Administration, under direction of Prof. Arthur D. Butterfield, and the Athletic Department, under Graduate Manager of Athletics Sabin C. Abell. University students working on the N. Y. A. program and Burlington youths who belong to the out-of-school division of the N. Y. A. are employed on this undertaking. Clay courts are being constructed. Tile installation for drainage has been completed this fall. Reports from the Athletic Department say it is expected the courts will be completed by midsummer of next year.

Frosh Draw Potent Cathedral in Opener

In the preliminary game at 7.15, Fuzzy Evans' Kittens get their first taste of competition. The opposition will be Cathedral High School of Burlington. This club is the same club that last year defeated Burlington High to win the state championship and later competed in the New England championship tourney at Connecticut.

The Cathedral club is a powerful club for the simple reason that "Red" Merola, all state center, is back as captain. This boy is one of the fastest, shiftiest courtman in the State. He has a dead eye and is poison on set shots.

Little as yet is known about Fuzzy's club, but Milt Kaufman at forward and Norm Beaulieu at guard seems to be the best bets.

Frosh-Cathedral line-ups:

FROSH	CATHEDRAL
Kaufman, f.	f., Lynch
Doherty, f.	f., Evelti
Elliott, c.	c., Merola
Lankton, g.	g., Riley
Beaulieu, g.	g., Boilier

Engineering Curricula Escapes Radical Change

New York, N. Y. (IP).—Thorndike Saville, dean of the New York University College of Engineering, declared here in his annual report that attempts were being made in certain quarters to change by legislative fiat the existing freedom of engineering education.

Dean Saville referred to a bill which was introduced into the New York State Senate in March. The bill, which died in committee, would have amended the license law and required two years of liberal arts training in addition to four years of engineering education.

"No subject has been more widely discussed by educators and practicing engineers than that of 'broadening the curriculum.' Certain 'broadening' subjects are often mistakenly called 'cultural,' as if a knowledge of history, literature, or art was more conducive to a cultivated and educated mind than a knowledge of the laws of gravitation, the design of a great suspension bridge, or the means of supplying water to a great city, subjects which form the very basis of our present civilization and which in their conception and execution are by no means deficient in imagination or grandeur.

"Engineering, unlike law or medicine, is not a closed profession and until it becomes such the evolution which has been going on within engineering education for the past decade should be allowed to continue. Regimentation is an easy way to effect reforms, but such are rarely lasting nor conducive to the public welfare."

Dean Saville said that changing times have wrought great changes in engineering curricula and that during the past two decades there is hardly an engineering college in the country which has not materially reduced the technical content of its curricula in favor of more economics, political science and literature.

HOMECOMING GAMES COST ALUMNI PLENTY

Chicago, Ill. — (ACP) — Homecoming games are expensive luxuries for college alumni!

That's the opinion of the National Consumers Tax Commission, which has just released a study which proves that a fan and his wife or sweetheart spends $23.85 to go back to his alma mater for the homecoming grid contest.

Here's the way the bill for two was figured out. Taxi, $3.00; flowers, $1.50; lunch, $2.50; cigarettes, 45 cents; train fare, $4; game tickets, $4.40; and dinner $7.50.

Taxes on all these items amount to $5.95, the commission estimated.

HURRICANE EXAMINATION PROVES BEST FOR FROSH

Amherst, Mass. (IP).—If you want to get highest marks in a college examination, take it during a hurricane.

That seems to be the conclusion reached by Dr. Harry N. Glick, head of the psychology department at Massachusetts State College, who here announced that freshmen who took national intelligence tests last fall during the September hurricane ranked higher than any freshman class in the history of the college and five points higher than a similar group who took tests three days later.

The tests, given nationally by the American Council of Education, were administered to freshmen here during the hurricane. Students worked without lights and in competition with the noise of the storm.

Doctor Glick points out that the low air pressure accompanying the hurricane may have acted as a mental stimulus.

This Collegiate World

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Dr. John E. Gran, University of Alabama chemistry instructor, has new definitions for "energy" and "work." "Anything that exists contains energy, and energy is the capacity of a body to do work," he says.

Then, he asked his class, "Do you know what kind of work this door would do?" Receiving no answer, he came at them with this: "Woodwork."

Benjamin Bucklin, Harvard University freshman, has a new way of dealing with his competitors in affairs of the heart. When one suitor after his girl-friend's heart became a bit too aggressive, Bucklin got aggressive himself, placed Samuel Worthen in handcuffs, threw the key that would open them under a subway train.

Not only did he throw away the key, he made the rounds and "fixed" all of the Cambridge locksmiths so they wouldn't help Worthen escape from bondage. When last heard from, Worthen promised Bucklin a different kind of cuffing—after he escaped from the prisoners' bracelets.

But it's a good thing Harvardman Conrad Budny wasn't the object of Bucklin's disaffections, for Budny claims the unofficial milk-drinking championship of the world; he drinks seven glasses of milk per meal and has done so ever since he was a babe in arms. No sissy, he exercises with 50-pound weights, using a 200-pound weight for "special occasions."

THE MANHATTER

Better than ten easy lessons on how to enter a drawing room, for putting one at ease, is a certain knowledge of what is right and what is wrong in party clothes, hats, and other evening accessories for men. After six p.m., "clothes do make the man," communism to the contrary, and those of us who have sweated through an evening in our old junior prom tuxedo, or in father's dress clothes are the first to admit it.

For your information, as well as ours, we dispatched The Manhatter to Fifth and Madison Avenues for the express purpose of compiling a complete manual on dress usage and etiquette. Here it is.

Evening Suits

Tuxedos have at last broken with tradition, and although a majority are still sold in black—plum, mulberry, twilight blue and midnight blue are coming in fast. True, these colors are subdued and under artificial light, look almost black. But, place them beside a black dinner jacket and the colored suitings have much more "life," or shall be say "sparkle."

At first writing, a plum or mulberry shade may sound bizarre, but The Manhatter saw Paul Whiteman wearing a plum tuxedo at a broadcast last week, and states without equivocation that Paul looked smart as H——. Paul is a big man too.

Raymond Twyeffort, that immaculate advocate of color in men's clothes, was also seen recently at a 52nd Street night spot in a twilight blue dinner jacket, a twilight blue tie, with a twilight blue topcoat to match. It is reported that he didn't look a bit sissy or over-dressed.

Full dress or "tails" hasn't gone quite so far as dinner jackets in the matter of color. There are no plum or mulberry tails—yet! There are, however, midnight and twilight blue formals.

As a departing bit of advice, The Manhatter emphasizes the importance of deciding between a single and a double breasted suit. His rule-of-thumb is: if you are tall, or medium height and slender, a double breasted dinner jacket will be becoming . . . if you are short, or inclined to be on the weighty side, stick to single breasted outfits. The double breasted suit has the trick of creating an optical illusion which makes a tall man less tall, and a short, stout man positively dumpy.

To us, college means all this, and more, too. It means study and research, athletics and activities, community living and bull-sessions, parties and performances, classes and examinations, grades and graduation. VERMONT CYNIC

MUSEUM EXHIBITS FOR SAND BAR BRIDGE AREA

Visitors to the Sand Bar Bridge picnic area in Grand Isle County, Vermont, will be able next summer to see specimens of the plant and animal life of that region, and will have a chance to get scientific answers to certain questions about the natural surroundings. This service will come about partly through a broadening of the program of the Visual Education Project being carried on in the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont, under Museum supervision, as a part of the Works Progress Administration. The regular staff of the Museum will have charge of arrangements and of the exhibits themselves.

Already the Extension Project's visual education units, sent out to schools on the principle that it's easier to teach with pictures and the children learn better, have become popular with teachers throughout the state and are in constant demand. Now, the project proposes to arrange another of its Trees of Vermont series, for display in the stone clubhouse of the picnic area. A large wall case has already been provided by the Fleming Museum and will be installed in the clubhouse. Specimens of trees, birds, mammals, and minerals of the locality will be on view. This display is being undertaken in cooperation with the state conservation department. Some of the specimens will be furnished by the State Cabinet at Montpelier, and others are being specially collected for the purpose.

A number of questions about the natural history of the region will be painted on small signposts. Visitors to the picnic ground may find themselves facing a question such as "How many stars can a person see with the unaided eye on a clear night?" "How long did it take to make the sand?" Answers will be supplied, on the backs of the signs.

Paintings are to be made of some of the brighter colored birds of the locality, such as the greatblue heron, the kingfisher, and various warblers, and will be hung in the clubhouse.

The Extension Project of the Museum, which is now expected to continue for another twelve months, has a staff of nine workers.

Dr. C. P. Boner Conducts Sound Experiments

Austin, Tex. (ACP)—If your convocation speakers are becoming more difficult to hear, you'll be interested in the scientific proof of the fact that all audiences are getting noisier and noisier each year.

Such is the conclusion reached by Dr. C. P. Boner, University of Texas physics professor and sound expert, after a seven-year series of sound-meter experiments made in churches, gymnasiums, dance halls and restaurants.

The university's sound expert uses public address systems and sound meters as his measuring rods. The noise from the audience, he measures in "decibels," recorded on his sound meter.

He cites the university's huge Gregory gymnasium as the nearest example. Its 25-watt public address system, adequate in 1930, has been "stepped up" to 125 watts since to overcome an audience noise mounting to 80 decibels.

Ordinary conversation registers about 74 decibels, according to Doctor Boner, while 130 decibels is "the threshold of pain" for the human ear.

The mounting noise level, which means the noisier audience, is just as evident in church pews, dance halls and restaurants, Doctor Boner's experiments contend.

One church was forced to raise the console of its organ from the floor level to the choir loft for the organist to hear his instrument, he said.

Reason? Doctor Boner is not sure yet.

It might be the radio, he reasons, for its widespread use at "unnatural volumes" may have accustomed the average person to louder sounds.

It might be post-depression nervousness, but the sound meter is only seven years old and he has no gauge of pre-depression audience noise.

One thing is certain, he maintains. The artificial "stepping up" of voice and orchestra distorts the tonal qualities of both speech and music.

Increased street noises are certainly to be considered, Doctor Boner said.

INTRODUCING

R. M. Story '40

Dick Story is one of the busiest men on the U. V. M. campus. Even this interview was punctuated with orders and suggestions to his subordinates, indicating that the business manager of the Cynic is always on the job. And his pet hate is (this was very emphatic) outsiders who continually use the Cynic office phone!

A native of Yonkers, N. Y., Dick came to U. V. M. on scholarship after working for three years in the Branch Operations Department of the Universal Pictures Corporation, and aspires to be an engineer in a small firm when he graduates.

At an early age Dick had an uncontrolable desire to play the trombone, but some heartless brute branded him a monotone after hearing him sing and suggested that he take up drumming instead. Now, utterly disillusioned, he has become resigned to the fate of listening to Tommy Dorsey recordings.

A loyal Sigma Phi brother he frowns on hazing and "hell week," for he feels that it is not in keeping with true fraternity ideals.

If the United States should go to war (but he doesn't think it will) Dick, as a member of advanced R. O. T. C., would be among the first to go. In the present European situation he feels that Russia is adopting a poor policy of sending out parachute jumpers to descend upon the Finns in a sort of bird-like infantry.

Active in Sports

I think that everyone who is not a track man has wondered at some time or other what attraction cross-country holds for athletes. Perhaps Dick's explanation will clear things up a bit. He took it to get out of gym, but he hastened to add that while it's no fun and the most thankless sport known, it's a wonderful conditioner. But basketball is different—especially after the game last Thursday night, and Dick agrees with the rest of us that we have a great team that's bound to do big things this year.

From basketball the conversation turned to the inevitable "most embarassing experience" which, I'm afraid, is not printable in this case; and then to the even more inevitable topic of women. At this Dick sat back and became very thoughtful. Then slowly and cautiously came the revelation that short, dark women used to attract him, but now all he can see is a red head! He did let it slip though that he likes women in general—except when they radiate the aroma of stale cigarette smoke and wear super-crazy hats (he's the conservative type).

Now here is a bit of information that will be of special benefit to those who have numerous hour tests just before Christmas. I asked Dick how he'd get his Christmas shopping done in a case like that, and after several minutes of thoughtful deliberation he pulled out his trusty "slip stick" (slide rule), put it through two or three ingenious manipulations, and finally arrrived at the conclusion that the best way is by phone. And then, inspired by this masterful deduction, and not to be outdone by the President, Dick offered the very practical suggestion that New Year's should always be on Saturday (so you could sleep it off).

He is a loyal U. V. M. supporter, this Dick Story, thinks the Cynic is the best college newspaper printed, and never lets studying interfere with college life.

New York Times Offers Free Guide Service

While you are in New York for your Christmas vacation, The New York Times Guide Service will be glad to take you on a specially conducted trip through the building. The tour lasts approximately one and one-half hours. Visitors are taken through the editorial department, The Times Studios, Wide World Photos, the composing room, the news room and the press room.

In order to secure a reservation, it is necessary to either write to The New York Times Guide Service about ten days in advance or telephone Lackawanna 4-1000, extension 41, at least one day ahead. (No visitors under fifteen years of age will be permitted to take the trip.)

There is a general daily schedule of tours through the building of which groups of fifteen to twenty persons may avail themselves. Tours are scheduled for the following hours:

9 a.m.	2 p.m.
11 a.m.	4 p.m.

This schedule is effective daily, except Sundays and holidays.

In addition to the trips through the building, visitors are invited to visit the special room arranged for the display of The History of the Recorded Word. The New York Times welcomes visitors to this museum any week day from ten to five and Wednesday until ten. The exhibit shows man's progress in recording his works and thoughts from the first impressions in clay to the modern newspaper. More than 200 objects, including manuscripts, printed books, newspapers and examples or pictures of equipment used in producing them, are on exhibition. Five thousand years are covered. An hour's time may be well spent in this room.

College Presidents Note Educational Problems

Hanover, N. H.—(I. P.)—One of the most interesting pieces of work at Dartmouth College being done this year by Clark W. Horton, whose title is Assistant in Educational Research. The purpose of this work is in the direction of finding out how much students are getting out of courses and what the faculty can do to help them attain a maximum.

As Mr. Horton himself puts it: "Evaluation implies testing. However, it implies not only testing to discover how much of the factual content of a course the student remembers, but also testing to discover whether or not the student is able to use those facts in a meaningful way in life." He is now working with individuals and committees in several departments, assisting them in building tests and planning testing programs designed to answer certain questions which they have about student achievement.

The Saturday Letter

December 9, 1939.

Dear Friend:

Singing for no listeners—writing for no readers—working for no pay—racing for no stakes—acting for no audience—studying for no degree!

"Such nonsense!" you say. One of the most important tests for a man, however, is that of checking motives for endeavor, and, if a man is actuated only by the expectation of a pay-off, he never ranks with the best.

A great student of Shakespeare printed fine books and gave them away in the public park on Sunday afternoons. Would you do that? A great inventor gave his discovery to the public. Would you do that? A great musician played hours daily with no one to listen. Would you do that? Many writers have nearly starved because they would not sell out. Would you do that? Scientists go to the ends of the earth to discover new things (at their own expense). Would you do that? Contractors use up their personal savings to complete buildings. Would you do that?

Ask yourself such questions and you will need no one to tell you whether or not you will be successful. Your own answers to your own questions will tell the story.

One of the most vicious ideas one may be afflicted with is the one suggesting that someone, some nation, or the world at large owes you a living. The government owes you no more than you owe the government. You are born into a world where there is an opportunity to obtain a living but no one is duty bound to procure that living for you. This vicious idea operates in the field of creative work.

Men measure success by material returns and as a result fail to give all that they are capable of giving. Men expect applause, large bonuses, fan mail, and glowing press notices and, failing to receive such remunerations, quit.

One of the first lessons for a student to learn is that achievement has no cash value. There are values, of course, but they are values one cannot associate with selfishness and avarice. A true student studies to obtain facts, to develop skills, to gain attitudes, to live through new experiences, to discover, to explore, to invent, to estimate, to judge, to look for and appreciate validity and to attain moral and spiritual stamina.

Very truly,

Raymond E. Manchester.

Girls' Ski Team to Be Formed by W. A. A.

The W. A. A. Council has chosen Dorothea Smith '40 to manage the ski team for the season. It is expected that a great many girls will want to participate in skiing this winter, so if anyone who is interested will sign up for the team it will aid in getting the schedule formed. The Physical Education department, under the direction of Miss Rosemary Hazard, has conducted dry skiing lessons for the past two weeks. It is hoped that special rates may be given to students by Sepp Ruschp, famous skier and instructor. The women's ski team is another brand new feature at Vermont, sponsored by W. A. A. Previously, girls who participated in the Middlebury Ski Meet have done so "on their own." One of the objectives of the club is to send the girls to Middlebury as a regular team.

Society Notes

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

The alumnae gave a supper Wednesday night for the seniors at the Alpha Chi house. The annual Christmas party for the poor children will be held soon with the pledges in charge.

Pauline Chamberlin and Mary Whitney were visitors at the house this weekend.

DELTA PHI EPSILON

Saturday night a semi-formal dance was held on the roof of the Hotel Vermont. The chaperones were Prof. and Mrs. Carpenter. Gloria Oling '42 and Jean Saul '41 were in charge of the decorations which were very novel.

PI BETA PHI

A breakfast was given for the chapter's new pledges last Sunday morning. After breakfast the actives and pledges attended church together. Catherine Clark '40 and Jean Harshbarger '40 were in charge of the breakfast.

The Pi Phi pledges gave a tea for the pledges of the other sororities on Saturday afternoon. Jeanne Woolley '42 and Virginia Bell '43 had charge of the arrangements.

The Harvard University chapter of Phi Beta Kappa has voted to have "spirituous liquors" at its annual banquets.

A. S. M. E. Notes

Under the direction of A. S. M. E. the mechanical engineering department's new laboratory was officially opened by a smoker on Friday night. The meeting was attended by several faculty members and thirty-odd engineering students representing all classes and departments.

Professor Butterfield was the guest speaker of the evening and he gave an interesting illustrated lecture about types of airplanes used during the World War and his experiences in France. The speaker remarked that a German prisoner with whom he talked after the Armistice said that the war was not yet over.

Two four-man teams, one representing the faculty and the other the student body, answered or attempted to answer a questionnaire prepared by two seniors. Professors Daasch, Sussdorff, Butterfield and Aldrich of the faculty opposed R. M. Story, L. B. Zambon, R. A. Dudley and A. R. Pesarik of the student body. Zambon's familiarity with Canadian ales probably gave the winning points to the students.

E. F. Hawkins '40 was in charge of the refreshments and F. A. Johnson '40 acted as chairman of the meeting.

Some 52,000 cigarettes were used by Williams College fraternities during rushing season this fall.

Waterman Building to Be Erected on Campus

That construction of a million-dollar University of Vermont building will begin early next summer, was announced yesterday by Roy L. Patrick of Burlington, a trustee of the University and chairman of the Waterman building committee. The death of Mrs. Anna R. C. Waterman, wife of the late United States Senator Charles W. Waterman, last June 17, released a trust fund for this purpose.

Senator Waterman's will specified that the building should face the campus from either South Prospect Street or Main Street and the committee decided to locate the building on South Prospect Street. The committee has not yet announced for what purposes the building will be used.

Newman K. Chaffee of Rutland, Harry B. Oatley of Great Neck, L. I., Thomas C. Cheney of Morrisville, all trustees, Forrest W. Kehoe, assistant comptroller, and representatives of McKim, Mead and White, architects, of New York City attended the meeting in Patrick's office Saturday.

Forty-one foreign nations were represented in the student body of Columbia University's summer session.

Women's Mass Meeting Held at Southwick

Meeting Presided by M. Howe, K. Holden, and B. Gallagher

The second women's mass meeting of the year was held Wednesday evening, December 13, at 7.30 in the ballroom at Southwick. Phyllis McGovern '40, new president of Student Union, presided at the meeting. At the opening of the meeting all women were seated according to their team—whether Green or Gold.

The meeting was opened by repeating in unison the Vermont pledge. Following this, Dean Simpson spoke on rules at Vermont—house regulations, care of the houses, and the attitude of everyone at the approach of midyears. She urged cooperation in making it possible for everyone to have quiet so that all marks might be passing.

Margaret Crowley Tells of Convention

Betsy Marlow '40, chief justice, then spoke on Student Union rules and urged everyone to respect the government of Student Union and obey all rules. Following this, Margaret Crowley '41 told a few of the highlights of her trip to Maryland to attend the convention of representatives from all over the United States assembled to discuss student government.

The meeting was then turned over to Mary Howe '40, president of W. A. A., and the heads of the Green and Gold teams. Katherine Holden '42 and Barbara Gallagher '42 spoke for these two teams. W. A. A. awards were given to a large number of new members who have acquired the fifty points necessary for membership in W. A. A. These awards were presented by Mary Howe.

Five Receive W. A. A. Pins

Pins as recognition for acquiring at least 600 W. A. A. credits were awarded to five senior girls: Mildred Guttormsen, Betsy Marlow, Betty Millington, Lois Murray and Betty Myers.

The heads of various teams next spoke. Elizabeth Gurney discussed basketball and urged organizing inter-dorm and inter-sorority teams. Elizabeth Taylor then spoke on bowling and urged everyone to come to the Bowlaway and play. Maria Dietrich spoke on swimming and asked more people to try out for it. Fencing, a new sport at Vermont this year, was then given some publicity by the leader of the group.

Activity Sheets Passed Out

Sheets including the different activities, their instructors and time and place of meeting were then distributed. On the back were printed words and music of the new Green and Gold songs. These were rehearsed several times.

The climax of the meeting was the announcement that Betsy Marlow '40 had been elected to Mortar Board, senior

Two Seniors Pledged To Omicron Nu Society

Jean Morse '40 of Essex and Helen Towne '40 of Milton were pledged Tuesday to Omicron Nu, the national honorary society for home economics students. The pledging ceremony, which was followed by light refreshments, took place at the apartment of Prof. Bertha Terrill, head of the home economics department. Several faculty members were present as well as Laura Dustan '40, who became a member last year.

These girls were chosen for membership because of their fine scholarship, leadership and promise of future attainment. Both have been members of the Home Economics Club and have been on the dean's list. Miss Morse has also belonged to W. A. A. and Y. W. C. A. Miss Towne belongs to the Sigma Gamma sorority.

SORORITIES TO HOLD XMAS TEA DANCES

Two sororities will hold tea dances on Saturday afternoon, December 16.

Joanné Agard, '42 is in charge of the "Vic" tea dance, which will be held at the Tri-Delt house. The chaperones will be Dr. and Mrs. Stultz.

Alpha Chi Omega will honor its pledges on January 6. The tea dance, which will be held at the Alpha Chi house, is in charge of Louise Peters, '41.

Mortar Board Sponsors Carol Singing Sunday

This year the members of Mortar Board, senior women's honorary society have initiated the idea of a Christmas Carol sing which will take place immediately after the Christmas concert on Sunday afternoon. Mortar Board cordially invites all students and faculty to take part.

The group will leave the chapel after the concert and the sing will end at Southwick where there will be a lighted Christmas tree. Staff and Sandal, junior women's honor society will sell refreshments of hot dogs and coffee at Southwick.

The University choir and S. A. E. Glee Club have very obligingly offered to take part in leading the singing of carols The members of Mortar Board hope that a tradition of carol singing may be started here at the University of Vermont not only because there is a need for more group singing on the campus, but because everyone enjoys singing Christmas carols. Again the members of 1940 Mortar Board extend a cordial invitation for all to attend.

This week the senior women's honorary society is planning to set up the crèche in the north lounge at Southwick building. This belongs to Mortar Board Society and every year it is put up with the appropriate lighting effects and decorations.

With the carol sing, and Christmas tree it is hoped that Southwick and Redstone campus may become the center of the Christmas activities here at the University of Vermont.

Pledges Entertain At Sorority Teas

Sororities have been giving pledge teas for the past week. Alpha Xi Delta entertained the pledges Thursday, December 7. Marjorie Witham '42 was in charge and Doris Schlaf '41 and Evelyn Perkins '41 poured.

The Pi Beta Phi pledge tea was held Saturday afternoon, December 9, with Jean Woolley '42 and Virginia Bell '43 acting as co-chairmen. Elizabeth Taylor '40 poured.

Delta Delta Delta entertained Tuesday afternoon, December 12. June Hoffman '43 was in charge and Jean Butler '40, Jean Brehmer '40, Betty Terrill '40 and Katherine Wortheim '40 poured.

Martha Stearns '42 was chairman of the Kappa Alpha Theta tea held Wednesday afternoon. Marjorie Bell '40 and Mildred Guttormsen '40, poured.

The Alpha Chi Omega pledge tea will be held Thursday afternoon. Mignon Warner '43 is chairman.

PRESS CLUB MEETING HELD DECEMBER 13

The Press Club held a business meeting Wednesday afternoon, December 13, at 4.15 o'clock. Attendance was taken and any unexcused absences were counted as cuts.

During the meeting ways of improving the writing of the cards in general were discussed and Flora Fifield '42 offered several helpful suggestions. It was decided to have club dues and these were set at twenty-five cents.

Plans for possible news stories were talked over but nothing definite was decided because of the absence of Professor Dean.

"Night Must Fall" to be Presented at Southwick

Mrs. Taggart Directs Final Rehearsals This Week

"Night Must Fall" has been rated by prominent dramatic critics as the most hair-raising play of horror in the list of popular thrillers. It is a superbly designed close-up of a psychological murder mystery which holds the audience spellbound until the final curtain. The character of Dan, the helpless victim of his homicidal instincts, is a masterpiece of dramatic conception. A cold-blooded and ruthless killer concealed beneath his winning personality, he raises the tension of horror to the highest pitch.

Dan, who is employed as a bellboy in a remote English hotel, is called to account by Mrs. Bramson, whose maid, Dora, he has seduced. Mrs. Bramson becomes interested in the boy because of his personal charm and gives him a position as a servant in her household. Olivia, Mrs. Bramson's niece, traces the murder of a hotel guest to Dan but decides to shield him. Dan, in spite of his gratitude to Olivia, is driven by forces beyond his control, and plots the murder of Mrs. Bramson.

R. P. Hunting '42 Plays Masculine Lead

The part of Dan is played by R. B. Hunting '42 of Springfield, whose other appearances in college plays promise an outstanding performance. He is a member of the S A E fraternity, University Players, French Club, Cynic and Ariel staffs. Barbara P. Tucker '43 of Fitchburg, Mass., plays the part of Mrs. Bramson. She has already appeared successfully in the group plays. Olivia is portrayed by Marian Stoughton '43 of Keeseville, N. Y., a Pi Beta Phi pledge, and G. S. Noonan '40 of Vergennes, a member of Delta Psi, International Relations Club, Glee Club, Ariel staff and track team, plays the part of Hubert, the suitor of Olivia. Dora Parkoe is played by Shirley Treat '40 of Bridgeport, Conn., who has already shown her dramatic ability on the campus. She is a member of the Cynic staff, French Club, Dramatic Club and University Players. R. J. Lavigne '41 of Burlington, who recently took part in the group plays, takes the part of Inspector Belsize. Mrs. Terrence, the cook, is played by Jane Lyons '41 of New York. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi, Bluestockings, Dramatic Club, University Players, Cynic and Ariel staffs. M. J. Boucher '40 of White Plains, N. Y., appears as the Lord Chief Justice. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta, Glee Club, Choir, International Relations Club and varsity baseball team. Louise Mann '41 of Burlington, a Kappa Alpha Theta and member of the University Players, Dramatic Club, Staff and Sandal, International Relations Club and Cynic staff, plays Nurse Libby.

The play is under the direction of Mrs. Wilnetta Sproul Taggart, successful director of many college plays, and will be presented on Saturday evening, December 16, at Southwick.

MAHONEY STILL OUT TO WIN RECOGNITION

If four men can be called a meeting then one was held Monday night at the Fleming Museum by the Vermont Independents. This hardy bunch gathered to carry on the traditions of the Independents and moreover to make sure that every member of the bunch had not taken a powder. Their able president J. P. Mahoney was there in full regalia and as usual his voice was outstanding of the four voices in the hall. That lusty oral cavity seemed to keep saying something about representation on the Interfraternity Council. Anyway no sane minded person can say that J. P. didn't try. Maybe next week, weather permitting, the man will have a larger audience to tell it to—so he hopes.

New Mortar Board Member

Betsy Marlow '40

Betsy Marlow Elected Member of Mortar Board

Akraia Chapter of Mortar Board takes pleasure in announcing that Miss Elizabeth W. Marlow '40 has been chosen as one of its members for the current year. Betsy transferred to this university in her sophomore year and has always showed a high quality of service and leadership. She is now Chief Justice of Student Union, the President of Pan-Hellenic Council, and Headwaitress at Robinson Dining Hall. Last year she was a member of Staff and Sandal and she has also served on the W. A. A. Council and as House President of Redstone. Betsy is taking the Social Science course with a major in Psychology, and she is a member of the Alpha Chi Omega fraternity.

The members of Mortar Board are always chosen on a threefold basis: scholarship, leadership, and service; and it is because Betsy has so highly exemplified all of these that she is now to join this year's chapter, the other members of which are Jean Butler, Mary Nelson, Phyllis McGovern, Mary Howe. Betty Myers, and Florence Wade.

Betsy was honored at a luncheon at the Golden Pheasant on Wednesday noon and will also attend the annual Christmas banquet given by Dean Simpson in honor of Mortar Board and Boulder.

Freshman Debaters Win Coveted Bailey Cup

Having defeated the highly touted sophomores on the field of brawn, the men of the class of '43 took a 3-0 decision from the sophomores Tuesday evening in the annual Bailey Cup Debate. The encounter, featuring six minute constructive speeches and three four-minute rebuttals for each side, was held in the art gallery of the Fleming Museum. As a result, the freshmen will hold the handsome and highly honored Bailey Cup for a full year. The frosh captured the trophy despite the fact that two members of the sophomore team were on the freshman team that won the cup last year.

Professor Carleton, Professor Woodard and Professor Kennan served as judges, and Mr. Powers, coach of debate at the University, served in the capacity of chairman. The sophomore debaters were Robert Wolfe, Fulvio Bardossi and Julius Cohen. The victorious freshman speakers were Daan Zwick, Samuel Grossman and Bernard Glass.

Women's Student Union wishes to call to the attention of all women students the fact that there has been quite a bit of negligence concerning the regulations. However, these have been duly handled by Judiciary, and Student Union asks that everyone cooperate so that the spirit of what student government stands for may be the ideal of all Vermont women.

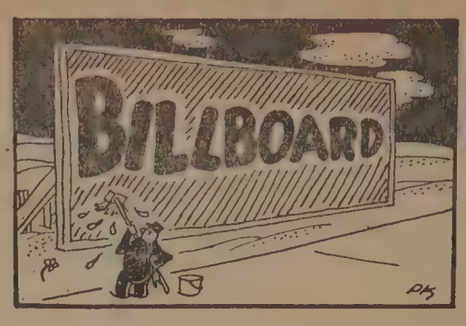
More Concerning Combines

Each of us holds definite views on practically every subject and every situation with which we are acquainted. Our attitude toward these things is dependent upon many things, but it depends mostly upon the knowledge which we possess concerning these matters. Discussion inevitably tends to increase our understanding because through this medium we are able to hear and understand the viewpoints of others.

You are probably wondering at this point just what the writer is attempting to get at. In short, this is it. Tuesday night the Interfraternity Council held its regular monthly meeting. The writer was present at that meeting. Previously the Council had requested the various sororities and fraternities on the hill to discuss the matter of fraternity combines in their respective chapters and to report the results of these discussions back to the Council, stating whether or not the organization were in favor of the political system in use at the University.

One after another the written reports of the sororities were read and then representatives of the several fraternities were asked to report the reaction in their chapters. Almost without exception the various organizations voiced their disfavor of the existing system. However, the reports in many cases were qualified to a certain extent. In general, there was a feeling that, although the combine system was unsatisfactory, the task of preventing combines was Herculean if not entirely impossible.

There followed a lengthy discussion of the situation and it is in regard to the conclusions drawn from this discussion that we wish to speak. This writer, along with most of those present, entered the meeting with a feeling of definite hostility toward the combine system.



As the discussion progressed it immediately became apparent that even if it were decided to abolish and outlaw the combine system, it would be exceedingly difficult to enforce any regulations in regard to the matter. Not only was this true, but it was also found that any and all alternate systems proposed were faulty.

It would be ideal if nominations were based on merit alone and if the balloting which followed were on a similar basis. This indeed would be Utopian. But we must admit that this state of affairs would never exist. The men elected to office are usually chosen because of other considerations.

Suppose combines were not abolished—that instead they were forced into the open and that the men backed by the combines were required to state their platforms. After all, this same thing goes on in civil life. Why not recognize its existence here?

Or why not adopt the proposal under consideration by the Council—the proposal which appears elsewhere in today's CYNIC? The chief objection to the system requiring a petition carrying the names of twenty-five students is that it eliminates the whole idea of a secret ballot and demolishes one of the very cornerstones of democracy. Then, too, the combine system remains, but is that system so undesirable after all?

We say it is undesirable if a better system can be adopted. But what shall that system be? It is a question which neither your writer nor the Interfraternity Council can answer at present. Through this column the Council requests the suggestions of all who believe they see a solution to this perplexing problem.

There will be a meeting of the Rugby Club Monday at 4.00 p.m., for the elections. The meeting will be held in the gym.

Finished pictures that are paid for may be obtained at the bookstore if they have come.

Rio Piedras, P. U. (I. P.)—The University of Puerto Rico installed at the opening of the present academic year a twenty-five-bell carillon in the Franklin D. Roosevelt Tower, which lifts 170 feet above the central administration building. This $20,000 carillon, fourth of its type to be manufactured and first of its type in the West Indies, consists of Deagan Tower Chimes of twenty-five bells which call and dismiss classes, mark time through the Westminster Peal, and render concerts, many of which will be broadcast as Pan-American programs.

The Band Wagon

By BOB JOHNSON

Jitterbug Jive

"Don't spit on the jitterbug—educate him." . . . That is precisely our stand. The jitterbug stage is the first step in the appreciation of this thing called swing—at least for most people. If he doesn't appreciate the solos for their improvisation—give him time. Help the J-bug get the difference between Henry Busse and Harry James, and the subtler, just as important difference between Ziggy Elman and Louis Armstrong.

Arthur (The Great) Shaw speaks his mind, frankly—would that a person in the position he has just vacated would endeavor to educate rather than kick in the teeth; crush the hands that elevated him to the throne and as rapidly tore the throne from under him.

Radio Ramblings

Louis Armstrong—at the Cotton Club—commercial—slightly—but not in the usual sense. . . . Oh but that horn of Gabriel—We go for his vocals, humor a plenty . . . but you don't need to.

Andy Kirk—beautifully reserved for a sepian band—some lovely swing.

Glenn Miller—rapid risers—at press time, number two in the Down Beat poll. Precision and depth unexcelled. Maid Marion is tops as a personality—as a warbler—"she knows all the words" . . . and oh—so "marvadorable."

Jan Savitt—featuring Bon Bon and an even better Johnny "Zulu" Austin . . . surely—Savitt Swingsters Sock.

Wax-Works

The Goodman Sextet—"Flyin' Home"—magnificent Charlie Christian guitar both solo and rhythm.

Harry James—"Willow Weep for Me"—always exciting horn, Matthews alto, fine drums. We're glad to see Mrs. James (Louise Tobin) is much improved—which has nothing to do with this disc.

Ellington strikes a plaintive note in "Lonely Co-ed" with fine instrumental solos and the Ivy Anderson vocal. Ensemble passages sound organ-like. Solos by any member of this group are bound to be good or so experience would dictate.

Dinah Shore's "Last Night"—Maxinish in treatment.

John Kirby and krew kick on "Opus No. 5"—fine Billy Kyle, piano; Kirby, bass; Brown, alto; Shaver, trumpet; and Bailey, clarinet.

Don't miss the Benny Carter, Lionel Hampton and Cole Hawkins releases.

Under-rated

The Duke . . . little time on the air . . . no program . . . few records . . . no commercialism . . . demanding wider and greater appreciation . . . the most under-rated crew on the air, the theater stage, the dance stand. Still they laugh—command high prices—get enough votes in polls to rate about seventh . . . and go on playing the greatest modern music in any mood.

Woody Herman—"the band that plays the blues."

Ella Fitzgerald's band . . . blacked out by Ella's stellar performances . . . but that band is really good.

Jimmy Dorsey . . . now risen from this rank in our opinion—nosing out the younger brother of sliphorn fame.

Shaw Shake-up

Once more Shaw has left his band to do what he pleases. Pastor, the old standby, took over for a few days only to relinquish the front job to George Auld. The band will be co-op—we see where the boys will get more money as soon as they can command prices as they have been. George Auld—a bit over a year ago an unknown—now fronting George Auld's orchestra—all because of a tenor style that caught on while with Bunny Berigan.

Are Leaders Important?

According to a recent poll conducted among band leaders the musician band leaders Miller, the Dorseys, Goodman and the others said no. "The arranger makes the band." Contradicting them were Lombardo, Kaye, Barron—and the baton wavers—saying the leader was the most important part—Maybe . . . in symphony but not in swing. Orchids to the leaders who give the credit to their arrangers. By the way . . . does Guy Lombardo lead the band because he played violin so poorly? How often does he put that three-stringed pawn shop article under his chin?

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

Combines as represented on the V mont campus today are an absolute ne sity. One hears of constructive destructive criticism. May I refer t who wish to destroy the combine sys to this letter until they have someth better and more worthy to offer.

The inherent fault lies not with combines but with the University of V mont for permitting its student body be spread over the entire city of Burl ton, placing of the women's campus i isolated position and general unplan and disorganized growth of the colle The system as it stands at this time the one effective means of organizing directing student opinion on this cam Without the combines chaos in Uni sity elections would result. Minor f tions would be enabled to gain con and work the student body towards own undesirable ends.

When the combines are no longer ful then let us abolish them, but not because of a sour-grapes attitude on part of a few students.

Freshman Catamounts Lose to Cathedral

Hard Fought Game Ends in 43-34 Score

In a hard fought battle Tuesday night at the Memorial Auditorium, the Cathedral High hoopsters downed the Vermont Frosh by the score of 43-34. It was the debut of Fuzzy Evans' crew. Except for a few minutes in the second quarter, the high school quintet led the Green and Gold yearlings.

In a low-scoring first period the Cathedral lads, sparked by their star forward, Pal Evelti gained the edge by the slim margin of 7-5. Both sides missed numerous counters by hurrying their shots in their anxiety to score.

Successive goals by Doherty and Elliott put Vermont in the lead early in the second quarter. From then on both sides seemed to have found their eyes, caging swishers from all angles. Cathedral again forged to the front as Evelti sank two goals and a foul in rapid succession. The half ended with Cathedral leading 22-20.

The Cathedral boys outscored the Frosh 17-7 in the third quarter. Cathedral's passing and shooting was truly accurate as they took advantage of every opportunity. Merola of Cathedral accounted for eight of his team's points while Kaufman and Doherty scored six of the seven points for the Frosh.

Although outscoring their opponents 7-4 in the final period, marked by numerous substitutions on both sides, the Frosh would not overtake the high school boys and succumbed 43-34.

Though outplayed by the experienced Cathedral team, the Evans-coached team is still to be commended. With only three weeks of practice behind them, they took the floor against a veteran team and fought to the end. The team has definite possibilities and, with more practice and experience should make it difficult for all its future opponents. It will be especially interesting to see the results encounter between these two teams scheduled for later in the season.

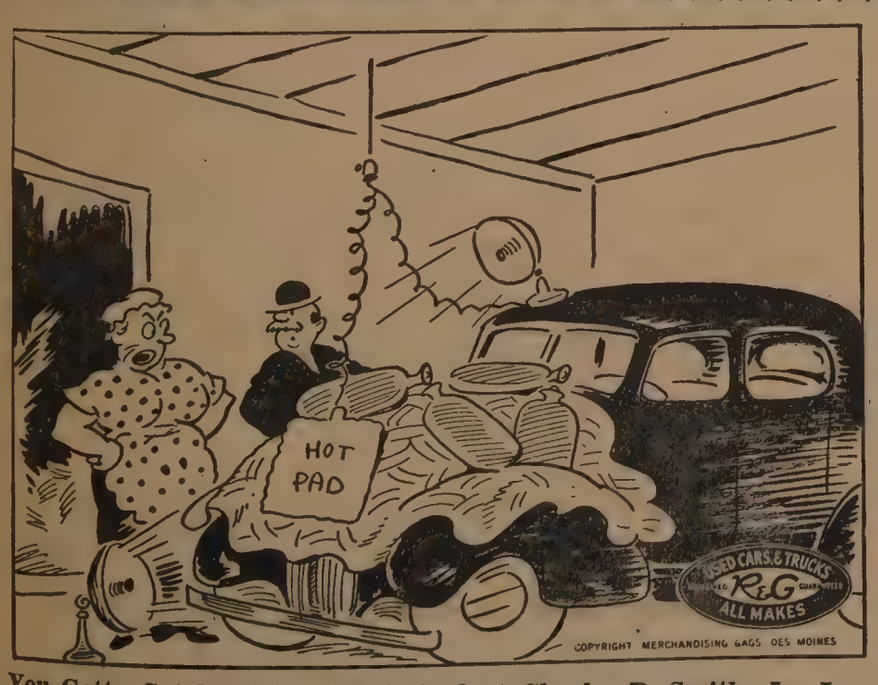
RUGBY CLUB JOINS EASTERN RUGBY UNION

The Rugby Club of the University decided at its meeting last week, to join the Eastern Rugby Union. Powell Whalen '40, president of the club, has already received notice that the application would be approved at the New York meeting of the Union.

For the past five years, Rugby enthusiasts have been trying to develop a team that would be good enough to meet competition from other colleges. This year, the response from the campus and general comment on the sport pages of the local papers have given the club new impetus.

By joining the Eastern Rugby Union the Vermont Rugby team will be able to schedule a few games with such schools as Harvard, and Long Island College.



All those who have taken part in the Rugby classes are invited to join the club. This year there were some thirty-five men who played the game.

H. G. CARLSON NAMED ON ALL N. E. SWEDISH ELEVEN

Harold G. Carlson, who pulls down honor grades as an electrical engineer at the University of Vermont and plays sixty minutes per game of equally high grade football at tackle, is named by Ralph H. Colson, sport columnist, on his all-New England Swedish eleven. Carlson is twenty years old, 6 feet 1 inch tall, weighs 196 pounds. He is a junior and has seen service in every varsity game for two years. This year he has been one of the team's 60-minute men. "Swede," who plays football as methodically and devastatingly as he does everything else, has already been named to the tackle berth on his all-state elevens. Colson, who picks him on the all-New England Swedish eleven, conducts the sports department for Svea, the only Swedish newspaper in New England.

Wesleyan University students have organized their own campus radio network.

Williams College has a winning average of .550 in fifty-nine years of intercollegiate sports competition.

CHAPTER XXXXXX

According to the version of R. Wolfe

AND the Lord spoke unto his right-hand man, Gabriel, saying,
2 Let there be snow;
3 And Gabriel answered, yea and verily,
4 And there was snow.
5 And it came to pass when the sons of Vermont lifted up their eyes and, lo and behold!
6 The snow lay about them like a mighty rampart, white as the face of the lowly freshman when first summoned to the presence of the dean,
7 Wondrous to behold it was;
8 And the sons of Vermont spoke, saying,
9 Yea and verily, it is snow;
10 And yea and verily, it was snow.
11 In those days there lay far to the south, close by the abode of the scientists, that is known unto men as the Sci Hall, a goodly edifice, pleasant to behold, and mighty in its magnificence,
12 And the sons of Vermont called it thus: The Old Mill;
13 Now it came to pass when the snow lay round about,
14 A mighty wind arose in the north
15 And this mighty wind blew a great blast like unto the cheering of the U. V. M. students in volume,
16 And that blessed abode, the Old Mill, did rattle and quake, even unto the fourth floor and mostly in the fourth floor,
17 Where the thoughts of the denizens thereof are less weighty due to the great height,
18 Then were the sons of Vermont cold,
19 And they spoke unto one another, saying,
20 Yea and verily, it is damned cold,
21 And the sons of Vermont froze exceedingly;
22 And it came to pass on the fourth day of the week,
23 For then it is that the sons of Vermont arise exceedingly early, although with much murmuring and great disgruntlement,
24 That there lived far to the south, close by the dwelling-places wherein live the daughters of U. V. M., namely, Robinson and Slade,
25 A youth called by men, Butch,
26 And Butch was eight and ten years on this earth when he went forth into the world and chanced to come to Vermont
27 (Though there are those who saith unkindly, that Vermont was the only place that Butch could get in,)
28 Thus it was, that Butch on the fourth day of the week came into the Old Mill,
29 And he was cold unto death, yea, he froze greatly,
30 And the cold was the more for the long journey that Butch had taken from the deep southlands,
31 So it was that Butch waxed colder and colder even unto his feet, though his head was even too thick for freezing,
32 And the Angel Gabriel appeared to Butch in a vision, saying,
33 Behold, there lies before you a goodly place, known unto men as the Coffee Corner,
34 Yea and verily, a goodly place it was, its prices being exceedingly reasonable, its wares like unto milk and honey, even more so
35 And Gabriel spoke unto him yet again, saying,
36 Take ye unto yourself a pitcher of coffee hot like unto fire, and drink of it,
37 And thou wilt be warm, and freeze no more;
38 And Butch answered and said,
39 So will I do,
40 Therefore Butch reached his hand into his pocket,
41 And, lo and behold!
42 Therein lay one shekel!
43 Butch was exceedingly amazed, the pants being his own and not those of his roommate,
44 He could do naught but account this a miracle, and was glad that he had thus been favored by the Lord,
45 And Butch lifted up his eyes and beheld the Coffee Corner, a goodly place it was,
46 Filled with the goodly things to eat that tempt the taste of man,
47 And Butch gave up the shekel
48 And received unto himself a pitcher of coffee, hot like unto fire,
49 And he drank of it and it was warm,
50 And a warm glow arose in his body, even from his feet unto his head,
51 And he waxed merry and spoke, saying,
52 Lo, here is a miracle!
53 And the sons of Vermont replied, saying
54 Yea and verily, this is indeed a miracle!
55 And it became known to all the sons and daughters of Vermont,
56 And all pronounced it a miracle;
57 Great was the advertising accruing therefrom,
58 Even the faculty heard thereof, and partook of the miracle,
59 The Coffee Corner waxed exceedingly busy, many were the shekels spent and much was the coffee consumed;
60 Thus it came to pass in the days of yore.

Belardinelli Leads Cats In Triumph Over St. Michael's

Game Close, Vermont Leads 25-24 at Half; Herbert Stars for Losers, Scores 13 Points

By Charlie Itzkowitz

Sparked by Anse Belardinelli's 16-point barrage, the Catamount quintet nosed out a stubbornly resisting gang of sharpshooters from St. Michael's 42-39 before a scant crowd at the Memorial Auditorium Tuesday night. From start to finish the game was a ding-dong affair, with the lead hopping back and forth like simple periodic motion. Time and again diminutive Jules Pequignot, peppy left guard of the Mikemen, whisked the ball through the Vermont zone to his teammates Herbert and Aikey, who contributed 21 points to the Purple score.

Healy Improves Catamount Attack

The aggressiveness of Ace Healy came in for its share of the limelight as the new Vermont forward broke up several Purple plays and turned enemy advances into Vermont scores. His assists were directly responsible for several tallies, and he fed men under the hoop on innumerable occasions.

Belardinelli Lends a Hand

With the score tied at 31-31 and the game quite advanced, Anse Belardinelli sewed it up by tossing in four consecutive scores. History repeated itself, for it was Belardinelli who defeated the Mikemen almost single-handed a year ago. Tuesday night he again went on a scoring spree, amassing a total of 16 points, and to this accomplishment he added a very effective brand of defensive play.

Cats an Improved Team

Except for a few times when their zone defense leaked, the Green and Gold clicked beautifully and sported an improved attack. Taylor and Maley worked together like twins. Pye showed unerring accuracy, and Healy and Belardinelli were effective in stealing the ball from their opponents. Maley's six points were all made by long, arching shots which were started near midcourt.

One of the most interesting features of the game was the contrasting offense of the two teams. The Catamounts peppered the basket with reckless abandon and several times men shot when they were off balance. The Mikemen, on the other hand, passed for an opening and tried to set up their shots. The teams, on the whole, were fairly evenly matched, the greater accuracy of the St. Michael's men balancing the superior floor play of the Catamounts. It was this superior brand of floor play which gave the Cats a great many more shots at the hoop, and consequently victory.

Sports Casts

We're disappointed. Here we thought Vermont was going to get a taste of big-time, big-city basketball in Fordham, but Yale, supposedly not in the same league with the Bronxers, skips down from New Haven and proceeds to hand the Ram a gentle but firm pasting. The Elis won out by 36 to 28, and, from all accounts, Fordham was never quite in the running.

On second thought, however, it is probably unfair to rate Fordham's quintet off its showing against Yale. The Blue was the first test for the young Maroon club. We understand that the New Yorkers' shooting eyes misfired badly all night; that Yale put up a zone defense, and Fordham sifted through it easily enough, but just couldn't seem to ring the bell with sufficient regularity.

Fordham must have something. That should be true of any team which plays four sophomores while its captain and another veteran starter ride the pine. Bill O'Brien, a senior who came into his own at the close of the last campaign, is the only upperclassman among the Ram starters. Captain Howie Weil is bench-bound, as is Carlo Lewis, a regular a year ago. The talented Bob TeCarr, who showed promise of great things last year, is another who can't break into the starting line-up.

Two of the sophs, Brownie Carroll and Dick Fitzgerald, hail from New York's Newtown High, producer of such basketball greats as Bill Nash, Columbia; Tony DePhillips, Fordham; Nick Ustinovich, tall sharpshooter of last year's Colgate crew; and Bill McKeever, currently starring at St. John's. A third sophomore from Newtown, Jerry Rizzo, who is a smooth playmaker, will not be seen here. He is having scholastic difficulties. Clint Quantrille, a Washington, D. C., soph also bears watching.

It is good to see such teams as Fordham coming up here to meet Vermont on the court. Johnny Sabo is developing some outfits that will give ground to nobody's basketball club. His teams ought soon to be meeting top competition not only from the East, but from the hinterlands as well. W.A.R.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"A job well done is one that is done with honesty and integrity. Setting a goal for ourselves and accomplishing it can mean nothing if we do not infuse the age-old virtues of honesty into our methods. Dishonor in trivial things soon leads to deceitful action in major issues, and we suddenly awaken to the fact that we have been steeped in the ignominy of a corrrupt set of morals." Lawrence College's President Barrows urges collegians to maintain honor above all else.

Barnard College this year has the heaviest student body in five years. Average weight of its members is 126.6 pounds.

During the first World War the College of the City of New York was the first college in the nation to convert its grounds into barracks.

Dormitories Scene Of Christmas Dinners

The girls' dormitories were filled with gay festivity and Christmas cheer this week, when they held their annual Christmas dinners. The lounges as well as the dining halls were decorated with green boughs and colorful candles. Christmas trees were delicately lighted and trimmed with attractive little favors for the girls and their guests, who were in formal costume. The dining rooms were lighted by small individual candles in the shape of trees, and miniature Christmas trees made attractive centerpieces.

Wednesday evening at Robinson Hall, Christmas carols were sung on the steps to the dining room. Professor Ladd and Professor Blume sat at the guest table, and Miss Kathrina Storms was entertained at the faculty table.

Thursday night, Grassmount entertained Professor and Mrs. Pooley, Mr. and Mrs. Mower, Mr. and Mrs. Harold French, Dean Simpson and Miss Marianne Muse.

Sanders Hall also held their formal dinner Thursday evening, with Professor and Mrs. H. B. Bickford as guests.

Allen House entertained Miss Eleanor Cummings, Miss Barbara Crowe, and Miss Rosemary Hazard.

Prospect Hall held their formal dinner on Thursday evening also.

Interfraternity Council Adopts New Resolution

At a meeting of the Interfraternity Council, Tuesday evening, December 12 (1939), the following sentiment was adopted:

"A large number of fraternities and sororities have expressed disapproval of political combines in their present state. The opinion of the Council at this meeting is that combines will continue to exist but that the Council can and will do everything possible to improve their present status. While it is realized that a satisfactory solution is not forthcoming for the present freshman elections, the Council intends to continue its endeavors on this provoking problem. Among other proposals now being considered is one that henceforth nomination shall be accomplished by means of a petition signed by at least twenty-five qualified voters of the class concerned, no one voted to be a signatory to more than one nomination to the same office.

"The Council requests the student body to give serious consideration to this matter, and to make any suggestions which come to mind to P. E. Patch, president of the Interfraternity Council."

women's honorary society. This is the highest honor a Vermont woman can attain. Jean Butler '40, president of Mortar Board, gave the pledge to Miss Marlow in the presence of Dean Simpson and the five other members of Mortar Board—Phyllis McGovern, Florence Wade, Mary Nelson, Betty Myers and Mary Howe. Dean Simpson then defined the meaning of Mortar Board and its great honor. Betsy Marlow has been very active on campus. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega, chief justice of Student Union, president of Pan-Hellenic Council, a member of Le Cercle Français, Outing Club, Balminton Club, W. A. A., Y. W. C. A. and in her junior year was a member of Staff and Sandal, junior women's honorary society. After having taken her pledge she was presented with a gorgeous bouquet of red carnations.

The meeting formally adjourned with the singing of "Champlain." Following this, Carol Bell '42 led in the singing of Christmas carols, assisted by Betty Cole '42 at the piano. Refreshments of ice cream were served by Santa Clauses en masse—at least two anyway.

Classical Club Presents Greek Play On Tuesday

The Goodrich Classical Club will present Aristophane's play, "The Clouds," at Southwick on Tuesday evening, December 19, at 8.00 o'clock. The plot concerns a gentleman of Athens named Strepsiades (played by Professor Metcalf of the psychology department), who wishes to learn a logic whereby he may shirk his debts and get out of the many financial difficulties in which he finds himself. (His wife, like many wives, is extremely extravagant.) To learn this Wrong Logic he goes to Socrates, master of the thinking school. (Professor Kidder of the Greek department plays the part of Socrates.) There he is taught how to avoid his debts, and is guided in his activities by the three Clouds (Miriam Fiske, Judith Perry and Myrna French, all of the class of '42). Strepsiades, greatly pleased with his new learning, tries it out on the next debt collector who accosts him, but the system fails to work. He then attempts to teach his son, Pheidippides (Professor Pooley of the Greek department), the Wrong Logic, but his son scoffs at the whole idea. Pheidippides ends up by striking his father and then arguing that he was justified. In the end, Strepsiades sees that Socrates' teaching is not all that it's "cracked up" to be, and repents of his folly. He goes back to his old ways and in the end is just where he was in the beginning, although sadder and wiser. Other characters in the cast include Ruth Williams '40 as Right Logic and Doris Kinsley '40 as Wrong Logic; Colehamer Abbot '42, Pasias and Strepsiades' servant; and Fulvio Bardossi '42 as Amynias and a student of Socrates.

Jane Judd '42 is in charge of costumes and Barbara Campbell '40 is the property manager.

Faculty, students and friends are cordially invited to attend.

"TEN COMMANDMENTS" FOR TEACHERS LAID DOWN

New Wilmington, Pa. (I. P.)—For those students who have chosen teaching as a vocation at Westminster College, Dr. Joseph C. Dewey, education and psychology head, has laid down a "Teacher's Ten Commandments."

The teacher must not "date" a student, or allow students to know that he is infatuated with a student in class. Never must the teacher "detain" a girl alone after school. The teacher must not "walk home" with a student of the opposite sex, or drive her to her home. The teacher may, of course, "date" outside the student body, providing, of course, that the couple be seen only at "respectable places."

The teacher must never be seen drinking beer. He must not play slot machines. He must not be seen associating with people of "questionable" reputation. The teacher's political opinions should be kept to himself, and never expressed before students.

In fact, according to Doctor Dewey, the teacher must be "dignified" to as great a degree as possible, at least as far as his relations toward his students are concerned.

Two Students Pledged

Omicron Nu, the home economics honorary society, has recently pledged Helen Towne '40 of Milton and Jean Morse '40 of Essex Center. The new members were pledged by Laura Dustan '40, president of the society, and entertained at a tea at the home of Miss Bertha Terrill.

Prof. Sussdorff Attends A.S.M.E. Convention

Prof. E. L. Sussdorff of the department of mechanical engineering in the University of Vermont Engineering College, attended the annual convention of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in Philadelphia, December 4-8. One unusual feature of the convention was that this year, for the first time since 1887, it assembled outside New York City. Since Philadelphia is a great industrial city, it was very interesting to Professor Sussdorff, who made several inspection tours through various industrial plants, including the S.K.F. Ball Bearing Plant, where ball and roller bearings are made, and the Philadelphia Gear Works, which produce large size gears and speed reducers of all sorts. Professor Sussdorff's summer work with the Jones and Lamson Machine Company of Springfield, which manufactures machine tools, in which ball and roller bearings are much used, gave him a special interest in the former plant.

The convention activities consisted of a combination of technical meetings and inspection trips to factories and industrial plants. Professor Sussdorff participated in several of both types of meetings.

W. H. Myers to Address Pilgrim Fellowship

A pleasant experience is in store for the young peoples groups on Sunday, December 17 at 7.30. William H. Myers, U. V. M. '35 who has just returned from foreign study and travel, is to speak to the group on his experiences. He has received his Ph.D. from St. Andrews in Scotland and was a member of the class of 1939 there. The especially interesting part of it all is that Mr. Myers was very active in the work of the church while he was here, and was a former leader of the Pilgrim Fellowship.

We believe there is much in store for us, and he will be in Burlington for only a very short time. Therefore, we wish to extend an invitation to the other young peoples groups in Burlington to share this experience with us.

The usual social hour and refreshments will follow the speaker. The meeting will be held in the parish house of the First Church. Everyone is welcome.

Mail Delivery Display At Fleming Museum

Insured delivery of mail in the 1840's and 50's was a different matter from that of today, when the sender hands in his mail at the post office window, and the rest is a matter of routine with the Post Office Department, which handles thousands of similar items regularly. A small cowhide-covered wood trunk, now being shown in one of the special display cases in the entrance hallway at the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont, was used, during the 1840-50 period, by Joshua Simonds, the stage coach driver from Windsor, Vt., to Boston. In this small trunk Mr. Simonds carried his own valuables and the mail entrusted to him by others, giving it his personal attention throughout the trip. He dared not pack it atop the coach in the baggage rack, nor leave it inside, for fear it might be lost or stolen. It had to be always close by where he could watch it personally, and so it was his custom to set it on the floor in front of him and to drive with one foot resting on it to keep it from bouncing off. One can still see where Mr. Simonds' foot rested on the trunk, because at the front edge of the top, a little to the right, the hide is worn through.

The trunk was given to the Fleming Museum by Mrs. Gertrude Belding Spaulding and Mrs. Rosalyn Spaulding Nash, both of Washington, D. C. The trunk was a family possession, coming to them from Mr. Simonds, driver of the stage, one of their ancestors.

Seniors Eligible For Civil Service Examination

A consolidated Civil Service examination for junior professional positions in the United States Department of Agriculture, given a trial for the first time last year, has worked so successfully that the Civil Service Commission is expected to make the examinations, offering nearly 30 options, an annual affair.

Under the plan graduating seniors from the University of Vermont who pass the examination will be eligible for appointment about July 1. Announcement of the consolidated examination will be made by the Civil Service Commission about January 1, and the examination will be given about two months earlier than last year. In this way the graduating students will know if they are eligible for appointment before school closes.

The junior professional positions pay a starting salary of $2,000 a year and offer good opportunity for advancement for capable workers.

Examinations will be given during the latter part of February or first of March in the following junior grades: administrative technician, agricultural economist, agronomist, animal breeder, biologist, chemist, engineer, entomologist, forester, information assistant, librarian, meteorologist, olericulturist, plant breeder, poultry husbandman, range examiner, rural sociologist, social psychologist, soil scientist, statistician, textile technologist, and veterinarian.

Last year the register of eligible applicants was almost exhausted for veterinarians, engineers, and administrative technicians. Demand for junior professional workers is expected to continue in 1940.

WAYNE U. ESTABLISHES GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIPS

Detroit, Mich. (I. P.)—Twelve graduate scholarship grants for social study work at Wayne University have been established this year by Detroit institutions, Prof. Lent D. Upson, director of the School of Public Affairs and Social Work, has announced.

The scholarships, of $25 to $115 monthly for periods of five to twelve months, help to defray expenses of field work internships during the two-year graduate course toward the degree "master of social work." One hundred and forty-two full-time and part-time students, with undergraduate degrees from thirty-six collegiate institutions, are working toward the degree at Wayne this year.

Dr. W. W. Comfort, head of Haverford College for 22 years, will retire in June.

Rev. Myers Speaks At I. R. C. Meeting

Stresses Importance of Belief in Democracy

International Relations Club held its regular meeting on Thursday, December 14, with T. R. Huntley '41 presiding. The speaker of the evening was the Rev. S. E. Myers of Burlington.

The meeting began with a résumé of the two-day conference at New Haven, Conn., of the New England International Relations Clubs Conference under the direction of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The U. V. M. repsentative was T. R. Huntley.

Following this, Reverend Myers gave an inspiring talk on "What the Same Person Can Believe in Democracy." He gave as the four bases of faith:

1. Belief in human nature and belief in the essential goodness of the masses of men.
2. Progress in science and invention so that all men may have the amenities as well as the necessities of life.
3. The necessity of men's learning to live together in the new world. Reverend Myers amplified this by saying that the world has gone through a period of change from a relatively simple existence to a complicated interdependent society.
4. Belief in the United States, not in its moral superiority but its opportunity to make democracy work.

Speaking of the present war in Europe, he called it "a clash of empires in spheres of economic influence." He stressed the great inaccuracy of information about the war and the difficulty of distinguishing fact from propaganda. The main point here was, however, that "our opinions are so relative to our own interests."

Reverend Myers called this war futile and blasphemous from the point of view of religion. This war, he said, is not a holy war nor is democracy involved. He pointed out that the enemies of democracy are thoughtlessness, that is, taking democracy for granted and the advancements of certain kinds which have taken place under dictatorships.

In conclusion, he repeated that in the United States, there was still a great opportunity to prove that democracy is still the right way of life.

Women's Debating Team To Leave for Boston

Leaving the home campus Thursday morning on their annual Christmas trip, the women's debating team will journey to Boston, meeting Boston University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the M. I. T. debate to be a radio broadcast. Gertrude Johnstone '40, Eleanor Brody '40, and Kathleen Le Baron '41, will make the trip with Coach Merrill D. Powers.

The question, "Resolved, That the United States should follow a policy of strict (military and economic) isolation toward all nations outside of the Western Hemisphere engaged in armed civil or internatoinal conflict," will be discussed in both encounters. Vermont will uphold the negative of the issue against Boston University on Thursday the 21st, and the same side against M. I. T. at 4.00 p.m. on Friday the 22nd, in a radio debate.

A non-decision debate was held with Rhode Island State College of Kingston on Wednesday, December 13, at Southwick. Gwendolyn Blanchard '40 and Eleanor Brody '40 upheld the affirmative side of the Isolation question for Vermont.

There will be a Cynic meeting on Friday, January 5, at Southwick. The news editors and senior staff will meet at 7.30 and the rest of the staff at 8.00.

CLASSICAL CLUB TO MEET TUESDAY NIGHT

The Goodrich Classical Club will hold the meeting which was postponed last week, on Tuesday evening at Southwick. At this time the play "The Clouds," by Aristophanes will be read by the members. The play is under the direction of Professor Pooley. All members of English and Latin classes are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

"Messiah" Selections Featured at Concert

Vermont Symphony Appears At Taft School Auditorium

Using the new Taft School auditorium, the Vermont Little Symphony and the Vermont Symphony Chorus produced a beautiful concert of Christmas music Friday evening. Alan Carter very ably directed the musicians.

The first part of the program consisted of various seasonal selections as follows:

1. Concerto Grosso Number 8 Corelli
   String Orchestra
2. Sweet Little Jesus Boy
   Mr. Seagle
   The Virgin's Lullaby Salter
   Miss Farnsworth
   The Shepherd's Christmas Song
   Reinhann Dickinson
   Miss Farnsworth, Mrs. Bachmann, Mr. Gage and Mr. Seagle
3. Menuetto (Allegro) and Allegro Spiritoso from London Symphony
   Haydn

The second part of the concert was the Christmas part of Handel's "Messiah," one of the greatest choral works of all time. Handel composed this oratorio in 1741, when he was fifty-six years of age. It is interesting to note that he completed this masterpiece in only twenty-three days. The soloists all gave pleasing performances, the orchestra was skillful, and the chorus sang enthusiastically. The entire audience stood for the "Hallelujah" chorus at the end of the evening.

The soloists were Barbara Farnham, soprano; Gladyce Bachmann, alto; Donald Gage, tenor, who will be remembered by students as taking part in University concerts last year; and John Seagle, bass. The complete ensemble numbered about 100 persons coming from many parts of the State.

First Carol Sing Held After Concert

The first Christmas carol sing, initiated by Mortar Board, took place directly after the Christmas concert on Sunday afternoon. The group started caroling at the Chapel and proceeded down to President Bailey's home for which he expressed his appreciation. Then they came back to Redstone campus and sang around the Christmas tree which had been specially lighted for this occasion and for the season's decorations. After enjoying refreshments of hot dogs and coffee served by Staff and Sandal at Southwick the group continued their carol singing in the lounge.

Louis Pichierri '41 led the caroling, while the aid of some of the choir members was greatly appreciated. Mortar Board hopes this carol sing and Christmas tree will became a tradition of the University, and that Redstone campus will become the center of the college Christmas activities.

The Women's Athletic Association has four pairs of skis available for rental at twenty-five cents a half day. Arrangements may be made with Mr. Turnbull at Southwick.

Annual Fall Play Given Thrills Large Audience

Mrs. Taggart Again Directs Highly Successful Performance

Thrills, chills and suspense marked the presentation of the University Players' annual fall play, Saturday night, December 16, at Southwick. This year "Night Must Fall," Emlyn Williams' hair raiser, was presented.

It was unanimously agreed upon by the audience that this year's play was without a doubt the best ever presented by the University Players.

The story surrounds Dan (R. Hunting '42), a story of a murderer with an incredible variety, an egoist whose favorite pastime is murder.

The story takes place in the cottage of Mrs. Bramson, a vixenish old witch, effectively played by Barbara Tucker '43.

Mrs. Bromson takes a liking to Danny, as she calls him, and hires him. Only Olivia, Mrs. Bromson's niece (Marion C. Stoughton '43) realizes what Danny is, and knowing that she tries to protect him after he murders Mrs. Bromson.

Others in the excellent cast included the Lord Chief Justice (M. J. Boucher '40); Hubert Laurie, Olivia's dull witted suitor (G. S. Noonan '40); Nurse Libby (Louise Mann '41); Mrs. Terence, the crusty cook (Jane Lyons '41); Dora Parkoe, the simple maid (Shirley Treat '40); and the crafty Inspector Belsize (R. Lavigne '41).

Credit is due to the able director, Mrs. Wilnetta Sproul Taggart, who, as in the past, has directed the fine performances presented by the University Players.

The stage manager was J. B. Ranney '41, properties were under the direction of Dorothea Smith '41, and sound effects were by C. H. Marks '42.

During the intermission the University orchestra, directed by Prof. W. G. Kirby of the music department, played selections.

Outing Club Presents Ski Movies and Experts

Many ski enthusiasts enjoyed the movies and lecture at Southwick, Thursday evening, December 14. "Skiing in Switzerland" showed the world famous sportsmen plumeting down the snowy, steep Swiss Alps.

Sepp Ruschpp, the instructor at Stowe and coach of the Norwich ski team, emphasized in his talk the marvelous opportunities which we as Vermonters have for this sport. Mount Mansfield is one of the best mountains for skiing in the East, according to Sepp. He then introduced Otto Wollhause, who is to be coach of Vermont's ski team. He had barely arrived in Burlington from the Alps and was not much impressed by little Mount Mansfield as a mountain for skiing, but has been convinced by Sepp that it is really very good.

"Swiss Ski Schools" showed demonstrations of the fundamental twists and turns as illustrated by tiny Swiss children and the best sportsmen of the country.

Colored movies of the Kandalhor races in Canada again pictured the flash and grace of Canada's top skiers ascending 2,000 feet at a speed of 34 miles an hour.

Everett Bailey '40 introduced the speakers and Nancy Jones '41 was general chairman.

Prior to the movies the U. V. M. Outing Club Council was host to the members of the Middlebury Council of the Mountain Club at dinner. W. L. Gardner was also a guest.

The council hopes that this meeting was a great inspiration to everyone and that many will take advantage of the free ski instruction which will start after vacation. If there are any girls interested in forming a ski team, see Dot Smith '41.

RALPH EVANS SPEAKER AT ALPHA ZETA MEETING

The regular meeting of Alpha Zeta, honorary agriculture society, was held last Wednesday night at seven-thirty. After a short business meeting, Ralph Evans '41 gave a talk on "Land Use in Vermont." Two interesting letters to the chapter were read, one from Carleton Wright, a Vermont graduate now teaching at the University of New Hampshire and the other from Frederick Skelton, now teaching in Wisconsin.

Becker and Johnston To Attend Convention

Tau Kappa Alpha Members Will Discuss Neutrality

The Vermont chapter of Tau Kappa Alpha, national honorary forensic society, will be represented at the first national convention of T K A, to be held in Chicago on December 27, 28 and 29 by Gertrude Johnstone '40, manager of women's debate, Arnold Becker '41, men's manager of debate, and Coach Merrill D. Powers. All three will make the holiday trip to the convention, held in conjunction with the National Association of Teachers of Speech, and the two undergraduates will participate in a competitive form of discussion known as the Forensic Experience Progression.

This Discussion Progression divides the chosen proposition into seven principal topics, arranged in order of problem, causes, solutions, and action. The contestants will be divided into panel groups of six, each group discussing each phase of the subject separately for one hour, making the complete Progression seven hours in duration. The individual speakers will be judged on their respective merits, and awards will be made.

The question to be used throughout the Progression will be "To what extent should the United States follow a policy of isolation (economic and military) toward nations engaged in armed international or civil conflict." The seven stages of the Progression Discussion, as adopted for this particular question, will be: 1. What is the nature, location, extent, and significance? 2. What are the most important causes of the problem which must be met? 3. Should the United States adopt a policy of strict economic and military isolation from countries at war outside the western hemisphere? 4. Should the United States continue the present policy of neutrality (cash and carry, partial isolation)? 5. Should the United States participate actively in present conflicts (partial cooperation)? 6. Should the United States participate in world cooperation (such as the Street plan of Union of Democracies, etc.)? 7. What as a citizen will be my personal program to put into effect the necessary solutions?

FIFTEEN CO-EDS TRY OUT FOR WOMEN'S SKI TEAM

The plans for a women's ski team are now well under way. Letters have been received from Middlebury College and the University of New Hampshire concerning participation in skiing events.

Janet Dike '43 was elected to the W. A. A. Council as freshman representative. Janet is active in the Outing Club, and an excellent swimmer and skier. She recently won the badminton tournament among the freshman girls.

AGGIES, HOME EC GIRLS HOLD PARTY TONIGHT

On Tuesday night, December 19, the Aggie and Home Ec Clubs are planning a get-together in the form of a Christmas party in the Brick Barn at 8 o'clock. Each person is to bring a dime present.

Ralph Evans '41 who is in charge of arrangements promises an evening full of fun for all.

Musical Organizations Give Christmas Concert

Varied Program Presented Before Large Congregation

The Ira Allen Chapel was the scene of the annual Christmas concert presented by the musical organizations here at the University at 4.00 p.m. on Sunday, December 17. Prof. William G. Kirby, acting head of the musical department, directed the program, with Miriam Natilee Marston at the organ. Charlotte deVolt Elder acted as concertmaster of the orchestra. The Rev. Raymond Avery Hall, a member of the English department, conducted the scripture service.

The soloists for the concert were: A. Elizabeth Cole of Barre, soprano, a member of the class of '41 enrolled in the musical education course; Marjorie Southworth, contralto from Bethel, who is new to the choir this year, being of the class of '43; Thomas K. Malone, Jr., of Burlington, tenor, a junior enrolled in the musical education course; Paul R. Poulin, tenor, also of Burlington and enrolled in the musical education course; and George R. Millikan of the political science department, bass.

A capacity audience filled the chapel to hear the beautiful Christmastide program, which was as follows:

Catamounts Play at Placid College Week

The Catamounts orchestra, composed largely of U. V. M. students, has been engaged to play at the internationally famous Lake Placid Club during their "College Week" from December 22 to January 4.

"College Week" is attended by the various intercollegiate winter sports teams throughout the country and has become a yearly feature.

The choice of the Catamounts is a real honor since several college bands and professional bands of lesser repute were auditioned.

This band has been featured at Norwich, Middlebury and Trinity colleges as well as at U. V. M. functions and high school and club engagements. For the past two summers its members have been featured at Westport Yacht Club, Nicklaw Manor and Auto Inn, other New York clubs and ballrooms.

The Catamounts will appear at the club with an entirely new uniform which will be used for the remainder of the year. The band has received many fine comments from musicians at large, those working in metropolitan areas in particular.

It is understood that such celebrities as Kate Smith, Kay Kyser and Ozzie Nelson expect to be present during "College Week."

The Catamounts is different from most bands in that it is cooperative, every man getting an equal share of the profits and having some part to do with the success of the band as a whole. Literally "every man is a leader."

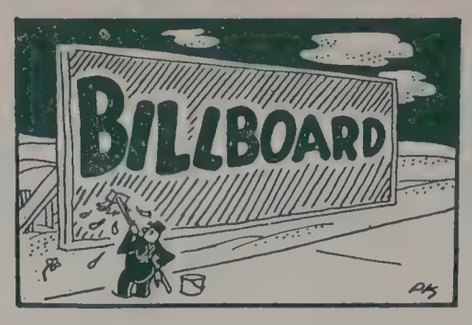
Unless you have been faced with a similar problem, it has probably never occurred to you that the problem of finding a topic for this column and then commenting on it is at times a trifle perplexing. Take this very issue as an example.

At this season no topic could be more timely than one pertaining to Christmas so that the choice of a topic was in itself no difficult task. The question then became: What shall we say concerning Christmas? It seems that so much has already been said by a host of writers far more able than this one that anything which we might write would be mere repetition.

One idea occurred to us—to look in the files and find out what our predecessors had said in years gone by. So we betook ourselves to the Vermont Room in the Billings Library there to peruse with interest the comments of past CYNIC editors. We thumbed industriously through dusty tomes in search of an inspiration; we read the thoughts of the editors of the "Gay Nineties"; we perused the words of World War editors and still no sign of a novel idea. Those who went before must have found the problem equally difficult. Despondent, we returned the key to the kindly librarian and cudgelled our brain in an effort to locate new resources.

Ah! Wait a minute. Why not refer to the digest of literature which is kept at the circular table in the apse of the building? Perhaps that would shed some light on the matter.

Again we took to thumbing through heavy volumes, still in pursuit of the elusive inspiration. Finally we came across this cryptic notation: Sch. Life 15:70 D'29, Christmas—C. Dickens. Surely he would have something to offer. Back we went to the indispensable librarian with the request that she aid us in finding that particular issue of School Life. Nothing daunted, she plunged into the subterranean vaults of the building and after a lengthy search located Sch. Life 15:70 D'29.



Hopefully we opened the yellowing pamphlet. Let's see now. Christmas—Dickins—there it is. Hastily we scanned the lines. Sure enough, it had to do with Christmas—the author believed that no other writer had ever come so near to the hearts of the common people as had Charles Dickens. That was perfectly alright—so did we and so what?

Reading further we came upon this paragraph:

"Some contend that the origin of the Christmas tree goes back to the tree worship of our pagan ancestors of the North, for the tree was sacred to the gods. In Scandinavian mythology the wonderful Tree of Life, Iadrasil, had its roots in the Kingdom of the Fates, who spin and cut the thread of human life. Doctor Tille thinks that the Christmas tree comes from a union of two elements: 'The old Roman custom of decking houses with laurels and green trees at the Kalends of January, and the popular belief that on every Christmas Eve apple and other trees blossomed and bore fruit. In England there was an ancient belief in trees blossoming at Christmas. The idea was connected with the legend of St. Joseph of Arithmathea, who when he took up his residence at Glastonbury planted his staff in the ground, whereupon it put forth leaves; moreover, it burgeoned every Christmas Eve.'"

All of which was highly interesting and instructive but what in tarnation are we going to say about Christmas in the editorials? It all looked rather hopeless until we finally espied at the end of the article the words of Dickens famous character, Tiny Tim: "God bless us every one;" Well, that was more like it—now we were getting into the spirit of the thing. What else shall we say?

There really isn't anything else to say, is there? We set out to wish one and all a Merry Christmas and lo and behold, Tiny Tim performs the task for us. Here's to you, Tiny Tim.

Campus Comment

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

This move to clean the campus of dirty politics cannot be commended too highly, and, if it is successful, the CYNIC and the Interfraternity Council may well be proud of themselves for it will be the outstanding contribution which any student group has made this year and, in fact, in many years to the University, but similar movements in the past have unfortunately met with failure, for the problems confronting reform are many and thorny.

The first problem, naturally, is how to permanently eliminate combines. Obviously the Interfraternity Council has to do more than just say "There will be no more combines." After all its members are but a small fraction of the fraternity they represent, and can make no guarantees as to what their brothers will do. Even assuming this difficulty were surmounted for the time being, the arrival of a new class might well upset this delicate equilibrium without any subsequent return to it. Finally, any official fraternity decision represents the wishes of the Society as a group rather than the individual actions of the members.

A statement appeared in the CYNIC to the effect that other institutions are able "with little or no difficulty" to break the power of fraternity combines, and thus guarantee the election of the right man to office. The name of that university must be Utopia, and its students a far cry from those in the institutions of New England. True, fraternity combines may be officially eliminated, but how far is it actually so in practice at election time? Yes, in practice, it is indeed another story. Nevertheless let us assume that fraternity combines have actually been broken up (and this is no mean assumption), what have we now—a serene election totally devoid of politics? Hardly. We now meet the cliques which take up where the fraternity combines left off, and may even add a few flourishes to the familiar techniques, and the caliber of the man elected under this system is rarely much superior to the old, familiar product.

The solution seems to lie with some sort of blanket measure affecting all students individually. Yes, there is a constructive suggestion amidst all these words, though it is offered with considerable misgivings, for it is perhaps more idealistic than practical, and at best it is awkward in application, and a definite nuisance; the idea is to have every voter sign a pledge, and after that trust to his integrity and personal sense of honor; it might work.

Yet this whole problem may well be a tempest in a teapot as one student recently put it, for there is no denying that the main fault lies with the indifference of the casual voter, and the inertia of the man (yes, woman, too), who feels that his (or her) one vote will not affect the result. Why shouldn't the voter be indifferent? He doesn't know what qualities he should look for in a candidate, for these qualities depend on the duties of the officer, and as far as the average student can see the class officers have no duties. How many class meetings have been held this year?—or last year? Other universities do have class meetings and a certain amount of student government both of which meet with enthusiasm and success. Despite the fact that class officers, and especially presidents, are generally supposed by outsiders to be the best men the class has to offer, mediocrities have all too frequently been elected under the present system which puts into power people who are not outstanding in either athletic ability, extra-curricular activities, popularity, or beauty—these being to some extent the present bases for election; nor is any attempt made to elect the person who possesses to the greatest extent the abilities which qualify one for the duties which should exist.

Let us hope that the class of 1943 will be able to bring about something of a revolution, and elect its four outstanding members instead of leaving them behind the eight ball of oblivion.

Good luck also to the Interfraternity Council and CYNIC in their attempts to clean up a terrific mess. I, for one, shall back them 100 percent in their efforts to remedy a truly deplorable situation.

J. M. EVANS, '41.

To the Editor of the CYNIC:

The CYNIC as I understand is supposed to print news concerning college activities. News which is supposed to be accurate and interesting. I have repeatedly for the past three weeks given your reporters accurate news concerning the activities of the Independents; and news which is of interest to about 60 percent of the student body at least. Yet, by some strange phenomena the news I give your reporters is never printed in full and is always rewritten to take the place of the comic strips which I have enjoyed reading so much lately. I refer Mr. Editor to the editorials of the Vermont CYNIC.

Making fun of Mr. J. P. Mahoney is O. K. as far as I am concerned. But in all fairness to the Independent student body the CYNIC and its staff should in the future refrain from "Making Monkeys" out of the Independent Society as a whole. I am one man out of approximately 60 percent of the male student body who realizes the position of the Independents. I am trying to organize the unorganized men on the campus. In my letter to the CYNIC of October 20 I asked for student cooperation in the matter. I was not only appealing to the independent student, I was appealing to every student enrolled at U. V. M. I never got any support concerning this problem but I did get many unfounded comments. The general consensus of opinion is, that I am fighting for a worthy but lost cause. Maybe you students who think this way are right but let me remined you that nothing is worthwhile unless you work for it. The CYNIC and its staff is striking below the belt when it refuses to print news in the way it is presented to it. The Independents may be down now, but remember, they are not out. We can always pull ourselves up by the ropes. But when the CYNIC cuts the ropes and puts the skids under us we find it hard to maintain our equilibrium.

We also resent and object to being used by the Interfraternity Council as a door mat. Ignoring me, means that the Interfraternity Council is ignoring 59% percent of the student body. The Interfraternity Council solves all problems. Here's one they've been working on and I'm still waiting for an answer. Are the Vermont Independents recognized by the Interfraternity Council? If they are then why are they not members of this Council? We, the Independents, are recognized by the College and represent the largest organization on the Hill, yet we are ignored by the Interfraternity Council. Why?

I know and you know (members of the Interfraternity Council) that the Independents are the leftovers of every new crop. We also take the throwouts from your organizations and call them Independents. If these men were good enough for your Frat at one time, are they not good enough to be represented now? At the National Interfraternity Conference, held in New York, December 1 and 2, Independents were represented from some of the leading colleges in the country. The CYNIC issue of December 8 will verify this statement. If the National Chapter recognizes Independent representatives, why doesn't the Vermont Chapter do likewise?

The Interfraternity Council has boasted according to the editorial in the CYNIC that they have solved all problems which they have encountered in the past and will do likewise in the future. The catch is: How have they solved these problems? The student body never knows what they are; all they know is, that the Interfraternity Council has solved a problem. What an intelligent group of men? If one reads the December 15th CYNIC they will see how the Interfraternity Council has solved the "Combine problem." The problem solving of the Interfraternity Council is a very big joke indeed. Why? Because the Council hasn't got rid of the combine system within its own organization as yet. A lot of "Dirt" concerning the Council has sifted my way recently and I believe I hold a trump card in this deal. I have called the bluff of the Interfraternity Council, now watch for the solution to the problem. I know the answer to this one boys, so be careful, be careful.

In closing Mr. Editor may I suggest that before you print any news concerning the Independents you verify all of

"Y" Girls Make Doll Clothes

Even college girls find enjoyment in going back to their childhood by dressing dolls, this time as Santa Claus' helpers. Before a burning fireplace in their workshop in the South Lounge at Southwick the girls gathered around with needle, thread and scissors to begin their work. From the tops of their heads to their feet these children must have a complete set of clothes the "Y" girls said, so they proceeded to help the Howard Relief Society by clothing them. By the time the patterns had been adjusted to fit the little dolls and the big ones, too, the party was in full swing with everyone enthusiastic with suggestions about what they were going to maks for their doll's wardrobe. Should the little girls have hats or bonnets tied with ribbons? That blue velvet left over from sis' new dress would be just the thing for a coat. And that lace tucked away in the drawer was the thing to add a finishing touch to that other new outfit. So busy were the girls that the time passed quickly and hey were informed that they could take the dolls home if they wanted to complete their handiwork.

The party was from three to five and at four-thirty refreshments were served, the Christmas atmosphere prevailing in the form of the green tree in the center of the ice cream and the dainty chrysanthemun-bordered white napkins. Outside on Redstone campus colored lights from the newly-wired tree showed brightly through the dusk of the late afternoon. On Christmas morning the eyes of five little girls, who do not have many of the gay lights of this holiday, will sparkle, for Santa will have delivered these well-dressed dolls by then at their doors.

W. A. A. Initiation Held At Novel Mass Meeting

The Women's Athletic Association initiated approximately forty new members into the organization Wednesday evening, December 13, at the Student Union mass meeting at Southwick.

Kay Holden '42, captain of the Gold team, opened the W. A. A. program with a welcoming speech, and introduced Barbara Gallagher '42, captain of the Green team, who remarked about the Green and Gold teams. The W. A. A. cups and the candle which is awarded to the dormitory winning the most points were on display.

Elizabeth Cole had composed two very appropriate songs for the teams and the Green and Gold teams, led by Barbara Gallagher and Kay Holden, respectively, sang them.

Mary Howe, the president of W. A. A., explained about the awards given to girls for varying numbers of points. Five senior girls were awarded the "torch" pins given anyone who has six hundred points. The following girls received pins: Betty Myers, Mim Guttormsen, Betsy Marlow, Betty Millington and Lois Murray.

Janet Dike was elected the freshman representative to the W. A. A. Council.

TEXAS UNIVERSITY HAS TROUBLE SHOOTING FUND

Austin, Tex. (IP).—A "trouble shooting" fund for University of Texas students who find themselves in financial distress totals more than $350,000, a survey of loan fund facilities revealed.

Largest fund for needy students to tap is the $200,000 pool of the Ex-Students' Association, made up of some half dozen endowments, biggest and newest of which is the $100,000 gift of the late Will C. Hogg of Houston.

Administered by the university and its various offices are seventeen loan funds aggregating $88,500, of which some $60,000 is now tied up in student notes. Fourteen other emergency, scholarship-loan and special items from which students may borrow, totaling some $70,000, are governed by individual committees.

Loans from most of these funds bear interest and are payable within five years. Notes with proper endorsements protect the funds. A few loans, in the nature of scholarships, are cancellable at the end of definite periods provided holders fulfill certain requirements. University authorities report negligible losses.

INTRODUCING

HELEN TOWNE '40

I found this week's prominent senior at luncheon eating baked beans, and proceeded to clutter up her noon hour with an interview for the CYNIC.

She is Helen Towne, who was recently pledged to Omicron Nu, the National Home Economics honor society. She appears to be a quiet, reserved and thoroughly dignified young lady, which greatly enrages her. In fact her pet hate is being called a "quiet little girl," and very much regrets that her appearance is so deceiving. Actually she has a grand sense of humor. For example, she solemnly told me that several of her ancestors attended the Boston Tea Party, and as a result, she detests all kinds of teas. Also she wants it made known publicly that she lives on the Towne Farm, not the Town Farm.

Character Study a Hobby

Helen was born in Milton, Vt. (on the Towne farm), and grew up along with ten other children. They commuted four miles back and forth to school, riding in the milk truck and being late nearly every morning. In the summer, Helen used to drag her younger sister up at daybreak to go strawberrying or dig for Indian graves on a ledge near their home. Now her hobbies have changed a bit, and shs spends her spare time in character-studying, which interests her greatly. In fact, she loves to just sit and look at people in an attempt to formulate an idea about their character. Besides this interesting little diversion, she enjoys historical movies, mystery stories of the Edgar Allen Poe type, and bicycling. (She would like to bicycle around the world sometime if it wasn't for so much water in some places.) She also likes ice cream, dates (stuffed) and various sports such as badminton, bowling and skiing. Three things which she particularly dislikes are pens that leak, hats that won't stay on, and professors who insist upon work being in on time. (I'll bet you didn't think that of Helen!)

At this point in the interview her sister, Pearl Marvin, who is a sophomore in the Home Economics class, entered the conversation and revealed that Helen once got 100 in a German mid-year exam here in college. Enough said on the subject of Helen's scholastic achievements.

Outside Activities

Various social activities interest her, and she is a member of Sigma Gamma sorority and also its secretary. She belongs to the John Dewey Club, Home Economics Club and International Relations Club, and still finds time to be on the Dean's list, of course. She is working her way through college but made it emphatic that she is not selling magazines. Furthermore, she stated that next year she will be working her way through this year, if you see what is meant. Seriously, however, she hopes to teach Home Economics after graduating.

No interview would be complete without a few suggestions for the improvement of the college. Helen's idea was original to say the least. She wants a sidewalk laid back of the Museum, and furthermore it must be kept plowed and sanded in the winter for those students who come from an easterly direction. Which isn't a bad idea, but how can you get it done?

By this time the beans were all gone and so was the noon hour, but there had to be one more question: What do you want for Christmas? Helen wants three things, all extremely useful—(1) a new pair of shoes, because she has worn hers all out trotting out to Southwick so many times; (2) a new alarm clock, because hers has a cold and coughs every time it goes off; (3) a new notebook, because her present one is in such a delapidated state that even strangers remark on it.

So there's your chance, Santa Claus, to reward a girl who has brought honor to herself and her college, and is worthy of much greater gifts than shoes, a clock, or a notebook.

Fraternities Celebrate With Christmas Formals

The blowing up of the "Graf Spee" was a mere toy game compared to the explosions issuing from the tightly closed doors of our respected Greek-letter societies last Friday night. The cause of this merriment was the arrival of Christmas formal night. That dreadful time which brings a tremble of delight to the freshman females, but a shudder of horror to their more experienced sisters was in full swing. The fraternities really exercised their renowned ingenuity to make the dances both entertaining and appropriate to the Christmas spirit.

Those Williams Street Wonders, the Alpha Tau Omegas, were chaperoned by Dr. and Mrs. Jordan. Under the direction of A. MacDonald '40, H. Noyes '41 and R. Thayer '42 they stumbled in rhythm with Warner's orchestra. The A T O's boast that they had a Christmas tree for every girl—almost. They also tell with delight how they were amused during intermission by a realistic Santa Claus whom everyone guessed to be Professor Tupper.

The Delts were so extravagant as to feed their guests. This mammoth feat, for there were seventy people present, was accomplished by seating the group at a cosy little table which stretched into three rooms. A certain senior tells of not being able to recognize a brother at the other end. This phenomenon may be explained by the fact that the thoughtful Delts used only candlelight to look at each other with. The house was decorated with red and white Christmas trees. There was a distinctive arrangement of the downstairs fireplace. The seats were turned into hills covered with pines, and in the center was a lake. Members of Wayne Barrows' orchestra were observed attempting to cool off in the glassy depths of this pond. Dr. and Mrs. French and Dr. and Mrs. Soule chaperoned.

Prof. and Mrs. Rowell and Prof. Laatsch chaperoned at the Kappa Sig house. The committee of R. Healy '41 and H. Durfee '41 procured Red Dower's band for the occasion—and it was an occasion. An example of typical Vermont understatement was the remark that the Main Street Mansion was a scene of "joyous festivity." All the boys were supplied with mistletoe, possibly to give that certain domestic touch. It was also remarked that the trees were lit up by or with boys. The Kappa Sigs were rather cryptic on this point.

'Twas the Christmas formal night at the Sigma Nu house, not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse. That is the impression given by those tight-lipped dwellers of the Lodge, but Prof. and Mrs. Daasch and Prof. and Mrs. Campbell,

INTRODUCING

JEAN MORSE '40

As I entered Room 15, Robinson Hall, Jean Morse, our charming young senior of the week, about whose recent nomination to Omicron Nu, the national honorary society for home economics students, you all have read so much lately, sat knitting away on a green mitten impatiently awaiting my arrival.

She greeted me with her usual pleasant smile, and asked me to sit down. I soon earned that knitting is, next to music, her favorite pastime. "And I don't mean jazz," said Miss Morse. "Of course, I like swing music, but I prefer to sit back and relax while classical music is being played."

"Musicals are, of course, my favorite movies," she continued. "I enjoyed 'The Great Waltz' so much that I made it a point to see it over a dozen times."

Jean now resides in Essex Center, but she was born in Greensboro, where she spent a very happy childhood. Jean confessed that her favorite pastime then was to pull her sister's hair and that she always wished she had had a brother.

When she was a senior in high school the family moved to Burlington. "Incidentally, we lived in what now is the T E P house," she said. "I never enjoyed myself so much as I did that year spent here in Burlington."

During her four years here at the University Miss Morse has won renown both in scholarship and social activities. Her name has constantly appeared on the dean's list. This is even more to her credit since she has taken a very active part in the Home Ec Club, W. A. A., Health Council and Y. W. C. A.

Her interest lies completely in the Y. W. C. A. She said, "It is a worthy cause. The Y. W. C. A. does a lot of good that nobody knows about. It caters to the needs of all students instead of a selected few."

Miss Morse has recently become interested in helping Professor Metcalf obtain the consent of the faculty to install a machine which will record the speech of all freshmen. "This, I am sure, will help much in the way of improving the English used on the campus."

Asked about her opinion of sororities, Miss Morse said, "They've had their day. The need for them is past." She, as an Independent, believes that it is not essential to belong to a sorority to enjoy your college life. "I've enjoyed my four years here at Vermont, and believe that I've gotten as much out of them as any girl could hope for."

Rams Edge Out Cats 46-42; Taylor and Corley Star

Visitor's Sharpshooting Responsible for Victory
Last Quarter Rally Brings Vermont Near Victory

A gang of hawk-eyed Fordham sophomores swooped down with prodding elbows Friday night to rout a gallant Catamount quintet 46-42 before a full house at Memorial Auditorium. The northerners fought the Rams every point of the way, and for a few minutes during the last half it looked as though their efforts would bear fruit. However, Fitzgerald, the Ram high scorer, deemed otherwise. With the score at 44-42 and 15 seconds of play remaining, "Nenesis" cut for the U. V. M. basket. He grabbed a long pass and with a hop, skip, and jump (referees have been known to call this traveling), hoisted the ball in to the string thus choking all hope of a Catamount victory.

Taylor and Corley Shine for Cats

The high scoring honors of the evening went to Frank Taylor who totaled 14 precious points. Frank was a dynamo of basketball power and seemed to possess more stamina than any other man on the floor. He played the whole game at full speed and was as brilliant and indispensable on defense as he was on the scoring side.

Paul Corley who has been saving it all for the Fordham game tore loose Friday and swished them coming or going for a total of ten points. To this he added a brand of floor play which kept Vermont "in there" at all times.

Rams Use Two Teams

The invaders brought two equally good teams along to subdue the north. The Cats fought the class A team on even terms, but let the Fordham Sophs run wild. The Cat western style proved a disadvantage Friday night because the superior height of the Fordham five controlled both backboards.

Dead eye, Fitzgerald, Sophomore ace, was the power for the victors. His points came at a time when they did the most damage, his last basket snuffing out the last spark of Vermont hope. Capt. Howie Weil, lank center of the Fordham forward line, passed and dribbled like an expert and was responsible for eleven points. Red O'Brien, senior guard, displayed excellency in ball handling and floor play.

Referees Check Twenty-seven Fouls

With the fight so close roughness developed, and the flying elbows of both teams could be discerned in the vicinity of the backboard. The "dead-end kids" may have started the rumpus, but Vermont certainly retaliated with their share. Of the 27 fouls committed 16 were credited to Vermont and 11 to the New Yorkers. The Cats scored a better percentage of their free throws than their opponents.

Cats Improving

The Catamount club showed a fine fighting spirit Friday night. They certainly have it under pressure. During the second half when the going was toughest they outplayed their rivals, and fought the last few minutes of a gallant battle without Anse Belardinelli, their mainstay beneath the board. The machinery of the club is taking lubrication. The passing and break is smoothing out. Beware Tufts!

ACE HEALEY

All-Campus Individual Free-Throw Tournament

All day Friday—January 12
Saturday A.M.—January 13

Come into the gym and try your luck from the foul line. Relax after classes or between study sessions by tossing a few at the hoop from the free-throw line. Nothing to lose—everything to gain. Remember—the best player or best floor man is not always the best foul shot artist.

Rules of contest:

1. This is an all-campus, open competition—every student, graduate or undergraduate is eligible.
2. Each entrant shall have 25 throws, taken according to the rules of basketball.
3. Each entrant making 15 or more successful throws in the first 25 shall have 25 additional throws.
4. The winner: That man making the highest score out of the 50 throws.
5. In case of tie for highest score: The shoot-off shall consist of 25 additional shots per man, the winner being the man to score the highest in the shoot-off.
6. The award: The intramural free throw championship medal and the title of all-campus free throw champion.

BASKETBALL TEAM LEAVES FOR CHRISTMAS GAMES

Although there were no brass bands to cheer them off, Coach Sabo and his retinue left Burlington on the sleeper last night for a two-day trip. Staying over at Medford the varsity will meet Tufts tonight; tomorrow the team will journey to Hanover where a return engagement with the Dartmouth Indians is scheduled. It is interesting to note that Dartmouth gave Fordham a 47-40 going over last Saturday. Comparative scores may not mean much, however, losing 37-35 and 46-42 to Dartmouth and Fordham respectively—two and four point setbacks—are some indication that the "Beaucheminless" team still has its old fight.

Following the trip the team will return home where practice sessions will be held during the Christmas vacation.

FRATERNITY BASKETBALL SCHEDULE RELEASED

The interfraternity basketball schedule for 1939-1940 has just been released by Mr. Post of the physical education department. The first round is as follows:

Jan. 10, 4.10. S A E versus Phi Sigma Delta.
5.00. Phi Delta Theta versus Lambda Iota.
Jan. 11, 7.30. T E P versus Faculty.
Jan. 13, 2.00. A T O versus Sigma Nu.
3.00. Sigma Phi versus Delta Psi.
4.00. Independents versus Kappa Sigma.

Sports Casts

A new year approaches, and this impatient corner can scarce wait to see it in. We always look forward to the novum annum. New Year's Day brings an assortment of images to our mind: resolutions, plum pudding, a little mite of a lad giving the heave-ho to that old guy with the cleaver, hangovers, and football bowl games. Now, we'd rather not discuss the hangovers, and, while we think highly of the resolutions and the plum pudding and the spunky runt, it's the bowl games which appeal to us most of all. We're going to talk about those bowl games. In fact, being of a venturesome bent, we're going out on the proverbial limb to make some not so proverbial predictions.

There was a time when the Rose Bowl had all the New Year's pigskin pomp to itself, but lately several alert chambers of commerce have come along to share the pie, extolling to the heavens their warm climes and Southern pines. So that, as it now stands, there are four or five important bowl games and scattered contests of lesser magnitude. The Rose, Orange, Cotton, and Sugar Bowls attract probably the best competition.

Engineers Elected

Duquesne and Georgia Tech meet in Miami's Orange Bowl. The Dukes compiled a fine record this season, whipping both of their city rivals, Carnegie Tech and Pitt. A wild 10-10 deadlock with scrappy Detroit was the only blemish on the Duquesne program. Georgia Tech ran into trouble a couple of times, dropping a heartbreaker to Notre Dame, but the Engineers are plenty tough, neverthless. We'll take the Southerners in a close one.

Down in Texas, Clemson and Boston College are scheduled to exchange pleasantries in the Cotton Bowl. Clemson's South Ca'lina Tigers won nine out of ten ball games, dunking Navy and giving Tulane a rousing good battle before surrendering. In versatile Banks McFadden, they have a terrific offensive threat. But up at the Heights, they say that Frank Leahy has developed a really powerful club. Boston College lost a puzzling game to Florida in its opener, and then went on to take nine straight, trimming Detroit, Kansas State, and Holy Cross among others. Leahy has a fine line, especially strong at the ends, and some adept backs. Vito Ananis gains a lot of ground and Charlie O'Rourke is a better than ordinary chucker. We like B. C. by a touchdown, even though Clemson, in its warm country, is apt to be better conditioned.

Southern Swing Session

Tulane stacks up against Texas A. & M. in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans. The Aggies went through an undefeated, untied season, while Tulane was held to a tie by North Carolina, but the billing gives evidence of a pitched battle. Both teams are possessed of individual star performers. Texas has Giant John Kimbrough, who gained several all-American fullback places. On the Tulane side, there are Bob Kellogg, back, and burly Don Wetzel, end. Kellogg, known as the Jitterbug, is ranked with the country's best ball carrier. There isn't much to choose between these powers, but we'll take a chance and give the nod to the Aggies.

Southern California plays host to Tennessee in the Rose Bowl. U. S. C. has never lost a Rose Bowl game, and we're of the opinion that they won't lose this one. But we don't think they'll win it, either, Yes, sir, we are calling it a tie. If we were sure of George Cafego's soundness, we'd name the Vols, but, partly because of the uncertainty of his playing and partly because of the Trojan will-to-win, we'll leave it all knotted up.

And a Happy New Year to you, Punch Bowlers.

JUNIORS DEFEAT SOPHS IN DESPERATE CONTEST

In one of the closest games to date, the Juniors defeated a hard-fighting Sophomore team that up to the present time had been on a rampage. The winning of this game puts the class of 1941 team in a first place tie with the class of 1942.

The scoring for the Sophomores was done by three men with Tooles tossing in seven points and Corsones and Horvath making six apiece. Reed was the high scorer for the Juniors with eight points and Crossley next with seven.

In another contest on Saturday, the Seniors broke into the win column for the first time by defeating the Freshmen by a score of 18-15. The outstanding scorer for the Seniors was Booth with ten points. Gull was the Frosh high scorer with five points.

The class league standings are as follows:

	Won	Loss
1940	1	5
1941	4	2
1942	4	2
1943	3	3

The play-off game between the Juniors and the Sophomores will be played Tuesday night at 7.00 p.m., December 19.

Frosh Edge Out B. H. S. 31-28

Doherty Pops Winning Basket
Victory First for Frosh

With the score knotted at 28 all and about a minute and a half to play, Bob Doherty made good his free throw and then popped one in near the foul line to lead the Kittens in a 31-28 setback of Burlington High. The small crowd of spectators who watched this preliminary to the Fordham game saw a scrappy brand of basketball if not always of a high standard.

The opening quarter was a pretty sloppy affair, both teams losing the ball on poor passes and long bribbles. Beaulieu and Twitchell tossed them in from under the basket, Huntington dropped a couple through the hoop on passes, and each team completed a pair of fouls—net result 8-4 in favor of Burlington.

Early in the second period Coach Hard put in a new quintet of scrappers. Shooting was pretty bad all around. Kaufman's long swishes vied with the aggressiveness of the players in going after the ball for the excitement. A few lay ups for each team (the second Burlington team made exactly four points) and the half ended 14-11, Burlington still leading.

Using the starting line-up Burlington pulled ahead to a 20-11 margin on Riley's toss and Datillio's mid-court and one-hand shots. The Frosh soon got going and Doherty sank a couple, Kaufman added another and Beaulieu made his third free throw to end the quarter 21-18.

Walsor came in for West who was out on personals. Chesarone and Kaufman looped in two to tie the score at 23 all, the closest the Yearlings had ever gotten. The outcome of the game hinged mainly on one factor—the clock. Twitchell on a pop and Doherty from ths far side—24 up. Working the ball down court on passes the Frosh lost a scoring opportunity when they missed three successive lay-ups. Burlington could do nothing and when Beaulieu's basket broke the deadlock they called time out. Kaufman dribbled in for two more points and Burlington sent in a new team. Twitchell sank his final basket and then failed to complete an all-important foul. Salzburg made it 28 all. After a Vermont time, Doherty was fouled while attempting a shot, and converted his second free throw.

Burlington had the ball and, although they maneuvered deep in Vermont's court were unable to find the basket. Rapidly the Evans men drove down court; a single point lead is not enough to freeze the ball in a game where anything might happen. Passing was fast and furious. Doherty standing on the foul line received the ball and wheeled around to make a one-hand throw which fell on the rim and then in. Twenty seconds later the game ended.

Doherty, with thirteen points, was the high scorer and perhaps the most brilliant player. Kaufman and Beaulieu with seven apiece also deserve special mention. For B. H. S. Twitchell was most conspicuous with nine tallies. Huntington also played well garnering six points and assisting in many of the scores.

statements made by your reporter. The report concerning the Independents and Mr. J. P. Mahoney on the front page of December 15th CYNIC is absolutely false. I must confess I was not present at that meeting Monday night because I had exams the next day. Besides business meetings of the Independents, concern only Independents. And may I also suggest that the reporter or editor who so cleverly makes the Independent news a comic strip, be assigned in the future to writing the solution to the Interfraternity Council's problems.

J. P. MAHONEY,
President of the Vermont Independents.

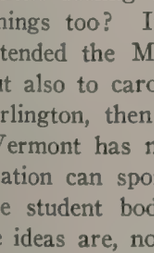
To the Editor of the CYNIC:

Mortar Board wishes to thank all those who braved the cold and slush Sunday night to attend the carol sing. The carolers made up in quality what they lacked in quantity and under the capable direction of Louis Pichierri sang all the old favorites as they wended their way to President Bailey's house and then up to Redstone campus, where they sang beneath a brilliantly lighted tree. This tree was made possible by the administration, who stood the expense of having it lighted because it was for the whole student body. Redstone campus, the people going to Southwick, and the carolers certainly appreciated it, but what about the rest of the students?

Another item—Staff and Sandal cooperated splendidly by preparing hot dogs and coffee for all—for all who showed up. And the few fraternity and non-fraternity men and women who did carol showed splendid spirit. Hats off to them!

But where was the rest of Vermont? Where were the rest of the fraternity men and the independents? Where were the one hundred sorority women who thought carol singing a grand idea and agreed to come? We didn't expect the whole student body to turn out, but we did think that our sorority women kept their promises, and we made arrangements accordingly. And what about those men and women who started out enthusiastically and then fell by the wayside? Are you too sophisticated to have Christmas spirit, or to let others know that you have it? Have we a student body here, or just 1,400 individuals, each an isolated unit within himself?

We've shown Burlington that we can cheer, that we do have school spirit—at least on the surface. But doesn't it go deeper than that? Is our spirit just noise and bluster? Or do we have a little sentiment, a little feeling for the really worthwhile things too? If all the students who attended the Middlebury pep rally came out also to carol through the streets of Burlington, then truly no one could say, "Vermont has no spirit."



No organization can sponsor an event for the whole student body, no matter how good the ideas are, nor how well it is planned, unless it has the wholehearted support of that same student body. Suppose we plan now to have a carol sing next year on the last Sunday evening before Christmas vacation. Suppose we meet after supper instead of before. Will you join us?

Perhaps you have other suggestions. If so, direct them to Campus Comment or to Mortar Board. We want to know how you feel.

FLORENCE WADE,
Mortar Board Society.

Parisian Life Theme Of Museum Art Exhibit

Paris is the theme of a new art exhibition which opened in art gallery of the Fleming Museum at the University of Vermont, Saturday, December 16. The exhibition is loaned to the Fleming Museum by the Carpenter Art Gallery of Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., and will remain on display until January 3, 1940. The object of this exhibition is to show pictorially the history, life and spirit of Paris. Key to the whole showing is a large wall map of Paris, which was made at the order of King Louis XV of France by Turgot, engraver, mapmaker and printer. Turgot started in 1734, the map took five years to complete, and it is still the wonder of cartographers the world over. It is made up in twenty separate sections, with a twenty-first section added as a key to the entire assemblage. To display the map, the twenty sections are all fitted together.

Only 2,600 proofs of the original printing were run off, and most of these were sent to the capitals of Europe, to China, and to Constantinople. The map illustrates in detail every house, church, street, park, tree, and hitching post in the city at the time of printing. Another map of Paris, dated 1652, is also in the collection.

Another phase of Parisian life is covered in a series of old prints, which go back as far as 1380, and which depict many historical views of the city. These prints will be hung in chronological order to illustrate changes and the growth of Paris.

Another angle of Parisian life is touched on by a group of reproductions of paintings by famous artists of the period around 1880. Some of the artists represented are Renoir, Degas, Manet, Monet, Daumier, Toulouse-Lautrec, Seurat and Van Gogh.

A modern artist's idea of Paris will appear in five water colors, loaned by Paul Sample, artist in residence at Dartmouth. These show scenes about Paris. Mr. Sample has exhibited paintings at the University several times in the past.

Vivid modern accents of the life of the great city which is Paris today will be seen in a group of modern French posters, many of them executed in startling and novel techniques. These will held to show Parisian life as it is lived in cafés, restaurants, festivals, and other centers of modern life.

Still another facet of Paris is reflected in a collection of pictures of the famous Notre Dame cathedral.

This exhibition attempts to portray Parisians in the normal course of their day-time and night-time activities, in the great variety of the population which inhabits the city—such figures as washerwomen, dancers, everyday people picnicking, students, riders on trolley-cars, and many others.

WOMEN STUDENTS RATE HIGHER IN SCHOLARSHIP

Ann Arbor, Mich. (IP).—As far as marks were concerned, it was a decided advantage for a man student to live in a dormitory last year at the University of Michigan, according to scholarship records recently made public by the registrar's office of the university.

Whereas men students as a whole received lowest grades of any classification of the students on the 1938-39 scholarship chart, men living in dormitories were highest of all in scholarship. All men students had a grade point average of 2.49, while men living in dormitories averaged 2.63. The averages are computed on the basis of four points an "A" grade, three for a "B," two for a "C," one for a "D," and none for an "E."

Women students received higher grades than men, with an average of 2.59 as compared to the men's average of 2.49. Women living in dormitories and rooming houses were lowest in scholarship in the female classification, with an average of 2.53, while sorority and independent women had identical ratings of 2.61.

Affiliation with fraternities and sororities made no difference in the average grades. The classification of independent men and women, and general fraternities and sororities were tied at 2.53. The average for all men and women was 2.52.

So This Is Christmas

Yesterday I went shopping, armed with my water pistol and gas mask. I was walking up Church Street when suddenly I saw a huge crowd bulging out of the door of Woolworth's, and looking like the revolt of the minority groups in Lithuania. Everybody was yelling and howling and no one was walking on his own feet. Someone was waving a swastika and yelling "Finnish the Russians" and somebody was selling peanuts. I wondered vaguely if they were all buying Christmas cards. I approached a block nearer and could hear the low rumble of broken glass, and I could see a fierce look in the whites of their eyes. "What," I asked of an innocent bystander, who was standing on the ledge of a second-story window, "are they doing?" "Oh," he said, "they are having a special sale of gold fish." I looked again and saw they were mostly college boys. I stumbled on—I met a dignified elderly gentleman carrying a garbage pail and a velocipede. He was muttering something about losing his overshoe in the embroidery department. That baby in the perambulator, parked in front of Sears, Roebuck, was yowling his head off. He stopped yowling and watched me carefully as I slipped on a piece of ice and sat down beside a little dog on the curbing. "Take it easy, Sister," he said, "you'll break something." I got up, eyeing him suspiciously. "Precocious child," I thought. "I'll bet his father is a college professor." I limped on. "Socks," I said, "for Grandpa; with stripes and size eleven." I slid into a store, a big store, with red and green Christmas balls on it and a Neon sign that said "Happy New Year—Wrigley's Gum." As I stepped inside, two people were let out the back door to add floor space. A lady with a moth-eaten leopard, I think it was her coat, looked at me and said, "I'm looking for a self-filling tea pot, equipped for television." "I'm not the clerk," I said. "I just came in to look for Grandpa." The lady looked disappointed. "Socks, with Wrigley's gum and stripes," I repeated, and dove for the sock counter. When I came up for air I had somebody's hat on and a strange necktie in my coat pocket. I saw socks, not clearly, but faintly, through the back of somebody's neck. Muttering the old college yell, I made a flying tackle for a limp sock hanging over the side of the counter. Clutching the sock in my damp palm, I arose with a look of triumph in my eye. "Something like this in size eleven," I shrieked at the sales girl. "Sorry, we are all out of size eleven," she replied mechanically, "but we have some adorable red ones with bells, something new." "No," I said wearily, "Grandpa is a conservative Republican." "Then here is just the thing for him," she replied, and, diving under the counter, she emerged with a handsome pink tea cosy. At that point two gentlemen behind me walked up the back of my neck. "I'm looking for ski boots," one of them said. "There seems to be a slight mistake," I retorted. "I am not a ski tow." I returned to the tea cosy. "Gimme the darn thing." Several hours later, in the comparative safety of the middle of Church Street, I paused for station identification. I was minus two mittens and my right ventricle was slightly dislocated but I had achieved a life-like replica of Ferdinand, the Bull, a package of safety pins and two unrelated parts of a vacuum cleaner. Anyhow, the tea cosy might do for a ski cap for my brother.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL ANSWER THIS ONE

In last Tuesday's issue of the CYNIC there appeared the following quotation concerning the Interfraternity Council: "For some time now the council has been quick to realize the problems facing it and has met and solved those problems with dispatch." From the stronghold of the Vermont Independents, in the person of John P. Mahoney, comes a challenge to this statement. According to Mahoney, the council may have met the problems confronting them and may have met them with dispatch, but they have repeatedly ignored the problem he has put before them. This problem concerns representation on the Interfraternity Council and it is a mystery to Mahoney why the council has made no move to tell him why or why not they can't be represented along with the other groups on the campus. "If the council can solve the case of the combines that confronts them," says Mahoney, "why can't they give me some attention and solve my problem?" Mahoney states that his officers have not shown the right spirit of cooperation, so in the near future he expects a radical change in the personnel of the Independents. With the new group in back of him, Mahoney expects to come closer to the realization of this problem he has put before the council.

The attention of all students is called to the rules concerning absences immediately preceding or following recesses, University Regulations II, 4b. Students desiring excuses for absences must submit applications conforming to the following:

(1) Applications must be made in writing, must indicate mail address, must set forth reasons in full and be filed with the dean of the college in which the student is enrolled (men) or with the dean of women (women) not later than Friday, December 15, at noon. The responsibility for proper and prompt filing lies with the student. It should be clearly understood that belated applications will not normally be considered.

(2) Employment—Each applicant will file with his excuse request a statement in writing from his proposed employer on the employer's letterhead, giving date when, time of day when and place where he is to report, setting forth the nature of the work to be done and the need of reporting prior to Thursday, December 21. This signed statement and his personal request should be filed as indicated above under (1). If the applicant's collegiate record justifies favorable action, excuse will be granted, effective at such time as will enable the applicant to reach his destination at the time indicated.

(3) Excuses will be granted to men by vote of the Council; to women in the discretion of the Dean of Women.

Applicants should note that failure to file their applications by noon, December 15, may result in denial of their petitions. Applicants are advised to hand all papers personally to their respective deans and not to trust them to others, or to the mails, or to lay them on some desk. No excuses will be granted except for imperative reasons. The citing of trivial reasons will simply result in waste of time.

FRATERNITIES CELEBRATE WITH CHRISTMAS FORMALS

the chaperones, probably thought otherwise, for with B. Hill '41 in charge, the Kittens playing, and the colorful decorations the dance could not but have been lively. Christmas trees were distributed discriminately, but the "piece de resistence" were the Christmas ball centerpieces on the tables.

Led by W. Bloom '41 and R. Snider '41, the T E P's journeyed all the way to the Ivory Room at the Van Ness. The familiar orchestra of Henry Press played again. Prof. and Mrs. Dykhuizen and Prof. and Mrs. Bickford chaperoned. According to observers, the Ivory Room was decorated in a "very novel manner." Beyond that, Tau Epsilon Phi would not commit themselves, except to say that they had a wonderful time.

The Phi Delt house looked very serene bathing in its ghostly arc lights. However, things reached a very un-ghostlike stage inside. Naturally Cliff Agnew's orchestra played. Prof. and Mrs. Millington and Prof. and Mrs. Pond chaperoned, and H. Pache '41, W. Murphy '42 and R. Foster '42 were the committee. The decorations were very attractive with an abundant use of pine boughs. In order to get onto the dance floor the guests had to crawl through an igloo artificial of course, for even the Phi Delts have no Eskimos. This igloo proved embarrassing for the unwary, for an artfully placed board tripped them viciously to the floor.

An impressive canopy of boughs led to the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house. When the visitors entered, they were greeted by T. Malone '41 and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Dreibelbies in the receiving line. A good Norwich band played. The house was flooded with evergreens, and the whole motif was a rustic cabin.

Hit or Miss
in Grandfather's Day

When your grandfather needed tobacco he probably went to the tobacconist in his community and had a lot of fun blending different types of tobacco together and trying out the different mixtures.

HE MAY HAVE FINALLY HIT on a combination of tobaccos that was pretty much to his fancy . . . that tasted all right to him and wasn't too strong. So the tobacconist, with an eye to future business, would make up this private blend and keep some of it on hand for him.

THIS HIT OR MISS METHOD of tobacco blending was never very satisfactory. But it proved one thing to both smokers and manufacturers, that you must have a blend of tobaccos to get better smoking results, because no one tobacco by itself has all the qualities necessary to a good smoke.

THE CHESTERFIELD tobacco buyers select and bid in at the auction sales the tobacco types that best fit the Chesterfield blend, which is the right combination of exactly the right amounts of Maryland, Burley and Bright with just enough Turkish. These tobaccos and the Chesterfield way of blending them make Chesterfield different from any other cigarette.

THAT IS WHY there are millions of enthusiastic Chesterfield smokers clear across the country. They find Chesterfield COOLER, BETTER-TASTING and DEFINITELY MILDER . . . just what they want for real smoking pleasure. You can't buy a better cigarette.

Dr. Doten of Brandon Joins Geology Staff

Prof. Elbridge C. Jacobs, head of the geology department at the University of Vermont, has left Burlington with Mrs. Jacobs on a trip to the South and Southwest. Professor Jacobs will spend a six months leave from the University in travel.

Dr. Robert K. Doten of Brandon will take over Professor Jacobs' duties during his absence, working with Prof. Charles G. Doll of the department. Doctor Doten was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and has served as instructor in the geology department of that institution. He is taking up his work at the University of Vermont starting with the reopening of college January 4.

Professor Jacobs plans to visit and study the Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico and the Grand Canyon in southern Arizona. Professor and Mrs. Jacobs will fly to Mexico City and then to Guatemala, where Professor Jacobs states much of geological interest is to be found. They will return to Burlington in June.

Scribes Becomes Co-ed Organization

The Scribes was founded just a year ago for freshman women. But this fall the original members decided by unanimous vote to continue as active members of the organization. So the meetings have gone on. Several times during the year, discussion arose about making it a club for both men and women, especially as the members had been approached by several of the male element interested in scribbling. Credit is due F. Bardossi, a sophomore, who has done brilliant work in English here at the University who has organized the men and helped to put over the movement to make the Scribes a co-ed organization open to everyone, with no restrictions as to class or status.

The first meeting of the new Scribes will be held at Southwick, Tuesday night, January 9, at 7.30. It is an informal group. The members bring their manuscripts, read them and the rest give their criticisms. If the content contains controversial material, long and interesting discussions are embarked on, and Scribers agree that their meetings are very profitable and worthwhile.

Anyone interested in writing poetry, essays, short stories or plays is invited to come and join the group. There's no formality, and it's fun!

LAMBDA IOTA HOLDS DINNER DANCE TOMORROW

The Lambda Iota house will be the scene of the Owls' annual dinner dance tomorrow night.

J. A. White, Jr., '41 will be in charge of the affair which will feature woodland decorations.

The Catamounts, fresh from their Lake Placid triumphs, will furnish the music. Prof. and Mrs. Lyman S. Rowell and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry will chaperone.

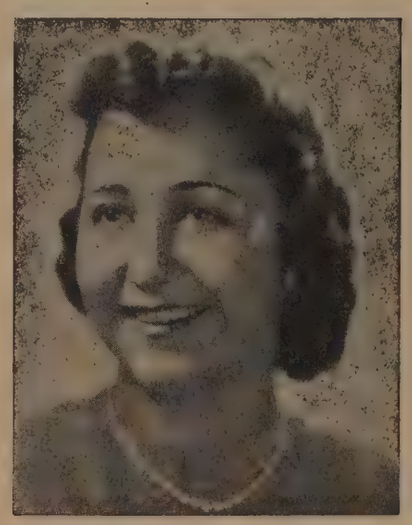
U. V. M. Debaters Attend T. K. A. Convention

Brody '40, Johnston '40, Becker '41, Delegates

Our debaters were as active as ever during the Christmas holidays. The women's team engaged in two non-decision debates, and three students accompanied Prof. M. D. Powers to Chicago for the Tau Kappa Alpha convention.

The women's team, composed of Gertrude Johnston '40, Eleanor Brody '40 and Kathleen LeBaron '41, met Boston University in a non-decision contest on the question, "Resolved, That the United States should follow a policy of strict (military and economic) isolation toward all nations outside of the western hemisphere engaged in armed civil or international conflict." Vermont upheld the negative. This was on Thursday, December 21. The next day at four o'clock the team took the negative of the same question against the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. This debate was distinguished by being broadcast over the Colonial Network, Station WAAB. Coach Powers accompanied his team.

Prof. Powers as Judge



Professor Powers also traveled to the Middle West with the three undergraduates who attended the convention, where he acted as one of the critics and judges of the Speech Progression program. The three students were Gertrude Johnston '40, manager of women's debating, Eleanor Brody '40, varsity team member, and A. H. Becker '41, men's debate manager. The convention, which was held in a Chicago hotel on December 27, 28 and 29, had a three-fold purpose. Aside from the convention of Tau Kappa Alpha, honorary forensic society, there was a meeting of the National Association of Teachers of Speech, and then a discussion in groups under the new system of debate. At the convention were seventy-five students from twenty-one colleges, Maine and Vermont to Florida, Colorado and South Dakota. The Mid-west was, of course, well represented.

New Type of Debate Used

The occupation that took up most of their working time was this Discussion Progression, or group phase of their activities. A type of debate first tried in Denver and South Dakota, it was being introduced to the eastern colleges for the first time at this convention. This new method has certain basic advantages over the old type. First, instead of having two sides, one of which upholds the resolution and the other of which denies it, this new style goes to the very bottom of the problem. There are seven definite phases of the debate which discuss such different matters as the significance of the problem in question (the isolation question at the convention), its causes, and the attitude taken by the individual toward finding a solution. It can readily be seen that after a debate of this type the participants have not a superficial but a comprehensive knowledge of their subject; much more so than if they had engaged in the conventional debate of argument and rebuttal.

The way they worked this discussion at the convention was to divide the delegates into nine groups of eight or nine apiece. Each group would meet in a certain spot anywhere from 7.30 in the morning to late at night. It would then cover the first phase of the debate. Then the members of the groups would be shuffled, and they would proceed to the next stage. In this manner the individuals had the benefit of the ideas of most of the other delegates, yet given in an intimate group. These phases lasted anywhere from an hour to an hour and a half. Prizes were awarded as in a regular debate.

Goodrich Classical Club Presents "The Clouds"

The Goodrich Classical Club presented a reading version of Aristophane's "The Clouds" at Southwick on Tuesday, December 19, just before the vacation recess. The play was complete with appropriate costumes and enough stage setting to lend the proper atmosphere. The plot concerned Strepsiades, a gentleman of Athens, who learned a logic at Socrates' thinking school whereby he hoped to shirk his debts. Failing this, he sent his son to the thinking school to also learn the logic, but the son learned only too well the Unjust Logic, since he finally beat up his father and then argued himself out of it. Then the Clouds, three deities who had guided Strepsiades in his deeds, abandoned him in his hour of need. The father, seeing the inconsistency of Socrates' teachings, returned to his former beliefs, a sadder but wiser man. The whole play was a satire on the teachings of Socrates.

The cast was as follows:

Socrates, Professor Kidder; Strepsiades, Professor Metcalf; Pheidippides, Professor Pooley; the Clouds, Miriam Fiske, Jane Judd, Myrna French; Amynias, a student, F. Bardossi; a servant, Collamer Abbott; Right Logic, Ruth Williams; Wrong Logic, Doris Kinsley.

Department of Military Science Gives Badges

Forty-five freshmen have been cited by the Department of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Vermont to receive marksmanship badges for qualifying as Expert Riflemen, firing the Regular Army Small Bore Rifle Course. These forty-five men made scores of not less than 180 out of a possible 200.

Topping the list was W. T. Elliott, St. Johnsbury, freshman agriculture student, who fired 199 out of the possible 200, thereby breaking the freshman record and tying the school record made last May by A. R. Williams of Jericho, a senior and member of the University rifle team.

Others who fired scores of 190 or better were B. F. Parker, Jr., Fairfield, Conn., 195; J. R. Landry, Jr., Rutland, 194; W. M. Emerson, Jr., Bangor, Me., 194; L. A. Weaver, Jr., Starksboro, 192; E. M. Wansor, Sea Cliff, L. I., N. Y., 191; B. Albert, Burlington, 190.

The Department of Military Science and Tactics states that these freshmen are in line for special commendation, since they fired on their own time, at hours in addition to those regularly assigned for instruction.

Sorority Holds Tea-dance

Alpha Chi Omega sorority will hold a tea-dance on Saturday, January 6, from five to eight. The chaperones will be Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Daggs and Prof. and Mrs. E. E. Lineken. Louise Peters '41 is in charge of the dance.

Ruth Draper, Famed Monologist, Performs

Committee on Polish Relief Sponsors Soiree

Ruth Draper, one of America's most beloved actresses, known and loved throughout the country, and for years one of the brightest lights in the Broadway galaxy, was presented to Burlington under the auspices of the Vermont Committee of the Commission for Polish Relief on Wednesday evening, January 3, at Southwick Memorial. The program consisted of a group of six character sketches:

At a Children's Party in Philadelphia.

A Dalmatian Peasant in the Hall of a New York Hospital.

Three Breakfasts:
1. The first—In a Suburb.
2. Fifteen Years Later—In the City.
3. Forty Years Later—On a Farm.

Three Generations in a Court of Domestic Relations.

On the Porch in a Maine Coast Village.

"Vive La France!"

Sketch of True Incident

The footnote on the program said that the last sketch was based on a true incident which was witnessed in France during the World War—the first one—by an American who was driving an ambulance, and later was retold to Miss Draper. It was done entirely in French, and although this member of the fourth estate's knowledge of that language is practically nil, Miss Draper's ability to convey her every line to her audience not only through the medium of speech, but through her facial expressions, which are very lively and singularly expressive and through the general pose and activity of the body, conveyed the story as adeptly as though it had been in English.

The Maine Porch characterization was salty as the Maine coast. She caught the flavor of the region, and passed it along to her audience. And her peasant sketches were outstanding contributions of the evening, her sweet, soft-spoken Dalmatian peasant providing a refreshing contrast to the shrill elegance of the "Second Breakfast" and the harassed mother at the children's party.

Audience Unusually Large

It was a memorable evening's entertainment, and the monologue at its best was presented to an enthusiastic and unusually large audience. There was one woman on the stage, but when the house lights dimmed and she entered into her rôle, the stage became populated, the settings rose before the eye of the imagination, and when the hearty applause rang through the auditorium, it was praising the judge in the Domestic Relations Court, appreciating the candy-sticky children, loving Henry, eating his lumpy oatmeal through the years. And the audience was a colorful one. It seemed like a first-nighter on the Great White Way, with the members of the Theater Club, among others, in formal attire, and notables in all fields in the State present, including Gov. George Aiken.

The University donated the use of the Southwick auditorium to the cause of the refugees, and the entire proceeds of the performance will go to the fund which is alleviating the terrible suffering which the Poles are experiencing.

It was a good cause, a marvelous evening's entertainment and we say, "Come again soon, Ruth Draper."

Collegium Guest, Dr. Ladd

Collegium, the Young People's Society of the College Street Church will resume meetings, beginning this Sunday evening, January 7, at 7.30 p.m. Dr. Percy Chandler Ladd will speak on "How to Make the New Year New." There will be a hymn sing at the beginning of the service and refreshments and a social hour afterwards. Everyone is invited to come.

The first of another year and once again the air is filled with New Year's resolutions—the same ones that we made last year and the year before that—the same ones which we adhered to for awhile and then neglected so badly. It is something which most of us do, this making of resolutions, but unfortunately we very seldom live up to the letter of them.

It is rather difficult for us to analyze the situation in such a way that we can say "This is why I fell down" and really feel that it was a legitimate reason and not just another alibi. But a certain gentleman known as William James in his "Psychology: Briefer Course" wrote so well in regard to the formation of habits that "The Reader's Digest" reprinted it a few years ago.

In his discourse, which "The Reader's Digest" titled "Making Habits Work for You," Mr. James stresses the importance of habits in our everyday life for the simple reason that they can either aid us or hinder us tremendously. It is up to the individual to decide how the habits which are formed are to affect his daily life.

Mr. James believes that in the acquisition of new habits or the leaving off of the old ones, there are four important maxims to remember:

"First, we must take care to launch ourselves with as strong an initiative as possible." He advises us to make engagements incompatible with the old way, take a pledge, if the case allows, and pursue any other course which will prove of benefit in giving momentum to our resolution.

"Second, never suffer an exception to occur till the new habit is securely rooted in your life." Because failure is apt to dampen the energy of future attempts, success at the beginning is imperative.

"Third, seize the first possible opportunity to act on every resolution you make." Motor effects and not ideas are responsible for communicating the new "set" to the brain. In other words, maxims and sentiments do not build character but actions do. Failure to realize on present resolutions definitely hinders the success of future resolutions.

"Fourth, keep the faculty of effort alive in you by a little gratuitous exercise every day." Mr. James advises us to be "systematically ascetic or heroic in little unnecessary points, to do every day or two something for no other reason than that you would rather not do it, so that when the hour of need draws nigh, it may find you nerved and trained to stand the test."

Simple maxims, these, at least to understand—as for actually putting them into effect, it is not easy, but on the other hand it is not impossible. Each one of us can apply these maxims to our own lives with results which, to speak mildly, would be wondrously advantageous.

Each of us has formed a multitude of trivial habits which rob us of time and many of us have other more serious habits which we could well do without. We fritter away our time in making decisions regarding trivial matters which should have long ago been incorporated in our daily routine and should have become habitual to us. Many of us are guilty of hobnobbing with that thief of time, procrastination. To sum it all up, many of us seem to strive after inefficiency rather than efficiency. But let us not belabor the point. Let us instead make an effort to adopt the maxims stated by James to our own problems and, by keeping our objective ever in mind, begin now at the beginning of a new year to rebuilt some part of our daily life. But let us not, as the year passes, forget the resolutions we make now in such good faith.

There will be no organ music during exams but it will resume as usual after exams.

IMPORTANT—WOMEN STUDENTS

The physical education department has posted the list of cuts on the bulletin boards in the Y room and at Southwick. The time for make-up classes is also posted. Look and see the number of cuts you have. All cuts must be made up by January 13.

There will be a meeting of all intramural representatives Monday, January 8, at 1.15 p.m. sharp in the physical education office. Topics on list for discussion are intramural hockey and other winter activities.
Archie Post, Phys. Ed. Dept.

The ski patrol class will meet Tuesday, January 9, at 7.30 in the men's gym. The classes will be continued to the duration of the course, after which applicants will be eligible to receive certificates as members of the ski patrol. A reasonable number of cuts may be made up at the end of the course but the full twenty hours must be completed.

The Ariel photographers will be here on Monday and Tuesday, January 8 and 9. Call Margaret Crowley, 3083, for appointments. This is positively the last chance.

The Cynic meeting originally scheduled for Friday night, January 5, will not be held on account of the game. However a meeting will be held Tuesday, January 9, at Southwick north lounge. News editors and senior staff at 7.30 and the entire staff at 8.00.

DR. J. S. CONANT REVIEWS ADVANCES IN KNOWLEDGE

Columbia, Mo. (I. P.)—Dr. James B. Conant, speaking at the Convocation ceremonies of the University of Missouri Centennial celebration recently, reviewed the advances in knowledge and science in the last 100 years and declared that research and learning must go on despite the occasional talk of a scientific moratorium, the shaking of heads about professors and their queer ways that threaten to ruin the world.

Admitting that "high scholastic standing in college is on the whole at a discount in this country," Doctor Conant said that this fact was due partly to a misunderstanding on the part of the public and partly to the failure of universities to measure their students adequately.

"There are faults in our educational machinery and we must admit that too often academic prizes go to students of mediocre ability who have good memories and the willingness to do hard, plodding work," Doctor Conant said. "But the situation is very much better than it was thirty years ago, and indeed is improving every day.

"Much more remains to be done on the one hand in improving our tests and examinations, and on the other in stimullating our students to show their inherent ability. If we could persuade all our youths in college that the four years were a real trial heat and not just a jog around the track, the brilliant loafer would disappear."

The Band Wagon

By Bob Johnson

"The Band of Tomorrow"

Thus is Tommy Reynolds being billed and everyone seems intensely interested. The band is going through the same build-up procedure as Artie Shaw and Glenn Miller. Because of Shaw's recent departure from swing circles, the Reynolds rockers are forging ahead.

This outfit openly apes the arrangement style and sax voicing of the Shaw outfit. Tommy leads the band playing an Artie-like clarinet. The band has several vocalists and also furnishes a good brand of swing—not always 'xciting—but 'xceptionally good—especially for so young a band.

Dubbings Around the Dial

George Auld leading the old Artie Shaw swingsters on their opening at Roseland, Georgie's policeman stance—prodigious tenor and semi-serious manner are bound to be favorites. The band says "pShaw" to the past—"and Auld is one and one for Auld" for the future.

Bradley-McKinley coming along just fine.

Bobby Byrne pulling a ditto.

Jan Savitt—different and original. Bon Bon is one of the finer male baladeers.

Miller—as ever—on his midwest tour.

Turn-table Talk

Coleman Hawkins—most beautiful tenor and conceptions on "Body and Soul"—a must for every lover of swing. Not quite the Hawkins tone of old.

Don't miss Sam Donahue on the Krupa discs. More great tenor.

Boot of the Month

Bobby Hackett—playing five choruses of "Song of the Islands" with intermittent modulations—truly great—poor background furnished by the Heidt band. Too—too bad.

Erskine Hawkins and the spirit of the band—often bad intonation but terrific ideas by Hawkins on trumpet and Dase on tenor.

By the Way

Judy Ellington, known for her work with Barnet, is currently chirping with Reynolds. Chuck Hill, cornetist, formerly with Miller (during the dark period), is also with Reynolds.

"Bonnie King Charlie—oh you Barnet Better sax players you seldom will get"

Philbert.

Boot of Vacation

Taking the Placid bobsled run on a bull fiddle.

"To end all jumps"—going over the ski jump with clarinets for skiis—not funny but it was different.

NO MORE MID-TERM EXAMS AT BELOIT COLLEGE

Beloit, Wis. (ACP)—To de-emphasize the importance of mid-semester grades and to place greater emphasis on scholarship, Beloit College authorities have abolished mid-term examinations.

Only those students whose work is not equal to a passing mark will receive any indication of their standing. Those in this group will be given "unsatisfactory" reports.

The purpose of the new system is to take the stress off grades and emphasize day to day preparation and effort. Mid-semester marks have never been recorded in any permanent record as they are not an indication of final achievement.

By stressing steady work and abolishing a rating which can be interpreted in terms of grade points, it is hoped that students will view the work in their courses as material to be successfully mastered and not as a means to a number of grade points.

It is not to be understood that this arrangement will in any way interfere with the usual exams given by instructors in regard to the class work.

The Neutral Corner

By Bill Roeder

Madison Square Garden, New York's celebrated sports rendezvous, is a mad enough place anytime, but the excitement in the Eighth Avenue emporium reaches its dinniest heights, we think, when Mr. Ned Irish brings his basketball boys around for an evening's fun.

Mr. Irish, a clever gent who will ring in a couple more new years before his thirtieth, really took the Gotham citizenry by the ears when he started his collegiate-dribble doings a few winters back. Good basketball was probably being played in the country's hardwood hotbeds before Ned introduced his intersectional doubleheaders, but the teams, like Kay Kyser's grandma, were staying in their own backyards. Now, however, with the expanding of the Irish brainstorm, you can step into a coliseum in New York, or Chicago, or Baltimore, or White Plains, or Takeyercherce, and watch a couple of slick outfits from, say, New Mexico and Pennsylvania, battle it out for the glory of East and West.

We dropped in on one of the Garden get-togethers last week. The pairings had Fordham taking on Oklahoma and New York University stacking up against Missouri. The boys divided the intersectional honors, with Oklahoma halting the Rams and N. Y. U. giving Missouri a going over.

Rise of Rizzo

Fordham, a team which you saw in action up here last month, appeared somewhat improved over its Burlington showing. The difference was a matter of personnel, to which one Jerry Rizzo had been added. Not much of a hand for books, Rizzo had been scholastically benched during Fordham's early games. But when Ed Kelleher's lads took the floor against the Oklahomans, Rizzo, miraculously cleared of educational complications, was with them, all five foot eight inches and a hundred and forty pounds of him. Rizzo is built on the shrinking side, true, but is lord of all he surveys once he steps into a basketball suit. The Okies beat Fordham, 55 to 48, but it was no fault of this fellow's. He was continually in the bigger boys' hair, setting up plays, stealing balls, and looping hoops. Rizzo is about the best dribbler we've ever had the occasion to see. He weaved through the Oklahoma defense time and again to drop in two-pointers. And that defense resembled a moving redwood forest. All in all, the cowboys were too big, even for the Rams, who could hardly pass for a crew of Singer's midgets themselves. The Westerners' Hugh Ford, a six foot, six inch comrade, speared just about everything that didn't go into the bucket, and at that, he almost managed to bat a couple back out again.

Tigers Tamed

N. Y. U., which beat Missouri, 68 to 47, was the ball club of the night. The Violent Violets couldn't do anything wrong. They had uncanny shooting eyes. They guarded like demons. They passed like a combination of Luckman, Christian, O'Brien, and Time itself. They swooped down on the boards to snare every rebound. In short, they were good. Missouri, which shared the Big Six title with Oklahoma last year, came up with a fair to middlin' team, but the Tigers were a trifle outclassed.

Mr. Irish packed 'em in for this affair, as he usually does. There were about 15,000 present. Very few of this number represented the competing colleges. When N. Y. U.'s cheerleaders went into their song and dance, the response was pathetic. But the subway alumni were plentiful, and yell they did, when the situation warranted.

U. V. M. Opens Ice Skating Rink Jan. 4

The University ice skating ring opened yesterday, Thursday, January 4, officially and before the stars had faded, two courageous co-eds had cut their figure 8's to celebrate the opening of what promises to be a gala skating season.

The Physical Education Department plans to have the rink open from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. daily, except when weather is not suitable and after sunset the rink will be illuminated by six flood lights—making six thousand watts of light power—which is an increase over last year when there were lights only at the four corners of the ice pond.

A man is employed to keep it in top condition and a body called the "Student Police" is stationed there during the hours when the rink is open to help maintain order and collect tickets.

The privilege of using the rink is extended to the student body, faculty members and their families and alumni. Alumni can purchase their season tickets through the alumni office, $1.00 per person or $1.50 for a family ticket and faculty members may obtain these tickets at the University Book Store.

The schedule for the rink is as follows:

RINK ENTHUSIAST DEPLORES ABSENCE OF HOCKEY TEAM

To the Sports Editor:

Equipped as we are with a skating rink, there is no aparent reason why we cannot have a hockey team. Certainly there are enough students interested enough in this sport to make it worth while. Financing of it, of course, is a major problem; but when one realizes that many high schools are able to afford this added expense, it is natural to think that the University of Vermont could do so as well.

Even if it were necessary to raise the Student Activity Fee a little, I am sure most of the student body would not mind. What about it, students?

Sincerely,
L. Miller.

Frosh Hoopsters Play Vermont Jr. Col.

Holding its first workout last night since returning from Christmas vacation, the frosh basketball squad now comprises thirteen stalwarts, four men having dropped out due to scholastic pressure. Coach Evans was not at all displeased with the showing made in the Burlington game, in which the local team lost 31-28. The combination of West at guard and Beaulieu at center worked rather surprisingly well in view of one night's previous practice.

On Tuesday, the lads will journey over to Montpelier where they will meet Vermont Junior College. It is interesting to note that the latter is composed of five former high school captains.

Bud O'Brien who was all-state at Burlington last year and Bob Stewart, 6' 4", who played on the Frosh squad here last year but was ineligible most of the season, will start at forward; at center, Ed Prescott of Montpelier High, starts; Charlie Smith and J. Krupp, last season's stars, are at guard.

For Vermont the same line-up will be used as in the last game. Doherty and Kaufman, forwards; Beaulieu, center; Chesarone and West, guards.

The remaining members of the aggregation are: Forwards—Viens, Corbett, Wansor; center—Grovenor; guards—Krupp, Hamilton, Lankton, and Bloomer. Of these it is almost certain that Wansor and Hamilton will see action.

In practice much time was spent in developing team work, getting the boys able to cordinate well together in various combinations. Apparently the lack of this coordination was the main flaw in the last game. Noticeable, also, were the long court dribbles which resulted in losing the ball, whereas passes would be more effective. On the credit side was the gameness of the team, something which no amount of practice can instill. At this early date it looks as if the present lineup will continue throughout the season, although some sub may suddenly blossom into a whirlwind.

That wacky song, "The Little Man Who Wasn't There," was written by a New York University education professor.

Sabomen Drop Tilts At Medford, Hanover

Jumbos Win, 47-32, As Vermont Misses Shots; Green Scores, 68-39

Losing both to Tufts and Dartmouth by decisive scores the Catamount hoopsters completed their first, and what proved to be very disastrous road trip of the year. The score at Medford was 47-32; at Hanover, 68-39.

In the Tufts game the breaks definitely were against Vermont, as was clearly shown when time after time Vermont shots would circle the basket and drop out. The strange backboards at the Medford gym also seemed to trouble the visitors.

Tibbs Best

In the "Jumbo" game Vermont did not score a single point until almost five minutes of the first half had passed. The Cats just couldn't find the range. In the meantime the opposition, led by Charlie Tibbs, lanky center and captain, piled up an early lead which was never to be surpassed. Again and again Tibbs, constantly fed by his teammates, sank easy step shots. He also converted five foul shots for a grand total of 19 points.

Cats Rally

In both games Vermont rallied in the second half. Losing to the Jumbos 25-11 at the half, the Cats initiated a momentary surge at the opening of the second semester. Three quick baskets brought the Vermont total to 17. But after a Tufts time out, the latter buckled down and easily stopped further Vermont threats.

In the Dartmouth game, Vermont definately had the upper end for the last eight minutes. Bill Pye, Frankie Taylor and Red White all finally came into their own, but it was too late. The Dartmouth lead was never in danger. Strangely enough it was not Gus Broberg who was the chief Vermont nemesis, but Jim Sullivan, Big Green center, who enjoyed a field day, scoring 18 points. Broberg, who was rested for more than half of the game, was held to 5 baskets and 1 foul conversion.

In both games substitutions were frequent. Every man on the Vermont squad saw action. Almost the entire final quarter of the Tufts game was played by the Vermont second club. The Cats return to the auditorium tomorrow night to oppose the American International College of Springfield, Mass.

Hoopsters Plan to Defend State Title

With most of the toughest games on the schedule behind them, the Catamount hoopsters now are looking forward to a defense of their state title. After tonight's clash with American International College the quintet faces Norwich and Middlebury within the same week, after which they have a two-week layoff before meeting St. Michael's again. A hard tussle also awaits them in their next-to-closing tilt when they journey to Hamilton, stamping ground of the Colgate cagers.

Despite the fact that the Cats have garnered only two wins in their first six contests, chances are good for a retention of the state title. The Cats' showing thus far is far from discouraging when we consider the fact that two of the losses were by close scores to a strong Dartmouth quintet and a third to Fordham, admittedly a "big-name" outfit.

Middlebury this year has been defeated by Tufts and Williams, but little is known as to their strength. However, if past experience is any judge, the Cats will have to be at top strength in order to take the Middmen's measure.

Observers are calling Norwich an improved team this year and one to be watched in state competition. As for the third state rival, St. Michael's, it has already been defeated once by Vermont. Although the Mikemen proved stubborn in this first encounter, there is little reason to believe that they can put on the power necessary to overcome the bigger Catamount quintet when the two meet again.

Tonight's opponent, A. I. C., is a small college which usually manages to field fairly stubborn teams. It is expected that the Catamounts after intensive practice over the holidays will be ready for a win. Coach Sabo will probably start Belardinelli, Maley, Taylor, Corley and Pye. Healy is also certain to see plenty of action before the night is over. Other reserves whom Sabo will probably call on are Les Brown, Lynch and "Red" White.

State College, Pullman. (I. P.)— Simultaneously on the new Pullman-Moscow regional airport there will be trained, under the Civil Aeronautics Authority program, student flyers from Washington State and from the University of Idaho.

This airport is being developed on a tract near the Washington-Idaho state line, four and one-half miles by airline from each college campus. Each institution will supervise the training of thirty student flyers.

Harvard Business School Grants Scholarships

The Harvard Business School announced today that the consolidation of funds from four donors twenty to twenty-five National Scholarships carrying a maximum stipend of $1,000 would be granted for the first time to students entering the School in September, 1940. These scholarships are made possible by donations from the W. T. Grant Fund, the James C. Melvin Fund, the Jerome Jones Fund, and the Commercial Credit Company. They will be similar to the National Scholarships awarded by Harvard College to selected undergraduate students from certain states. The Business School is the second graduate school in Harvard University to announce a National Scholarship plan.

Funds are available in sufficient amount to grant twenty scholarships of $1,000 each, but it is expected that the average award will be slightly less than this figure. The amount granted to each successful applicant will depend on his financial need. If a satisfactory record is achieved in the first year, the applicant will be assured of adequate financial assistance through scholarships, loans, jobs, and other types of aid to permit him to complete the work for his M.B.A. degree in the second year. No public announcement will be made as to the precise amount received by any scholarship holder.

Locality Considered

In the selection of applicants consideration will be given to geographical distribution. The official announcement called attention to the statement of Pres. James B. Conant several years ago that the national scholarships in the college were offered "to open the door of opportunity for study at a great endowed university to more of the most promising youths from every part of the country in order to strengthen the life of the university and to increase the national scope of its usefulness." Students in the Business School this year come from 44 states and 205 colleges, and in 1938-1939 there were students from all 48 states and 206 colleges. Dean W. B. Donham stated that applicants would be favored from areas where it was impossible for a man to live at home and study at a nearby university. The scholarships would thereby provide funds to assist those men who otherwise would be denied the opportunity of preparing themselves for a career in business by taking graduate work in business administration.

During the last six years scholarships amounting to $300 each have been awarded by the Harvard Business School alumni clubs in the principal cities of the country. Unsuccessful applicants for the national scholarships will be considered for these alumni club scholarships as well as for the smaller scholarships and other substantial financial aids already available at the School. The scholarship committees of these clubs will be utilized in the selection and interviewing of applicants for all scholarships.

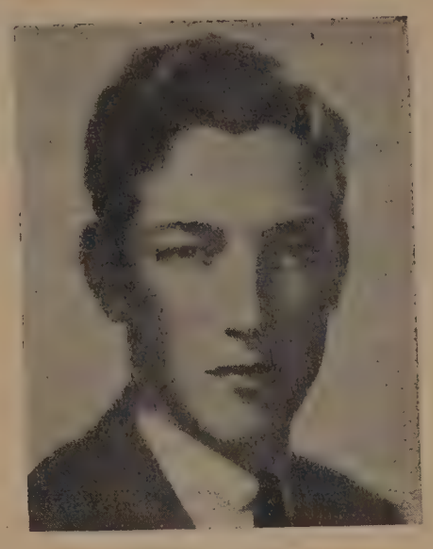
To Aid Students

The National Scholarship plan has been prepared to make it possible for students who have more outstanding ability than income to attend the School and to prepare themselves for a career in business. While the scholastic record of the applicant will be given great weight, the other characteristics and aptitudes which are important in business will also be appraised. Recommendations of professors and of businessmen for whom the applicant has worked will be considered in the selection. A personal interview with a member of the Dean's Office or with a representative of the local Harvard Business School alumni club also will be required of each applicant. Seniors in accredited colleges and men who have been graduated from those colleges during the last two years will be eligible to apply for these scholarships.

The first of these scholarships will be awarded to students entering the School in September, 1940. No National Scholarships will this year be available to students entering the mid-year session of the School which begins January 29, 1940, and continues to August 14, 1940. The usual types of aid will be available, however, to students who enter the School in January.

Applications for these scholarships may be made direct to the Dean's Office of the Harvard Business School or through the scholarship committee of the Harvard Business School alumni clubs in Akron, Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Bridgeport, Buffalo, Charlotte, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Des Moines, Detroit, Hartford, Honolulu, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Lehigh Valley, Los Angeles, Louisville, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and St. Paul, Newark, New York City, Philadelphia, Providence, Richmond, Rochester, St. Louis, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Seattle, Washington, and Worcester. These applications should be filed not later than April 1, 1940.

Candidates for the above scholarships, who are not successful, will automatically become eligible for the scholarships described below.



The Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, through the cooperation of the Boston Alumni Club, is offering to properly qualified college graduates one or more scholarships of $300 each for the academic year 1940-1941. Scholarships will be applied against tuition and will be awarded on the basis of need for financial assistance, scholastic standing and general character. Candidates must be residents of New England or must have attended college there.

It is estimated that the expenditures of a student during his first year at the School may be kept down to somewhere around $1,300. A first-year student in good standing may borrow $300 from the Loan Fund to be credited to his expenses. In addition, a first-year man may apply for a dining hall job and if he secures it, he will receive his board free in return for his work. Thus, if a candidate has as much as $340 of his own funds and is awarded this scholarship, he will be able to balance his budget at the School for his first year.

Further information and also application blanks can be obtanied from John J. Canavan, 19 Winter Street, Boston, Mass.

More than one-fourth of the University of Arkansas student body are relatives of graduates or former students of that institution.

Xmas Holidays Again A Part of the Past

And so, my children, I will tell you the story of Christmas as it comes to U. V. M., but once a year, thank heaven. The hero of our story is Twillington Arbuthnot, commonly known as Spike.

Spike came up to U. V. M. as an ordinary student, with a freshman cap and all that sort of thing. He got his face pushed in at fountain fight and lost a tooth at cane rush. He also joined a fraternity, Flapdoodle Alpha something or other. Those activities kept him mighty busy. Yes, sir, mighty busy. But he wasn't too busy to find himself a girl. She was a cute little blonde named Prunella. And for some reason, she thought Spike was the—quote—most divine thing that ever existed—unquote.

Of course, this was a good deal more than his professors thought of him. At first, Spike mentioned them with admiration in his monthly letter home. Said he, "They're always taking me aside for confidential chats." Later, he discovered that they were merely measuring him for sliding-speed when they put him on the skids. His average got better after every hour exam.

As for holidays, Spike always knew what to do with them. He spent Thanksgiving under all the very best tables of all the very best night clubs of some metropolis whose name he never did find out, except that it ended in ville. And so, after an unpleasant interlude of scholastic activity—well, he wrote a piece of theme—Spike found himself on the verge of Christmas vacation.

He had thought of wrapping himself up and having himself delivered at Prunella's door on Christmas morning but later he abandoned that idea. Finally he went on a pre-Christmas binge and ended in his own stocking on the morning. Needless to say, Santa Claus was surprised to find Spike already delivered, but Spike merely offered him a drink and they sat down to dole out the presents. An hour later Santa Claus departed, carrying with him the tie Prunella crocheted and the gloves that didn't fit and the pink socks and a couple of empty bottles. Just trying to find another sucker.

New Year's Eve found Spike really wrapping himself up. As he was carried home, he groaned, "mid-year's! That's what did it." He spent the following few days recuperating under an ice-bag.

Came Wednesday night Spike had to return to U. V. M. He said farewell to his parents—whereby he realized that this was the first time he had seen them. Then he bravely took his skis, valise, textbooks, galoshes and extra coat in one hand, his ticket between his teeth and his supply of periodical literature—Life, Pic and Look because Spike has a simple mind—in the other hand, and he leaped aboard the train.

Now Spike is back at college. He is reclining in his suit case, waiting for spring vacation. His room-mate sometimes warns him that exams are coming but Spike doesn's care. In fact, he occasionally answers back.

"I know, friend, but I just try to tell myself it's a hangover."

Jeez, maybe it is.

KENT STATE CLASS HOLDS SECRET SESSION

Kent, Ohio (I. P.)—A college course in business policies at Kent State University is so secret that even Dr. K. C. Leebrick, president, is barred.

And students enrolled in the course are honor-bound never to reveal what goes on in the classroom. It all started when Dean Arden L. Allyn of the college of business administration, and Doctor Leebrick invited business executives to lecture only to the students and the class instructor.

So reporters and other professors can't sit in on the sessions and the business leaders presumably give off-the-record talks on what they think of university students, government and general business problems.

The class meets behind closed doors on Tuesday afternoons to hear the business and industrial executives with only one professor in attendance, Dr. Harold R. Nissley, assistant professor of business administration. On the following Thursday the class meets to discuss the talk given on the preceding Tuesday.

BLUESTOCKINGS TO HOLD IMPORTANT MEETING

Bluestockings, the women's honorary literary society, will hold a meeting on Tuesday, January 9. All members should be present at 7.30 at Southwick. This is the most important meeting of the year as the new candidates for membership will be selected at this time.

The organization finds itself facing a lengthy session since there have been a great many manuscripts submitted and an encouraging amount of interest shown in literary activity. It is probable that not more than seven women will be chosen to complete the membership.

Stokowski to Conduct Nat'l Youth Orchestra

On December 28, 1939, Governor Aiken announced that the letter which he had received from Leopold Stokowski would be given to Alan Carter, director of the Vermont Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Carter was chosen as one competent to have charge of Vermont's representation.

NYA Administrator Aubrey Williams announced that the 109 young musicians who are to make up Leopold Stokowski's all-American youth orchestra, to be organized this winter for a good-will tour of South and Central America, will be recruited through the state offices of the National Youth Administration.

The arrangement was announced following a conference between Mr. Williams and the noted orchestra conductor.

The tour is being planned with the cooperation of the Pan-American Union and Mr. Stokowski has said that a special ship may be chartered for the trip.

Preliminary auditions will be arranged by Mr. Stokowski and the NYA in six or eight central cities, if enough satisfactory applications are received. Mr. Stokowski plans to arrange transportation to New York or some other central point for those who are recommended following the regional auditions.

The fifty-one state offices of the NYA are being directed to receive and pass on preliminary applications of accomplished young musicians. Both NYA workers and non-NYA young people under twenty-five will be eligible, Mr. Williams said. Experience and some indication of high ability will be primary requirements. The tryouts will be open to all young people, irrespective of sex, color or race. Applications will be received up to February 1.

"This is a worthy and patriotic enterprise," Mr. Williams said in making the announcement. "I am hopeful that selecting these youth through our state offices all over the country will extend this wonderful opportunity equally to all of our talented young musicians and develop a musical group that will represent the very best of its kind that can be assembled."

OPPORTUNITY FOR CAREER SERVICE IN SCIENCE

Oberlin, Ohio (I. P.)—Col. Claude Birdseye, Chief, Division of Engraving and Printing of the Geological Survey, Department of Interior, of Washington, D. C., speaking at the Oberlin College Men's Career Conference recently declared that the Civil Service Commission should stress "the unusual opportunities for a career service in the various scientific agencies of the Federal Government."

He added that if the Civil Service Commission informed teachers and scientific men, "young college students, as well as college graduates interested in science, would give more consideration to announcements of civil service examinations." Doctor Birdseye advised that the Civil Service Commission should point out "the possibilities for post-graduate study both within and without the bureaus."

As far as his own branch is concerned, Colonel Birdseye said: "Do not misunderstand me, however, by thinking that there are many Federal jobs open for geologists. The Geological Survey employs about ninety geologists on a full time basis."

Drake University radio students broadcast 370 shows a year over Iowa broadcasting stations.

The ten "depression classes" of 1930-1939 at Stevens Institute of Technology are 96 percent employed.

Shell Company Founds College Pilot Fund

Establishment of a $15,000 scholarship and award fund, for which more than 9,000 student aviators in 400 American colleges will be eligible to compete, has been announced by Maj. Lester D. Gardner, executive secretary of the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences.

The fund, established by Shell Oil Company to provide the Shell Intercollegiate Aviation Scholarships for student pilots, and the Shell Aviation Awards for colleges and flight schools participating in the Civil Aeronautics Authority's civilian pilot training program, will be administered by the Institute.

Plans for administration of the fund call for the selection of the nation's three outstanding student pilots by means of an audit of their grades and by a nation-wide flight competition next June. Seven regional elimination contests are to be held after which seven winners will compete for the three scholarship awards at Washington, D. C.

The winner of the national competition will receive a scholarship of $1,000 to be used for advancement of his education along aeronautical lines. Students placing second and third will receive $750 and $500 scholarships, respectively.

Awards will be made on the basis of the student's record in the government flight and ground courses and his ability to execute specified flight maneuvers with maximum precision and safety. Stunt flying will have no place in the competition to select the winners. Provision is made for expenses of finalists and semi-finalists.

The university or college which is judged to have made the best record in training student pilots as a participant in the C. A. A. program will receive the Shell Intercollegiate Aviation Trophy. A similar award will be made to the flight school achieving the outstanding flight training record in the United States.

Scholarships and awards will be determined by a Board of Awards composed of Dr. Guy Snavely, executive director of the Association of American Colleges; Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport Association; Col. John H. Jouett, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce; Charles F. Horner, president of the National Aeronautic Association; Douglas O. Langstaff, president of the National Association of State Aviation Officials; and Major Gardner.

The Shell scholarships and awards fund will provide cash awards for the flight instructors who train the seven student pilots who qualify for the finals of the competition, and engraved wrist watches will be given to the seven student pilots. Each of forty-nine contestants who compete in the seven regional elimination contests will receive a parchment certificate.

Any student or group of students interested in the competition may obtain additional information from Carl Schofield, editor-in-chief of the Cynic, or by writing directly to the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences, 5111 RCA Building, Rockefeller Center, New York.

The Joint Conference Discusses Scholarship

Many Penalties Considered For Infractions of Rules

On Friday evening, January 5, the Joint Conference Committee held a meeting with other members of Student Union, Mortar Board, and several house presidents.

Joint Conference consists of the dean of women, assistant dean, president, chief justice and house chairman of Student Union, three faculty members, and three members representing the student body.

The duty of this committee is to meet with officers of Student Union to discuss problems which arise in regard to the women of the University. They do not adopt rules, but recommend and suggest to the members of Student Union and to house presidents.

Miss Nulty, chairman of Joint Conference called the meeting to order and presented the problems before the group.

At the beginning of the meeting Margaret Crowley '41 and Dorothy Emerson '41 made very interesting reports on a conference concerning student problems, which they attended. At this conference many questions were discussed, and a comparison of our rules with those of other colleges show that here at U. V. M., the Women's Student Union compares favorably, and that the rules are most fair, perhaps even lenient.

Cases Published by Judiciary

This year serious problems and infractions of rules have come up before the Student Union judiciary. These cases have been tried and the offenders punished. As there seems to be a disregard for Student Union the ideals for which it stands on the part of many students, those attending the meeting recommended to Student Union that the parents of the offending girl be notified if she is placed on social parole or campused.

The consensus of opinion seemed to be that by such action, the parents would have more respect for student government.

There was also a great deal of discussion concerning the scholarship, particularly of the freshmen. The idea generally agreed upon was that the campus leaders must set the example and show that high scholarship is sought after and respected. Sorority women at the meeting were all agreed that freshmen should be made to realize that a high standing is important after they have entered a sorority.

It was recommended that the house president in each dormitory act as a scholarship chairman in her house, and do all she can to improve scholarship, both by more absolute quiet during study hours, and by any positive help possible.

The members of Student Union also acted on the suggestion that some members of the Council go to visit private houses and talk over problems with the girls.

Suggestions were made to house presidents that they attempt to strengthen the house committee and give them more responsibility, for only by cooperation is Student Union able to continue successfully.

The members of the Student Union Council wish to call to the attention of all the women students a new policy which has been adopted.

In case a student appears before judiciary, the case will be published with the punishment. This is for the first offense. If the girl is placed on social parole or is campused, her parents will be notified.

In regard to a second offense, where a judiciary trial is necessary, the name of the offender as well as the case will be published.

This new policy of Student Union will become effective with the beginning of the second semester.

WOMEN PLAN WINTER ACTIVITIES IN SPORTS

Skiing, the major sport of the season, is gaining more and more enthusiasm at Vermont. Already fifty girls have signed up for the sport reports Dorothea Smith '41, who has full charge of managing the ski instruction and teams for U. V. M. girls.

W. A. A. has announced several new features this year, and here is still another one. January 11 and 30 are the dates set aside for men's and women's mixed badminton tournament. Anyone interested is requested to sign for the games in the "Y" room or get in touch with Mary Howe '40.

L. M. Prindle Edits Folio of Pictures

A set of 24 plates, containing 50 scenes from classical mythology, reproduced by offset lithography from early editions of the Metamorphoses of Ovid, has just been edited and published by Lester M. Prindle, professor of Latin in the University of Vermont.

Many of the stories illustrated are found also in such authors as Virgil, Homer, Shakespeare and Milton. Among the stories are those of Daphne, Phaëthon, Europa, Thisbe, Proserpina, and Orpheus and Eurydice. Each plate contains a short version of the story depicted.

Professor Prindle states that the set is designed for use in school and college, especially by students and teachers of Latin, English, Greek, ancient history, or classical mythology. Art teachers, he says, may also find them of service, as well as an occasional general reader who may find in them some pleasant reminders of some of the best stories he has ever read. They should prove useful, he believes, for notebooks, projects, bulletin boards and other supplementary school work. To make them widely available Professor Prindle has kept the list price as low as possible.

The prints reproduced are woodcuts, etchings on copper, or line engravings on the same metal. They range in date from 1497 to 1824. Many different artistic techniques are represented. The prints, carefully selected, were chosen for their significance and beauty and the interest of their subject matter.

Tommy Reynolds' Band Chosen

Leader of Masquerade Band

Reynolds Directs "Band of Tomorrow"

University to Celebrate Its 150th Birthday

Only a year ahead, in 1941, is the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the University of Vermont. To prepare for the sesqui-centennial celebration which the University will stage on reaching the century-and-a-half mark, a general committee has just been named, including representatives from the Board of Trustees and three men from the faculty of each of the four colleges of the University.

Dr. Carroll Warren Doten of Brandon is chairman of the trustees' committee. Also on this committee are Messrs. Roy L. Patrick, Burlington; Edwin W. Lawrence, Rutland; Thomas C. Cheney, Morrisville; and Senator Warren R. Austin, Burlington.

On the committee from the college of arts and sciences are Prof. Henry F. Perkins, head of the department of zoology and director of the Fleming Museum; Prof. Julian I. Lindsay of the English department, and Prof. Leon W. Dean of the English department and director of publicity.

From the medical faculty Doctors Lyman Allen, head of the department of surgery, Arthur B. Soule, Jr., head of the department of radiology; and Albert G. Mackay, professor of surgery, were named.

From the engineering faculty, the representatives are: James Bullard, professor of mechanics and mathematics; Edd R. McKee, professor of electrical engineering, and Howard G. Millington, professor in the mathematics department.

From the agricultural faculty are Prof. Marshall B. Cummings, head of the department of horticulture; Prof. Paul R. Miller, head of the department of agronomy, and Prof. Alida B. Fairbanks of the department of home economics.

A meeting of these committee members is to be called in the near future, at which time plans for the sesqui-centennial observance will be started and a general chairman for the whole committee will be elected.

TO SING AT CHAPEL

The program of the chapel service tomorrow will be made up of songs by Ernest Johnson, well-known negro tenor. Mr. Johnson has sung at Ira Allen Chapel in the past and students are familiar with his music.

Freshman Nominees For Class Officers

Freshman nominations for class officers have recently been made. Elections will take place in the Dean's office this Friday. Candidates for the office of president are: S. W. Putnam, IV, U. W. Otto, H. E. Thurber and R. L. Swift. Swift's name was inadvertently omitted from the list of nominees posted on the bulletin boards.

Five girls have been chosen to run in opposition for the office of vice-president: Phyllis Savage, Marjorie Close, Marjorie Abell, Joyce Benn and Gloria Farrell.

Nominees for secretary are: Patricia Page, Corinne Hollowell, June Hoffman and Morma Lang.

Men candidates for treasurer are: W. J. Benoit, J. E. Corbett, H. C. Parker, Jr., R. L. Marcalus and F. R. Swift, Jr.

Outing Club to Run Bus to Skiing Areas

Tickets entitling the holder to four trips on the Outing Club ski bus to Underhill, or Bolton, are on sale at the Book Store for two dollars.

Because the Outing Club is subsidizing the limited thirteen seats, they must be filled before the bus is run; the trips will be cancelled if the bus is not filled. Prior to the week-end when a bus is to be run, those wishing to go will sign up and will be compelled to go, furnish a substitute, or forfeit one trip on his ticket. The tickets are transferable and the owner may sell one trip on his ticket to another person. These trips will start after mid-years and will be run every week, depending on snow conditions and the number signed up.

"The Band of Tomorrow" To Play at Masquerade

Pasty Parker is Vocalist With Group Chosen for Kake Walk

The Kake Walk Directors have been successful in securing Tommy Reynolds as the orchestra for that highlight of the year, the annual Kake Walk Masquerade which will be held this year on February 23. This arrangement was made through Charles Shribman of Boston, the same agency which last year furnished Glenn Miller.

Reynolds has recently been broadcasting over a nation-wide hook-up of the Columbia Broadcasting System who stylishly billed him as "Your Band of Tomorrow." At present, because his increasing popularity has necessitated his presence at widely separated points, his band does not broadcast regularly but can be heard from time to time as Tommy frequently broadcasts while on tours.

Evidence of Tommy's popularity is seen by the fact that on Christmas Eve he played in Philadelphia at a party given by Mrs. McVickers in honor of her daughter. Mrs. McVickers is the sister of John Wanamaker, the wealthy department store magnate.

At present Reynolds is in a position similar to that in which Glenn Miller was situated last year when he was obtained to play at the Masquerade.

The band is composed of thirteen men and that popular female vocalist, Patsy Parker.

Acclaimed on all sides as the up and coming band of the year, Tommy Reynolds receives praise from the columnist, Daniel Richman, as follows:

Billed as the "Band of Tomorrow," Tommy Reynolds (State Ballroom, Boston, WABC) is a little too close to the style of a band very much of today to rate such an exalted appellation. But with Tommy playing a clarinet in the Artie Shaw vernacular and backed by a band with more than its share of the lift and drive of the Shaw crew, this may be an outfit to be reckoned with no matter what it's called. Musically proficient, this new batoneer also impressed further with a good knowledge of how to set off his band to best advantage in the showcase of a Coast-to-coast remote.

If anything Reynolds went overboard on the program caught on unusual numbers ("Love Me or Leave Me, Frankie and Johnnie"; "I'm Comin', Virginia"; "Deep Night, Cherokee" and "Copenhagen"), as against only two pops, "Begin the Beguine" (with definite Shavian overtones) and "Stairway to the Stars." For devotees of really solid swing and sweet-swing this remote presaged some very nice future things from the new Reynolds outfit.

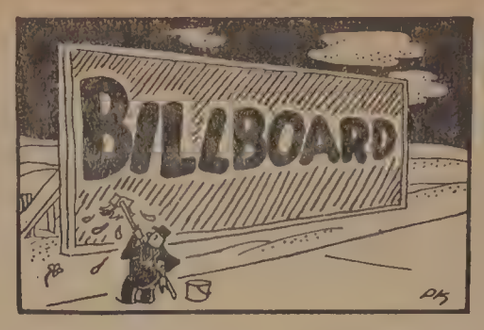
Work, Not Worry

The time of reckoning has come at last—the time which appeared so far off and yet seems to have crept up to us with amazing rapidity—the time which most students look forward to with fear and apprehension—in short, mid-years. For many it is a time which holds in store nothing but two weeks of horror. And yet it need not be so.

If one has done his daily work with at least fair regularity, he need have no fear. Exams cover only that material which has been presented by textbook and instructor throughout the semester. But yet, many regard the period as a vague, hovering monster—threatening to carry them to destruction.

This dread, this worry, this feeling of depression which grips so many students is an unnecessary thing in many cases. Too often they worry needlessly. Some sage has said, in effect, that tomorrow never comes and yesterday never goes, that today is the tomorrow we worried about yesterday, so why worry? There is much truth in this doctrine.

Not that we wish to evince approval of the philosophy which says "Never do today what can be put off until tomorrow," for one must be continually looking out for the morrow. But worrying does not help the situation; rather, it only makes matters worse. Time spent in useless worry could well be expended in genuine effort to accomplish some worthwhile end. Worrying depresses the spirit and diminishes efficiency. Let us have none of it.



What is it that you say? That this is all very well but what about those who have not done their work as faithfully as they should? Ah, now you must be referring to those who preferred to while away their study hours with other less commendable effort. First, it was that long awaited movie that they couldn't miss, next it was the Snarbus Hop which they had been waiting for, then it was this and then it was that, etc. These things are all right in their place and this writer for one would find the University a dull place without them. One must have a certain amount of relaxation and entertainment. However, it can be carried to a needless but costly extreme.

Now it cannot be denied that these people really have something to worry about. But again we say that it is not worry but good, hard work from which they will derive the most benefit. This is the time, the veritable eleventh hour, when one must really do or die. Most students realize this but to those who do not we offer these words of advice.

Shun worry if you would accomplish your utmost. And what is of equal significance—forsake the lengthy bull session, cease the petty wrangling, and get on the books! There is time for work and also for play but the next few weeks belong for the most part to the books and your notes.

But don't make the mistake of setting up an impossible study schedule. Don't think that you can bone for hours on end without some respite. You can study for just so long at one sitting and then the learning process is materially slowed by fatigue. Then you will do well to take a few minutes out to relax. Get up from your desk, stretch a few times, turn on the radio for a few minutes, do whatever you will, but get away from your books. You will be able to return to them with renewed vigor.

But don't worry; work!

There will be no organ music during exams but it will resume as usual after exams.

IMPORTANT—WOMEN STUDENTS

The physical education department has posted the list of cuts on the bulletin boards in the Y room and at Southwick. The time for make-up classes is also posted. Look and see the number of cuts you have. All cuts must be made up by January 13.

The ski patrol class will meet Tuesday, January 9, at 7.30 in the men's gym. The classes will be continued to the duration of the course, after which applicants will be eligible to receive certificates as members of the ski patrol. A reasonable number of cuts may be made up at the end of the course but the full twenty hours must be completed.

There will be a meeting of the Cynic staff in the north lounge at Southwick on Tuesday evening. The senior staff and news editors are requested to come at 7.30 and the entire staff at 8.00 o'clock.

The members of the Student Union Council wish to call to the attention of all women students a new policy which has been adopted.

In case a student appears before judiciary, the case will be published with the punishment. This is for the first offense. If the girl is placed on social parole or is campused, her parents will be notified.

In regard to a second offense, where a judiciary trial is necessary, the name of the offender as well as the case will be published.

This new policy of Student Union will become effective with the beginning of the second semester.

Due to a Bluestockings meeting, Cynic staff council and Ariel photographs, the meeting of the Scribes has been postponed until Thursday night.

The Music for Fun Group will meet at Southwick on Wednesday evening, January 10. Singing will take place from 7.30 to 8.15 and instrumental music from 8.15 to 9.00.

LAST NOTICE!

Due to the wasteful manner in which they were used, there are no more activity sheets available. Those juniors and seniors who have not handed in their activity sheet will please list their activities on a plain sheet of paper and hand into the Book Store before Saturday, January 13, or else they will not be represented in this year's Ariel. Besides activities, please give full name, home address, class, course, and fraternity, if any. Let's have some cooperation, please!

RECREATIONAL SKIING

Classes in recreational skiing will be held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, from 3.00 to 5.00 on the Centennial Field practice slopes.

This year the slopes are lighted for evening skiing, and it is possible that some classes may be held evenings.

Recreational skiing classes are for beginners, novices and intermediate skiers.

Mr. E. Steward Phillips will be the instructor and all interested should report to him on the slopes. The University pays for this instruction and there is no charge to the students.

Weather conditions permitting, the first class will be held on Monday, January 8, 1940.

New students interested will sign up in the physical education office, in the gymnasium, and women students will sign up in Miss Cummings' office at Southwick.

The doubles tournament in badminton will start immedately after mid-years. Get your partner and sign up in the Physical Education office with Mr. Gardner.

A Collegian's Broadway

By JOE WHITLEY

New York City, January.—About all there is left over from 1939 are the rumors as to the identity of the gal in the white satin evening dress, who so loved the world, that she did an unofficial Gypsie Rose Lee for the $15 customers at the Rainbow Room who were seeing the old year expire.

So very unofficial it was, that it shocked the orchestra into silence, but, so charmed was she by her own performance, that she eluded her embarrassed escort, and did a repeat performance for the kitchen staff, just to show that she was democratic.

We report with much pain that she is a former college gal who attended a very zilphy eastern school.

The Philosophers Again

At this writing, Rhoda Shafter, the New York University gal who showed up Shopenhauer, is still attending class.

You'll remember Rhoda is the nymph who shocked her philosophy class, by showing up in a bathing suit, just to prove to her professor that women are individualists and not sheep.

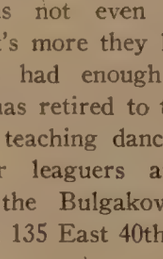
She expects, however, to be hailed up before the school fathers, and says that she will plead Platonic platitudes.

Gamma Goings On

Marjorie Conrad, former glamor gal of the University of Nebraska, and pride of the Delta Gammas, furnishes the best story of the week.

It happened in Florence, Italy, where the comely co-ed who gave up college for a stage and movie career, was scheduled to appear for an engagement with her ballet troup that was touring Europe.

There was tumult and shouting, Italian style, by the theatre manager, who was unimpressed by the fact that they had left their costumes in Rome, and Marjorie saw the Italian clink staring her in the face.



"A Gamma," she allowed "never gives up."

So with the jail yawning on one side and the theatre audience yawning on the other they gave the Italians such ballet as they had never seen before—in street clothes. Piourettes were done in oxfords, and there was not even one tomato thrown. What's more they liked it.

Majorie has had enough of Europe however, and has retired to the comparative safety of teaching dancing to Manhattan's junior leaguers and the ex-collegians at the Bulgakov Studio of Theatre Art at 135 East 40th Street.

Futures

Walter Huston will come out of the Hollywood jungle for a Broadway show which will be directed by his son John and rehearsals start Monday. The younger Huston, who wrote "Juarez," will boss his famous papa in "Passenger to Bali." Opening Tuesday will be "The Male Animal," by James Thurber and Elliott Nugent, a play with a college background. Most interesting play of the year should be Roark Bradford's "John Henry," a musical drama starring Paul Robeson which opens Wednesday. Earl Carroll, at long last, comes back with the eleventh edition of the "Vanities," which comes to the St. James Theatre on Saturday. Simone Simon and Mary Brian are due to desert "Three After Three" before it hits New York. Jackie Coogan, who may have played for your formal on his band tour, will premiere at the Biltmore with his orchestra.

Electrical Engineering Curriculum Changed

Numerous changes have been made in the electrical engineering curriculum of the University of Vermont and a number of these will be effective at the beginning of the next semester. The most important of these changes include the elimination of shop courses and the provision of additional time for steam power laboratory, direct current machines, alternating current circuits, communication and electronics courses. The changes in the curriculum have resulted in a reduction of three credits in the total credits required for graduation, and a balanced schedule of eighteen credits per semester with the exception of the sophomore year, which has nineteen per semester.

Changes have also been made in the location of equipment in the power laboratory which have resulted in additional space for the installation of other motors and generators and greater convenience in the use of the laboratory.

ENGINEERING COLLEGE RECEIVES EQUIPMENT

The department of electrical engineering of the University of Vermont has recently received a considerable amount of gift apparatus from two of the large manufacturers of electrical equipment. The gifts include a 3 Kv-a saturable reactor for the power laboratory, and an oscillator covering frequencies from 35 to 75,000 cycles per second, a capacity unbalance testing set, a crosstalk measuring set, telephone repeaters, filters, vacuum tubes and many small parts for use in the communication laboratory.

The Democrats have been invited to hold their 1940 convention in the famous football Rose Bowl stadium in California.

Frosh Oppose Undefeated V. J. C.

Tonight the frosh hoopsters will breeze into Montpelier, hopeful that they won't breeze out to encounter an unbeaten Vermont Junior College team. Having trounced St. Mike's 40-35 as well as a strong Delta Psi outfit, V. J. C. appears to have a clicking combination, and one that boasts of five former prep school captains, Bud O'Brien and Bob Stewart, forwards; Ed Prescott, center; Charlie Smith and J. Krupp, guards.

According to Coach Evans the present edition of the yearling five is definitely not the best ever turned out at Vermont. Having only one dependable point garnerer in Bob Doherty, the team cannot expect high scoring from Kaufman, the other forward or Beaulieu, center. The weakest department is that of the guards, who do almost no scoring, although are fairly competent on the defense.

The main trouble, as it appears in practice, is the failure to follow shots, short pop ups as well as those from mid-court. Also there is still too much shooting and not enough passing. What remedy needs be taken will be discovered after tonight's game.

Although Bill Beaulieu claimed a back injury yesterday, he is almost certain to start. Those subs who will travel with the quintet are: Veins, Corbett, Wansor, forwards; Grovenor, center; Krupp, Hamilton, Lankton and Bloomer, guards.

A. I. C. Defeats Sabomen In Startling Upset

Some place in Massachusetts there is a small school by the name of American International College. Now A. I. C. is not a particularly famous school and the fame it does possess is not the result of a high-geared basketball team. Nevertheless, last Friday night, amid shocked shrieks of surprise little A. I. C. reared up on its haunches and hit the mighty Catamount and when the dust of battle had cleared in the Auditorium, the scoreboard read A. I. T. 40, Vermont 35.

In no other way could Vermont have started the new year more inauspiciously. The defeat is made even more heart-rending by the fact that the Catamounts have been drilling twice daily since immediately after Christmas day while the Bay State boys had not one drill preparatory to the Vermont scrimmage. This fact, however, did not stop A. I. C. from employing a seemingly air-tight defense around the hoop forcing the Sabomen to resort to long heaves and prayer one-handed shots from close to the middle.

The summary:

A. I. C.

FOOLPROOF LOCKS NOW ON DARTMOUTH DOORS

Hanover, N. H. (I. P.)—Absent-minded students who habitually lock themselves out of their rooms will be out of luck if they live in the new dormitory which Dartmouth College will have ready for occupancy next fall. Dean Lloyd K. Neidlinger has announced that a feature of the new dormitory will be door locks which are foolproof against hockey sticks and coat hangers, implements traditionally substituted for keys by way of the letter slot.

The Dartmouth, student daily paper, came out with mock disapproval of the new locks, pointing out the danger of climbing along window ledges to get into one's room. The Dean isn't going to be deterred by that; he is more concerned about outsiders picking up student lore and making themselves at home in rooms reserved strictly for Dartmouth men.

QUOTABLE QUOTES

"The great need of this generation is for a venturesome and creative outlook on the problems of our day. The great problems of social adjustment and the challenge of scientific discovery in the social as well as the natural sciences require the same sort of daring as the pioneer exhibited. And the pioneer did not ask for security but a chance, and in that spirit he wrought his miracles of conquest." Vanderbilt University's Chancellor O. C. Carmichael believes that security should be only the by-product of a well-ordered life.

Ski Team Practices With Fine Results

The ski team is rounding out in fine shape with Captain Pete Patch and Ev Bailey in swell form. Both boys are tops in the four skiing events: cross-country, jumping, slalom, and downhill. Patch won the slalom championship at Middlebury last year. Bailey and Patch rate among the top eight skiers in the east.

On Sunday about fourteen boys went to Mt. Mansfield in order to decide the leading four or five to compete in the meet coming up on January 26 and 27 at the University of New Hampshire.

The outstanding candidates are Bailey, Patch, St. Mary, Sutton, Pache, Pauquette, Rising and Collins.

The boys practice by spending their week-ends at Mt. Mansfield. Five of the boys spent their entire Christmas vacation there.

The schedule for the coming season is the New Hampshire meet, the Vermont invitation meet at Nose Dive, possibly the Dartmouth Carnival, the I. S. U. meet at Norwich which is the outstanding meet of the year. Every college in the country that is able to send skiers to it does so.

Last year the I. S. U. meet was held at St. Marguerite, Quebec, Canada. Vermont took fifth place in this meet last year.

There is also the possibility that U. V. M. will compete in the Eastern Downhill Slalom championship.

The boys are looking forward to a successful season.

Museum Shows Antique Quilted Counterpane

"An occupational therapy undertaking in 1840" reads the label on a white quilted counterpane made in Vermont in 1839-40 and now on exhibition in the Early Vermont Room of the Fleming Museum, University of Vermont.

Occupational therapy is the giving of work of some kind to persons who need to be occupied for the betterment of their mental or emotional state, and it is an aid to mental hygiene used by modern psychologists and doctors. The words "occupational therapy" had probably not been coined a hundred years ago. But the story of the making of the counterpane shows that the principle, named or not, was in this particular case put in practice in 1840.

The counterpane was made by the wife of Cephas Kent, after the death of her two youngest children. The pattern was designed and drawn on the material by the husband, who wanted to provide his sorrowing wife with something to take her mind off her trouble. Cephas Kent was a clergyman who served various rural parishes in Vermont from 1830 to 1880. Mrs. Kent had written to her mother, following the deaths of the children, that she found it exceedingly difficult to become interested in anything. The quilting of the counterpane, which is delicate and involved, seems to have helped her over this difficult part of her life.

The counterpane and the story were given to the Museum by Dr. Grace Kent of Hathorne, Mass. Dr. Kent is the granddaughter of Cephas Kent. An article she wrote about the counterpane, reprinted from the periodical "Occupational Therapy and Rehabilitation," is exhibited with the counterpane, and tells its story.

Kent family history shows that the next baby of the family was born one month after the completion of the quilt, two others coming later. The parents were survived by four of their seven children.

The center pattern of the counterpane was copied by Cephas Kent from a design engraved on the case of his watch, a large silver one with a "hunting case." Outside this center design was an oblong and outside this a waving pattern made up of leaves, and the outer border was composed of violet leaves. Background for the counterpane was a great number of parallel lines three-eights of an inch apart, the lines of the border being perpendicular to those of the center. These lines are drawn with amazing accuracy.

All of this intricate design was brought out by hand work. Mr. Kent insisted that in making each stitch, his wife draw the needle and thread all the way through to the reverse of the quilt, then back.

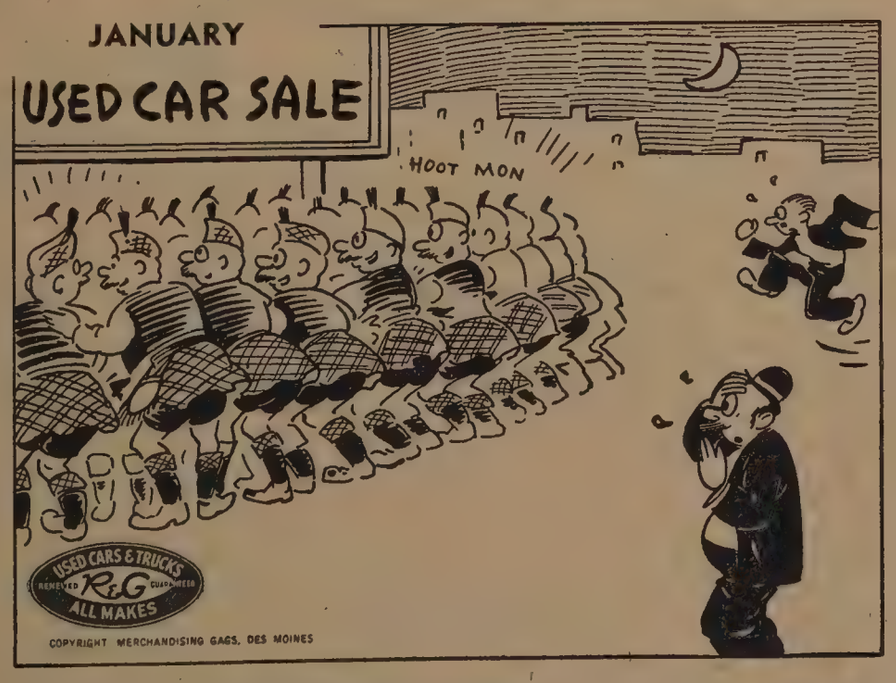
Evidently the makers of the quilt couldn't spend too great a sum on materials, for although they did not spare their time, and used new bleached muslin for the front of the quilt, the back was made of pieces of unbleached sheeting, worn and mended, pieced together. The quilt was made for service and saw considerable use in its day.

The Neutral Corner

By Bill Roeder

The Associated Press paid Vermont's five a blind compliment the other day in mentioning that Dartmouth had a "fairly successful preseason record." As far as we can see, the Green's pair of killings over the Catamounts make up the bulk of the "successful" record. Absorbing trimmings from Stanford, Rochester, and California in rapid order is hardly our idea of success. The battle for Eastern League kingpin this year, incidentally, may result in a mad scramble. Cornell, Yale, Princeton, Penn, and Columbia all appear to be on a par with Broberg and Co., the defending titleholders. Harvard looms as the weak sister, but perhaps the Cantabs are only playing 'possum. They looked improved against Army's good team Saturday.

Rank Rankings



Can y'imagine trying to rank college basketball teams? What a headache! A couple of statisticians named Dunkel and Brown prepare weekly ratings of the country's top quintets. Dunkel currently lists the ten leaders as Southern California, Stanford, Indiana, Illinois, N. Y. U., Purdue, Kentucky, Colorado, L. I. U., and Duquesne. Brown puts N. Y. U. at the head of the class, followed by Santa Clara, Northwestern, Illinois, Colorado, Southern California, Indiana, Utah, Yale, and Stanford. The gentlemen invariably run into difficulties. De Paul University of Chicago, for instance, caused both to drop a stitch over the week-end when it knocked off Purdue (No. 6 on Dunkel's sheet) and Santa Clara (No. 2 on Brown's). Dunkel entirely omits De Paul, while Brown has the troublemaker at No. 24. Brown also blushes at the mention of Duquesne, his thirty-seventh team, which nipped Colorado (No. 5) the other night.

P. S.: Neither of these Phigger Philberts thought Vermont worthy of consideration. Tsk, Tsk!

Wietz-Nick Click

Big Roy Wietz combines with Nick Nicholson, U. V. M. athlete of the past three years, to make a smooth officiating duo. They've been doing nice jobs on school games in and around Burlington. . . . Speaking of referees, did you know that Monty Chapman, who worked the A. I. C. game with Vin Heffernan, was once named to All-American court honors? Monty starred at Penn a decade ago. He now peddles insurance when he isn't whistle-tooting. He has fifty-four games on tap this winter, including a couple at Madison Square Garden. Monty also works football games. He was here for the St. Lawrence contest last fall. . . . Making the trip to Burlington in Monty's company, by the way, was a certain three-sport athlete from Glens Falls, N. Y. High, who is interested in furthering his education here next year. The boy seemed quite enthused about U. V. M. . . . We can't wait to see the battle for infield jobs when Larry Gardner calls baseball practice. Sophs like Hazen Wood, Will Conrad, Whizzer White, and Misty Rice ought to press the veterans plenty.

Interzone Basketball Tournament Scheduled

The interzone basketball tournament is again in full sway among the "femmes" students at Vermont. They aren't to be outdone by the men—even in competing for athletic honors.

Several regulations have been put forward by the sponsors in charge of this tournament. 1. A team must have at least six players in order to play the game. 2. A team will have to default if there are less than five players on the floor. 3. If a bye team wins in the second round it must default in the B tournament. If it loses in the second round it plays in the second round of B tournament. 4. If a team calls Elizabeth Gurney '41 one day in advance that they will be unable to play the team will not be defaulted and should make arrangements to play off before the next date to play.

The schedule is as follows:

In the first round: 1. Town Team No. 1 versus bye. 2. Redstone versus bye. 3. Alpha Chi versus Campus. 4. Robinson No. 1 versus Theta-Gates No. 2. 5. Town Team No. 2 versus Allen-Sanders. 6. Robinson No. 2 versus bye. 7. Slade-Pi Phi versus bye. 8. Theta-Gates No. 2 versus bye.

In the second round the winner of 1 will play 2; the winner of 3 will play 4; the winner of 5 will play 6; and the winner of 7 will play 8.

In the semi-finals the winner of 1 and 2 will play 3 and 4, and the winner of 5 and 6 will play the winner of 7 and 8. In the finals the winner of 1, 2, 3, and 4 will play the winner of 5, 6, 7 and 8.

This tournament promises to be rather exciting and some grand entertainment so let's everybody get out to play and those who don't play let's go to Southwick and watch and cheer!

FROSH NOMINEE NOTICES BEAR INADVERTENT ERROR

The name of R. L. Swift, '43, nominee for the office of president of the freshman class, was inadvertently omitted from the notices posted on the bulletin boards in college buildings. Mr. Swift was duly nominated at the recent nominating meeting of the freshman class but through some error his name was omitted from the list of nominees.

Amateur Radio Station Operated by B. P. Brown

Station WIMFL Installed In Williams Science Hall

The electrical engineering department of the University of Vermont has recently installed an amateur radio station in the communication laboratory located in the Williams Science Hall. Construction of the transmitter was started last September and it was placed in operation about November 1. The transmitter was built by Mr. Burton P. Brown, research fellow in electrical engineering, and the amateur station will be operated by Mr. Brown while he is associated with the University. Mr. Brown holds a Class A amateur license and was the owner and operator of amateur station W90DF in Denver, Colo., for six years previous to coming to the University last September.

The new station was assigned the call letters W1MFL by the Federal Communication Commission and at the present time is operating in the 20-meter amateur band on a frequenecy of 14.182 megacycles. The station is designed to operate by radio telephone at this frequency and can be operated as a radio telegraph station at a frequency of 14.366 megacycles in the same amateur band.

Equipment of Station

The speech equipment of the new station consists of the high-grade microphone and ampifiers which are used as a part of the public address equipment owned by the University. The radio frequency components and power supplies for these were assembled from parts. The radio frequency stages and main power supplies are assembled on a standard relay rack which also contains the meters required for the proper operation of the transmitter. The station operates with a nominal input of 200 watts to the final amplifier, but can be operated with more power than this. The output of the transmitter is delivered to the antenna by means of a transmission line from the communication laboratory to the antenna proper which is located between the Science Hall and the Old Mill. The antenna is a beam type with directional properties east and west.

Receiving equipment includes a special communications receiver which receives the broadcast stations as well as those operating on the short waves, and a special airport type receiver recently presented to the Electrical Engineering Department by one of the large manufacturers of communication equipment.

Heard in California

Station W1MFL has been heard in California and consistent communication has been carried on with middle western stations. Many compliments on the quality and strength of the signal radiated have been received. It is planned to use the transmitter for instructional purposes in the communication courses of the electrical engineering department and it is hoped that it may be the means of communication between the alumni and their friends on the staff of the University. The alumni who may operate, or have access to amateur radio stations, are invited to correspond with the department of electrical engineering regarding the scheduling of a time for an attempt to contact Station W1MFL, and an effort will be made to have some of their campus friends present for a visit by amateur radio. Because of the properties of the ether at the high frequency at which the station is operated, it will probably be impossible for W1MFL to be heard at a distance of less than 400 miles from Burlington.

FORMAL DANCE HELD BY LAMBDA IOTA

Lambda Iota held a formal dinner dance at the chapter house at the corner of Pearl and North Prospect Streets. J. E. White, Jr., '42, was in charge. Prof. Lyman S. Rowell and Mr. and Mrs. Perry chaperoned. A huge crystal ball reflecting multicolored lights illuminated the dance floor and the Owls and their dates danced to the Catamounts swing.

The National Student Federation will hold its 1939 congress at the University of Minnesota during the Christmas holidays.

INTRODUCING

JEAN BREHMER, '40

I found Jean Brehmer, our senior-of-the-week, at Grassmount writing a term paper for English, a task which was doubly hard because this happened to be her birthday. "I'm 21," she stated gloomily, "so they'll be soaking me for a poll tax any day now"—a cheerful thought..

Jean was recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa, National Honorary Society so there is no doubt about her scholastic achievements. Her social activities are equally noteworthy—she is a member of Delta Delta Delta, the John Dewey Club, Press Club, Dramatic Club, Le Cercle Français, Classical Club, is president of Bluestockings, has been the house-president at Grassmount for two years, and is Editor-in-Chief of Winnowings From the Mill.

As to her more personal life, the following facts were gleaned while she wrote industriously on the term paper.

Childhood—"Oh, I was a precocious brat. My mother once spanked me for sitting in the middle of the car tracks."

Likes—Italian spaghetti, classical music, almost any kind of reading, animals (especially little black cocker spaniels), swimming, all colors, scent of lilacs, "Night and Day" and "Begin the Beguine," "Life," "Reader's Digest," and "The New Yorker," dormitory life, Glenn Miller, to drum on the piano, and as her favorite fraternity—Sigma Nu.

Dislikes—Term papers, rain in January, parsnips and liver, and having her birthday so near after Christmas. "You get all sorts of combination Christmas and birthday presents."

Would like to—Spend an afternoon in the Carnegie room at the Music Building, do graduate work after next June, " . . . stay out until 12.30 tonight, but I can't." be able to sing without having her voice go out of range so that she has to stop and change octaves, which sounds a bit odd.

Jean is one person at least who made no New Year resolutions. She thinks it's silly, because they're never kept anyway, so why bother. With this philosophic observation I left her, curled cosily up in a big chair and still struggling with the term paper.

Brazilian Students To Study at Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich. (IP)—Three graduate students and young faculty members from the University of Michigan will trade places with three Brazilian colleagues in an exchange of fellowships announced by cable at the Lima, Peru, Conference last December and made public here recently by Prof. J. Raleigh Nelson, university counselor to foreign students and chairman of a committee to arrange the exchange.

Arrangements for the exchange fellowships were made through the Institute of International Education in New York on the suggestion of the Institute Brasil-Estados-Unidos, Brazilian counterpart of the Institute of International Education. Under the proposed program, the Brazilian students in Ann Arbor will be financed by the university here, while the Michigan students will do research in the South American republic on funds made available by the Brazilian government.

The three American scholars will study in Brazil for six months, starting in July. They must be engaged in research, one in Latin American history, one in sociology or anthropology, and one in education.

The Brazilian students will have their choice of the following fields of study: Engineering, library science, education, public health and sanitary engineering, nutrition, human geography and sociology and biology. They must fulfill the following qualifications:

They must be members of faculties of institutions of recognized standing, advanced students preparing for higher degrees, or men and women who have attained professional recognition in their respective fields. They must also have a sufficient command of English to be able to follow the program laid out for them

Vacation Is Over, Mid-years Are Coming, No More Fun This Year

Back they come flying from Swiss chalets in the as yet un-bomb-blemished Alps, from cruises in the south seas (where fishes swim in gay abandon, free from the worry of having to invest in fur coats), from the heights of Alaska, from the midst of the cow country—and from the black-out in London. Oh yes—and a few from home. They come crowding through the Gates of Bliss into the halls of education, with eager smiling faces. They turn once more to the long-neglected books with glee. (They do—I don't.)

In other words—oh, heck. I can't say it. Well, you know what I mean.

The discovery of the vacation—a machine that turns out pancakes by the dozen. That's even better than the doughnut machine. The doughnut machine is thoroughly unfair to budgeteers—it leaves out a whole lot in the center. Speaking of doughnuts and pancakes—I met up with an Automat for the first time, last week. That was a real adventure. Only I wish they'd do something about the milk situation there—it might greatly decrease deaths from heart failure. It works this way: you seize a glass firmly in your hand, preferably between the thumb and little finger. Then you put your nickel in the little hole they have thoughtfully provided, take hold of the handle, and, if you are courageous, turn it. (By the way, don't forget to put the glass under the spout.) Out comes a stream of milk. You have to stand in suspense, while the milk rushes up to the top of the glass, wondering if it's going to stop coming in time. And just as you've given up hope—it stops. That's where the heart failure comes in. While I was standing in line, waiting in great anguish for my turn with the horrible thing, I saw ten people keel over, one right on the tail of the other. They have very efficient stretcher service there, I might add.

Darn it—another whole long year's wait! Till Christmas again! (Naturally.) In the meanwhile, midyears are steaming around the bend, with the throttle wide open. If only someone would throw a hammer into the machinery! That would solve all our problems. But I suppose it is nice of them to give us a chance to exude our knowledge!

Courage. Courage. Anyway the optometrists will make a nice profit.

The Vermont Cynic

VOLUME 58 BURLINGTON, VERMONT, FRIDAY, JANUARY 12, 1939 NUMBER 29

Sgt. Conner Receives Highest Non-Com. Rank

Instructor at U. V. M. Since 1922

Special Order Number 1, Paragraph 11, Headquarters First Corps Area, was received recently by the military department of the University of Vermont, announcing the promotion from technical sergeant to master sergeant of Raymond T. Conner, instructor in military science and tactics at the college since 1922.

The "sarge," whose inimitable manner, slow drawl and definitely military way has made him one of the best liked members of the faculty, has long been recognized by his students as a man of superior ability. Sarge Conners in eighteen years at the University has entrenched himself and has become much of Vermont tradition.

Sergeant Conner, who resides at 18 Pearl Street, was born July 27, 1891, in Fairmont, Tenn. He enlisted in Troop E, Third Cavalry, September 28, 1908, and was discharged as a private, reenlisting in the same unit July 10, 1909, and being discharged as a sergeant.

He re-enlisted in Company M, Third Engineers, and was discharged as a private first class. Following his discharge he re-enlisted in Troop E, September 22, 1915.

Thirty-two Years in Army

On October 2, 1919, Sergeant Conner re-enlisted in the DEML as an instructor in the Third Corps School, AEF, at Chamecy, France, being discharged three years later, this time as staff sergeant. He continued to serve with this grade until October 2, 1935, when he was promoted to technical sergeant, which rank he held until recently, when he was notified of his promotion to master sergeant. This grade is the highest non-commissioned rank which can be held by any man in the Army.

"Character Excellent"

The sergeant's discharges all read "discharged, character excellent," a tribute which very few army men receive. Of his thirty-two years in the service, some eighteen have been spent at the University as an instructor in the military department. He is an excellent rifle and pistol shot, and holds a commission as a captain in the Infantry Reserve, Officers' Reserve Corps.

V. C. A. Manages Book Exchange for Students

The Vermont Christian Association has charge of the Book Exchange which was organized two years ago for the benefit of those who wish to buy or sell college texts, and it has been flourishing ever since. It is a non-profit organization, and the ten-cent fee which is paid, half by the seller, and half by the buyer, is used to cover expenses of operating the exchange. According to K. Johnson '41, there has been a greater demand for books than there has been a supply for them, and as president of V. C. A. he urges all students to cooperate in making it an increasingly successful venture. Students leave their texts at the V. C. A. office in the Old Mill and they are sold for two-thirds of the price the owner paid for it.

There is a definite advantage in having such a book agency on campus because, due to every student's constant financially deflated state, it helps to be able to cut down on book bills, and the owner of books is also protected from book sharks who take advantage of a student's impecunious position and give them but a few pieces of silver for books that are worth several dollars. Many language books are bought and sold here at the exchange, and with the cooperation of the student body it would in a short time become a financial asset to the entire student body.

Outing Club Sponsors Ski Bus to Underhill

Ski enthusiasts notice! The Outing Club is running a ski bus to Underhill each Sunday for four weeks directly after mid-years. To go on these four trips, one must purchase a ski ticket which wil be on sale at the Book Store and from council members. The tickets are two dollars to Outing Club members. If you are not a member the tickets will be three dollars. Not more than thirty tickets will be sold so those desiring one should purchase it early. The bus will run if snow conditions are good. There will be a notice to this effect on the Outing Club bulletin board on the days before the trips. The bus will leave the men's gym at nine o'clock on Sunday mornings, returning in the late afternoon.

If a student cannot go on any occasion, he may sell the ticket for that trip to someone else if he wishes. The tickets cannot be redeemed from the Outing Club. The Club is subsidizing this bus for those desiring to go skiing on weekends. Let's have a full bus on January 28 at nine o'clock! Relax after exams by skiing!

Engineering Prof to Attend Convention

Prof. E. R. McKee of the department of electrical engineering of the University of Vermont will represent the Engineering College at a meeting in Boston on January 13. Professor McKee will serve on the program committee of the New England Section of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education and will attend this meeting to help plan the program for the annual fall meeting which will be held at the University of Connecticut on October 19.

On January 21-26 Professor McKee will attend the winter convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in New York. The program of the convention includes the presentation of technical papers, inspection trips and entertainment features. Professor McKee is the faculty counselor of the Vermont Student Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and will represent the branch at a conference of the counselors to be held in connection with this convention.

AGGIE CLUB ELECTS NEW SEMESTER OFFICERS

The Aggie Club held a meeting Tuesday, January 9, at 7.30 p.m. for the purpose of electing officers for the coming semester. The following officers were chosen:

President, G. Page '40; vice-president, G. Bailey '41; secretary, J. Thomas '42; and faculty advisor, Prof. M. H. Campbell.

After the election, the new president took charge of the meeting, and the various committees reported. Refreshments were served after the meeting was adjourned.

Meeting of Entire Cynic Staff Held Tuesday

Schofield Stresses Need For Cooperation

Assembling the entire Cynic staff in the lounge of Southwick Memorial at 8.00 p.m. Wednesday night, C. S. Schofield '40, editor of the Vermont bi-weekly, at the meeting of the senior staff and of the entire staff including scrubs and reporters, stressed the necessity of complete cooperation and unanimity of effort and discussed innovations to be introduced into the Cynic columns after mid-years. Editor Schofield in his effort to better organize the various aspects of publication of the newspaper had already introduced certain features in the method of treatment of Cynic material and at the meeting of the staff the news editors and reporters availed themselves of the opportunity to express their own ideas and make suggestions of their own.

Among the projects discussed by the staff assembled was the infliction of penalties on reporters and scrubs for late stories, stories improperly handled in respect to details, and stories not handed in. The various reporters were assigned to regular beats and certain staff members were assigned to work in the Cynic office at all times. Prior to this meeting Schofield had taken one step toward greater efficiency when he assigned three news editors to each issue rather than two as had previously been the case. "Cubby holes" had also been assigned to each member of the staff to facilitate direct contact with various members.

The sports staff, too, seeing the necessity for added organization, has been notified by sports editor A. D. Wolk '41 of a meeting to be held Saturday noon.

Mexican Coins on Display at Museum

One of the first coins ever minted in either North or South America is now on display at the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont. The coin is Mexican, and was minted in Mexico City some time between 1536 and 1555 under the rule of Charles I and Johanna of Spain. Coin experts state that the coin originated before 1555 because it bears an early mint mark, discontinued by the Mexico City mint in 1555. It is a one-reale piece, worth roughly twelve and a half cents in American money.

This forerunner of modern coins is part of an exhibition of Mexican money which has just been put on display at the Fleming Museum and will be kept on view there, in the coin case in the Perkins Room. The coins are mostly from the Jackson collection, given to the museum by Dr. J. W. Jackson of Barre, and supplemented by the museum's own collection. They range in time from the sixteenth-century coin previously described to coins of the first two decades of the present century.

Eight-reale Coin Shown

Another especially interesting item is an eight-reale piece minted in Mexico City between 1555 and 1621, under the rule of Philip II or III of Spain. The edges of this coin can be seen to have been clipped, a means used in early times of stealing silver. Milled edges, now used on coins, make clipping or filing impossible without detection.

Another eight-reale piece has behind it a full history. It bears on its face the stamp marks of several Chinese shopkeepers. Mexican money, it is said, circulated to a considerable extent in China. As each shop-keeper received a piece of Mexican money, he stamped it. The coin was considered more valuable in proportion to the number of stamp marks it carried.

Frats Prepare For Kake Walk Stunts

Dr. Lahey Addresses Osler Clinical Society

Dr. Frank H. Lahey, head of the Lahey Clinic in Boston, Mass., was the first speaker of 1940 for the Osler Clinical Society of the University of Vermont College of Medicine. Doctor Lahey came to Burlington for a lecture last evening, taking for his subject "Some of the Newer Adances in Surgery of Later Years."

Four other lecturers have been secured by the officers of the Osler Society to appear during the second semester of the college year. Arthur P. Hitchens, Lieutenant Colonel in the Medical Corps, U. S. Army, and Professor of Public Health and Preventive Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in Philadelphia, will speak February 15 on "Medical Practice and the Converging Roads of Health and Welfare."

"The Chemotherapy of Disease with Special Reference to Sulfanilamide and Sulfa-pyridine" will be the subject discussed by Dr. John A. Kolmer, Professor of Medicine at Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa. Doctor Kolmer will speak March 13.

Dr. Leroy U. Gardner of the Saranac Laboratory for the Study of Tuberculosis of the Edward L. Trudeau Foundation, Saranac Lake, N. Y., will discuss the general subject of silicosis and tuberculo-silicosis.

Arrangements are going forward to include on the list of speakers Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S.J., Ph.D., Dean of the St. Louis University School of Medicine, in St. Louis, Mo.

All these lectures will be held in the auditorium of the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont, starting at 8.15 p.m. Members of the medical profession in the state are as usual invited to attend if they wish.

Pilgrim Fellowship To Meet Sunday

The Pilgrim Fellowship will not meet as a group on Sunday, January 14, but at 7.30, the time of the usual meeting, Dr. Ewart Edmund Turner, a former minister of the American Church in Berlin, will speak on "Sky Writing Over Germany." He was here last year and I am sure all those who heard him then would like to hear him again. He has been to Germany every year since he gave up the American Church in Berlin and was in Germany this past year until the declaration of war. Doctor Turner knows personally many of those men prominent in Germany at the present time.

A unique and impressive musical is planned for the first half hour of the program. The Hammond organ will not be played from the keyboard but the music which one hears will seem to come from there. A combination of recordings of famous instrumental and vocal selections will be presented. Everyone is welcome.

Bookstore News

Two new books have been entered in Book Store library. They are a biography of Thoreau by Henry Seidel Canby, and "Careers for Women" by Catherine Filene.

New books for sale are the Pocket Book Edition of classics, which are growing more and more popular.

Judges Emphasize Originality And Imagination for Stunts

With Kake Walk and exams coming closer, it's a toss-up which is being given the most thought. But for now, Kake Walk has the stage. Since the skits have to be in early this year, first thought is being given to them. So some of last year's judges were interviewed to get their opinions as to what were the most important points in connection with judging the Kake Walk skits.

Dean Simpson Stresses Originality

Miss Mary Jean Simpson, dean of women, said, "I think that originality is first in importance. Imagination and originality are the prime requisites of the Kake Walk skits." She went on to say that the quality is very important in a skit. Fast and witty dialogue make a peppy stunt. She thought that the long-winded stunts were the most boring, and that the best skits were the ones that had a brief, pertinent plot with timeliness of subject, other than the rehashed ideas of past Kake Walks. Her main criticism of last year's stunts was that some of the stunts seemed to have been thrown together rather hurriedly or rehearsed carelessly. Miss Simpson said that the costumes were the least effective part of the stunts.

One of the other judges, Professor Willis of the economics department, echoed Miss Simpson in declaring that originality is the mainstay of a stunt. He felt that costuming lent character to the skit. He felt that a few of last year's stunts did not have logical sequence of events because there was too much superfluous material that had little to do with the plot of the stunt.

Professor Willis felt that, although some of the stunts were original on the whole, they seemed to have been a repetition and combination of old ideas. One other thing stood out, in his opinion, and that was the fact that the stage presence of the actors added to or detracted greatly from the impression of the skit. He thinks that the actors should be selected for clarity of voice and for ability and ease on the "stage," since an audience responds so quickly to any self-consciousness or hesitancy on the actor's part.

Last Year's Skits Too Long

Last year's skits tended to be too complex and too lengthy. Professor Willis feels that, on the whole, simplicity should be the outstanding feature of the play, and that this applies to the set as well as to the plot.

The general consensus of opinion was that most of the stunts have suffered because the students haven't had the time to work them out and develop the stunts properly, or else that they haven't wanted to put in the time.

MUSEUM DISPLAYS PAINTINGS BY SAMPLE

Water colors and oils by Paul Sample, artist in residence at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., are on exhibition from January 5 to January 29 in the art gallery of the Fleming Museum, University of Vermont. The oils have been loaned to the Museum by Ferargil, Inc., of New York City, and the water colors are the loan of the Carpenter Galleries of Dartmouth College. The paintings are mostly concerned with scenes from American life, ranging from New England villages and farms to the western plains. The water colors are of scenes from Paris.

There will be no more dancing classes at Southwick until after mid-years.

Master Sergeant Ray T. Conner

Fitting reward comes now to Sgt. Ray T. Conner after a period of thirty-two years spent in the service of his country. Well deserved indeed is the master sergeancy awarded a few days ago to this diminutive man who has become a tradition at the University. With the usual brusque manner of the Army, Special Order No. 1, Paragraph 11, Headquarters First Corps Area, merely states that the sergeant is to be promoted to the rank of master sergeant. Just that and no more. But that is characteristic of the Army. The order gives no indication of the fine character of the man.

But if we go back in the records we get an inkling of Sergeant Conner's character for there we find that each of his many discharges bears the following notation: Character, excellent. Such a record is rare indeed in the records of the Army and the sergeant may take no little pride in the matter.

But if we were to stop at that point we would be leaving a host of things unsaid about the sergeant. Talk to any of those students at the University who have been associated with him in the past and you will see what we mean. Each and every one of them can cite not one but many instances in which the sergeant has proved a veritable godfather to them.

To the freshman who first finds himself in the presence of the sergeant, he appears to be an almost heartless individual, domineering and insolent. But you would go far in order to find a more talented person in the application of psychology. His brusque ways and caustic tongue invariably bring out the best in a man. And what is even more important, he awakens in the student a feeling of responsibility, an asset which all too few of them possess.

Other results are equally amazing. Almost without exception his charges develop initiative and are thenceforth able to attempt undertakings which they had hitherto considered impossible. The final outcome is that those students whose first reaction was one of dislike gradually find a transformation taking place. Discipline creates first respect, then admiration, and finally a genuine liking for this man who knows all too well exactly what is best for his men.

Of his efficiency, helplessness, and ready willingness to coperate we could cite innumerable instances. We could eulogize him at length without repetition but it hardly seems necessary. Who is not aware of the high esteem in which he is held by all?

We only wish here to offer our congratulations to Sergeant Conner for receiving the highest non-commissioned rank which one may hold in the Army. We praise him not alone for his own fine character but also for his ability to develop character in others.

Reading Periods

Only a week-end now stands between us and mid-year exams and as they approach we again hear raised that perennial demand by the student body: "Give us a reading period."

The matter of a reading period is a perplexing one. Such a period could be of tremendous advantage to the student body if it were not abused. All too often, however, we hear that students at institutions which follow this procedure only use the period as a vacation. Where this occurs the results, needless to say, are negative. But just what sort of a system would be advisable? We rather imagine the faculty would welcome some suggestions in the matter.

The World Front

Footlight Speculations

Broadway and the Maginot Line are miles apart. The drama seems far removed from the chaos of present-day conditions. Yet last week there closed, rather suddenly, on Broadway a play called "Kindred" by Paul Vincent Carroll, author of "Shadows and Substance" and "The White Steed." The play interests us not because of its merits or demerits as a drama but rather for its thought-provoking theme. In "Kindred" Paul Vincent Carroll argued that the artists not politicians should govern our affairs. This had led many of our leading drama critics, among them Brook Atkinson, of the New York Times, to speculation a little removed from the footlights' glare.

"Kindred" of Carroll

According to Carroll the people responsible for guiding the world's affairs have made a mess of things. He feels that the creative artistic mind, the "kindred," could do better. Looking at it ideally, this premise looks promising indeed. Who after all should be more pure in heart, in intention, than the true artist who is devoted to creating beauty in life, to holding up the highest ideals to the human race, to giving people something to uplift them in a confused world? Yet viewed in a practical light the idea loses some of its appeal and logic. To quote Brooks Atkinson, "Purity of heart is a quality of character." In other words, idealism and nobility of mind and spirit are the property of people in all walks of life. Men at the heads of our governments, men who are coping with the snarl of present-day politics may possess the quality.

Knowledge—No More?

In the second place understanding of what is right does not necessarily imply an attainment of Utopia. Far from it, any number of people know what kind of life people should be living and enjoying today. But does knowledge create the ideal state? No. If it did, Steinbeck would not be writing "Grapes of Wrath," nations would not be at war and so, and so on, ad infinitum. Even though the artist was endowed with a more acute perception and understanding than all others, we fail to see how his leadership can aid in the achievement of world order.

Achievement requires action and action in the physical sense is not the field of the true artist. The true artist can point the way, can crystallize opinion, can bring cause and effect into sharp focus, but he lacks the power or even the type of ability to put a plan into active action. Or at least, his power is no greater in this field than that of our present leaders. Also we must not forget that the artist is human and therefore liable to error much as anyone else. What the artist thinks and stands for is not always true or necessarily final.

Furthermore, the most basic fault with the proposition of. Mr. Carroll is his supposition that the artist should separate himself from life in a group apart. Life is the strength and the pillar of the artist. An artist separated from life is a groper, a person striving in the dark. The more life an artist can absorb, the greater his chance of success. In order to create, one must live.

All "Kindred"

What we are driving at is, that the artist apart from everyone cannot accomplish a thing. The solution of our problems does not rest with one class, with one clique—but with all classes. The artist is fortunate in possessing an ability beyond that of ordinary citizens but that ability does not give him the right to set himself apart from others. In this world we are all "Kindred"—kindred in the sense that we can all strive for a better world. In this world there are millions of people who believe in the right, who believe that life can be something worth living. To label one class with that power of belief, to entrust the achievement of the substance of that belief to one class is a great mistake. We don't look for a union of Carroll's "Kindred" but for a union of all "Kindred"—people in all countries, in all classes of society, in all walks of life who believe that this could be a great world if everyone got busy and did something about it.

Collegium Notes

For those who can spare the time from their studying, Collegium presents a special program this Sunday night featuring the reading of a play by several of the members. The usual hymn sing will precede the play and refreshments will be served afterwards. This hour can be a pleasant time of relaxation from the hard grind of studying, and we hope that many will be able to attend.

The Band Wagon

By Bob Johnson

Boots Over Vacation

The grand manner in which the Catamounts were received at Lake Placid Club. Especially gratifying to this corner.

The Madhatters (booked by William Morris), a four-piece combo featuring violin, accordion, bass and guitar. Joe, the leader on violin plays some delightful fiddle. The rhythm was remarkable. Phil Garr on squeeze box plays some of the most astounding stuff these ears have heard. The boys are really versatile. By the by—I always used to be allergic to accordions and violins.

Orchids

to E. Simms Campbell for his "Blues are the Negroes' Lament" in Esquire. A celebrated cartoonist, Campbell wields as mighty a pen as a brush, and in so doing, puts many a swing critic to shame. This article written with the aid of Clarence Williams (Negro publisher) sheds much light on the "Birth of the Blues." Put this on your must list—there's much in that the ordinary observer misses. There are two kinds of Negroes—good and bad—and those that are good, sing—an interesting bit of Southern philosophy.

Bumming a-Bout

Regrettable but a foregone conclusion was the folding of Broadway's "Swinging a Dream." The demanding activities of "Bottom" Armstrong, "Titan's" Sullivan and the Goodman sextet were bound to interfere in time.

Watch the rise of Johnny Guarnerius, Goodman's new pianist. Formerly with George Hall, this son of a long line of famous violin makers has been steeped in "longhair." He's a personal friend of Hal Boutilier, local tenor man.

Miller opening the Hotel Penn—other nite spots booking in names. Contrary to Life's misleading statement, Miller's men are definitely a real swing crew.

Goodman and Auld swapping thrushes—Forrest going to Benny and the delectable Kay Foster moving over to dark and handsome George.

Grab an earful and an eyeful of Carol Kay, the new oriole for the Herman Herd. Mary Ann McCall has moved over to Barnet.

Al Donahue—a really smart outfit at Meadowbrook. Kitty Lane—at last coming into her own with Crosby Dixieland.

Local Girl Singer?

On the subject—co-eds have furnished a large share of band chirpers. Isn't there a local campus lovely with the appearance, reasonable voice, and willingness to work—besides being on the hepper side?

Louis Again

Stronger than ever with the best commercial break in years with a band containing many of the men who have made swing history. Red Allen, trumpet; Sidney Catlett, drums; Al Nichols, Bingie Madison, Clark, saxes; and Luis Russell and Pops Foster on piano and bass are a few of the names.

"Trumpet players are many,
But there's not a man
Who can blow a horn
The way Louis can."

—Philbert.

All Star Bands?

How long has Pastor been better than Berry? Elman better than Eldridge? Zurke better than Wilson?

True, last year's record of the "Blues" and "Blue Lou" were splendid, but the right performers aren't getting to the public. Notice Metronome's poll—one negro performer—Ella. Are the musicians voting or high school jitterbugs? Down Beat finds four to get a little better average. All of this is purely a personal matter, but would Eddie Miller rate a tenor berth for two years if the discerning public was exposed to Chu Berry, Cole Hawkins and loads of others?

There will be no organ music during exams but it will resume as usual after exams.

IMPORTANT—WOMEN STUDENTS

The physical education department has posted the list of cuts on the bulletin boards in the Y room and at Southwick. The time for make-up classes is also posted. Look and see the number of cuts you have. All cuts must be made up by January 13.

The members of the Student Union Council wish to call to the attention of all women students a new policy which has been adopted.

In case a student appears before judiciary, the case will be published with the punishment. This is for the first offense. If the girl is placed on social parole or is campused, her parents will be notified.

In regard to a second offense, where a judiciary trial is necessary, the name of the offender as well as the case will be published.

This new policy of Student Union will become effective with the beginning of the second semester.

The doubles tournament in badminton will start immedately after mid-years. Get your partner and sign up in the Physical Education office with Mr. Gardner.

Archie T. Post,
Director of Intramural Sports.

LOST. Kappa Alpha Theta pin. Jeweled and without guard. In vicinity of Auditorium and South Union Street. If found notify Carol Bell or Kappa Alpha Theta house, phone 3080.

Senator Robert A. Taft has been acclaimed as Yale University's man-of-the year by an alumni organization.

There are more than 26,000 plants in the Clark University herbarium.

Disc-ussions

"More Than You Know," a plaintive Maxinish vocal on the Erskine Hawkins disc.

Barnet's great soulful but simple tenor on "Night Glow."

Bob Chester's "Aunt Hagar's Blues"—an attempt to emulate Teagarden for a change as opposed to their usual Miller aping.

Again—Cole Hawkins—"Body and Soul."

Roy Eldridge shifting from Park Ave. to Lenox Ave. on two sides—"High Society" and "Muskat Rabble." A sale of wax would greatly aid this trumpet ace. Last year I believe only two sides were waxed under his name, although he was in on several jam masters.

Seeing you after mid-years—or are we?

Un-Delectable Delirium ! ! !

A few nights ago a band of hardy Vermonters hopped into their dog team sleds and tumbled over to Northfield and in the early part of the evening witnessed an excellent exhibition—of wrestling. The highlight of the evening occurred when five Norwich hehemoths clad only in tights and blindfolds engaged in a rough and tumble encounter —all in one ring. The second most interesting event of the evening occurred when two cadet gladiators held a short wrestling bout. After the wrestling match there was a basketball game. Somebody called it that. Norwich won 46-41. The University of Vermont was entered in the basketball game, at least the name was on the scoreboard. We weren't there so we aren't sure whether or not Vermont really did participate. However, the names in the Vermont lineup do seem familiar. And the Vermont team was out-of-town that night. So it must have really been Vermont. That's astounding! Norwich defeating Vermont 46-41. Never thought that would happen. In football perhaps, but basketball—never.

Vermont is going to play Fordham next year in Madison Square Garden. It's been suggested that if the present trend continues the school will maintain prestige and financial standing by merely shipping uniforms to New York City next winter.

We hate being trite and redundant and repetitious of the talk that is brewing among the coffee corner coaches (those who still remember that Vermont has a basketball team) but quote something is radically wrong unquote.

But there everything stops. You probably do not know what is wrong. We definitely do not know what is wrong. But something is wrong. Everyone is agreed on that point. Hope Johnny Sabo knows what to do about it. At first we thought that perhaps the Cats were only in somewhat of a slump, but this losing streak is acquiring the dimensions of a downfall. We doubt if the reason can be attributed to the relative merits of the individual players for our quintet is composed of some fine basketball players. At least they were last year. And the only big difference between this year and last is the absence of Hank Beauchemin and we doubt (perhaps foolishly) that one man is so all-important. It obviously isn't the coaching for the same coaching produced a good team last year with the same material. We doubt if it's the difference between zone and man-to-man defense for Vermont invariably shifts to the latter defense late in the fourth quarter and we're inclined to think that if such action would have been beneficial earlier in the game Sabo would have ordered it as we're willing to grant the fact that he knows somewhat more basketball than we do—or you probably.

So where are we? No place. Exactly where we started. And we still do not know wherein lies the trouble. Maybe it's a jinx. Wrong breakfast cereal. Too much studying. Too near mid-years. Wrong numbers on jerseys. Cold weather. Organic chemistry. Tight basketball shoes. Ann Sheridan.

INTERFRATERNITY HOOP COMPETITION STARTS

The interfraternity hoop competition gets under way the latter part of this week with several battles carded for Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The league is again under the capable direction of Archie T. Post. The boys have been practicing during the last few weeks and it looks as if there will be a hectic battle for honors this year.

A defeated team still has a chance for the championship, since it requires two setbacks to be put out of competition. Following Saturday's games there will be a two-week respite so that there will be no conflict with mid-years.

Coach Post is looking forward to a successful season.

Cagey Cadets Claw Cats

Midd Here Tomorrow

Catamounts Hope to End Losing Streak

Tomorrow night at the Memorial Auditorium the Cat hoopsters meet the Middlebury cage men. The Sabomen will try to kill two birds with one stone—beat Middlebury and end a five-game losing streak. Vermont has not hit the win column since the St. Michael's game played early last month. Since then they have lost successive games to Fordham, Tufts, Dartmouth, American International College and finally to Norwich.

Middlebury Jinx

Middlebury seems to have had the Indian sign in preceding games. Two years ago the Panthers eked out a victory over a much superior Vermont team that later in the same season went on to decisively avenge the defeat with an approximate fifteen-basket surplus. Last year again Middlebury won over a highly touted Cat five. Vermont won the second game of this series by one point. Now, however, the situation is altered. There is only one game scheduled between these two teams; hence Vermont won't have a chance to avenge a defeat. Also the Vermont club this year, considering its season's record to date, will in all probability not be favored. Perhaps the results will also be altered.

Cat Line-up Same

The Vermont line-up will probably find the same five men who have been starting all year in the starting posts. Possibly Ace Healy might break in at a forward spot. Otherwise no changes figure. Anse Belardinelli will be at the pivot position, flanked by Pye and Corley at the forward spots. Pop Maley and Frankie Taylor will guard the back court.

Mexican Coins on Display at Museum

In connection with the circulation of Mexican money in China, the story of the United States trade dollar is of interest. The museum owns examples of the trade dollar. These specially minted dollars were made for the stimulation of foreign trade with the United States in competition with Mexico. Many of them went to China.

Mexican History Outlined

An outline history of Mexican coinage is given with the coin exhibition. The visitor learns that until 1810 Mexico City had the only mint operated in Mexico. From 1810 until 1822 the Mexican Revolution against the rule of Spain took place, and during the revolution the Spanish government established mints in Zacatecas, 1810; Durango, 1811; Chihuahua, 1812; Guadalajara, 1812; and Guanajuato, 1821. In 1822, with Spanish rule finally abolished, all these mints continued to strike coins for the Mexican Republic. Now the only mint operating seems to be the one at Mexico City. Occasionally individual states have minted their own money, and some examples of this money are included in the exhibition.

About 1865 the Mexicans changed coin denominations, adopting the names and measures they use today. The eight-reale pieces, more familiarly known to novel readers as "pieces of eight," were replaced by the peso, which is approximately equal to the United States dollar; four-reale coins were supplanted by 50-centavo coins, roughly equivalent to our fifty-cent pieces; and two-reale pieces were replaced by 25-centavo coins. Twenty centavos, 10 centavos, 5 centavos and 1 centavo pieces were instituted.

A long and stormy history may be partly seen in the coins of Mexico. The Spanish rulers left their influence in many of the coins; after they were overthrown, it is said, the native Mexicans produced cruder coins for a time than they had under the hands of their Spanish masters. Two coins minted during the reign of Maximilian, the emperor sent to Mexico from Germany, are to be seen in the display.

State Coins in Collection

Some coins from those minted by individual states are in the collection.

Reigns of different sovereigns can be seen in the changes of design of the coins, one ruler setting up his own design for coinage, only to have it supplanted by a new one with the advent of a new king. Early coins of South and Central America, the experts say, show the same designs, a trait which is probably due to the employing of the same designer by the several Spanish colonies to create designs for their coinage.

A few copper coins are included, but the majority are silver, and the sizes range from the tiny one-quarter-reale piece in silver, which is about half the size of a dime, to the ponderous eight-reale and peso pieces, containing approximately the same quantity of silver as our silver dollar.

24 Points Against Norwich

G. M. J. C. Opposes Frosh in Prelim Clash

The freshman quintet which has been anything but successful thus far this season in respect to victories and defeats will be seeking their second win Saturday at Memorial Auditorium against Green Mountain Junior College. The Greenies, who always floor a powerful team, will be here in full strength again this year. They always stand as a strong barrier in the freshman schedule.

The yearlings were extremely weak at the foul line against V. J. C., sinking three out of fourteen. They were weak offensively and defensively also for they lost the game by fifteen points.

The Kittens have a fair forward line with Bob Doherty a standout at left forward. Bill Beaulieu, who was transferred from his former guard position, plays well defensively and is a good ball handler, but lacks accuracy when it comes to firing at the hoop. Kaufman, the other forward, is a good marksman but a poor ball handler. Grovenor, substitute center, who showed well in the V. J. C. tilt, may see action against the Greenies as a starter.

The freshmen are victory starved and very hungry. They will be fighting hard, for a win over the Green ones at this time will give them a new lease on life. Had they been stronger at the foul line Tuesday they may have beaten V. J. C. If they can clear the mist from their shooting eyes they may whip G. M. J. C.

Sig Phis and Phi Sigs Top Bowling League

The final bowling competition before mid-year exams takes place Friday, January 12. The schedule for that day includes four double matches. The Delta Psi's roll against the Sigma Phi's and Phi Sigma Delta. Kappa Sigma faces Sigma Nu and the Faculty. The Faculty opposes S A E and Kappa Sigma. The Phi Sigma Delta team bowls Phi Delta Theta and Delta Psi.

The league standings up to and including January 5 is as follows:

Team	Pts.	Games bowled
Sigma Phi	24	5
Phi Sigma Delta	18	4
Delta Psi	14	4
A T O	14	4
T E P	13	4
S A E	13	4
Sigma Nu	12	4
Kappa Sigma	8	4
Faculty	7	2
Phi Delta Theta	4	5
Lambda Iota	3	5
Independents	0	3

Score Surprising Upset Over Sabomen 46-41

Belardinelli Fed by Healy Takes High Scoring Honors

Failing to hold their 26-23 lead established in the easy-going first half, the Catamounts were pushed to the rail and passed by the Norwich horsemen in a second period flurry. The game, staged at the Norwich University gymn, in conjunction with a dance, as an infantile paralysis benefit and played before a record crowd, terminated with the Vermonters trailing by five small but potent points (V 41, N 46).

The Horsemen Charge

The charge of the cavalrymen started suddenly in the latter part of the second half. Jack Hughes, snatching a rebound from the backboard after Frank Taylor had attempted a basket, raced the length of the floor, before the awkward zone defense could assemble, and swished the net putting Norwich ahead 43-41. At this point, with but two minutes to go, the zone defense which had already been broken, crumpled and pulverized was abandoned too late for a man-to-man defense. The Norwich lads were hot. Shaking off a desperate Catamount rejuvination, the Norwich team widened their sudden lead when Hale Mason made good a foul shot. Following a rapid-fire volley of shots by the Cats, Foster Gebbie, substituting for big Joe McClosky, who was banged on the head in the mad scramble, snatched the ball and sank a long one just before the gun went off.

14 Fouls in First Half

The Norwich spurt caught the Catamounts flatfooted, following a comparatively slow-moving first half when the Vermonters easily led a seemingly inferior Maroon troop. The first half showed no exceptional action except a 13-point tally by Anse Belardinelli and a period of close play in which 14 fouls were committed—five by Norwich, 9 by Vermont. A dispute by the Vermonters over a few of these fouls resulted in a technical foul being charged to Belardinelli. The other technical foul of the game was charged to Norwich who already having five time-outs was forced to call another, following the cranium crash of McClosky in a lively rebound melee.

Rebounds

Ace Healey snapped some beautiful passes to basket-bound Belardinelli. Anse tallied 24 points in all.

The Norwich floor being even larger than the auditorium floor, made the zone defense impotent and awkward.

Picture 6 ft. 4 in. giant Joe McClosky who almost had to stoop to sink one. What a man!

Three fouls picked up by both Corley and Pye early in the game forced the boys to play conservatively for the rest of the game.

On the other side of a curtain partition at the end of the basketball court was the remainder of the gym floor equal in space to the court—used for a dance floor at the post-game benefit dance.

The sportsmanship of the Norwich student body, which periodically voiced Vermont cheers, was quite commendable.

Overheard between the halves during the wrestling match—"Don't let him get you down." Tch! Tch!

Officials: Heffernan and Dressel.

INTRODUCING
PRINCE PRATT

You've seen him around campus—his Key and Serpent cap tips at a rakish angle and he flashes that friendly smile and you know that he his Bill Pratt, junior, a pre-med, hoping to get into medical college this year. A scion of Rutland, Bill came to U. V. M., carrying on family tradition—1938 saw Bill on dean's list, in the glee club, active in basketball, tennis and track teams, subsequently receiving varsity letters in tennis and track—elected president of the junior class, member of the men's junior honor society, kake-walked with Bill Griffin and received honorable mention—shaking his head at the recollection, he said, "It was the most strenuous thing I ever did."

Likes small towns as they're more friendly than large cities, makes friends easily, likes people, tennis, dancing, Irish terriers—enjoys warm weather, Math I, prolonged 40 winks overtime in sleep mornings. His hobby is reading dime novels, especially westerns where two Indians bite the dust on every page. Pet peeve is destructive criticism. "Sweet swing's the thing," to quote his emphatic comment. "Jazz's out." Glenn Miller is tops and ditto for "Moonlight Serenade." Casper Milquetoast is the best part of the Sunday "funnies." He's a Phi Delta Theta—and it's his favorite frat. Asked to describe the ideal girl, he referred the interviewer to Petty, and hoped it—the answer—wouldn't get him into trouble.

This Pratt man—a leader in athletic and other extra-curricula activities on campus, up at the top scholastically, has personality plus, more fine qualities than there's room to even mention, a beautiful sense of humor—adds up to one of Vermont's outstanding men.

The Saturday night that terminates 1940's mid-years will be celebrated by the entire student body in some way or another without a doubt, and the V. C. A. has planned a gala evening for all. All the facilities of Southwick will be available that evening, when the entertainment committee has planned a fun nite and dance all-in-one, all for a thin dime. "Come stag, or come drag" is the advice to all from chairman of the evening, K. Hoffman '40. "There wil be exhibition dancing, checker games in one room, badminton in the gym, and the latest songs to dance to in the dimly lighted ballroom. Chaperones will be Prof. and Mrs. Holden Bickford and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin. See the Free Press for special announcements of this during the period of mid-years.

Harvard and Vermont To Join in Concert

Fifty-five of Harvard's Best Coming to Vermont Feb. 9

The Harvard Glee Club, recognized as one of the ablest choral organizations of the United States, if not of the world, will come to Burlington for a concert with the University of Vermont choir and glee clubs February 9. The concert is to be given in the Memorial Auditorium, and on the program will be numbers by the Harvard Glee Club, the choir and Men's and Women's Glee Clubs of the University of Vermont, and by the combined organizations.

The Harvard Glee Club has sung with the Boston, Philadelphia, and Cleveland Symphony Orchestras at their regular concerts and on special occasions. Within the last ten years such artists as Mary Garden, Nikolai Orloff, Pable Casals, Frieda Hempel, Fritz Kreisler, and Harold Bauer have appeared with the glee club. In addition to an annual tour including the larger musical centers of the East and Middle West, the Glee Club gives each year a joint concert with the Radcliffe Choral Society in Sanders Theater, Cambridge, as well as performances in nearby cities, schools, and colleges. The club's Vermont trip to sing with the University of Vermont, however is an unusual item on its schedule, and this is the first time the organization has been heard here.

Tours in Europe

During one summer vacation, the Harvard Glee Club, at the invitation of the French and Italian governments, made an extended tour of Europe, giving concerts in Paris, Dijon, Nancy, Verdun, Strasbourg, Coblenz, Venice, Ravenna, Milan, and Geneva. The trip was notable not only because of the honor involved in the invitation but also because the club was received everywhere by official personages and eminent musicians. In Paris three concerts were given under the patronage of a committee which included some of the foremost persons in France, such as

Reverend J. Gilkey Vespers Speaker

A vesper service was held Sunday afternoon, January 28, in the Ira Allen Chapel. The speaker was the Rev. J. Gordon Gilkey, teacher, preacher, author and pastor of the South Congregational Church in Springfield, Mass.

Using for his title, "The United States and Europe—Four Significant Contrasts," Mr. Gilkey preached a patriotic sermon. After his experience abroad and in Mexico, he came to four conclusions regarding the contrast between Europe and the United States. First, that ours is a young country, while the dignities and distinctions of age belong to Europe; secondly, that ours is a vast and undivided country with the resources of an entire continent at our disposal; thirdly, that our population is made up of a complex variety of different racial and cultural types; and fourthly, that the United States has escaped the curse of deep-seated hatreds which are so prevalent in European countries.

Being thankful for the privilege of having been American born, Mr. Gilkey expressed a new faith for the future of America. The United States has its youth with time and opportunity to fulfill its objective of establishing its democratic ideal of effective government.

In closing, Mr. Gilkey dealt with the problem of what attitude America should take toward the European conflict. He felt that our purpose should be to build a government as an example for European dictatorships.

Writers' League to Hold Open Literary Meeting

A literary clinic, where beginning authors of Vermont may bring their manuscripts for diagnosis and assistance, is to be conducted under joint auspices of the University of Vermont and the League of Vermont Writers in Burlington, Saturday, February 17. President of the League Walter J. Coates of North Montpelier has announced the winter meeting of the organization, which is being planned by Prof. Leon W. Dean of the English department of the University of Vermont.

Sessions are to convene at the University's Southwick Memorial at 10.00 a.m., February 17, and will continue through the afternoon. Classes or "clinics" will be held in book reviewing, the novel, poetry, newspaper writing and editing, the essay, article writing and contests. Experienced authors and teachers have been secured for these clinics, and will be announced in the near future.

Rowland T. Robinson, son of the famous Vermont author and artist of Ferrisburg, will speak at an evening meeting, telling of his father's life and works, among which were books embodying much of New England life and atmosphere in a style distinctly that of Vermont.

Once before, several years ago, the League held a winter meeting, in addition to the summer gatherings held annually. It is hoped that the coming winter session will likewise become a yearly affair.

Anyone, whether a member of the League or not, may attend the meetings at the University of Vermont February 17.

Sophomore Hop To Be February 2

Promising that the Sophomore Hop will never again be known as the "Sophomore Flop," the directors of this annual event have pledged themselves to make this date the biggest and most important social event on the campus before Kake Walk. The class of '42 hop will be held this Friday evening, February 2, and couples will swing and sway at $1.10 per. Those sentimental gentlemen of swing, the New Vermonters, will "give" from the bandstand.

The affair will be strictly semi-formal, and the committee in charge has announced that the exciting decorations will be new, novel and really something to see. The location, as yet, has not been definitely decided upon, but it will either be the gym or the Hotel Vermont.

PUTNAM IS PRESIDENT OF FRESHMAN CLASS

Results of the elections of freshman class officers, last Friday afternoon, are as follows: S. W. Putnam, IV, tipped the scales above the other presidential nominees, Phyllis Savage won through as vice-president, June W. Hoffman received the secretary's quill, and W. J. Benoit has charge of the money bags.

Interne Appointments Received by Seniors

Students Receive Appointments in New England, New York

Interneship appointments for thirty-six seniors in the College of Medicine at the University of Vermont, who will graduate next June, were announced recently by the office of Dean H. A. Kemp. It is stated that the selection of these men by leading hospitals in New England speaks well for the high regard in which the Medical College is held by professional groups throughout the region. Vermont graduates, say administrative officials, are much sought after by hospitals requiring internes, and the record Vermont graduates make for themselves in these hospitals is a most enviable one. Most of the interneships start July 1, 1940, but a few start later.

Beside New England hospitals, appointments to institutions in New York and New Jersey have been made for several seniors. Most distant posts will be one in Philadelphia, Pa., for Lois M. Hammond of Burlington, one of two women in the graduating class, and one in Washington, D. C., for F. W. Timmerman of Morrisville.

Many Hospitals Represented

These students have received interneship appointments:

H. H. Allen, Greensboro, goes to Bridgeport Hospital, Bridgeport, Conn.; Sidney Alpert, Lakewood, N. J., to Atlantic City Hospital, New Jersey; H. J. Antoniewicz, Springfield, St. Francis Hospital, Hartford, Conn.; J. M. Baker, Brattleboro, Mercy Hospital, Springfield, Mass.; L. W. Professor Fulton to Lecture at Museum

Prof. A. R. Gifford, chairman of the Committee on University Lectures at the University of Vermont, announces that in cooperation with the National Society of the Sigma Xi, he has been able to secure Prof. John Farquhar Fulton, M.D., Ph.D., of the Yale School of Medicine, for a university lecture the evening of Thursday, February 1. This will be the annual Sigma Xi lecture sponsored by the local Sigma Xi Club. This society, organized on a national scale for the promotion of research in science, has a local representation of some thirty-five members.

The lecture will deal with recent experimental studies of the relations of the frontal lobes of the brain to intelligence and learning, emotional life, and motor functions of conduct or behavior. It will be based upon work with monkeys, chimpanzees and man, showing the effects of stimulation and also of the removal of the lobes partially or wholly. The lecture will be illustrated with still and motion pictures.

Doctor Fulton has had a notable career in the field of medicine and physiology. Graduating at Harvard in 1921 he received a Rhodes scholarship at Oxford. Later he was appointed demonstrator in physiology at Oxford and became a Fellow of Magdalen College. Taking his Ph.D. in 1925, and his M.D. in 1927 (at Harvard) he was associated for a short term with Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston. Since 1930 he has been Sterling professor of physiology at Yale.

Author of many scientific works, his "Psychology of the Nervous System," published in 1938, has attracted wide attention and also aroused considerable controversy over disputed points.

This Sigma Xi lecture will be given at the Fleming Museum of the University of Vermont at 8.00 p.m. Thursday, February 1. It will be open to the public and all interested are cordially invited.

Tommy Reynolds' Career Began at Age of Eight

Organized First Band In City of Detroit

One of the youngest of the 1940 crop of "name" orchestra leaders, Tommy Reynolds, who is bringing "Your Band of Tomorrow" here to the University for Kake Walk on February 23, has won recognition of his talent in three widely varied sections of the country. Starting in Detroit, he continued his progress in the Carolinas, and put the finishing touches to his career in New England in the Roseland ballroom in Boston, the very spot where Artie Shaw and Glenn Miller sprang to fame.

Young Reynolds was born on January 17, 1915, in Akron, Ohio. His father, Samuel Rinaldo, was a rubber factory employee, and there were nine children in the family, Tommy being the eldest. Two of his brothers are musicians, Frankie, also a band leader, and Leon, who plays the trumpet.

Began Career Early

Tommy began the study of the violin when he was only eight years old, but quit at the end of three years. In South High School, Akron, he took up the clarinet at thirteen, and the saxophone a year later. He was playing with small bands as a professional even before his graduation from high school, and organized his first band in Detroit when he was only nineteen. He had his professional name of Reynolds legalized by the courts. Moving to Charlotte, S. C., he established residence there and played at all of the major beaches in the South. Work finally grew slack, so he broke up his orchestra, returned to Akron, and organized a more commercial band in Cleveland. Another leader took over this band in New England as a unit, so Tommy built up a third group which he believes is the best he has had. He calls it "Your Band of Tomorrow," and U. V. M. is going to have an opportunity to hear what it can do. Tommy has signed a year's contract with Columbia and has already made fine recordings. His pretty vocalist, Patsy Parker, has been featured with such outstanding bands as Ted Weems, Ted Lewis and George Olsen.

Wife His Business Associate

When Tommy and his outfit were brought from the Casa Madrid in Louisville to the Roseland ballroom in Boston, he met Alberta Roberts, daughter of the mayor of Braintree, Mass. She was the assistant to Si Shribman, Reynolds' manager, and met Tommy at the social functions—private parties, and fraternity and sorority dances—for which she helped supply the music. They were married on June 22, 1939, in Braintree, and Mrs. Reynolds continues to look after her husband's booking and publicity.

Tommy follows the same formula of music which developed the sensational dance bands of Artie Shaw and Glenn Miller, which is expected to place "Your Band of Tomorrow" among the top-ranking bands of 1940.

D. B. DYER GUEST SPEAKER AT ALPHA ZETA MEETING

Returning to his Alma Mater recently, Principal Daniel B. Dyer '24 of Essex Junction High School spoke to the Green Mountain Chapter of Alpha Zeta. Himself a member of this honorary agricultural society, Mr. Dyer commended its work and gave it further encouragement, as well as telling of many interesting experiences which he has encountered during his teaching work.

The chancellor, Lucien Paquette, presided at this meeting. A fine representation of faculty members present included Dr. H. B. Ellenberger, Dr. E. O. Herried, Dr. M. H. Campbell and Mr. Martin. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

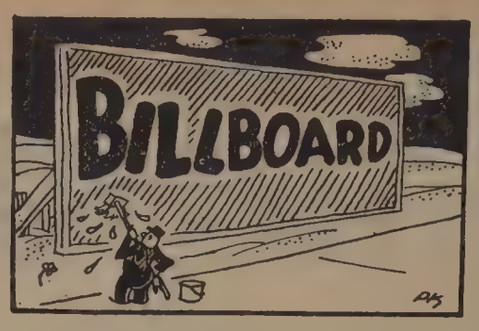
A Problem for Consideration

As the first semester of the college year comes to a close, perhaps it is a good time for us all to stop and think things over. For some, mid-years are nothing to have worried about, but for others they are perhaps a cause for deep regret and a sense of failure.

There are many reasons for this, of course, and academic failure is a cause of worry on the part of both the faculty and the students. Some of this is bound to happen, we admit, but we also are convinced that much of the worry in the dean's office, and heart-break on the part of the students could be avoided. Why are students who have shown extremely poor ability as evidenced on their application blanks admitted to the University?

We admit that a state university must be democratic in its policy, and that no system of admittance could be perfect. However, it seems that the most flagrant cases could be eliminated at the start. Such students show that they are not primarily interested in scholarship. It seems that by refusing the application of such students, the worry and trouble with which the deans and the professors have to contend could in some degree be lessened.

There is another side to the question also. Students not at all interested in study are often the cause of a lot of unnecessary trouble on the part of the students who are really serious about their college work. Sometimes freshmen get an entirely wrong attitude from such students, and naturally get the idea that nobody studies.



These students are often ones who, by an attitude of irresponsibility and lack of consideration for the ideals at the University of Vermont, and, in the case of women, by a disregard for the rules of Women's Student Union, lower its standards.

When a rather large number of these students appear on campus, the problem is a difficult one. Too many cannot be dismissed at the end of the first semester, because the excellence of an institution of learning is not measured by the number that flunk out. If too many are kept, it necessarily lowers the standards of the other students, and makes the work more difficult for the professor. In this manner, it seems likely that the high standards of a college may be seriously lowered.

Students who really show a desire to learn in college, and many professors are seriously worried about this problem. Of course, the facts described here are only parts of a very complex problem, a problem which extends down to our system of college preparation.

Something should be able to be done about this question which seems to be one of the most serious on our campus. Would not our institution remain just as democratic if the more flagrant cases of inadaptability to college life and work were eliminated at the start? This is the only way to limit some of the heart-breaks at mid-years, the troubles of the faculty, and the expenses of a semester's tuition wasted.

M. C. N. '40.

PROFESSORS MAKE RULE TO PROTECT TROUSERS

Atlanta, Ga. (ACP)—Professors don't mind losing their pants (and their dignity) now and then, but they do object to their clothes being ruined.

At least that seems to be the interpretation of a recent Emory University ruling which prohibits students de-trousering their faculty superiors during the annual freshman-sophomore pushball game—a stunt which has been a popular feature of past contests.

The professors even maintained that they could maintain "a semblance of dignity of a barelegged sort" when they were the victims of the lower-class pranksters—but they added that usually their pants were torn in the process, and that's what they objected to.

Enterprise

On the campus of M. I. T. he's a mathematical genius. Come June and he'll get Phi Beta Kappa.

In New York to see his true love and he was stymied. Where in heaven do you go if you want to romance your girl? She lived in a furnished room—no male friends allowed. Hotels are wicked, even for with-malice-toward-none sparking. Central Park is colder than John Lewis' regard for William Green.

Finally the lady figured it out. Simple as pie, too.

What they did was to repair to Grand Central Station. There, in full view of the passing hordes, they embraced each other at the entrance to the train ramp.

For hours, that is, every time a train pulled out, as a matter of fact.

Credits

Jean Hersholt of the film Babylon is swooning with gratitude toward the Quins. They made him a mil-yun-are. Like this:

They appeared with him in "The Country Doctor." The picture grossed a fortune. An advertising company dreamed up a radio program based on the same sort of rôle that Hersholt played and called the show "Doctor Christian." The ether addicts swamped the network with fan mail. Mr. Hersholt then put his head together with some tycoons. Upshot was the formation of a film company rigged up to produce three Doctor Christian films a year.

The first one lured fancy money into the cashiers' cages. You can see the second one at the neighborhood cinema Taj Mahal, if you care to.

Great oaks, it seems, really do grow from little acorns. Especially French ones.

Boola Brenda

Consider the case of the two lonely Yales who found themselves at sixes and sevens a couple of days after the Yule season and had a night to kill before repairing to New Haven and the spires of Eli.

They decided to crash a snifty party, knee deep in debutantes, a brand of fauna the two Yales (Denver, Colo., both of them) had never set eyes on.

Top-hatted and white-tied, they traipsed over to the hotel sheltering the affair and proceeded with their little plan. Carefully they negotiated the fire escape, slipped quietly into the marble halls via a window.

You could have swatted them down with a croquet mallet when they looked up to discover the incomparable one, herself, training her Olympian gaze on them. You guessed it—Brenda, the magnificent. Our stout Colorado lads started to beat it.

"Oh," chirped Miss Frazier, "don't go yet. Why you've practically just arrived." And turning on the B. F. smile (186,000 volts)) she piloted them, arm in arm, to the dance floor.

The interlopers had them a gay time, wolfing caviar, washing it down with torrents of champagne and then working off their excess calories by pushing around dowagers.

State of the Theatre

Paul Robeson came to town after a lapse of seven years last week and tried desperately to balance on his head a rambling, undramatic something based on the legendary epic negro, John Henry.

The Band Wagon

By BOB JOHNSON

Destiny?

In front of me on the left side of my desk is a picture of a girl; but this is no sonnet "inspired by dimpled cheeks and silken tresses." On the right is an ash tray containing a freshly lighted cigarette. The ash tray, deep blue in color, rests upon several sheets of manuscript paper with sketches of bars of music and themes for a future arrangement.

Directly before me is a picture of a youth of about twenty years of age. The eyes dominate the face and hold the gaze of any observer, however casual his glance may be. Tearing my eyes away from those in the picture I notice the boy is dressed in a tuxedo too large for him and is holding a cornet. His bow tie droops disconsolately on both sides of a narrow chin. His hair, parted in the middle, is slicked down close to his head. Musicians and a few others will recognize the picture to be that of "Bix" Beiderbecke, the only immortal which swing music—no, modern music—has thus far created.

The life story of the man can be drawn from the picture of the boy. The hands, the chin and the mouth with its whimsically melancholic droop denote a sensitive nature. The broad forehead and light hair speak of a German ancestry. The untidy appearance of his clothes tell of a complete disregard for person. The circles beneath his eyes and the lines of dissipation along the side of the nose and mouth are just beginning to form as a result of irregular living and early morning jam sessions. Very possibly they foretell the destiny of the man—a short life made shorter by the jealousy of others and alcohol—death at twenty-seven.

As far as I am concerned the eyes make atonement for whatever the rest of the body may have done. The eyes show the heart of the man. They are lighted by a strange will; not an earthly one which would curb personal defects and habits. Rather it is a will and the desire to find the best, the most beautiful form of musical expression. It is a desire to attain an even more beautiful phrase than he had played. The rest of the figure denotes that frustration will be the only result of his search. Frustration and its partner, heartbreak, are already at work on the youth.

In the eyes there is also a pleading look which can be interpreted as a desire for friendship and understanding by a slightly irrational mind. In them is the deep smoldering fire of the poet, artist and dreamer. Somehow they make one feel that his dissipation was not so much a search for a Utopia, perhaps, as a desire to escape from the reality of this world which he abhorred.

There is a hurt look in his appearance, a hurt probably caused by the jealous remarks of fellow musicians. No one could ever phrase a solo as Bix could

He, himself, was not only valiant but magnificent. The critics for the most part sniffed at the offering and advised their readers to lay off. . . .

On the other hand, these same carnivorous fellows, the critics, chirped with glee—as do we—regarding a gentle, hilarious and imaginative comedy called "The Male Animal," written by a brace of ex-Ohio State scholars yclept James Thurber and Elliott Nugent.

It's filled with touches all of you would like—a campus red scare, an amusing incident wherein the dean is scared out of his wits by the sudden return of his wife's ex-love, a one-time football player and items equally close to home.

Bric-a-Brac

Orson Welles can be seen swishing in and out of town week-ends. He plans in from the west coast, invades the night spots, frightens the impressionable out of their wits and flies back to Hollywood to play croquet with Shirley Temple. . . . Ed Wynn, ex-Texaco Fire Chief, is dreaming of a production of "Gone With the Wind" in which he'll play Rhett Butler on the stage, opposite a Scarlett who as a sweet child, used to scamper around the campus of Miami University at Oxford, Ohio. . . . The Vinton Freedley production of "Young Man With a Horn" has been postponed for a spell. This is the opus that will trace the birth of swing, with Burgess Meredith up. . . .

U. V. M. Undergoes Numerous Changes

Only Two College Terms; No Mid-year Exams

A University of Vermont student of a hundred years ago, instead of starting to think about coming back to school from two weeks of Christmas vacation for a three-month grind of classes, would just be looking forward to a two-month lay-off, starting with the first Wednesday of January, 1840. But if this seems like a lot of vacation compared to that allowed the students of 1940, the picture changes when the 1840 catalogue is consulted again, because it seems that this eight-week recess was the longest of the academic year. The only other vacation came after Commencement, which was the first Wednesday in August, and consisted of four weeks. College terms were two only, but they were long. The autumnal term lasted through September, October, November and December. After the two-month cessation of college, the summer term started, continuing through March, April, May, June, and July. The student of 100 years ago had the bugbear of final examinations to anticipate, even as the collegian of today, but the catalogue mentions no mid-years. Check-ups on academic work, however, were apparently as rigorous as any today, for the 1840 catalogue states that "students are examined at the close of each study by the Faculty, and also annually by the Faculty and a Committee, during the three weeks immediately preceding Commencement, in all the studies pursued under the direction of the Faculty." These examinations, continued the catalogue, were intended to be "exact and thorough," and the attainments of every student were "noted and recorded."

Annual Cost is $99

The two-month recess in the winter was convenient for many of the students, who taught district school to earn money for their college expenses. Although these expenses look tiny to the college student of today, in 1840 only 110 students were enrolled for the college course at the University of Vermont. The total annual cost for a student was estimated in the catalogue at $99. This included tuition, $25; upkeep and incidental expenses of classrooms, $5; room rent in the Old Mill building, $4 (for the college year of approximately 40 weeks); and board, at $1.25 to $2 per week, an average of $65. The price of wood was quoted at $2 to $3 a cord, and this was an important item not included in the above estimates, for those students who roomed in the college building had to do their own heating and the high-ceilinged, spacious college rooms took plenty of fuel.

Standardized Curriculum Offered

A college boy in 1840 did not have the numerous choices in course of study available to his counterpart today. The University of Vermont offered what would now be considered a standardized curriculum, and all who enrolled, whether they planned to be ministers, school teachers, doctors or lawyers, followed much the same course. This year's freshman might enter the college of engineering, agriculture or arts and science, and if he were preparing to be a doctor he would look forward to going into the college of medicine after his preparatory work was finished. But the freshman of 1840 had few choices, even in individual courses. In spite of the rigidity of the curriculum, which was universal in American colleges of the period, the University of Vermont was a leader in liberalizing its college studies. Prof. James Marsh, who was in 1840 professor of intellectual and moral philosophy and who had been president previously for seven years, had considerably liberalized the course of study. He had put forward the then surprising idea that even those students who could not afford to take the complete curriculum should be allowed to take part of it. He argued that a partial education was better than none at all, and that it was preferable to get this education at a college, where better equipment and facilities were available, than at an inferior school. He accordingly made it possible for a class of students never before admitted to the University to come in. President Marsh also had another liberal idea about curricula. He thought more rein should be given to individual inclinations and abilities, and that the course of study should be adapted to them. He also believed too much emphasis was laid on textbooks, and not enough on the personal influence of the teacher.

The idea of adapting the college course to the individual was revolutionary at that time. Professor Marsh had already proved it sound by his own college experience. It is told of him as a student at Dartmouth that he with three classmates, one the great classical scholar who was his contemporary at the University of Vermont, Prof. Joseph Torrey, bought a complete classical library, and, independently of their college work, set out to read the whole of it. The record says that the four soon outgrew their tutors, and were early allowed to discontinue class attendances and follow their own more intensive course of study. This was the foundation on which their mastery of classical knowledge was based.

Classics Played Large Part

The 1840 freshman had to conquer algebra, geometry, Herodotus, Greek forms, Livy, Latin forms, and Tacitus. In his second year he had to emerge victor over Tacitus, the Odyssey of Homer, Greek orators, conic sections, plane and spherical trigonometry, surveying, navigation, and differential and integral calculus. For juniors the courses offered were Horace, Thucydides, Statics, dynamics, Latin drama, Greek drama, hydrostatics, hydraulics, chemistry, galvanism and electrical chemistry, magnetism and electrical magnetism. Side courses in elocution and French went along with these. Seniors found waiting for them physiology, psychology, science of logic, crystallography, central forces, astronomy, moral philosophy, principles of government, evidences of natural and revealed religion, metaphysics, principles of rhetoric and fine arts.

Weekly Biblical Instruction

There was Biblical instruction on Sundays throughout the entire course. Private classes, said the catalogue, could be formed during the last two years in the Hebrew, German, Italian, or Spanish languages. Instruction in natural history was given in connection with the college of natural history. Special lectures on varied subjects rounded out the course of study.

PENN STATE COMBINES STUDENT GOVERNMENTS

State College, Pa.—(I.P.)—Students at Pennsylvania State College favor a combination of the men's and women's student governments by a 3 to 1 majority.

More than 1,500 students were "sampled" by the Penn State Collegian, student newspaper, to ascertain their attitude toward women's suffrage. Two-thirds of the voters believe that women students should be allowed a chance to hold class office, denied to them now. The majority of those voting preferred to retain separate men's and women's student councils.

Arthur R. Warnock, dean of men, believes that a combination of the student governments would be good, "providing we did not lose efficiency in either group."

"There are a good many matters in which both groups should be represented," he said, "but we should have separate organizations to take care of the problems specifically involving women and those specifically involving men."

The Woman's Student Government Association at present administers the affairs of women students at Penn State. It is a distinct body from the men's student government.

Public Health Social Not Medical Problem

Governmental expenditures for health could best make use of the splendidly trained and experienced agencies and workers already existing, declared Dean Hardy A. Kemp of the College of Medicine, University of Vermont, in addressing the annual meeting of the Visiting Nurse Association, held January 16 in Burlington. The full assumption of this program by governmental authority, maintained the dean, would but take from our own existence, already fast growing too unheeding and unsympathetic, a duty of service that we in good conscience cannot put aside or pass on to impersonal hands.

National and local health problems are not basically medical but economic and social.

"All the public health work in the world," stated Dean Kemp, "will not correct the economic and sociological difficulties in one little locality."

Public health, asserted the dean, who is an authority in the field of preventive medicine, belongs to and arises from the general welfare. Such non-medical factors as short working hours, good food, healthful housing, better working conditions, adequate playgrounds and parks deserve a substantial share of the credit. The food one eats, the water one drinks, the air he breathes, the streets he rides home on, the milk on his doorstep, declared the dean, are all a part of an efficient health service.

"Doctors have no prescriptions to take to the corner drugstore," said Dean Kemp, "for the relief of ignorance in want or want in ignorance."

Whatever the definition of public health, the need remains—stark, terrifying, compelling—and programs, routines, machines or money alone will never replace the direct relief administered by human heart and hand.
